A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

Five Dollars for One Dollar

With a Guaranteed Dividend of 30 Per Cent.

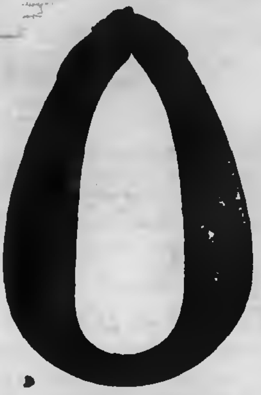
We have just been notified that we have been granted a Patent on the Collar in Great Britain This enhances the assets of this Company greatly, so that in order to meet the demand on it and extend the business in both countries. we have decided to sell 40,000 shares of the Treasury Stock at One Dollar per share, and as the returns will be large from the business we will sell it all under the 30 per cent guarantee.

We must remind investors that this is not all their stock will earn, but they will be entitled to their share of all profits above this.

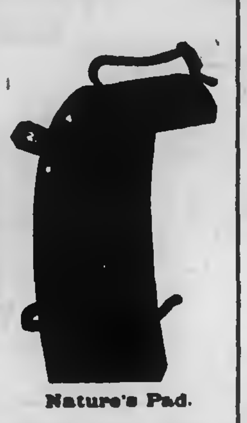
And as this Company will have a complete monopoly of these Collars, the dividends will go far beyond the guaranteed dividend, and beyond all expectation.

NATURE'S FACING FOR HORSE COLLARS.

THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR CO., OF PHILADELPHIA.



Nature's Facing.



Nature's Pad.

Comes before the investing PUBLIC with a BUSINESS PROPOSITION OF UNUSUAL attractiveness. THE COMPANY'S special Claim lies in the ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF HORSE COLLARS, SADDLE PADS, and RIDING HOUSINGS, made with interlaced CURLED HORSE HAIR, which is fully protected by UNITED STATES LETTER PATENTS and other PATENTS now pending also in FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

One of the Company's specialties which has proven far superior to anything of the kind on the market is THE INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR, made of PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR. For years the great want felt by horsemen has been a collar that a horse could wear and be worked in that would keep his shoulders cool; also one that a horse with tender shoulders could wear in the heaviest kind of work without fear of galling. It is almost impossible for a horse to get galled or sore shoulders or sore neck, no matter how tender, when working with this collar, which can be washed with either hot or cold water without injury to it any way. The washing does not stiffen or harden it as it does a lined collar, being faced with the purest kind of curled horse hair. The hair comes in direct contact with the animal's skin, and the hair being porous, allows the healthy action of the skin and flesh. It at once absorbs the sweat, and in hot weather is invaluable, as it prevents the gathering of lather, as is the case with most cloth or feather-faced collars. These collars will outwear a cloth or leather-faced collar, as the hair is practically indestructible. These collars are no experiment. They have been in use for 1 1-2 years, and have proven their merits without the shadow of a doubt. Everyone who has used them can testify to their efficiency. They are admittedly the most common-sense horse collars in the world.

THIS COMPANY IS NOT TRYING TO CREATE, nor is it asking investors for THEIR MONEY to experiment with. We have gone through the experimental stage, and now have Our Articles as near perfection as they can be gotten. The material we are using in the Facings and Cushions of our Collars and Pads is not a New Article, but is the True and Tried Material, PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR, which has defied and has outlived all imitations.

It is the policy of THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR COMPANY to license or re-let the privilege of Facing Collars under their patents to the numerous harness and collar makers in the United States, of which there are over 33,000.

The profits from this source alone will undoubtedly be large, and in a very short time enable the Company to pay large dividends on its Stock. This will increase the value greatly, and will enable those who take advantage of this first-class offer to make well out of their investments.

The Company has already a complete factory in Bridgesburg, a section of the City of Philadelphia, equipped with the latest patterns of machinery for the manufacture of its products, free from all indebtedness.

As Our Articles of production are of the most stable kind, and to thoughtful people articles of necessity, therefore it is necessary that we bring the Articles before the People in general, and in order to do so, we offer to the PUBLIC A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THE TREASURY STOCK (ALL THE STOCK IS COMMON), THEREFORE ALL INVESTORS WILL SHARE EQUALLY AND FULLY OF THE COMPANY'S PROSPERITY.

In order that we may at once push the business forward, for we have an immense field before us, Free from Competition on articles of merit:—

We will sell 40,000 Shares of the Treasury Stock for One Dollar Per Share, after which the sale will be withdrawn and the price will be Five Dollars par.

So positive are the officers of this Company that this business will be a sure success, and yield large returns to the investors, that they will sell the above allotment of stock at the price stated above. and will guarantee a dividend of Six Per Cent. per annum at the least on the par value of the stock for five years.

We will attach ten coupons to the certificates of stock, payable in January and July.

Thus paying 30 per cent. on the investment.

This is a reasonable offer, as large revenues will be derived from the re-letting system, which guarantees us to make the above offer.

Aside from this there will be large profits from the sale of the goods, and from the material furnished those who re-let the system.

The revenues from the business will be such as to make this a first-class investment.

Every dollar from the sale of this stock will go into the treasury of the Company, free from all expenses, and the Business will be conducted on a very conservative and economical basis.

This is not a Stock Speculation Scheme, but it is the intention of the Officers to Establish the Business on a Solid Basis.

After the Business has been extended in the U. S. it is the intention of the Company to extend its Articles at once to the Foreign Markets, from which will be Large Returns, and an immense Business Established.

All subscriptions for stock which shall be in the secretary's hands before the 15th day of August will receive a coupon due January 1st, thus paying six months' guaranteed interest.

Persons wanting to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity will have to do so at once, as all the allotments will be quickly taken up, and no stock can be bought on the market, as none can be had.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A LEADING SADDLERY OF THE U.S.

Office of Buck and Mehlbach,
106 Chambers Street, New York,
Thursday, March 14, 1901.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Philadelphia Pa.:

Gentlemen,—I have your letter of yesterday, wherein you ask me to send you whatever letters of recommendation or approval we may have received, treating on the interlaced hair saddle cloths, etc., since we have been handling them—now about one and one-half years.

Whatever letters there are of this kind I have not kept separately, and they are, therefore, mixed up with the rest of our filed letters. But, as I told you, my own testimony should be sufficient for intelligent people—for I appreciated the value of interlaced hair for the purpose of saddle cloths, etc., long before I knew you, and at first sight of the cloth—and I am about twenty-five years in the business—I have since, as you know, marketed a great many of them to riders all over this country—South America, Cuba, etc. As you know, we are dealing with the most intelligent people, and when a mining engineer, for instance, tells you: "I have now used so many of these hair cloths, and they keep my horse's back free from sores, while formerly I was constantly troubled with them," and then of his own volition orders another lot, that is good evidence in favor of the Interlaced Hair System—is it not? The Interlaced Hair does everything felt and other like materials do not do. It is elastic, it is cool, it does not pack, it can easily be cleansed, and keeps its shape. For harness pads it is surely as good as for saddle cloths, while applied in the manufacture of horse collars it is simply ideal; and I surely wish you plenty of success in your undertaking, for your article deserves it.

Very truly yours,
WM. C. C. MEHLBACH.

FROM HALPEN, GREEN & CO.

Wholesale Grocers, Nos. 13 S. Front St. and 17 Letitia St.
Philadelphia, December 28th, 1901.

The American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg. Pa.:

Gentlemen,—Referring to the collars which we bought of you something like six months ago, we desire to say that our stableman advises us that they are giving great satisfaction. Would recommend and advise horse owners to use them, especially for heavy hauling.

Yours truly,
HALPEN, GREEN AND CO.

FROM A ROUGH RIDER.

Coatesville, Pa., December 18, 1900.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of the 15th instant, I have resigned my position with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, but I cannot speak too highly of the Interlaced Curled Hair Riding Housings. This is the first thing of the kind we ever used that would keep horses' backs from getting sore. The sample that was given us for the English Soldiers, they claim they never used anything in their cavalry to equal it, and the cowboys, the acknowledged horsemen of the world, claim it the best housings ever used under a saddle, as it absorbs all perspiration and moisture, so that the air can pass through to cool the backs.

I will refer your letter to the company at once, also will send you size wanted for cowboy saddle, as I wish one of your housings for my own use on the western ranges, which will enable me to introduce them, as I take a great interest in the welfare of horses.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BURCH,
Chief of Buffalo Bill's Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

FROM A CAVALRY LIEUTENANT

Camp Detachment, 2nd U. S. Cavalry,
Matanzas, Cuba, February 27th, 1900.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Interlaced Hair Saddle Cloth for sixteen months, and am now prepared to say something of its merits, but can find nothing to say to its detriment.

It is necessary in the cavalry service to save one's horse as much as possible, and particularly his back. Your saddle cloth keeps the horse's back cool, and keeps down the humps that will generally appear after a long, hot ride.

I have used it in Arizona, and during the recent war in Cuba, and am still using it; it has seen some hard service and stood it mighty well.

Yours,
S. M. KOCHERSPERGER,
Lieutenant 2nd Cavalry.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES IN A PITIFUL CONDITION

At Outbreak of South African War 10,000 of Them Left the Boers

Compensation for the Burghers—Great Difficulty in Getting Their Claims Settled—The British in Persia

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 2 According to accounts published in the Russian press, says an Odessa correspondent, the condition of the Russia refugees at Cape Town is most pitiful. At the outbreak of hostilities in South Africa 10,000 Russians left the Boer Republics. During the war all their savings were exhausted and now they are destitute and unable to return to their positions. The plight of Russains is said to be partly due to the unsympathetic attitude of the so-called Russian Consuls at Cape Town and Johannesburg, who are even ignorant of the Russian language. The Cape Town fugitives intend to forward a position to the British authorities.

REAL TEST OF GERMAN ARMY.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 3—Commenting on the toasts offered by Emperor William and King Victor Emmanuel at the recent banquet at Potsdam, Temps, in an article quoted by a Paris correspondent, says: "Frenchmen need not take umbrage at Emperor William's assertion that the Triple Alliance has been renewed in its force. The paper recalls Von Moltke's saying that the value of our army will only be known when it is beaten. It says the same thing is true of the Dreibund, the real strength of which only can be known when it is tested." "One fact is suggestive," says Temps. "Emmanuel has visited St. Petersburg, not Vienna."

CLAIMS OF THE BURGHER.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 2— A Pretoria correspondent says that burghers who surrendered in the earlier part of the war, and gave up their stock to the military in exchange for receipts are finding the greatest difficulty in getting their claims settled by the military authorities, whose system of compensation is conducted on the strictest pettifogging lines. Until their direct claims are settled the burghers are not supposed to be entitled to apply for general compensation out of the £3,000,000 appropriated for this purpose. The distribution of that sum is administered by civil authorities. Thus Boers who surrended early are likely to fare worse than those who continued fighting. The correspondent suggests that the civil authorities take over the military claims and conduct the whole business through one organization, debiting the War Office with those claims obviously belonging to the military. He adds that the existence of two organisations has in some cases been the cause of injustice to burghers, and in others of fraud against the Government.

ASSRUANCES TO RHODESIA.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 2 — A Cape Town correspondent says that three directors of the British Chartered Company —Alfred Belt, Mitchell, and Dr. Jameson—will proceed in a short time to Rhodesia to discuss local political affairs with the people. It is believed the directors are in a postiion to assure the people of Rhodesia that their interests will not be overlooked when the time arrives for the general adjustment of the political system of South Africa.

BRITISH INFLUENCE MAY WANE.

Special to The Times.

London Sept. 2— Novoe Vermya, in an article quoted by an Odessa correspondent, comments on a recent editorial in The Times on Great Britain, Russia and Persia. He says that the British wrongly think their role in South Persia is the same as the Russian role in the north of that country. Whether or not Great Britain admits that North Persia is exclusively within the Russian sphere of influence is a matter of indifference to Russia, because such influence is founded on contiguity to Russian territory. "But," says Novoe Vreyma, "Great Britain cannot say the same regarding Southern Persia; though for the moment Great Britain plays the leading role there, it is possible the Germans will deprive her in a few years of a considerable portion of her influence." The article says that with the completion of the Bagdad Railway, and its exit at Koweit, British prestige in Southern Persia may fail completely.

SPRIGG WILFULLY COMMITTED HIMSELF

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 3A Cape Town correspondent, commenting upon Sir Gordon Sprigg's reply at the reception of the loyal Dutch delegation, says the Premier lost a great opportunity and wilfully committed himself in the eyes of loyal colonists, for though he poses as a champion of British interests, he rated for their loyalty those Dutch, who, on appeal, took up arms in defence of the colony, and now ask protection against the consequences of their action. Delegates, says the correspondent, will go home without hope of any redress or protection from the constitutional ministry.

HUNGARY NATIONAL FESTIVAL.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 2—The correspondent of The Times at Vienna says the anniversary of Kossuth's birth, September 19, is to be celebrated as a nationall festival throughout Hungary the Hungary Independent party, of which Louis Kossuth, son of Francis, is leader. It is not expected that ministers of the Government will participate officially in the celebraton.

GREATEST INSULTER OF CHRIST.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 3.—A Paris despatch says the Vicar of Treugier protests against the proposed statue of Renan, whom he calls "the greatest insulter of Christ, the unfrocked blasphemer, who like Judas, enriched himself by betraying his God, and died in mire."

THE SECRET OF BOER SUCCESS NOW OUT

An Official of the Cape Colony Government Betrays the British.

Seals the Secret Ministerial Code Book and Sends it to Steyn at Bloemfontein

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 3.—It will be remembered during the progress of the war in South Africa, it was a matter of general comment that the Boers must have had excellent sources of information, for they were always able to forestall any move of the British forces in a manner which clearly indicated treachery.

The reason of this wonderful perspicuity of the Boers has come to light in a rather remarkable way. In the correspondence concerning the siege and relief of Ladysmith, recently brought down in a Parliamentary paper to the British House of Commons, is a communication from Sir George White in Ladysmith to General Buller in command of the relief forces, in which Sir George White complains that the enemy learned every plan of operation he formed; that he could not discover the source, though he had every suspect locked up, and had still undoubted evidences of betrayal. Almost concurrently with the publication of this correspondence comes the news that Dr. T. W. Smart, ex-Commissioner of Public Works in the Cape Government, has made the definite charge on the floor of the Legislature, that an official of the Government, Mr. Teewater, at the outbreak of the war, sent the secret Ministerial code book, of which there were only three copies, to ex-President Steyn at Bloemfontein.

This gives some idea of the way in which the Boers acquired their wonderful perspicuity regarding the movements of the British forces. It's more than likely this was the code book used by White and Buller, and if so the Boers had only to watch the heliograph messages day and night and to know about every move the British made both inside and outside Ladysmith.

WHERE WOMEN ARE BADLY NEEDED

GREAT SCARCITY OF THE FEMALE SEX IN CONQUERED REPUBLIC

There is a Shortage of Nearly Seventy Thousand Females—Women are Greatly Needed

London, Sept. 4.—South Africa presents an inviting field for women who are weary of single blessedness, for there is a great shortage of the ones in that part of the world. The deficiency of women in Cape Colony in 1891, amounted to 14,865, so far as can be learned the excess in numbers of white males over white females in British South Africa is represented in the following table:

Cape Colony	15,000
Natal	5,000
Orange River Colony	3,000
Transvaal	43,000
Rhodesia	3,000
Total shortage of females	69,000

"In a population of whites only numbering about 300,000 in all, this deficiency in women seems at first sight almost incredible," says a writer, "and it is more remarkable and deplorable, in as much as beyond a doubt the greater part of the deficiency exists among the British section of the population." It seems that about one man in every four British in South Africa could never hope to find a wife, whether Dutch or English, before the war. The actual disproportion in the immediate future will be far greater.

No scheme of Anglification in South Africa, the writer points out, can be effective which neglects the inevitable consequence of a lack of women. The Boer women are gaining upon the British at the rate of about 1,000 a year. If an organization were created which would insure the despatch of 3,000 women from the United Kingdom each year, 1,000 would be set off against the natural increase of the Boer women and the remaining 2,000 would go toward filling up the shortage which exists and this would be accomplished in thirty-five years, or one generation.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

New York, Aug. 30.—In view of the increase of Catholics in the United States the Pope has decided, according to a World despatch from Rome, to create another American cardinal in order to re-establish the equilibrium in the sacred college.

It has been pointed out to him that whereas Great Britain and Ireland with six million Catholics, have two representatives, and even Australia, with hardly one million, has a Cardinal, thirteen millions of American Catholics have only one Cardinal, Gibbons.

It is considered certain that Archbishop Ireland will get the Red Hat.

London, Sept. 2.—W. O. Steadman's presidential address at the Trades Union Congress to-day was pessimistic in tone and included a general denunciation of the present Government's reactionary measures, such as the Education bill, the sugar tax, and the grain tax, which he described as being an endeavor to permanently relieve the rich at the expense of the poor. Mr. Steadman denied that trades unionism was destructive to British commercial supremacy, as charged by the London Times and other papers. The only means by which the working people could hope to secure relief from their burdens was, Mr. Steadman added, to constitute themselves a great political force.

During the consideration of the Parliamentary Committee's report a motion to omit referring to the Coronation of King Edward, on the ground that the references to monarchial institutions were out of place in a labor assembly, was defeated by a vote of 162 to 60. An amendment declaring that the South African war was unjust was carried by a vote of 176 to 136.

Liverpool, Aug. 30—Advices received by the African Royal Mail steamer report that Monrovia was the scene of an interesting episode of considerable importance at Liberia. This was the landing at Cape Mount of Jam Bi, the noted cannibal chief who for thirty years has been fighting against the Liberians, causing endless trouble, and through whom hundreds of people have been killed.

Owing to his recent activity the Government decided to send an expedition to capture Jam Bi. His Brothers and family promised to assist, and guaranteed his capture in eight days if supplied with arms and ammunition. This condition being fulfilled, the capture was affected within the time specified. In the fight Jam Bi had his left arm disabled, and was shot through the right knee. After he was captured thirteen black warriors from Bo Weeme—another powerful man of troublesome proclivities —arrived on present for Jam Bi, the two chiefs intending to join together against the Liberians. The coalition was, of course, prevented. A special commissioner was sent by the Liberian government to meet the Kings of the Tay Wau country to arrange for the conveyance of the prisoners, who were brought to Monrovia in charge of Commissioner W. Miles. Jam Bi's sword was handed to President Gibson at Monrovia, and his revolver was kept by Acting Governor R. Marshall.

WILL STARVE OR PERISH

Peculiar Religious Mania Among 4,000 Doukhobors.

Winnipeg, Sept. 3— "Fully 4,000 Doukhobors, who settled in the Yorkton District, N.W.T., will starve or freeze to death, or be on the verge of starvation this year if the Dominion Government does not take active steps to prevent their present religious mania from going further."

This statement was made to The News correspondent who has personally investigated the strange mania of the foreigners by a man who is prominent in all the leading enterprises in the Yorkton District.

The News correspondent traveled through a wide area settled by the Doukhobors. He found that a religious mania, the like of which has perhaps never been seen in this country, has possessed the people and made them completely oblivious to the severe winter ahead of them.

Their fields were lying idle, although as a rule they had good harvests, and their horses and cattle were running at large through them sleek and fat.

One of their interpreters whom The News correspondent spoke to said: "We had been offered money for our cattle, but we will not sell. They belong to God, not us. Since coming to your country God has shown us new light. Any work we will have to do, He will help us. The lower animals are our servants, and we will not use them or use any product from them"

"Do you not fear the winter coming on," he was asked.

"No,' was the reply. "God will provide for us."

Nearly every one of the Doukhobors seen was clad in the lightest of cotton garments. They would afford no protection from an October breeze, to say nothing of a severe winter blast; and they say they will wear no other. In many of the houses visited a bag of flour was the only food visible.

The Doukhobors will eat a few vegetables, but only on few instances had they ever brought them into their homes. Men originally strong were gaunt, hungry wrecks and I was informed that on a recent trip into Yorkton for flour a dozen big men harnessed like mules to a heavy wagon almost fell by the roadside through exhaustion and starvation.

"The attempt by the Dominion Government to help these people has apparently had no effect. How it will end will probably be told when the intense cold of that district sets in.

Responsible men in that district interviewed by the News correspondent, said that if the mania does not abate before October hundreds will be mere physical wrecks before January on account of lack of clothing, and little food.

The Dominion immigration authorities here refuse to discuss the situation, although they confess it is very serious.

OPENED A BANK

What Can be Done with Seven Dollars when Put to the Test

Elnora, Ind., Sept. 3.—What can be done with seven dollars? In these days of multi-millionaires and billionaires and trusts and mergers, there is a disposition to despise a capital of seven dollars.

Last April Mr. Pleasant Durham arrived at the little town of Elnora, Ind., carrying with him all his worldly possessions, consisting of the clothes he wore, a dress suit case, a sunny smile and seven dollars. He looked all round for opportunities for investment and finally decided that what Elnora needed most was a bank. Mr. Durham rented the biggest brick building in town, ordered a safe and some secondhand furniture from Chicago, and put a sign on the door bearing the words "Bank of Elnora." Having some difficulty in opening the safe, the new banker called upon one of the leading business men of Elnora and asked him as a favor to take charge for one night of a sealed package marked "$10,000." The good man was naturally proud of his trust, and did not fail to talk about it. Deposits came in freely, and when Mr. Pleasant Durham left Elnora on Monday he took with him $10,000 and left in the safe two two-cent stamps and some notes. But Elnora's recollections of Pleasant are anything but pleasing. The moral is—but hold on, the moral seems to have got twisted.

As the season for typhoid fever and other infectious diseases has set in people cannot be too careful about the sanitary condition of their wells and also the purity of the milk used in their families. In this connection it is urgently requested that physicians would promptly report to the Health Officers so that the officers of the Board of Health may use all the means in their power to check such diseases.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ESCAPES DEATH.

Was Bruised and Scratched in a Wreck Caused by a Trolley Car

A Member of His Bodyguard was Killed

Others Seriously Injured—Motorman and Conductor Under Arrest

Special to The Times.

Pittsfield, Mass. Sept. 3—President Roosevelt on this last day of his tour of New England, narrowly escaped death or serious injury in an accident near this city, in which one of his body guard, Secret Service Agent William Craig was killed outright and D. J. Pratt the driver of the coach occupied by President Roosevelt, Governor Crane, Secretary Cortelyou; and Mr. Craig, sustained a fractured skull, which it is feared will result fatally. The coach, which was a regulation tally-ho vehicle, was struck by an electric car on the Pittsfield and Lennox street railway at about 9.30 o'clock this forenoon. The accident happened at a point about a mile and a half from this city near the Pittsfeild country clubhouse, while the President and his party were enjoying a coaching trip from Dalton, Governor Crane's home, where the President spent the night, to Lenox, a distance of about 20 miles over the Berkshire Hills The car was in charge of Conductor James Kelly, with motorman Luke J. Madden on the front platform.

STRUCK THE COACH.

The car struck the coach in the rear and smashed the back of the vehicle, tipping it over, and throwing its occupants to the ground. The car was not badly damaged. Motorman Madden and Conductor Kelly were at once arrested and brought to Pittsfield Pratt, the driver of the coach, also was brought here and placed in the Pittsfield Hospital.

The President, who in falling from the coach sustained only slight bruises and a few scratches, and Secretary George B. Cortelyou, who suffered in a manner similar to the President, with the exception that he was cut on the head, with the other members of the party, went to the country club near by, where their wounds were dressed. In a short time they proceeded to the Curtis Hotel at Lenox, arriving there at 11 o'clock. The President sent a courier ahead requesting the people to refrain from cheering. After a brief stop here he was driven to the train. In the carriage next the President when the accident happened was Dr. G. A. Lung, of the navy, who accompanied for just such emergencies as this, and who was promptly on hand to render assistance to the President. But the President was disinclined to receive medical attention, saying he was but slightly hurt.

CUTS IN HIS CHIN.

A witness of the accident stated that the motorman was speeding his car in order to reach the club The President, Governor Crane, and Secretary Cortelyou were piled up in a heap. The awe-stricken crowd which witnessed the accident rushed to the President's carriage, but with no expectation that he would be found alive The President was cut on the right side of his chin, and his face is swollen. He is also suffering from severe bruises. The President retained his complete composure, although he was solicitous for the rest of those in the carriage. The excitement was intense and rumors flew thick and fast that the President had been killed.

SMASHED TO PIECES.

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 3 — A terrible accident overtook the President's coach a short distance from Pittsfeil about 10 o'clock this morning. After a short visit to the home of ex-Senator Dawes, the President started on the long drive to Lenox. He had not gone far when an electric car run into them throwing everyone to the ground, and badly damaging the coach. The President received a cut in the head, Governor Crane was bruised. William Craig, the Secret Service man, was able to resume his journey to Lenox but sent word ahead that there should be no cheering.

After leaving Senator Dawes' house the four carriages containing the President and his immediate party were driven down South street, two carriages on either side. When near the country club, and at the railroad crossing, an electric car was noticed coming at a terrific rate of speed. Mr. Craig signalled the motorman to stop, but he apparently paid no attention to the warning and the car came plunging on. The President's carriage was literally smashed to pieces.

Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 3 — The trolley car came up behind the President's carriage at terrific speed. The carriage was struck as it was crossing the tracks diagonally, Craig, while standing up in the effort to warn the trolley car back, was knocked from the box to the track and the car passed over him, killing him instantly. The carriage was knocked to one side and wrecked The President was thrown out, and the wreck of the carriage fell against him. He was picked up bleeding from a cut on the right cheek, but he was able to get on his feet at once. Secretary Cortelyou was unconscious when picked up. He was badly hurt on the back of the head and cut on the face, but soon recovered enough to ask for the President. Governor Crane was badly bruised. Representative Lawrence was the least hurt of any of the party in the President's carriage. The driver of the carriage, D. Pratt, was very badly hurt.

More Trouble in South Africa

London, Sept. 3.—The aftermath of the war in South Africa is slowly closing in over Cape Colony. The Legislature is in the hands of the Afrikander Bond, composed of disloyal Dutch, who have not been taught the drastic lesson of their fellow-countrymen of the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal.

This is the direct result of the lifting of martial law and the restoration of representative government to the colony. The loyalists are up in arms, and openly assert that the existing condition of affairs is placing a premium on disloyalty and rebellion.

It was Great Britain's duty to give these people a chance to do the right thing. They are having that chance now, and they are doing the right thing.

There will be a time however, when patience and forbearance will cease to be a virtue and the iron heel of the parent power will quickly descend upon the rebellious colonists in a manner they little expect.

CANADA'S TRADE

Some of the Peculiarities of The Existing Tariff Agreement

Ottawa, Sept 3—Under Imperial treaty any further tariff concessions which Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleague, the Minister of Finance, many be disposed to give France for the encouragement of trade between this country and the French Republic must also extend to the Argentine Republic, Austria-Hungary, Bolivia, Colombia, Sweat, Russia, Salvador, Sweden and Norway and probably to Spain as well These are the countries with which the Mother Country has treaties for the admission of her products at minimum tariff rates

It folllows then that if Sir Wilfrid and Mr Fielding were ready to enlarge the scope of the French treaty for a reciprocal favor from France, we must let in Austria, Spanish, Russian, and goods from other countries with whom Britain has commercial treaties without any further tariff concessions from these later than we now enjoy The commercial arrangement in force between this country and France today gives us the advantage of minimum duty rate in France, Algeria, and the French colonies, on a named list of articles including lumber, boots and shoes, furniture and pulp

In return for this concession Canada gives a reduction of one-half in the duty on castile soap, non-sparkling wines containing not over 20 per cent of alcohol and all sparkling wines are exempt from the 30 per cent ad valorem surtax Nuts, almonds, prunes and plums are also given by the original treaty a cut of one-third On nuts, the only article on this list that we realily import in quantity from France, this means a duty of two cents a pound, as against five cents and three cents against other countries To obtain the minimum tariff rate Canadian goods for France must be sent to that country by direct shipment, that is to say, they cannot be held in bond in any intermediate country but on the other hand French goods, by whatever ways they reach Canada, are accorded the cut, as long as a certificate is given of their French origin This is a point, which the Premier might possibly be able to clear up in our favor, so that the same freedom might be given in the despatch of our goods to France as of theirs to Canada There is of course room for a widening list of the Canadian exports subject to the minimum tariff rate in France

No hint has yet been received here as to the possible success of the negotiation which Sir Wilfrid and Mr Fielding are reported to be engaged in.

1,060 Killed

Castries, St Lucia, Sept. 3—The zone of destruction of Saturday night's eruption of Mont Pelee paralleled that which destroyed St Pierre, but it spread some five miles more eastward The projection of destructive matter southward from Mont Pelee was almost identical with that of last May, The area embraced Morne Rouge, the souther spur of Mont Pelee The inhabitants were removed from this area and also from the villages of Lorrain and Basse Pointe at the base of Mont Pelee, after the May catastrophe, but they were sent back by the Government last week

The gendarmerie of Martinique officially reports that 1,060 persons were killed and that 150 were injured War ships and steamers are taking the inhabitants from the coast villages, where people from inland places have also gathered for safety

Survivors who have reached Fort de France describe the eruption as being the most violent yet experienced The detonations were heard at the Island of St Kitts

The St Vincent volcano, the Soufriere, was in eruption simultaneously Awful detonations were heard along the Southern Islands to Trinidad At St Lucia, 10 miles from either volcano, no tremors were felt, and no detonations were heard, though the eruptions were distinctly visible from here

SHARK IN THE CANAL

Ten-Footer Said to Have Been Captured at Hastings

What is decidedly the best fish story of the season was told the Times yesterday by Mr. James R. Watson, who has been cruising on Rice Lake. Mr. Watson says that the monster fish, which had evidently worked its way up from the ocean, was in the lock, and would no doubt have got through all right, but for the fact that it was struck by the propeller blade of the steamer which was in the lock at the time. The monster floated on its back and was soon captured. Mr. Henry Johnston, the well known local capitalist, purchased the fish and is having it put through the hands of the taxidermist. The shark measured nine feet nine and a quarter inches from nose to tip of its tail. Our informant says that any who doubt the above are at liberty to write to Art Spellman, the genial proprietor of the Clarendon House at Hastings, who can furnish a photograph of the monster, if necessary. His majesty had evidently heard about the great Trent Valley Canal, and was making a survey of it.

GENERAL FRENCH PAID A VISIT TO WATERLOO

Was Conducted Over the Field by an Old British Soldier

Brussels, Sept. 3.—General French, who made such a reputation for himself as a cavalry leader, in the South African war, had paid a visit to the battlefield of Waterloo. He visited the famous churchyard and monument with his aide-de-camp, and, after walking at the foot of the Mound of the Belgian Lion, inspected the battlefield, including the Hougomont Farm.

The general was conducted by an old British soldier—sergeant Little, late of the Scottish Borderers. Other English tourists were there, but none suspected the general's identity. On leaving, General French, after giving a fee to sergeant Little, divulged his identity. The sergeant blushed, bowed, and wanted to return the fee, the honor of knowing General French, being, he considered, sufficient reward.

General French returned to Brussels and left an hour later for Ostend.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTIONS IN FRANCE

In spite of considerable popular sympathy awakened by the nunneries and monastic institutions of France, the Combes administration has not hesitated in relentlessly pursuing its policy of bringing the religious orders, or associations, as the French call them, under the supervision of the state. There have been disturbances in many places, a hostile demonstration in Paris, and a general resistance to the enforcement of the law, but the Premier and his colleagues have shown no signs of weakening, nor have they publicly made any attempts to effect a compromise. The world has consequently been treated, as the Toronto Mail puts it, to the spectacle of a Roman Catholic country driving religious orders from its territory, and preventing others from giving instruction to the young. This campaign, which is foolishly attributed by some to the machinations of the Free Masons, and by others to the Socialists, has its origin in political reasons. The influence of the orders is alleged by the Government to be inimical to the Republic. The wealth which they accumulate, as well as the industrial pursuits in which they engage, are claimed to be a burden to the people. In the last conflict with them, in 1880, the orders were dissolved and expelled, but subsequently obtained permission to return. Though a more moderate course was pursued by M. Waldeck-Rousseau, it has proved nearly as drastic. By the Law of Associations, adopted in 1901 by the Chamber of Deputies, all religious organizations are required to declare their objects, the contracts by which their members are associated, and to apply for a license from the Government. Fines are imposed for failure to observe the law, to be supplemented, if necessary, by imprisonment, while the funds of the orders are liable to confiscation, and applied to a workingman's pension fund.

At the time the law went into operation there were 16,468 religious institutions in France, with 170,000 workers, clerical and lay, male and female. About ten thousand institutions made application for licenses; the balance either disposed of their estates and fled, or determined to resist the enforcement of the law. The latter were principally female orders, and were devoted to the education of the young. Those who have complied with the law are educating about two million children; those being suppressed had 150,000 pupils. It is therefore a minority of the scholastic institutions that are openly at war with the government. They have evidently relied on the fact that they do a necessary work as well as on their popularity with the people, to prevent extreme measures from being taken against them. In that respect they have evidently deceived themselves, for the government shows no sign of abating one jot or tittle of its drastic measures.

Meantime the relations between France and the Vatican have been subjected to a severe strain, and if a religious issue was raised the Church would be more than ever disposed to use its influence against the Republic.

At this distance from the scene we are not in a position to express an opinion regarding the wisdom of the course pursued by the government. At the point of view of this country it looks like persecution and would undoubtedly be so regarded if attempted in any part of the Dominion, but what we cannot understand is how any portion of our French-Canadian fellow citizens, who are so tenacious of their religious privileges, of this continent, should desire closer political relations with a country, even though it be the land of the birth of their forbears, which persistently tramples on rights that they here consider to be dearer to them than life itself, or what delight they can take in honoring the flag of a nation that permits so gross an injustice to be perpetrated in preference to the flag beneath the folds of which their rights and privileges are so unscrupulously guarded. This is an anomaly which we do not pretend to understand, and which we have never yet seen explained.

EXPORT FLOUR, NOT WHEAT

A Canadian steamship last week brought 70,000 bushels of wheat from the elevators at Fort William to Point Edward, there to be shipped into cars for export to Europe. This is but a sample of the cargo on which our lake shipping and the railways thrive, to the infinite loss of the country. This wheat is so much raw material which ought to be manufactured in Canada, for the benefit of labor and the replenishment of the land by the waste product thereby retained. Mr. James Hill was asked recently if the ships of the Great Northern Railway would carry Washington wheat to the Orient. He said no; they would carry flour instead. He advised the people of that State to grind their wheat, and make the profit out of the work, rather than let the Chinamen have it. This remark is quoted by the Commercial West with approval. "The European has no more business with our wheat than the Chinaman," it declares. It continues: "If it were possible to ship grapes from France to America, to be made into wine in this country, what would the people of France say should the railroads encourage the exportation of grapes instead of wine? Such a question hardly needs an answer. Yet it is a parallel case. Every bushel of wheat raised in this country, could be made into flour in this country, and it should be. It is a poor business policy to export a pound of raw material. Furthermore, the farmer will never receive a full price for his wheat while Liverpool dictates the price on 700,000,000 bushels raised by reason of a few million bushels being exported. Neither the European nor the Chinaman has any business with our wheat."

The argument thus advanced is endorsed by the press of the Canadian North-West. It is equally applicable to Canada, which should as far as possible manufacture the wheat which it produces and export the products. Yet the Commercial West, which points out the advisability of grinding United States wheat in the United States is anxious that Canada should export her wheat to the United States, to be there ground and from there shipped to the English and other markets. If that were done it would be to the advantage of the United States, but would be unprofitable to Canada. It would mean that United States labor and United States capital would be making a profit which belongs to Canada and which could be earned as advantageously in Canada as in the United States. It would also aid the United States to gain control of the Canadian crop, and would tend to put the Canadian farmer in the hands of an American milling combine. Canadian wheat should be ground as far as possible in Canada itself, and the United States must not be allowed to control the Canadian wheat crop.

Sleeping Beauties.

"I've heard tell of some pretty hard sleepers in my day," said my landlord the other day, "but I never met anything to come up to the performance of a servant gal we had here some years back. She was a mighty good worker, and in my opinion used to get that thired afore turnin' in that she could ha' slept for a week if we hadn't changed her mind for her in the mornin'. If it hadn't been for the muscle she spread over her work we wouldn't ha' kept her a day; but decent gals is hard to get these times, and we put up with her for a good while on that account. After she'd been with us about a week, and had got into the habit of droppin' down to breakfast about eleven, we thought we'd settle the matter by buyin' her one of them alarum clocks that'll generally ring the inside of your head dry in half a minute if you're a plain, ordinary sleeper. But that didn't answer anyhow. The first mornin' the machine went off we heard it so plain downstairs that I had to get up and run out into the garden to dodge the ringing; but Sairey she comes down about eleven o'clock as usual, merely remarkin' that she was afraid she'd overslept herself and had a lovely dream about the old home, where the church bells was a-ringin', which was a sign of a weddin', she said. This sort of discouraged us a little, but, as I said, we didn't like to part with the gal on that account, through her bein' that industrious when she were awake. For a little while the wife she took to goin' up and handlin' the gal personally about seven o'clock in the morning. She used to have to haul the gal out o' bed, hand over hand, as you might say, and stand her up agin the wall till she come to gradually. But after a while the wife she got tired o' that, so we had to invent something less troublesome. By and by I got an idea. I sawed off the leg of the gal's bedstead, which were a little wooden one, and then fixed the leg on again, so that by pullin' a piece of cord I could bring the leg away and let the whole thing down pretty rapid like. We passed the cord under her door down to our bedroom, and in the morning, when it was time to get her up, all I had to do was to pull the rope and the gal 'ud bounce off on to the floor. The girl herself was most anxious to do the square thing by us, and it upset her more'n anything to think she couldn't wake up like an ordinary person; and for a week or so she rather enjoyed the excitement. But they say custom 'll harden you to pretty well anything, and by and by the girl got so that she could be jumped out o' bed and rolled under the wardrobe without so much as even movin' in her sleep of her own accord; and it was only when she happened to hit a chair or something going along that she'd lose the thread of a dream, as it were, and start a fresh chapter.

"Soon after that I had occasion to go up in the city on business, when a feller showed me a patent bed he'd invented that was calculated to wake up anything short of a corpse. All you had to do was to wind all the wheels up at night and fix a little clockwork arrangement at the hour you wanted the machinery to begin, and the bed did the rest. It was really a wonderful bit of machinery, and, you might say, almost human. As soon as you woke up you had to press a little button and the works 'ud calm down. It wouldn't ha' done for anybody who wasn't conscientious, 'cause they could stop the show and drop off again; but I knew our gal was all right, and 'ud be only too glad of a chance to get up in fairish time. So I ordered one of these beds to be sent home, and the next day I went back myself to set it in working order. I didn't get home till late and the wife was asleep, so I just turned in myself, and reckoned it 'ud do to attend to the bed the followin' mornin'.

"I don't suppose I'd been asleep more'n an hour or so when the wife wakes me up hurriedly like and says, 'Jim!' she says, 'hark, there's burglars in mother's room!'

"'Whose mother's room?' I says, thinkin' she must be talkin' in her sleep.

"'I didn't tell you,' says she, gaspin' for breath. 'Mother come down on a visit last night, and I gave her the new bed you sent down, which I'd had put in the spare room. What's that? Hark, Jim! They're murderin' of her!'

"I see how it was at once. The bed hadn't been fixed for any particular time, and the works had just been allowed to drop into line promiscuous-like. It were about two o'clock in the morning, and, to judge by the sounds from the spare room, the old lady was havin' rather a lively time. She warn't no particular friend of mine, the old lady warn't, so I thought perhaps the experience might be a bit healthy for her anyhow, and it 'ud give us a chance to test the apparatus. However, I explained the whole thing to the wife, and told her to run in and tell her mother to press the button and stop the works. When she opened the door we could hear the old lady shriekin' for the police about as hard as she could go, and as soon as the wife could get a light she see the bed waltzing round the room on its hind legs, with her mother hangin' on to it, pretty well craned. I thought then it was about time to dispense with ceremony and go stop the thing myself. I slips on my dressing-gown, and had just got to the door when the bed charges across the landin' and as near as anything missed runnin' me down. Of course, I was after it in a minute, but it had a couple of seconds start, and I'm a poor sprinter anyhow. When it got to the top of the stairs I see there was a couple of wheels on it, and on them wheels it rolls smoothly down the whole flight, through the kitchen at the end, and brings up close agin the pump in the wash'us. Then a kind of claw arrangement shot out, gripped the pump-handle, and started workin' it. I got there just in time to press the button and stop the performance. If I'd been a half a minute later I reckon the old lady would have pretty well had the skin washed off of her. Thinking the matter over afterwards, I reckoned that the bed supplied us with too much for the money, and I sent it back, and gave the girl a month's notice instead. Still, there was one thing about it: when mother-in-law comes to see us now, she's pretty careful not to sleep in the house."—"Pick-Me-Up."

STOCK MARKETS

Brilliant Market Prospects

New York, Sept. 3.—The bullish contingents have the market well in hand. The great bugaboo of money stringency is losing its effectiveness as a bogy now that it is generally understood that the money market will be looked after by the banking interests and by the Governments. We thoroughly explained the resources of the banks and the methods of borrowing money from abroad when urging our clients to buy stocks to get the profits which would rapidly be made. By so doing the market has done just as outlined in these letters for the past three months. We now say to buy and buy freely, to do so will be to place yourself in a position to reap vast profits. Cliques are booming their favorites. Additional support will come to the market daily by the return of speculators and investors from their summer holidays, and prices will advance with frequent reactions due to profit taking.

What to buy, you ask. It is a period when you can purchase most any stock and be almost certain of making good profits. It is probably a good idea to distribute your purchasing power over four or five stocks so as to be interested in different kinds. Your chances will thus be better for catching some of the more active issues, as the market moves in groups, one kind moving up to-day, another kind to-morrow. We suggest as a selection one Trunk, one Pacific stock, either Union Pacific or Southern Pacific, one coaler, either one of the Reading or Erie issues, or O. W. or B. & O: one granger, either Paul Atchison or M. O. P., and a lower grade issue such as Wabash, Texas, Kt. etc.; while to finish out your line take on one or two industrials. This will distribute your holdings nicely, and you will be pretty apt to have on hand each day some stock that has recorded a good upward move. It is advisable to thus distribute your market interest rather than to have it entirely in one stock. From every point that one views the market at present the outlook is most bright, while Wall street's greatest powers are arrayed upon the side of enhancing values. Margin up liberally and purchase freely and we believe you will do well.

MR. ARTHUR WHITE TO RETIRE

It is Said That He will Leave the Service of the Grand Trunk Railway

It is understood that Mr. Arthur White, division freight agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, formerly of Peterborough, with headquarters at Toronto, is shortly to retire from the service of the company. Mr White was recently granted leave of absence on account of ill health, and has been away at St. Andrews, New Brunswick. No official announcement has been made of the retirement of Mr. White, and the announcement will be received with great regret among everybody who has had dealings with the freight department of the Grand Trunk in Toronto, for Mr. White was extremely well known and popular from one end of the Province to the other.

Mr. White has had a long railway career. He entered the English railway service in 1850, and in 1866 entered the service of the Grand Trunk in Toronto. He was successively clerk, agent and assistant general freight agent of the Great Western and Midland divisions of the Grand Trunk, and in April, 1892, was appointed division freight agent at Toronto.

—The Bancroft Times vouches for the fact that a black bass weighing 9 lbs. 2 ozs., and measuring 22 inches from tip to tip, was caught recently by a man employed in a lumber camp while fishing in that vicinity.

On Sunday afternoon last while a prominent young lady in society circles was seated with her young man in a hammock on the verandah, they were suddenly precipitated to the verandah floor. What might have happened had not the young lady's waist gave way, we are unable to conjecture. The father and mother seemed spellbound and unable to move as they beheld their beloved offspring and her companion so suddenly transformed into acrobats.

—The Roman Catholic picnic on Labor Day was a great success about 1500 being present. Among those in attendance were Rev. Father McCloskey, of Campbellford, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Senator George McHugh and Mr. Daniel O'Connell. There was no speech-making, but a day of friendly intercourse was afforded. The financial success of the picnic will meet the object for which it was given, viz., to pay off the debt on the church at Havelock.

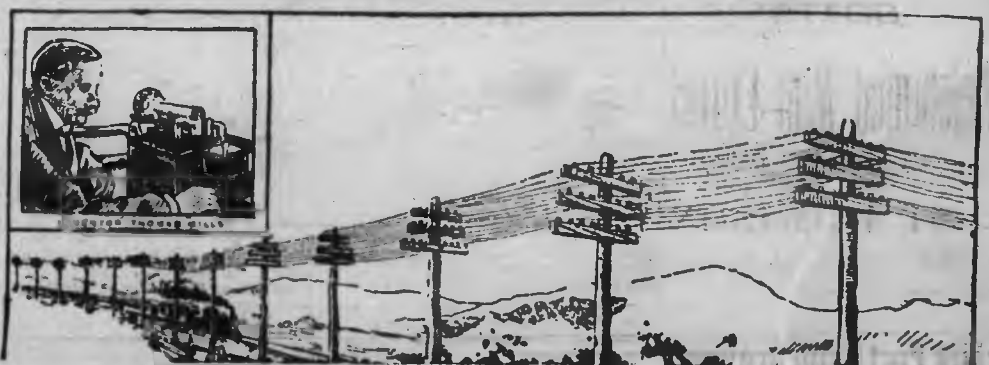
To Investors! A Chance of a Lifetime.



The Electrograph is a simple, practical machine for sending pictures, newspaper illustrations, maps, etc., by telegraph over the wires of any telegraph or telephone company.

THE ELECTROGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Controls all patents for Canada and the United States covering the Electrograph.

Capital $1,000,000, $10 Shares, Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable.

No Bonded Debts. Now $7.50 per Share.

The machine is simple and inexpensive to manufacture. The company is not selling, but leasing them at $600 per year rental. Orders are coming in faster than they can be filled.

Those who invested in the Linotype have realized a gold mine. It is used in almost every newspaper and printing office. So will be the Electrograph in a few years. Besides, it will be used by the Secret Service, Police and Detective Departments of every city, and by banks for identification, by the War Department, and in other ways yet unthought of.

The telegraph and telephone are now indispensable. At the outset they were looked upon as little better than petty toys. People did not realize the possibilities; there was then no practical demand.

The Electrograph does not have to create a demand. The demand exists, newspapers have been for years waiting and watching for just such a machine.

The Scientific American, June 15, 1901, describes the Electrograph fully with cuts. It says "over a wire 770 miles from St. Louis to Cleveland, via Chicago, it worked faultlessly." The chief operator, Associated Press, Washington, D.C., says:—"I think in the Electrograph you have at last successfully solved the problem of transmitting pictures by wire by producing a machine of practical value and of extreme simplicity of operation."

The superintendent of wire service, Associated Press, New York City, says:—"A test on a wire running from this office to Philadelphia and back was satisfactory in every respect. Both the transmitter and receiver being placed in this office, I had every opportunity to see the working of both, and I can say that no test could have been more perfect or satisfactory." The company has dozens of other equally strong testimonials from leaders in all departments of Newspaper, Printing, Engraving, and Telegraph work. Mr. F. B. Squire, president of the company, spent six months investigating every phase of the practical working and possibilities of the Electrograph before investing in it. Mr. Squire is vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, was its original secretary, and has stayed with it ever since. In an interview published in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, July 9, 1902, Mr. Squire says that it is the expectation to install at least 100 machines in one year; 200 machines will be soon in use, and fully 1,000 in a reasonable time, earning net $500,000 on $1,000,000 capitalization.

Every newspaper of consequence must instal an Electrograph or fall behind its rivals. Business will not depend on crops or railway earnings, rains or frosts. Newspapers, banks, detective service, etc., go on forever. When many lines of investment are at high-water mark, it may not be amiss to put some profits into a new and promising business. All the big dividend-paying companies at the start sold stock to the public, the Standard Oil Co., the great Canadian Banks, etc. To buy and sell is human, otherwise the world would stagnate. You can make no mistake buying this stock. Carnegie got his start when a telegraph operator by buying $500 of telegraph stock. Those who saw the possibilities of the Telegraph, the Telephone, the Linotype, the Typewriter and other great inventions, won fortunes. So will those who invest in the Electrograph.

THE RICHES OF MEXICO

Are well illustrated by the ores wh'ch are taken from the Gold and Silver properties of

La Sonora Gold and Silver Mining and Smelting Co

A company composed largely of well-known business men of Minneapolis. This company owns 78 acres, and is now developing the famous old Spanish Mine La Blanca; known throughout all Sonora as a fabulous producer in ancient days, and as one of the richest mines of modern times. Over $500,000 worth of ore in sight. Ore runs from $24.75 to $217 per ton.

One vein is 14 feet wide, and 800 feet of new work is already done.

The property is equipped with all necessary machinery, pumps, etc, all paid for, and is to the point of production. Company has been in active operation 18 months, and now wants to raise money to put into a concentrator and thus place the mine at once on a dividend paying basis. Stockholders may confidently look for 50 per cent. dividend per annum on the present selling price of stock at an early day.

Only 50,000 shares are offered at 20 cents a share—a part all ready subscribed—par value $1.00—fully paid and non-assessable. Intended buyers must send in orders at once to secure stock in this issue. No salaries paid officers; no sumptuous offices; every dollar goes into the new concentrator and actual development work.

AN INDUSTRIAL MONOPOLY, VAST PROFITS SURE.

Every reader knows that the enormous profits of the Trusts are due to the fact that they "control the situation."

There is one important branch of an enormous manufacturing industry where work in the past has always been done solely by hand, making the expense very high.

A machine has now been invented to do this work, and a company is the exclusive proprietor of the Patents.

THIS MACHINE WILL DO THE WORK OF 20 SKILLED WORKMEN AND DO IT BETTER. IT IS POSITIVELY THE ONLY MACHINE OF ITS KIND ON THE MARKET. HENCE THERE CAN BE NO COMPETITION.

There are over [illegible] manufacturers in the United States who cannot afford to be without the machine, for, besides saving enormously in time and money, the superior quality of work done makes its use by one imperative for all who would be up with the times.

PLANTS ARE ALREADY ESTABLISHED IN NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA, AND ARE ON A PAYING BASIS.

Present price of stock is but [illegible] per share (par value [illegible]), but indications are that it will be increased very soon to [illegible] per share.

A Great Sufferer Cured

Mr. Benjamin Dillon, at Leeds, Ont., was cured of Muscular Rheumatism by Polson's Nerviline, and says: "I feel my duty is to proclaim Polson's Nerviline as an infallible cure fro Rheumatism, it cured me after 20 years suffering, and nothing I know of can equal its penetrating power. Nerviline simply has no equal in quickly relieving and curing Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, and Lumbago. A trial will convince anyone. Price 25c.

Mr. Matchett Resigns

The resignation of Mr. M. W. Matchett, head master of the Ashburnham Public School, was tendered at the Board meeting which took place on Tuesday evening. It is understood that Mr. Matchett asked for an increase of salary, which was refused, hence his resignation

Ontario Had Not Enough Men

The last of the harvesters' excursions left Toronto on Tuesday, and was made up of one special train of ten coaches beside the regular trains. They carried about 800 harvesters. As the number obtainable throughout Ontario has been disappointing to the officials, attention is being directed to the Maritime Provinces, and special excursions will be run from that part of the Dominion which will take in eastern Ontario and Quebec, on Sept. 6, and 8. In this way it is hoped the number of men desired, 20,000, will be obtained.

Kawartha Lakes Route

The Trent Valley Navigation Company, Limited, are re-arranging the sailing of their boats on the Kawartha Lakes. Commencing on the 30th August, the Steamer Esturion leaves Lindsay on the down trip at 6.45 p.m. instead of 6.30 as formerly, and after Saturday, September 6th, the Steamer Ogemah will be taken off her regular Bobcaygeon and Burleigh route and the trips discontinued after that date. For the balance of the season there will be no regular boat between Bobcaygeon and Bridgenorth.

Cut Down the Burdocks

The unsightly burdocks which adorn many of our principal streets, is an eyesore to the junior reporter of this g.f.j., who has an eye only for the good, the true and the beautiful, and who breaks out a-follows ;

[N.B.—It is distinctly understood that this poem is not intended in any way as an offset to "Peterborough, Peterborough, Pete, Pete, Pete," or yet to "Ashburnham, Ashburnham, he-haw! he-haw!"]

Would we help out one another
In this wilderness of woe,
We must cut the weeds, my brother,
We must lay the burdocks low.
For the vacant lots are teeming
With these growths all over town
And the men asleep and dreaming,
Will not wake to cut them down.

Where the pigeon-grasses tickle
And the pigweeds nod and frown
I will swing the sharpened sickle,
I will cut the dangstuff down ;
For I know I'm doing rightly
When I wield the scythe once more
And the weeds are more unsightly
Than they ever were before.

—After having enjoyed a very pleasant two weeks at the lakes the following party has returned to town.—Mrs. R. B. Clegg, Mrs. Stewart, Miss Mabel Motheral, Miss Clara Clegg, Miss Mabel Dutcher, Miss Bardie Thompson, and Messrs. W. Milburn, F. Stubbs, E. Dodge, and E. Stephenson, Toronto,

Killed in Charlotte

While boarding a train at Charlotte yesterday afternoon, Phillip Rudig, a proprietor of a hotel in Buffalo, who has relatives in Peterborough, and who is well known here, slippped and fell under one of the cars. The wheels passed over his legs, crushing them at the knees, and his skull was fractured. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital at Rochester, where both his legs were amputated, and he died a few hours later. Coroner Killip of Rochester was notified, and the body will be sent to this city. Rudig is survived by his wife, a daughter, two brothers and two sisters.

Would Take no Chances

"I had a very funny thing happen this morning," said the genial proprietor of the Snowden House to a Times man yesterday. "A man from away back north came to town and put up with us. It was evidently his first visit to town, and he spent his time taking in the sights. On coming down stairs in the morning, he said: "Say, before leaving home I had read about them fellers that blow out gas and get suffocated, and I wan't fooled by that darned thing up in my room in the hotel. I seen a light in a glass bottle hanging on the end of a string, and I couldn't put the darned thing out. So I took the knot out of the string and put the bottle in the bureau drawer, and what yer think, Mr. Snowden? Blest if 'twarn't burning when I got up this morning."

A HANDSOME TOWN

A Lindsay Man's Impression of Peterborough—Our Fine Band

The Lindsay Post prints the following, written by a citizen who visited Peterborough:

"Peterborough is a pretty town—a park town, with five breathing places. It puts on a good deal of style, wearing city clothes without permission of the law. Its industries will make it a great place.

"The 57th Regiment Band is one of the best musical organizations in America. It is a credit to the town and the military. The people are to be congratulated and Bandmaster Glidden complimented. The final concert at Victoria Park was given Friday evening when thousands listened to the delightful music.

"The number of guests at Chemong Park hotel is quite large at present although the season was slow in opening. The American visitors are delighted with the beautiful scenery of the locality and magnificent weather. The park is increasing in popularity. The hotel is under the able management of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brown. The hostess is a charming and handsome lady."

USEFUL ANYWHERE

A Way to Prevent Car Sickness

A gentleman describes how he prevents car sickness. He says, "About one year ago I took a trip to California for my health. I had always suffered greatly when traveling and have been unable to eat ordinary food. A friend who knew this advised me to take Grape-Nuts with me and I purchased a number of packages.

During the entire journey of five days I ate nothing but Grape-Nuts prepared with milk and sugar and I gained strength steadily and suffered no illness whatever, besides at the end of the journey I found to my delight that I had gained five pounds in weight.

I consider Grape-Nuts the best food in the world, it keeps perfectly, is not bulky and is easily digested, is strength giving and far preferable in every way to ordinary food." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is one sure way to prove whether or not Grape-Nuts does rebuild and strengthen the brain. Try it ten days or two weeks. Thousands know, it does, from actual experience but everyone should make the trial himself.

MAY BE THE BURGLAR

A Man Named Moore in the Toils Charged with Theft

A tough looking character calling himself James Moore, was arrested very cleverly by P. C. Stewart on Tuesday night. At the cells he gave his name as James Moore, and his age as 27, and says that he came from Ireland.

It appears that on Monday last the premises of Mr Western Fallis, who resides just west of Jackson Park, were entered and a lady's gold watch, a jack knife and $1.60 were stolen. After the thief made his exit from Mr. Barrie's store a lady's gold watch was found which had evidently been dropped by the thief in his flight. The gold watch was identified by Mr. Fallis.

Yesterday morning Moore appeared before James Stevenson, J.P., in the absence of Police Magistrate Dumble, on three charges viz.: the theft of a gold watch jack knife, and a sum of money from Mr. Fallis, of burglarizing Mr. Barrie's store and of vagrancy. He pleaded guilty to the first charge but not guilty to the other two charges. He was remanded until this morning. Before being taken to jail Moore was taken to Roy's where he was photographed.

Much credit is due officer Stewart for the clever capture, he having only seen the fellow once, and that at night when he gave him the chase of his life

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The schools are once more in full swing.

—The Horticultural Society's annual show will take place this evening in the market hall.

—Mr. Will Carlisle hooked a 15 pound 'lunge while fishing at Stony Lake on Tuesday last.

—The steamer Ogemah will be taken off her regular Bobcaygeon and Burleigh route after the present week.

—A large gang of men are engaged in double tracking the spur line into the Cereal Company's premises.

—Recruiting for the lumber camps is becoming more difficult every year. This year there is a big demand for men to go to the woods, a demand which cannot be supplied.

—Tenders are being asked for the construction of sewers on Water and Smith streets, and the line between Water street and Denniston avenue. Tenders must be in by Sept. 13th.

—The Lindsay Post says: "About 150 members of the local trades unions turned out soon after 6 a.m., headed by the band, and marched in procession to the station, where they entrained for Peterborough to take part in a great labor demonstration there. Many of our citizens accompanied the men, and another large contingent went down on the 10 40 train. It is estimated that 500 of our citizens spent the day in Peterborough and they report having had good time."

Is Invaluable For Growing Children

Malt Breakfast Food is the best food for children of any age after infancy. If you would have your little ones thrive by putting on firm flesh and making bone and muscle, their diet should, to a large extent, be Malt Breakfast Food. This king of foods is delicious, appetizing, satisfying and quickly digested; it quiets the irritated stomach and gives restful and healthy sleep. At the present time we know of many mothers who are bringing up weakly and frail children on Malt Breakfast Food by advice of physicians, and the results in every case are happy and promising. A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

With a Guaranteed Dividend of 30 Per Cent.

We have just been notified that we have been granted a Patent on the Collar in Great Britain This enhances the assets of this Company greatly, so that in order to meet the demand on it and extend the business in both countries. we have decided to sell 40,000 shares of the Treasury Stock at One Dollar per share, and as the returns will be large from the business we will sell it all under the 3 0 percent guarantee.

We must remind investors that this is not all their stock will earn, but they will be entitled to their share of all profits above this.

And as this Company will have a complete monopoly of these Collars, the dividends will go far beyond the guaranteed dividend, and beyond all expectation.

NATURE'S FACING FOR HORSE COLLARS.
THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR CO., OF PHILADELPHIA.

Nature's Facing. Nature's Pad.

Comes before the investing PUBLIC with a BUSINESS PROPOSITION OF UNUSUAL attractiveness. THE COMPANY'S special Claim lies in the ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF HORSE COLLARS, SADDLE PADS, and RIDING HOUSINGS, made with interlaced CURLED HORSE HAIR, which is fully protected by UNITED STATES LETTER PATENTS and other PATENTS now pending also in FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

One of the Company's specialties which has proven far superior to anything of the kind on the market is THE INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR, made of PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR. For years the great want felt by horsemen has been a collar that a horse could wear and be worked in that would keep his shoulders cool; also one that a horse with tender shoulders could wear in the heaviest kind of work without fear of galling. It is almost impossible for a horse to get galled or sore shoulders or sore neck, no matter how tender, when working with this collar, which can be washed with either hot or cold water without injury to it any way. The washing does not stiffen or harden it as it does a lined collar, being faced with the purest kind of curled horse hair. The hair comes in direct contact with the animal's skin, and the hair being porous, allows the healthy action of the skin and flesh. It at once absorbs the sweat, and in hot weather is invaluable, as it prevents the gathering of lather, as is the case with most cloth or leather-faced collars. These collars will outwear a cloth or leather-faced collar, as the hair is practically indestructible. These collars are no experiment. They have been in use for 1 1-2 years, and have proven their merits without the shadow of a doubt. Everyone who has used them can testify to their efficiency. They are admittedly the most common-sense horse collars in the world.

THIS COMPANY IS NOT TRYING TO CREATE, nor is it asking investors for THEIR MONEY to experiment with. We have gone through the experimental stage, and now have Our Articles as near perfection as they can be gotten. The material we are using in the Facings and Cushions of our Collars and Pads is not a New Article, but is the True and Tried Material, PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR, which has defied and has outlived all imitations.

It is the policy of THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR COMPANY to license or re-let the privilege of Facing Collars under their patents to the numerous harness and collar makers in the United States, of which there are over 22,000.

The profits from this source alone will undoubtedly be large, and in a very short time enable the Company to pay large dividends on its Stock. This will increase the value greatly, and will enable those who take advantage of this first-class offer to make well out of their investments.

The Company has already a complete factory in Bridgesburg, a section of the City of Philadelphia, equipped with the latest patterns of machinery for the manufacture of its products, free from all indebtedness.

As Our Articles of production are of the most stable kind, and to thoughtful people articles of necessity, therefore it is necessary that we bring the Articles before the People in general, and in order to do so, we offer to the PUBLIC A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THE TREASURY STOCK (ALL THE STOCK IS COMMON), THEREFORE ALL INVESTORS WILL SHARE EQUALLY AND FULLY OF THE COMPANY'S PROSPERITY.

In order that we may at once push the business forward, for we have an immense field before us, Free from Competition on articles of merit:—

We will sell 40,000 Shares of the Treasury Stock for One Dollar Per Share, after which the sale will be withdrawn and the price will be Five Dollars per.

So positive are the officers of this Company that this business will be a sure success, and yield large returns to the investors, that they will sell the above allotment of stock at the price stated above. and will guarantee a dividend of Six Per Cent. per annum at the least on the par value of the stock for five years.

We will attach ten coupons to the certificates of stock, payable in January and July.

Thus paying 30 per cent. on the investment.

This is a reasonable offer, as large revenues wil be derived from the re-letting system, which guarantees us to make the above offer.

Aside from this there will be large profits from the sale of the goods, and from the material furnished those who re-let the system.

The revenues from the business will be such as to make this a first-class investment.

Every dollar from the sale of this stock will go into the treasury of the Company, free from all expenses, and the Business will be conducted on a very conservative and economical basis.

This is not a Stock Speculation Scheme, but it is the intention of the Officers to Establish the Business on a Solid Basis.

After the Business has been extended in the U. S. it is the intention of the Company to extend its Articles at once to the Foreign Markets, from which will be Large Returns, and an Immense Business Established.

All subscriptions for stock which shall be in the secretary's hands before the 15th day of August will receive a coupon due January 1st, thus paying six months' guaranteed interest.

Persons wanting to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity will have to do so at once, as all the allotments will be quickly taken up, and no stock can be bought on the market, as none can be had.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A LEADING SADDLERY OF THE U.S.

Office of Buck and Mehlbach,
106 Chambers Street, New York,
Thursday, March 14, 1901.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Philadelphia Pa.:

Gentlemen,—I have your letter of yesterday, wherein you ask me to send you whatever letters of recommendation or approval we may have received, treating on the interlaced hair saddle cloths, etc., since we have been handling them—now about one and one-half years.

Whatever letters there are of this kind I have not kept separately, and they are, therefore, mixed up with the rest of our filed letters. But, as I told you, my own testimony should be sufficient for intelligent people—for I appreciated the value of interlaced hair for the purpose of saddle cloths, etc., long before I knew you, and at first sight of the cloth—and I am about twenty-five years in the business—I have since, as you know, marketed a great many of them to riders all over this country—South America, Cuba, etc. As you know, we are dealing with the most intelligent people, and when a mining engineer, for instance, tells you: "I have now used so many of these hair cloths, and they keep my horse's back free from sores, while formerly I was constantly troubled with them," and then of his own volition orders another lot, that is good evidence in favor of the Interlaced Hair System—is it not? The Interlaced Hair does everything felt and other like materials do not do. It is elastic, it is cool, it does not pack, it can easily be cleansed, and keeps its shape. For harness pads it is surely as good as for saddle cloths, while applied in the manufacture of horse collars it is simply ideal; and I surely wish you plenty of success in your undertaking, for your article deserves it.

Very truly yours,
WM. C. C. MEHLBACH.

FROM HALPEN, GREEN & CO.

Wholesale Grocers, Nos. 13 S. Front St. and 17 Letitia St.
Philadelphia, December 28th, 1901.

The American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Gentlemen,—Referring to the collars which we bought of you something like six months ago, we desire to say that our stableman advises us that they are giving great satisfaction. Would recommend and advise horse owners to use them, especially for heavy hauling.

Yours, truly,
HALPEN, GREEN AND CO.

FROM A ROUGH RIDER.

Coatesville, Pa., December 18, 1900.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of the 15th instant, I have resigned my position with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, but I cannot speak too highly of the Interlaced Curled Hair Riding Housings. This is the first thing of the kind we ever used that would keep horses' backs from getting sore. The sample that was given us for the English Soldiers, they claim they never used anything in their cavalry to equal it, and the cowboys, the acknowledged horsemen of the world, claim it the best housings ever used under a saddle, as it absorbs all perspiration and moisture, so that the air can pass through to cool the backs.

I will refer your letter to the company at once, also will send you size wanted for cowboy saddle, as I wish one of your housings for my own use on the western ranges, which will enable me to introduce them, as I take a great interest in the welfare of horses.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BURCH,
Chief of Buffalo Bill's Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

FROM A CAVALRY LIEUTENANT

Camp Detachment, 2nd U. S. Cavalry,
Matanzas, Cuba, February 27th, 1900.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Interlaced Hair Saddle Cloth for sixteen months, and am now prepared to say something of its merits, but can find nothing to say to its detriment.

It is necessary in the cavalry service to save one's horse as much as possible, and particularly his back. Your saddle cloth keeps the horse's back cool, and keeps down the humps that will generally appear after a long, hot ride.

I have used it in Arizona, and during the recent war in Cuba, and am still using it; it has seen some hard service and stood it mighty well.

Yours,
S. M. KOCHERSPERGER,
Lieutenant 2nd Cavalry.

CONTRARY TO THE WILL OF CHRIST DOUKHOBORS FREE THEIR ANIMALS

The Latest Manifestations of Their Peculiar Religious Mania

Refuse Longer to Work and Say the Lord Will Care for Them in Future

Canada Must Take Some Action or They will Perish During the Coming Winter—Women as Beasts of Burden

Special to The Times.

Winnipeg, Man., September 5.—"Fully 4,000 Doukhobors, who settled in the Yorkton district, N.W.T., will starve or freeze to death or be on the verge of starvation this year, if the Dominion Government does not take active steps to prevent their present religious mania from going further."

This statement was made to a newspaper correspondent, who has personally investigated the strange mania of the foreigners, by a man who is prominent in all the leading enterprises in the Yorkton district.

The correspondent travelled through a wide area settled by the Doukhobors. He found that the religious mania, the like of which has perhaps never been seen in this country, has possessed the people and made them completely oblivious to the severe winter ahead of them.

Their fields were lying idle, although as a rule they had good harvests and their horses and cattle were running at large through them, sleek and fat.

"NEW LIGHT FROM GOD."

One of their interpreters whom the correspondent spoke to said: "We had been offered money for our cattle but we will not sell. They belong to God, not us. Since coming to your country, God has shown us new light. Any work we have to do He will help us. The lower animals are our servants, and we will not use them or use any product from them."

"Do you not fear the winter coming on?" he was asked.

"No," was the reply, "God will provide for us."

CLAD IN LIGHT COTTON.

Nearly every one of the Doukhobors seen was clad in the lightest of cotton garments. They would afford no protection from an October breeze, to say nothing of a severe winter blast; and they say they will wear no other. In many of the houses visited a bag of flour was the only food visible. The Doukhobors will eat a few vegetables, but in a few instances had they even brought them into their houses. Men originally strong were gaunt, hungry wrecks; and I was informed that on a recent trip into Yorkton for flour a dozen big men, harnessed like mules to a heavy waggon, almost fell by the roadside through exhaustion and starvation.

WOMEN AS BEASTS OF BURDEN.

"The women, so far, have escaped any of the work that must fall on the men since they have discarded the use of animals; but, if this year's crop is to be harvested, they will soon have to harness themselves up to the heavy waggons as the men do. I found that they have made absolutely no provision for the future; and, what is perhaps worse, the religious mania that possesses them is becoming more intense and is spreading.

THE PERILS OF WINTER.

"The attempt of the Dominion Government to help these people has apparently had no effect. How it will end will probably be told when the intense cold of that district sets in.

Responsible men in that district interviewed by the correspondent said that if the mania does not abate before October hundreds will be mere physical wrecks before January, on account of lack of clothing and little food.

The Dominion immigration authorities here refuse to discuss the situation, although they confess it is very serious.

VIEWS OF THE DOUKHOBORS

The statements made in the despatch from Winnipeg relative to the strange actions of the Doukhobors in Manitoba, are fully corroborated by a most interesting article which has just been received in Montreal.

It was written by V. de Maynov, Crowstand, Assiniboia, and was in Esperanto language, from which it was translated by Mr. A. P. Beauchemin.

The translation is as follows:

"More than three years have elapsed since the establishment of the Doukhobors on the prairies of Canada.

"During this time they have not occupied themselves very much with their spiritual culture, but they have striven harder to live by laboriously earning their daily bread.

"But before attaining much success in material things, the more progressive among them manifested discontent with respect to their spiritual culture and of the degree of perfection attained towards having the spirit rule over the flesh.

"They exerted themselves more and more, as they say, to 'Revive the Christ in them, and destroy the throne of Satan established in the human hearts.

"These progressive individuals were joined by a limited number of their countrymen, but finally almost the whole community of Doukhobors took the road to moral perfection as it presented itself to their intelligence.

FORCE IS UNLAWFUL.

"In their opinion all organizations based on force are contrary to the law.

"While in Russia they have decided to cease using meat, liquor and tobacco, and, when they arrived in Canada, they began to carefully weigh their actions, and they perceived that neither the ox nor the horse could be utilized without a whip, bridle, bit chains, harness and the other instruments with which to master the animals; or without the deceit as for instance the temptation of the animal by means of oats and salt. They noticed also that in order to obtain milk from the cow and the goat it was necessary to use a stick to keep away the calf and kid, and then nourish the latter with the waste (skim milk), which is disagreeable compared with the new and nutritious milk.

"As the commandments of Christ and also of the Talmud, Confucius, etc., recommend that above all things 'men do not do unto others what they would not have done unto them,' 'who among us,' say the Doukhobors, would like to see his child chased away from the breast of its mother? Why then is it that we do not let all the other little ones suckle their mothers and drink at will.'

"Likewise it would be just as extremely disagreeable to us if someone much stronger than we, obliged us by force, by fraud, or by temptation, or by the instrument of servitude, to work for him. Hence, we should conclude that the practice is no more agreeable to the dumb beast, which groans under the yoke, and which labours in search of its most unhappy existence, in the hope of finding it, too, a deliverance from its bondage, (Romans viii., 19-23.)

RELEASED THEIR ANIMALS.

"Knowing and understanding this, the Doukhobors, for the most part, decided to deliver the beast from its burden to give an example to other men. At the present time many of their villages are without cattle, horses or sheep, and when the people must go on a journey, they make it on foot, even for the distance of fifty miles, as, for instance, when going to Yorkton, the nearest town for many of the settlers. When ploughing is to be done they harness themselves to the plough, and so on.

"Other individuals as well as the Doukhobors have tried the harness, and they found that it was not difficult to work thus, and earn their living among themselves, and not 'by depending on others,' as the Doukhobors say.

A WIDESPREAD BROTHERHOOD.

"The religious doctrine of the Doukhobors, or rather the "members of the Christian community of the Universal Fraternity," is founded largely on the two commandments: 'Love the Lord, thy God, with all thine heart, with all thy soul and with all thy thought,' and 'Love thy neighbour as thyself.' (Matthew xxii., 37, 38, 39.)

"On this subject they invoke the words of Christ, saying that from these two commandments arise the whole law and prophecies (Matthew xxii., 40.)

"They also appeal to the words of John the Evangelist: 'If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother, whom he hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen?' (John iv., 20.)

"With the Doukhobors the expressions 'neighbour' and 'brother' comprise not only man but every other living thing as well, every creature of God, as all having been born and being sons of the same Father, God. They wish to resemble Christ by conforming with the words of the prophet, 'A bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench. . . (Isaiah xlii., 3), and be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect' (Matthew v., 48.)

"They believe that the love of God without having love for the visible creatures of an invisible Creator is hypocrisy, and they say also 'Should not every man fulfil the two principal commandments of God without hypocrisy?' And they believe that every man who will not fulfil these two commandments is an enemy of God and a servant of the anti-Christ.

"They fear, with terror, becoming the adversaries of God, for they believe in the punishment promised to all the enemies of God, namely, 'the lake which burneth with fire' (Revelations xxi., 8.)

THE LIBERATED ANIMALS.

"The animals liberated by the Doukhobors are assembled in two places, numbering about 500. To look after these animals two young shepherds have been chosen, one of whom, Prokavfy Pegojer, following the example of Christ's fasting, has neither drank nor eaten anything for 43 days.

"Some time ago the Doukhobors asked the Canadian Government, by a special communication, to kindly inform them where they could find a warm country where they could send their animals to browse and forage during the winter, and thus live without the aid of man.

"Seeing that the Government did not comply with their request, the Doukhobors have already commenced to march their cattle, horses and sheep towards the south, having decided to drive them out without delay, because it would be impossible for them to subsist during the coming winter on account of the thick coat of snow which must necessarily cover the ground."

THE SPIRIT WRESTLERS.

The successes of the Russian Doukhobors as farmers in the Canadian colony is an entirely unlooked for result of the work of Count Leo Tolstoi and hundreds of charitable persons, particularly the Quakers, who sought to better the condition of the peculiar but seemingly sincere religious sect.

The Doukhobors were persecuted by the Russian Government for more than a century. The name means "Champions of the Spirit," or "Spirit Wrestlers." This sect was first heard of in 1750. Its adherents deny that there is a personal God. They say God lives in the soul of every man. They reject Christ, and do not believe in heaven or hell.

Their persecution began in 1799, when Paul I., on being informed that they denied his authority, gave orders that they should be banished to the mines for life, and should never have the chains taken from their hands and feet. About 15,000 were transported to Siberia. In 1822 Alexander I. gave them permission to colonize on a Siberian farm, which, through their thrift and industry, became very valuable. Their number increased to 20,000. In 1839 they were ordered to military duty. They did not decline to fulfill the everyday military duties of the soldier, but when they came to face the enemy they lay down and no punishment could make them go forward. They were constantly shifted about until reduced to about 10,000.

In 1898 Count Leo Tolstoi published three of his early stories, which he never liked, and which he had laid aside as worthless, and contributed the proceeds to bring the people to Canada. Contributions were also made by many people in England and America. The Canadian Government gave each family 160 acres of land, and each emigrant a bonus of $4, and shelter through the first winter.

THE IRISH BRIGADE

Blake's Men Stranded at Johannesburg and Want Money

New York, September 4 — The Irish Brigade which fought on the Boer side in South Africa is stranded at Johannesburg, and wants to get home. The brigade was recruited in the United States, most of the members being residents of Chicago.

Colonel J. Y. Blake, who is now at Johannesburg with all that is left of the command, has made an appeal to friends in this country for funds to defray the expenses of the journey home. His men, he says, guarantee to pay back with interest whatever money is sent.

BOY DROWNED AT KIRKFIELD

Young Son of Postmaster Graham Lost His Life in a Pond

Kirkfield, September 4—Cyril, the six year old son of Mr. A. C. Graham, postmaster at Victoria Road, was drowned in a small pond near that village. The unfortunate lad and several companions were playing at the dam, when Cyril slipped off the abutment into the water. The other children ran for help, but about twenty-five minutes had elapsed before the body could be found. All efforts to restore life were fruitless.

Mr. Graham is one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of North Victoria, and his family will have the sympathy of many friends in their sudden and sad bereavement.

GERALD SIFTON IS WEARY

He Does Not Want Another Postponement of Trial

Woodstock, September 5—The prospect that the trial of Gerald Sifton will not take place at the assize court next month, owing to the probability that Mr. Justice Lount will refuse to try the case, is not received very gladly by the defence. The news was conveyed to the prisoner yesterday, and he was very much cast down as a result, says the London Free Press. He has been in jail for so long a period, with the serious charge hanging over his head, he would welcome almost any possible termination. He does not desire to be bailed out. Liberty without a verdict of innocence would not be worth the having. Sifton is anxious for an immediate trial.

Finds His Long Lost Sister

Special to The Times.

Joliett, Ill., Sept. 4.—Sixty years ago in Montreal, Canada, James Bothwell, then a lad of 7, parted from his sister Jane, two years his junior. Their parents had died and the children were adopted by neighbors. Yesterday, after a search of over half a century t ogot some trace of the whereabouts of his sister, Bothwell found her in the person of Mrs. James Herbert, who runs a little grocery store in Joliet. During his long search he had spent a fortune and travelled over nearly every part of the United States and Canada. He had just about given up in despair when he secured a clew that led to success.

THE BRITISH INTERESTS MUST BE MAINTAINED

Request which Cape Colony Progressives May Make of Mr. Sprigg

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 4— A Cape Town correspondent says Sir Gordon Sprigg has asked the Progressives to meet him today, but it is considered that no reapproachment is possible unless Sir John consents to introduce measures necessary for the maintenance of British interests. In the discussion in committee of the Indemnity Bill, the Progressives objected to a clause postponing registration until February, 1903, on the ground that though it would be better not to have parliamentary machinery at present, yet if it existed it should not be worker unfairly. In the division the members of the Afrikander Bond, members of the Ministry and four other a voted for the retention of the issue and in order to force four waverers to declare themselves.

PROTESTED AGAINST PROCLAMATION.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 4 — At a meeting of the South Dublin Union, says a telegram from Dublin, James Mul[illegible] against the proclamation of Dublin City under the Crimes Act. Mullett said the Government was against repeating the events of twenty years ago, and was goading young men to crime by proclaiming places which officials admitted were free of crime. He protested against the "villainous conduct of an alien Government," which, after 700 years, was playing its old game by the instrumentality of the Sheridans and Sullivans, and their sleuthhounds and bloodhounds.

TOOK INSURGENTS STRONGHOLD.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 4—The Japanese in Formosa, says a Tokio correspondent, have, by a recent attack captured the insurgent's stronghold near Tainan. It was a most difficult position in a dense forest, surrounded by precipitous mountains.

THOUSAND BODIES UNEARTHED.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 4— A Paris despatch says that while the foundation of the new barracks at Toulon were being laid, the bones of more than 1,000 persons were discovered. They were in layers, without trace of coffins. It is believed the remains are those of the victims of 1793.

NO HEIR TO RUSSIAN THRONE.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 4— A St. Petersburg correspondent says that consternation reigns as the people tell the news that there is to be no heir to the throne and dismay and incredulity are the sentiments of the hearers. It is difficult to realize the total collapse and staggered condition of the public mind when the blow came. The Emperor is greatly depressed. The Empress will pay a visit to her sister, the Grand Duchess Sergius, as soon as she gets over the shock, after which she will rejoin the Emperor and her children.

MANAGEMENT OF CABLE COMPANY.

TORONTO EX-MAYOR DYING

E. A. Macdonald Not Expected to Live—He Projected Georgian Bay Canal

Toronto, August 31—Ernest Albert Macdonald, ex-Mayor of the city, who for the past twenty years has been mixed up in the municipal history of the place, is dying at his residence on Grosvenor street. Nervous prostration is the cause ascribed by the physicians in attendance. Mr. Macdonald is known all over the province as the man who was the most persistent projector of a Georgian Bay ship canal connecting Toronto with Georgian Bay ports by which the grain carrying traffic of the great lakes was to be diverted to a Canadian route. He agitated for years to have this project gone on with, and claimed to have secured sufficient capital to engage in the enterprise if adequate government aid could be secured. He was a member of the city council for several years, and came into unpleasant prominence in the scandal which arose out of the purchase of the Toronto Street Railway by its present proprietors. He ran for mayor several times unsuccessfully before he was returned by a good majority in 1900, when he made several Utopian promises to the voters which he was unable to fill. Since he left the mayor's chair he has been little seen in public life.

THE FLOWER SHOW.

THE DISPLAY OF FLOWERS ADMIRED BY HUNDREDS

In the Market Hall Last Night — 57th Band Adds to the Evening's Enjoyment

A visit to the exhibition of plants and flowers in the Town Hall last evening was a very pleasing one. The number of plants and the beauty and fragrance of all were a delight to the senses. It would be hard to enumerate so large a collection. The palms were the first we noticed and were indeed fine ones; also the ferns, of which there was a large number.

On the same table with many ferns was a beautiful yellow jasmine with hundreds of blossoms, also a large hanging basket of Asparagus Spiringa with yards of delicate lace-like trailing branches. The collection of Begonias also was very fine. A table full of the tuberous variety was very much admired.

Of Coleus there were a large number and many of them of exceptional beauty.

The Geranium display was large and in color ranged from purest white to dark, rich crimson—in single and double flowers.

A very fine Rubber Plant occupied a space opposite the entrance and was very much admired. We also noticed fine plants in bloom of Amynillis, Cannas and Wax Plant.

Passing on to the cut flowers one finds it rather difficult to particularize, the quantity and quality being so superior. The 1st prize collection of Dahlias certainly was very beautiful the range of color being so great, as was the size. Some beautiful little blooms were not more than one inch in diameter and ranged up to six inches, the tiny ones having apparently quite as large a number of petals as the larger ones.

Of Asters in large boquets there were a great profusion and the flowers were very perfect and of great beauty, particularly the one bearing the significant red card. We noticed some magnificent specimens of Perennial Phlox, also Gladioli, Phlox, Drummondii, Verbenas, Sweet Peas, Nasturtiums, Pansies, Tuberoses, Poppies, Salpiglossis, Geraniums.

The dispaly of vegetables was creditable but of fruit a very small quantity was shown.

The 57th Regiment Band was in attendance and added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Hamburg, Sept 5—Enquiries made in official circles here show that the announcement of the Boersenhalle, August 29, that cargoes of grain now on their way from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Buffalo, Newport News, Cleveland, Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth, Montreal, Portland, Toronto and Manitoba would not be subjected to the new grain regulations providing for certificates of origin of all grain exported from the ports imputation is incorrect. Cargoes already afloat are not exempt.

New York, Sept 3—Anarchistic literature, including several autograph letters from Emma Goldman and Johann Most, together with a mysterious iron chest have been found in this city beside the dead body of a woman about 40 years old, and known as Mrs Freda Schroeder. The woman was well dressed and wore a quantity of jewellery. The chest resisted all attempts that were made to force it with the means at hand and experts will be employed. The woman's body has not yet been identified.

London, Sept. 2—W. C. Steadman's presidential address at the Trades' Union Congress today was pessimistic in tone, and included a generall denunciation of the present Governments' reactionary measures, such as the Education bill, the sugar tax, and the grain tax which he describtive to British commercail supreed as being an endeavor to permanently relieve the rich at the expense of the poor. Mr. Steadman denied that trades unionism was destructive to British commercail supremacy, as charged by The London Times and other papers. The only means by which the working people could hope to secure relief from their burdens was, Mr Steadman added, to constitute themselves a great political force.

During the consideration of the parliamentary committee's report, a motion to omit referring to the coronation of King Edward on the ground that the references of monarchical institutions were out of place in a labor assembly, was defeated by a vote of 162 to 60. An amendment declaring that the South African war was unjust was carried by a vote of 176 to 134.

Posen, Polish Prussia, Sept. 4—The process of dignifying and entertaining Polish Prussia with imperial functions was continued yesterday with marked success. The streets were thronged with spectators when the Emperor and Empress went to the parade grounds for the military review and thousands of school children—the girls in holiday frocks and the boys on the sunny side of the streets—lined up the route for them when they returned. These batallions of children took the place of the close files of soldiers massed yesterday for the Emperor's entry, and police precautions were virtually an assemblage of children, Polish as well as German, implied that the language question, which has been a racial bone of contention, has not been raised in welcoming the Emperor.

Picturesque as were the flashing cavalcades escorting the Emperor and Empress through the artistically-decorated streets, and brilliant as were the night scenes with drum beat, bugle call, torch-bearers and the pleasurable excitement of the happy populace, the chief spectacle was the review of the 5th Army Corps. About 40,000 troops were marched over undulating meadows for inspection. The artillery was most workmanlike in appearance and and the infantry marched and lined up with admirable precision, but the cavalry was most conspicuous for excellence in equipment. The mounted force included 3,000 men and was perfectly horsed. The contention of the German staff that it has succeeded in obtaining the best horses for military training was confirmed by the splendid display of the cavalry in this review. The Emperor conducted the inspection with business-like thoroughness, and was evidently a hero to the army as well as its Sovereign.

The troops were marching with music for hours throughout the town after the review, and there was universal delight over the military pageantry and evening illuminations. There were no signs of Polish disaffection. Posen was only half-Germanized when the Emperor came; it is tonight a stronghold of imperial pride.

CARDIFF

Mr R. J. Campbell, of Cardigg, met with a very heavy loss on Saturday night through the destruction of his saw-mill by fire. He attributes the fire to incendiarism. The mill was burnt to the ground and over $1,000 worth of lumber and 80 thousand shingles destroyed. Unfortunately Mr. Campbell did not carry any insurance on the property and the loss is therefore a total one.

GREAT BRITAIN AND HER MANY RIVALS

The Outlook for Britain's Industrial Supremacy Said to be Anything but Hopeful

A System of Tarriffs the Only Thing That will Save the Country from Commercial Decay

London, Sept. 5—An official publication of the British Board of Trade, on "the comparative statistics of Population, Industry and Commerce in the United Kingdom and some leading foreign countries" is one of the most authorative and interesting discussions of Great Britain's industrial and commercial tendencies which has lately been contributed. The report seems to indicate that Napoleon's grim prophecy in St. Helena some ninety years ago is on the point of being fulfilled. "You English," he said, "now manufacture for the world, but the time will come when the world will manufacture for itself. And what will you do then?"

The report says, "It is obvious that a comparison of the trade of particular countries must be affected by considerations as the relative growth of their populations, the tendency of their populations to industrial as distinguished from agricultural, the natural resources of each country in respect of mineral wealth, and the extent to which its mineral wealth, plus such additional wealth of the same kind as it can obtain from other sources is made available for industrial purposes.' Dealing with population statistics it is shown that in this respect the state of affairs in the United Kingdom is not altogether satisfactory. The period covered is that of the last thirty years—the time since the creation of the German Empire and the French Republic. In respect to population France has remained almost stationary, while that of Great Britain has increased by more than 30 per cent, that of Germany by nearly 40 per cent, and that of the United States by a fraction less than 100 per cent. In all four countries there has been and still is a marked increase of urban as compared with rural population, in Germany the increase of population in cities and towns of more than 2,000 inhabitants being equal to the entire increase of population of the Empire. The addition to the population in the United States is nearly equal to the whole population of the United Kingdom at the present time, while in Germany the increase has been 15,750,000 which exceeds by 5,750,000 the total British increase.

Turning to coal and pig iron it is seen that Great Britain is being rapidly gained upon by both Germany and the United States. Thirty years ago Great Britain's output of coal was 120,000,000 tons or more than the 15,000,000 of France, the 32,000,000 of Germany and the 42,000,000 of the United States all put together. But in the last thirty years Great Britain has increased her output by scarcely 75 per cent, while France has increased hers by 100, Germany by 300, and the United States by 400 per cent. The result is that, far from now surpassing them all, Great Britain scarcely more than rivals the United States alone. In coal consumption, per capita, too, the other countries are gaining upon Great Britain. Hers has risen since 1868 from 3.79 to 4.06 tons, while Frances' has risen from .81 to 1.19, Germany's from 1.08 to 1.77 and the United States from 1.01 to 3.08. In respect to the output of pig iron the statistics of the report tell a similar tale. In 1870 Great Britain produced more than the three others united or 6,400,000 tons to France's 1,200,000 Germany's 1,800,000 and the United States 2,200,000. But in 1900 Great Britain's 8,900,000 did not equal the united 2,500,000 of France and 7,400,000 of Germany, while her output was far surpassed by the 14,500,000 of the United States. In the two great industries of coal and iron, therefore, the glory of complete supremacy has departed from Great Britain.

The foreign trade figures are also unsatisfactory. It is true that the value of British trade per capita is still much larger than that of any other country, being nearly $39, as compared with less than $19 for France, less than $15 for Germany and less than $17 for the United States. But the figures for Great Britain have decreased in thirty years, as have also those of France, while those for Germany and the United States have materially risen. In the value of foreign trade there has been an increase in every instance, but it has been less in Great Britain than in any of its rivals. Between 1868 and 1900 the British gain was only 6.4 per cent, while that of France was 8.7, that of German 23.1, and that of the United States 42.8. In net imports there have been slight increases for Great Britain France and Germany, but a very large decrease for the United States—from 14.64 to 9.97 per capita. None of the tendencies of foreign trade, therefore, can be regarded as auspicious for Great Britain or for the maintenance of her superiority.

Much the same condition is revealed by the other statistics in this interesting official report, and the author of it, Sir Alfred Bateman, frankly comes to the conclusion that, while Great Britain is still ahead of Germany and the United States in her power of manufacturing to export, those countries are rapidly gaining on her, and her lead cannot be maintained unless she makes more strenuous efforts and makes also carefull and energetic improvements in her methods. "If peace is maintained," he says, "both Germany and the United States are certain to increase their rate of upward movement. Their competition with us in neutral markets, and even in our home markets will probably, unless we are active, become increasingly serious. Every year willl add to their acquired capital and skill, and they will have larger and larger additions to their population to draw upon. It is necessary, therefore, more than ever, that the change of conditions should be recognized, and we can scarcely expect to maintain our past undoubted preeminence, at any rate without strenuous effort and careful and energetic improvement in method." It is evident that the industrial and commercial conditions of Europe and the United States are undergoing rapid transformation. Germany and the United States, where a policy of national cooperation is in force, are making headway with wonderful rapidity, while free trade in England is being left behind. Conditions are evidently very different from what they were when free trade come into operation in Great Britain and the people of the people of the United Kingdom might well consider whether their tariff system might not with advantage be reorganized by making it resemble more or less closely that of their most successful rivals.

MR. CULVERWELL'S STRONG WORDS.

Has Some Hot Shot for Some Alleged Grafters

The following letter, addressed to a Campbellford paper, has been sent to us for publication:-

Sir,—I notice that the Campbellford Herald has copied an article from a Cobourg paper which was evidently inspired by those who find my opposition rather too strong in Campbellford district water power matters. The cloven hoof is too much in evidence all through the article.

The statement that my Burleigh Company, of Peterboro, has lost its pole line franchise in Cobourg by lapse of time in commencing work is an absolute falsehood—the by-law on record there showing there is about six months yet to erect the pole line, and which is the only requirement.

As regards the statement that I am grasping every chance and giving "nothing in retrun," I wish to state that I have given the necessary money "in return" for the deeds of the different waterpowers I have purchased and have also bought them in the open market; so this remark does not apply to me. I purchased also parts Healy Falls. I am not a government grafter. However, the cap should fit nicely those who evidently inspired the article and who are now attempting to secure a graft from the Department of Railways and Canals in their portion of the Healy Falls water power, and also fit him who has prostituted his government engineering position by trafficking in canal waterpowers and in being also made a tool of by those who are attempting to work a graft on the government.

I am happy to state in conclusion that notwithstanding the unfair and determined opposition in the financial flotation of my Burleigh Company (The Central Ontario Power Co., of Peterboro) this opposition has at last failed.

Thanking you forr your valuable space, I remain, Yours truly,

J. ALEX. CULVERWELL.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 4, 1902.

THE COAL STRIKE

The coal strike drags wearily along, with threatened hardship and inconvenience next winter to millions of people, due to the short supply. Mr. J. P. Morgan has been severely criticised for not settling the difficulty. He is regarded by the miners as the one man who could, if he would, direct a settlement. And by using pressure upon the operators he could doubtless force them to give in. But President Mitchell, of the Miner's Union, on the other hand, has the same power in directing the men to stop their issues and return to work. There must be two sides on the question, or the strike would have been ended long ago. The operators are anxious to start their mines and turn out coal on terms they consider fair to both sides. These terms are rejected by the miners who declare for terms more liberal to them. Either side can terminate the strike at once by giving in to the other side. The New York Times sums up the case by saying that the position of the miner who is tired of the strike, distrustful of his leaders, and convinced that he can gain nothing of present or ultimate advantage from longer standing out is one of no little embarrassment. Mitchell proclaims success at hand, and, being a magnetic speaker, may have inspired his following with some of the confidence he expresses. The silence of the operators and their apparent lack of a clear-cut and definite plan of action warrant the suspicion that perhaps they are wavering and will yield when sufficiently alarmed at the increasing popular indignation growing out of their refusal to make an honest effort to lift the embargo. The miner understands that the door is now open to him and that if ready to desert his union and apply for employment he may go to work, but such desertions in sufficient numbers to permit a general resumption would mean the dissolution of the union, with no guarantee that his employers would not oppress him in his individual helplessness. It is this uncertainty as to what will happen to him if the union is destroyed or made ineffective, which holds its membership together. The situation calls for an explicit declaration from the mine owners of what they refuse to grant, what they are willing to grant, and what reforms, if any, they are prepared to introduce in the conduct of the business. Any uncertainty as to their purposes in dealing with labor in the future should be ended. If they know what they mean to do when work is resumed to make the position of labor satisfactory and put an end to the dissensions which have constantly arisen, their interests will be furthered by telling it; if they do not themselves know, it is time they found out and delegated to some one the formulation of a plan which by the signatures of all the operators can become in a sense the constitution of the anthracite trade.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S EXHIBITION

It is sincerely to be hoped that the financial results of the exhibition held by the Horticultural Society yesterday have been satisfactory. The exhibition was certainly not patronized as well as it deserved to be. In itself it was well worthy of a visit and the purposes it was calculated to serve should have commended it to generous support. It should be regarded as a matter of local patriotism to encourage the development of the culture of flowers, fruit and vegetables. Until such an exhibition as that just held is visited one is not in a position to appreciate how much has already been accomplished, and in certain lines only a beginning has been made. It was particularly interesting to see the magnificent display of flowers and ornamental plants. It is noticeable, too, that there is a growing interest taken in private gardens, and taste in this respect is readily developing. Some things the cities and towns of Ontario may always lack, but there is no reason why they could lack beautiful flowers. And the importance to society as a whole of the cultivation of the aesthetic nature by that means cannot be overestimated. Many years may elapse before there may be enough public and private wealth to adorn our cities and houses with the works of art by which older lands are enriched, but the education in beauty and refinement supplied by the form and color of flowers is already within our reach. From a public standpoint, the further development of flower culture should be encouraged by every means in our power. And one of the most effective means is by exhibition. In them can be seen what has been accomplished by others, and by the competition fresh stimulus is imparted. It is gratifying to see that so much progress has already been made, and the Horticultural Society deserves the thanks of the community for its enterprise along lines that must result in more rapid and more intelligent progress in the future.

MAY BE THE BURGLAR

A Man Named Moore in the Toils Charged with Theft

A tough looking character calling himself James Moore, was arrested very cleverly by P C. Stewart on Tuesday night. At the cells he gave his name as James Moore, and his age as 27, and says that he came from Ireland.

It appears that on Monday last the premises of Mr Western Fallis, who resides just west of Jackson Park, were entered and a lady's gold watch, a jack knife and $1.00 were stolen. After the thief made his exit from Mr. Barrie's store a lady's gold watch was found which had evidently been dropped by the thief in his flight. The gold watch was identified by Mr. Fallis.

Yesterday morning Moore appeared before James Stevenson, J.P., in the absence of Police Magistrate Dumble, on three charges viz.: the theft of a gold watch jack knife, and a sum of money from Mr. Fallis, of burglarizing Mr. Barrie's store and of vagrancy. He pleaded guilty to the first charge but not guilty to the other two charges. He was remanded until this morning. Before being taken to jail Moore was taken to Roy's where he was photographed.

Much credit is due officer Stewart for the clever capture, he having only seen the fellow once, and that at night when he gave him the chase of his life.

CHAPTER I.

The Initials

IT was nearly half-past seven, and the actors and actresses engaged at the Duke of Clarence's Theater had begun to come in at the stage door. Those who played "character" parts and had a "heavy make-up" arrived first, some of them looking into the stage-doorkeeper's little box of a room to see if there were any letters for them in the rack, or else passing on with a nod and a "good evening" to the doorkeeper himself. Next came the youngest recruits, who had been amateurs more lately than they would have liked to admit. They were early, because they took the labor of making-up very seriously, and were longer about dressing than anybody else. But old stagers or newly-fledged "artists" all found time to throw a glance of curiosity at a man who stood, in the attitude of one who waited, near the doorkeeper's chair.

If a drama of the Wild West had been holding the boards he might have "walked on" and played a part, dressed exactly as he was now; for he wore a wide-brimmed, soft felt hat, a flannel shirt with a turn-over collar that showed a throat like a column of bronze, and his other clothes had certainly not been made by an English tailor. His dark hair, however, was cut far too short to carry out the cowboy idea, and his face, aquiline and clear-cut as a cameo, with an eagle keenness of eye, was clean-shaven.

He saw that he formed an object of interest for the actors, but it was his matter, evidently, to appear not to see.

The walls of the stage-doorkeeper's little room were adorned with old playbills, old and new portraits of theatrical celebrities—a few in cheap frames, but more cut from the illustrated papers—and on these, as the people went through to their dressing-rooms, the young man ostentatiously fixed his eyes.

"What time does Mr. Anderson usually come in?" he asked of Hanney, the doorkeeper, when a clock over the empty fireplace pointed to the quarter before eight.

"He ought to be along in about fifteen minutes now, for we ring up sharp at half-past," returned Hanney. "But he's a quick dresser, is Mr. Anderson."

Mr. Anderson was the manager of the Duke of Clarence's Theater, and the star actor as well.

"Good evening, Mr. Hanney. Any letters for me, I wonder?" suddenly spoke a sweet, bright voice at the open door, and a girl's head was thrust in—a pretty head, under a neat toque of dark straw.

Hanney jumped up from his chair, and hurried across the room, hoping to have the pleasure of handing the newcomer's letters to her before she could get them herself. But she was too quick for him.

"Oh, what a lot there are to-night!" she exclaimed. Then she looked at the stranger, who had taken off his wide-brimmed hat in her honor—a thing that he had failed to do for the two or three other ladies who had already passed in.

The look this girl gave him was different from theirs, and the man felt the difference, though it would have been hard to explain. She was saying to herself: "I wonder who that bronze statue is? Poor fellow, he's anxious or unhappy about something. Perhaps he's come to try for an engagement, though it would be a funny hour for that. He looks interesting, and I'm sorry for him if he wants something he can't get."

With these thoughts in her mind naturally there was an expression of sympathy on her face; and this time the young man did not stare at the pictures on the wall. Instead he glanced at the girl, and glanced away again reluctantly as most men did when their eyes had drunk the fascination of hers.

It was a very innocent, youthful sort of fascination, not in the least conscious or studied or "actressy," and perhaps in that fact lay part of its charm, for she was different from the others. One seemed to smell wallflowers and mignonette steeped in morning dew, and to think of dawn in the country as she passed and smiled, actress though she was.

"Yes, miss, a lot of letters," Hanney echoed. "They'll be 'mash' letters, miss, half of 'em, I'll bet," and he chuckled, for he was a privileged character at the Duke of Clarence's, and took advantage of his privileges.

"How horrid of you to say such a thing," the girl reproached him, and departed, closely followed by a rather elderly maid who had remained in the background while her mistress gathered up her correspondence.

"Who is that young lady?" enquired the "bronze statue" when she had disappeared along the passage which led to the stage and the dressing-rooms.

"That's Miss Winifred Gray, the most popular person in this theater," answered Hanney, with the air of a man conveying information worth having. "Have you never been in front, then?"

"No, I'm a stranger in England," said the young man. "I've never been to any theater in this country."

"Then what have you come after Mr. Anderson for?" was the question on the stage-doorkeeper's lips, but he did not ask it, partly because the matter was not his business, and partly because at that moment Mr. Anderson himself came into the theater.

He was not visible yet, but a deep voice, trained to the mellowest of accents, spoke in the passage just outside Hanney's room; and instantly Hanney's face changed. "There's the governor now," he half-whispered to his companion.

The young man had come in, saying that he wished to wait for Mr. Anderson, who had asked him to call at the theater that evening, but Hanney—while granting standing room in his little box—had hardly believed the assertion. He could do no less than take the stranger's word, for if he sent him away and there really had been an appointment, Mr. Anderson would be angry; and when Mr. Anderson was angry he was very disagreeable indeed. However, the stage-doorkeeper would be surprised if the gentleman in the flannel shirt and wide-brimmed hat were not sent away with a snub or passed by without any notice at all.

As the actor-manager slowly approached with some friend he was bringing in, Hanney threw a sharp, sidelong glance at his companion. But the handsome brown face showed no sign of trepidation at the coming of the great man.

Evidently George Anderson was in a bad temper to-night. "Do look out and not stumble, Maraire," he was saying. "This is the worst stage entrance in London. Beastly place!"

Then two men came in sight of the other two who stood in the doorkeeper's room. One was exceptionally tall, exceptionally good-looking, with wavy brown hair, worn rather long, dreamy dark eyes (they kept their dreaminess even in bad humor), and a Greek profile, unspoilt by beard or moustache. The second was so hideous that the stranger had to repress an exclamation of horror as his eyes first fell upon

Distribute Your Stock Holdings

New York, Sept. 4.—The bull market continues right along on its way. Prices are steadily creeping up and will go still higher. Group after group of stocks are taken in hand one after another, speculation broadening all the time, and breaking out in new places. The moment one group becomes quiet another is taken up, and after a period of rest for the previously active group, during which time the stock becomes lodged or digested around the prices made, it again becomes active and a new range of values are made. We strongly advise them entering the present market to distribute your purchasing orders through four or five different groups; by so doing you will be likely to be in some of the moving issues almost daily. Make your selections from the trunk lines group, the anthracite coal group, the bituminous coal group, the granger or cereal carrier group, the south western group, the Pacific group, and from among the industrials.

By so doing all your financial eggs will not be in one basket. It adds to your safety and is analagous to holding insurance with the policies taken out in a number of companies. We deem this to be good advice, so to some extent reiterate it from our letter of last night. As to the market, it is our opinion still a splendid one to buy and unusually safe to do so at present. The business ahead for the various roads and industries fairly staggers their managers, and the western people are pronounced bullish upon both kinds of issues. Declining exchange foreshadows the importation of gold from Europe. We will shortly draw bills upon them in payment for food and other products sold them. Money will be closer for a time but not tight nor unobtainable. Don't let that bugaboo stand in the way when contemplating entering the stock market. The outlook for the fall and winter months is most excellent; the people who have been decrying values for the past three months should not be listened to—they are sold out bulls, consequently disappointed ones. One word—in fact a reiteration of ideas expressed quite often recently—this is a good market in which to utilize your profits by buying more stocks, allowing your standing profits to act as margin thereon; it increases them immensely and rapidly. The people who have followed this advice each time it has been suggested in these letters have had no reason to regret it.

Ontario Had Not Enough Men

The last of the harvesters' excursions left Toronto on Tuesday, and was made up of one special train of ten coaches beside the regular trains. They carried about 800 harvesters. As the number obtainable throughout Ontario has been disappointing to the officials, attention is being directed to the Maritime Provinces, and special excursions will be run from that part of the Dominion which will take in eastern Ontario and Quebec, on Sept. 4 and 6. In this way i is hoped the number of men desired, 20,000, will be obtained.

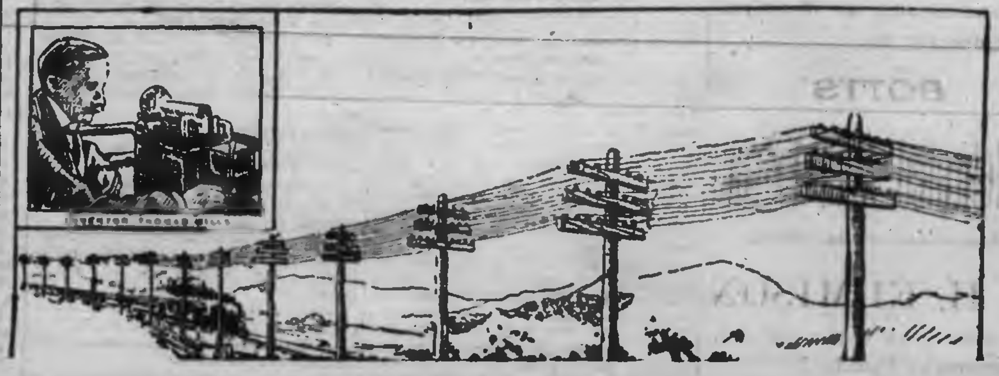
To Investors! A Chance of a Lifetime.



The Electrograph is a simple, practical machine for sending pictures, newspaper illustrations, maps, etc., by telegraph over the wires of any telegraph or telephone company.

THE ELECTROGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Controls all patents for Canada and the United States covering the Electrograph.

Capital $1,000,000. $10 Shares, Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable.

No Bonded Debts. Now $7.50 per Share.

The machine is simple and inexpensive to manufacture. The company is not selling, but leasing them at $[illegible] per year rental. Orders are coming in faster than they can be filled.

Those who invested in the Linotype have realized a gold mine. It is used in almost every newspaper and printing office. So will be the Electrograph in a few years. Besides, it will be used by the Secret Service, Police and Detective Departments of every city, and by banks for identification, by the War Department, and in other ways yet unthought of.

The telegraph and telephone are now indispensable. At the outset they were looked upon as little better than petty toys. People did not realize the possibilities; there was then no practical demand.

The Electrograph does not have to create a demand. The demand exists, newspapers have been for years waiting and watching for just such a machine.

The Scientific American, June 15, 1901, describes the Electrograph fully with cuts. It says "over a wire 770 miles from St. Louis to Cleveland, via Chicago, it worked faultlessly." The chief operator, Associated Press, Washington, D.C., says:—"I think in the Electrograph you have at last successfully solved the problem of transmitting pictures by wire by producing a machine of practical value and of extreme simplicity of operation."

The superintendent of wire service, Associated Press, New York City, says:—"A test on a wire running from this office to Philadelphia and back was satisfactory in every respect. Both the transmitter and receiver being placed in this office, I had every opportunity to see the working of both, and I can say that no test could have been more perfect or satisfactory." The company has dozens of other equally strong testimonials from leaders in all departments of Newspaper, Printing, Engraving, and Telegraph work. Mr. F. B. Squire, president of the company, spent six months investigating every phase of the practical working and possibilities of the Electrograph before investing in it. Mr. Squire is vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, was its original secretary, and has stayed with it ever since. In an interview published in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, July 9, 1902, Mr. Squire says that it is the expectation to install at least 100 machines in one year; 200 machines will be soon in use, and fully 1,000 in a reasonable time, earning net $500,000 on $1,000,000 capitalization.

Every newspaper of consequence must instal an Electrograph or fall behind its rivals. Business will not depend on crops or railway earnings, rains or frosts. Newspapers, banks, detective service, etc., go on forever. When many lines of investment are at high-water mark, it may not be amiss to put some profits into a new and promising business. All the big dividend-paying companies at the start sold stock to the public, the Standard Oil Co., the great Canadian Banks, etc. To buy and sell is human, otherwise the world would stagnate. You can make no mistake buying this stock. Carnegie got his start when a telegraph operator by buying $500 of telegraph stock. Those who saw the possibilities of the Telegraph, the Telephone, the Linotype, the Typewriter and other great inventions, won fortunes. So will those who invest in the Electrograph.

THE RICHES OF MEXICO

Ars well illustrated by the ores wh'ch are taken from the Gold and Silver properties of

La Sonora Gold and Silver Mining and Smelting Co

A company composed largely of well-known business men of Minneapolis. This company owns 78 acres, and is now developing the famous old Spanish Mine La Blanca; known throughout all Sonora as a fabulous producer in ancient days, and as one of the richest mines of modern times.

Over $500,000 worth of ore in sight. Ore runs from $24.75 to $217 per ton.

One vein is 14 feet wide, and 800 feet of new work is already done.

The property is equipped with all necessary machinery, pumps, etc, all paid for, and is to the point of production. Company has been in active operation 18 months, and now wants to raise money to put into a concentrator and thus place the mine at once on a dividend paying basis. Stockholders may confidently look for 50 per cent. dividend per annum on the present selling price of stock at an early day.

Only 50,000 shares are offered at 20 cents a share—a part all ready subscribed—par value $1.00—fully paid and non-assessable. Intended buyers must send in orders at once to secure stock in this issue. No salaries paid officers; no sumptuous offices; every dollar goes into the new concentrator and actual development work.

Not a speculation. If you buy this stock you make a safe and profitable investment. There is absolutely nothing to hide. For prospectus and full particulars call upon or write to

Wedded in Ashburnham

On Wednesday last a quiet wedding took place at All Saint's Church, when Miss Margaret Graham, of Galaway was united in marriage to Mr. Richard Payne, of Bobcaygeon. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. J. Creighton of Bobcaygeon. The bride was supported by her sister, Miss Jennie Graham, whilst Mr. Wm. Dummitt supported the groom. The newly married couple will reside in Bobcaygeon.

Poultry is Scarce

Mr. R. Williams, in conversation with a Times man yesterday morning, said he had spent two or three days in going through the country, to see what the prospects were for the chicken fattening business this fall and winter. He reported that he had found chickens very scarce; people who had hatched from one or two hundred had only a few left. The wet weather through July was responsible for a great mortality among the young chicks, and the consequence is they will be much scarcer than usual, although growers had made an effort to increase the number they usually raised.

A Second Operation

The many friends of Mr. T. G. Choate, who has been suffering from an injury to one of his legs below the knee, and who underwent an operation at Toronto Hospital, will regret to learn that another operation was necessary. The wound did not heal as quickly as expected and it was thought best to again have the bone scraped. Mr. Choate, accompanied by his son, Mr. A. P. Choate, went up to Toronto a few days ago, and we learn that the operation, which was a very simple one, had been successfully performed. It is pleasing to know that Mr. Choate is in good health, and hopes in a short time to be fully restored to health.

TRAGEDY NEAR KEENE

MRS. JOHN WOOD TAKES A DOSE OF CARBOLIC ACID

She was 65 Years of Age—Leaves a Husband and Four Children

A very sad event occurred near Keene on Wednesday morning. Mrs. John Wood, who with her husband and family reside about three miles east of the village, took a heavy dose of crussive sublimate and died after a few hours of intense suffering. Although medical aid was summoned and everything possible was done to save her life, she passed away in the afternoon.

No reason can be given why she committed the rash act. The family is in comfortable circumstances, but has been visited with much sickness of late, and this may have been the cause. The late Mrs. Woods was formerly a Miss Young, and was married about forty years ago to John Wood, who is still living, together with one son and three daughters. She was about 65 years of age.

A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

Five Dollars for One Dollar

With a Guaranteed Dividend of 30 Per Cent.

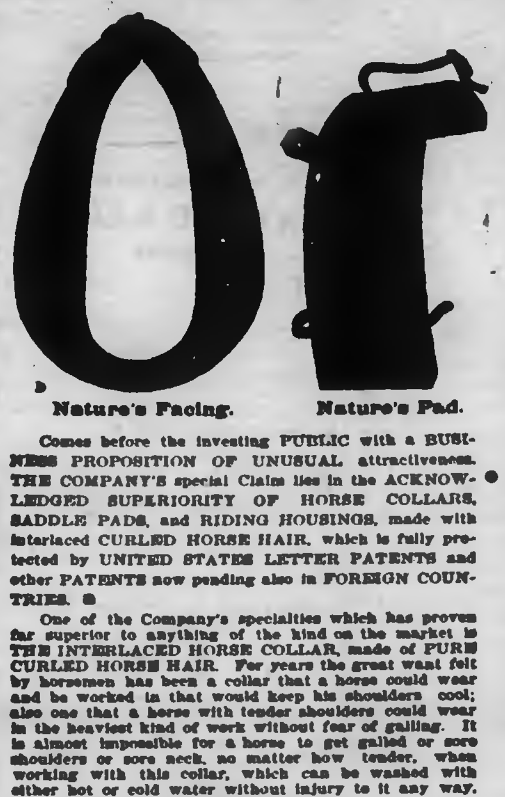
We have just been notified that we have been granted a Patent on the Collar in Great Britain This enhances the assets of this Company greatly, so that in order to meet the demand on it and extend the business in both countries we have decided to sell 40,000 shares of the Treasury Stock at One Dollar per share, and as the returns will be large from the business we will sell it all under the 30 per cent guarantee.

We must remind investors that this is not all their stock will earn, but they will be entitled to their share of all profits above this.

And as this Company will have a complete monopoly of these Collars, the dividends will go far beyond the guaranteed dividend, and beyond all expectation.

NATURE'S FACING FOR HORSE COLLARS.

THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR CO., OF PHILADELPHIA.



Nature's Facing. Nature's Pad.

Comes before the investing PUBLIC with a BUSINESS PROPOSITION OF UNUSUAL attractiveness. THE COMPANY'S special Claim lies in the ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF HORSE COLLARS, SADDLE PADS, and RIDING HOUSINGS, made with interlaced CURLED HORSE HAIR, which is fully protected by UNITED STATES LETTER PATENTS and other PATENTS now pending also in FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

One of the Company's specialties which has proven far superior to anything of the kind on the market is THE INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR, made of PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR. For years the great want felt by horsemen has been a collar that a horse could wear and be worked in that would keep his shoulders cool; also one that a horse with tender shoulders could wear in the heaviest kind of work without fear of galling. It is almost impossible for a horse to get galled or sore shoulders or sore neck, no matter how tender, when working with this collar, which can be washed with either hot or cold water without injury to it any way. The washing does not stiffen or harden it as it does a lined collar, being faced with the purest kind of curled horse hair. The hair comes in direct contact with the animal's skin, and the hair being porous, allows the healthy action of the skin and flesh. It at once absorbs the sweat, and in hot weather is invaluable, as it prevents the gathering of lather, as is the case with most cloth or leather-faced collars. These collars will outwear a cloth or leather-faced collar, as the hair is practically indestructible. These collars are no experiment. They have been in use for 1 1-2 years, and have proven their merits without the shadow of a doubt. Everyone who has used them can testify to their efficiency. They are admittedly the most common-sense horse collars in the world.

THIS COMPANY IS NOT TRYING TO CREATE, nor is it asking investors for THEIR MONEY to experiment with. We have gone through the experimental stage, and now have Our Articles as near perfection as they can be gotten. The material we are using in the Facings and Cushions of our Collars and Pads is not a New Article, but is the True and Tried Material, PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR, which has defied and has outlived all imitations.

It is the policy of THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR COMPANY to license or re-let the privilege of Facing Collars under their patents to the numerous harness and collar makers in the United States, of which there are over 32,000.

The profits from this source alone will undoubtedly be large, and in a very short time enable the Company to pay large dividends on its Stock. This will increase the value greatly, and will enable those who take advantage of this first-class offer to make well out of their investments.

The Company has already a complete factory in Bridgesburg, a section of the City of Philadelphia, equipped with the latest patterns of machinery for the manufacture of its products, free from all indebtedness.

As Our Articles of production are of the most stable kind, and to thoughtful people articles of necessity, therefore it is necessary that we bring the Articles before the People in general, and in order to do so, we offer to the PUBLIC A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THE TREASURY STOCK (ALL THE STOCK IS COMMON), THEREFORE ALL INVESTORS WILL SHARE EQUALLY AND FULLY OF THE COMPANY'S PROSPERITY.

In order that we may at once push the business forward, for we have an immense field before us, Free from Competition on articles of merit:—

We will sell 40,000 Shares of the Treasury Stock for One Dollar Per Share, after which the sale will be withdrawn and the price will be Five Dollars par.

So positive are the officers of this Company that this business will be a sure success, and yield large returns to the investors, that they will sell the above allotment of stock at the price stated above, and will guarantee a dividend of Six Per Cent. per annum at the least on the par value of the stock for five years.

We will attach ten coupons to the certificates of stock, payable in January and July.

Thus paying 30 per cent. on the investment.

This is a reasonable offer, as large revenues will be derived from the re-letting system, which guarantees us to make the above offer.

Aside from this there will be large profits from the sale of the goods, and from the material furnished those who re-let the system.

The revenues from the business will be such as to make this a first-class investment.

Every dollar from the sale of this stock will go into the treasury of the Company, free from all expenses, and the Business will be conducted on a very conservative and economical basis.

This is not a Stock Speculation Scheme, but it is the intention of the Officers to Establish the Business on a Solid Basis.

After the Business has been extended in the U. S. it is the intention of the Company to extend its Articles at once to the Foreign Markets, from which will be Large Returns, and an immense Business Established.

All subscriptions for stock which shall be in the secretary's hands before the 15th day of August will receive a coupon due January 1st, thus paying six months' guaranteed interest.

Persons wanting to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity will have to do so at once, as all the allotments will be quickly taken up, and no stock can be bought on the market, as none can be had.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A LEADING SADDLERY OF THE U.S.

Office of Buck and Mehlbach,
106 Chambers Street, New York.
Thursday, March 14, 1901.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Philadelphia Pa.:

Gentlemen,—I have your letter of yesterday, wherein you ask me to send you whatever letters of recommendation or approval we may have received, treating on the interlaced hair saddle cloths, etc., since we have been handling them—now about one and one-half years.

Whatever letters there are of this kind I have not kept separately, and they are, therefore, mixed up with the rest of our filed letters. But, as I told you, my own testimony should be sufficient for intelligent people—for I appreciated the value of interlaced hair for the purpose of saddle cloths, etc., long before I knew you, and at first sight of the cloth—and I am about twenty-five years in the business—I have since, as you know, marketed a great many of them to riders all over this country—South America, Cuba, etc. As you know, we are dealing with the most intelligent people, and when a mining engineer, for instance, tells you: "I have now used so many of these hair cloths, and they keep my horse's back free from sores, while formerly I was constantly troubled with them," and then of his own volition orders another lot, that is good evidence in favor of the Interlaced Hair System—is it not? The Interlaced Hair does everything felt and other like materials do not do. It is elastic, it is cool, it does not pack, it can easily be cleansed, and keeps its shape. For harness pads it is surely as good as for saddle cloths, while applied in the manufacture of horse collars it is simply ideal; and I surely wish you plenty of success in your undertaking, for your article deserves it.

Very truly yours,
WM. C. C. MEHLBACH.

FROM HALPEN, GREEN & CO.

Wholesale Grocers, Nos. 13 S. Front St. and 17 Letitia St.
Philadelphia, December 20th, 1901.

The American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Gentlemen,—Referring to the collars which we bought of you something like six months ago, we desire to say that our stableman advises us that they are giving great satisfaction. Would recommend and advise horse owners to use them, especially for heavy hauling.

Yours, truly,
HALPEN, GREEN AND CO.

FROM A ROUGH RIDER.

Coatesville, Pa., December 18, 1900.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of the 15th instant, I have resigned my position with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, but I cannot speak too highly of the Interlaced Curled Hair Riding Housings. This is the first thing of the kind we ever used that would keep horses' backs from getting sore. The sample that was given us for the English Soldiers, they claim they never used anything in their cavalry to equal it, and the cowboys, the acknowledged horsemen of the world, claim it the best housings ever used under a saddle, as it absorbs all perspiration and moisture, so that the air can pass through to cool the backs.

I will refer your letter to the company at once, also will send you size wanted for cowboy saddle, as I wish one of your housings for my own use on the western ranges, which will enable me to introduce them, as I take a great interest in the welfare of horses.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BURCH,
Chief of Buffalo Bill's Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

FROM A CAVALRY LIEUTENANT

Camp Detachment, 2nd U. S. Cavalry,
Matanzas, Cuba, February 27th, 1900.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Interlaced Hair Saddle Cloth for sixteen months, and am now prepared to say something of its merits, but can find nothing to say to its detriment.

It is necessary in the cavalry service to save one's horse as much as possible, and particularly his back. Your saddle cloth keeps the horse's back cool, and keeps down the humps that will generally appear after a long, hot ride.

I have used it in Arizona, and during the recent war in Cuba, and am still using it; it has seen some hard service and stood it mighty well.

Yours,
S. M. KOCHERSPERGER,
Lieutenant 2nd Cavalry.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 5.—A telegram from Dublin says Patrick A. McHugh, M.P., was declared bankrupt last Saturday on the petition of Mr. Fenton, County of Sligo, solicitor on an account of damages for £3,500, which Fenton obtained recently against McHugh for libel and conspiracy. Last Monday a bankruptcy official took possession of the papers, etc., of the Sligo Champion, which was edited by McHugh. The papers were forwarded to Dublin.

NICKNAME FOR GEN. ANDRE.

London, Sept. 5 —A Paris correspondent of The Times says that General Andre's last Revanche speech, has caused the Nationalists to nickname him "Boulanger of Red Flag." It is felt, however, that his rhetoric was superannuated and harmless.

ATTEMPTED TO WRECK TRAIN.

London, Sept. 5—A Paris correspondent says a reward of 100,000 florins, offered by the Paris and Lyons Railroad Company for the discovery of the persons who attempted to wreck a train near Dijon, has led to three arrests. The informer is a vagrant arrested near the spot where the obstruction was placed on the line. He alleges that pillage was the motive, and charges the laborer with being an accomplice.

HOLLAND AND THE ALLIANCES.

London, Sept. 5 —A correspondent at The Hague has been interviewing Dutch deputies and finds that all parties are opposed to Holland joining the alliances. Deputy Lohmam said that all the great powers were unscrupulous, and small countries must remain passive. France has no affinity or common interests with Holland, while Germany's despotism and militarism were repugnant to her.

WATER AND GAS PIPES DESTROYED

HOW MAINS ARE BEING INJURED WHOLESALE BY ELECTRIC CURRENTS

Damage in Hamilton so Great That Action is About to be Taken

Hamilton, Ont. Sept. 5—The destruction of underground pipes, both water and gas, along the lines of the street railway, is causing the waterworks department and the gas company management a considerable amount of uneasiness and steps are to be at once taken to see if a stop cannot be put to the nuisance. According to the recent discoveries made by both the waterworks department and the gas company, pipes along the route of electric railways are being practically eaten up by the electric current which travels along the bonded rails. It isn't only in one spot on the line that the trouble occurs, but all along and the problem is now regarded most seriously. A badly eaten sample of lead water pipe exhibition today in the Spectator business office window attracted a good deal of attention and comment, the general public having no idea that the effect of the electricity was so damaging. Mayor Hendrie has instructed Engineer Barrow, to get from the city solicitor a statement of the city's rights in the matter, and it is altogether likely that the city and the gas company will unite in an effort to put a stop to the trouble.

Electrolysis is no new thing, and for some years experts have been working to overcome it in many large American cities. The most easily understood explanation of the bad work of the electricity is that the return current which is supposed to travel over the street railway rails back to the power house doesn't all do that. Some of it finds its way earthward and locates itself on the water or gas pipes, tripping merrily over it until it loses itself in the machinery at the Beach power house or elsewhere. If it did this and nothing more it would not hurt the pipe very much, but unfortunately it does something more. At various points along the pipe lines there happens to be earth containing just those salts and other chemical properties which, when united with electricity, set up a sort of electroplating business. And wherever this combination gets together and the pipe is close at hand, the pipe suffers, the metal being eaten off and spread through the soil.

So far the best solution of the electrolysis trouble is the abandonment of use of the double trolley wire. This the rail for the return current and the is the remedy that has been recommended by New York city by its expert, and in his report he contends that while the initall expense would no doubt be heavy on the electric railway companies the subsequent saving would more than compensate them. It isn't likely that the Hamilton Street Railway company will willingly agree to undertake any such large outlay as this would call for, but something will have to be done within a reasonable time or the city and Gas company will have to practically renew their systems along the car routes.

RE-BUILDING

The Brokendown Structure

Paine's Celery Compound

Repairs the Diseased Parts of the Human Body and Establishes Health, Comfort and Happiness

Can we rebuild our pain-racked, emaciated and wasted bodies? Yes, the work can be done even though the spark of life glimmers but fitfully and feebly. This work of re-building can only be effectually accomplished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, that marvellous medicine that has saved so many lives in the past.

Paine's Celery Compound, nature's fortifier and builder, acts directly on the great nervous system, digestive vigor, refreshing sleep and increased weight.

Begin the good work of health-building to-day. Take home a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, use it faithfully, and you will have cause for rejoicing and thanksgiving. Mr. C. B. Holman, 262 King St., West, Hamilton, Ont., happily saved from a complication of serious troubles, writes thus:

"Having been troubled with a cough, debility and general depression of spirits, I used a number of medicines but received no benefit from them. I was then advised to use Paine's Celery Compound. I procured the preparation and began to use it with wonderful benefit. I am now convinced, after using several bottles of this unequalled medicine, that no other can compare with it in any respect. I an now a changed man; my health is renewed, depression of spirits gone, my appetite is good, and I can sleep well. I will always say a good word for Paine's Celery Compound."

VENEZUELAN REBELLION

Government Forces Waiting for Reinforcements to Arrive

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 27.—During the past fortnight the Venezuelan revolution has lost time and ground. The insurrection was a short time ago in undisputed possession of Carupano, Cumana, Barcelona, and Guiria, that is to say, all the eastern coast of Venezuela, but owing to the ability and skill of General Velutini, a Corsican of extraordinary intelligence a large commercial port has been wrested from them.

Gen. Castro is at San Casimiro, his vanguard being at Camatagua. He is awaiting reinforcement, in order to attack the revolutionists who are at present at Alta Gracia De Crituco. His army, which is estimated at 5,000 men is well armed and disciplined. Castro's First Lieutenant, General Leopoldo Bastata, is at Villa De Cura with 2,000 men, and General Aranco has an army of 3,000 men massed on the frontier of the State of Trujillo. Such are the available forces of the Government. The troops of the revolution are widely scattered.

Gen. Matos, the revolutionary leader, has during the past two months been inactive at Zaraza, surveying the arrival of his 5,000,000 cartridges which reach him slowly. To those unacquainted with Venezuela, it may seem strange that it requires so long to mobilize an army, but it is both natural and inevitable. Roads do not exist, the rain falls in torrents, and the mules, which are the only means of transportation, sink daily up to their shoulder sin the mud; and as each mule can carry only four bales of 500 cartridges each, it is necessary to employ 2,500 mules to transport the 5,000,000 cartridges of the revolutionists.

To find this number of mules in a country ruined by four years of revolutions is not only very difficult, but almost impossible. The revolutionists struct bridges, and that without adequate tolls or engineers. In a word, inspite of the towns which they occupy and the thousands of men whom they have under arms, they are so scattered that, if not a negligible quantity, they are very difficult to get at. The revolutionists were dangerous before the Government went out to attack them, but now their ability to attack the Government has become problematical. It is no longer a local war which they will be constrained to carry on, but an invasion. This does not mean that the revolution will lose; nor is this even exaggerated; but Gen. Castro is now in a position to defend himself. He will, nevertheless, have much to do to emerge from the struggle victorious, because the revolutionists, in addtiion to Matos' army, have about 3,000 men at Alta Gracia. The environs ar Valencia are overrun with revolutionists; Los Teques is also in their power, and 1,400 are lodged in the mountains between Caracas and La Guaira. Nevertheless the Government lives, commands, makes itself obeyed, and is feared, which proves that it is not yet crushed.

A battle is expected to take place within four or five weeks, either near Alta Gracia de Orituco, if Matos can bring over his ammunition and advance his army, or between Araguita and San Lucia, a valley by which the revoluttionists will probably attempt to pass, in order to reach Caracas.

From a financial point of view, President Castro has regained his lost prestige through the arrival of the million bolivars (coins worth about twenty cents) in silver, brought to him by the steamer Philadelphia. This sum has enabled him to face certain pressing engagements and to prove to his adversaries that he has found in the coining of silver, even with fifty per cent. profit certain legal resources which will avoid the necessity of having resource to forced loans.

Finds His Long Lost Sister

Special to The Times.

Joliett, Ill., Sept. 4.—Sixty years ago in Montreal, Canada, James Bothwell, then a lad of 7, parted from his sister Jane, two years his junior. Their parents had died and the children were adopted by neighbors. Yesterday, after a search of over half a century to get some trace of the whereabouts of his sister, Bothwell found her in the person of Mrs. James Herbert, who runs a little grocery store in Joliet. During his long search he had spent a fortune and travelled over nearly every part of the United States and Canada. He had just about given up in despair when he secured a clew that led to success.

SEVEN BEARS IN A BUNCH

Silver Man Ran Across Them in His Oatfield —Two of Them Killed

Bobcaygeon, Sept. 5—A Silver Lake correspondent writes as follows:

"Talk about bears, why bears are around here in flocks like sheep. Mr. William Coulter, our popular mail driver, went out in his back field of oats the other day to see if they were ready for cutting. Noticing a big patch that appeared to have been knocked down he went over to see how they were. When nearing the place he was a trifle surprised to see a good sized bear calmly chewing away at the oats. He was within half a dozen yards of it, and it did not pay any more attention to him that to move off a few paces and take another mouthful of Mr. Coulter's oats. A trifle riled by the cool nerve of the animal and the quantity of oats tramped down, Mr. Coulter was stooping to pick up a stone, when his eye caught another bear. Turning around there was another and another and they were going through the oats to their heart's delight. Noticing a movement to his right, Mr. Coulter threw a stone into the oats, and before he could say Jack Robinson he had two young cubs running round his legs. At this point Mr. Coulter thought he had seen as much bear as he had any use for, and made tracks for home. Altogether there were seven, three large old ones and two pair of cubs. The following night a party went out to look for the game, and Harry Lambert came onto the flock. At last he got sight of one big fellow and raising his rifle let fly. The effect of the report was astonishing. The rushing through the oats sounded like a tornado and the three cubs went scrambling up trees. Then there was some banging of fire arms, and the cubs backed down like cats This was fatal to one, and the others got away. Harry hit his big one all right, and after tracking him a short distance into the woods came upon him dead. Wanting to get another shot at the others, Harry marked the spot in his mind, as he thought, and returned to the field, but he did not get any more shooting and when he returned in the morning was unable to find the bear. The cub weighed about a hundred pounds, and was as fat as butter. The pelt, too, was in good condition. Fully an acre of the oats had been eaten and trampled down by the bears."

A Wonderful Tonic and Strengthener

Said a druggist to-day, "No doubt about it, the tonic that gives best results is the biggest seller, and that is Ferrozone. It enriches and purifies the blood, restores strength and energy to the feeble, and is a scientific reconstructor that was always popular. In Chlorosis, Anaemia, Tiredness, Languor, Brain Fag, Indigestion, and Dyspepsia its action is prompt, and satisfactory cures always follow. Yes, I recommend Ferrozone to my customers because I believe it is the best tonic and strengthening medicine that money can buy.' Large boxes cost 50c.

ONE WOMAN'S AWFUL INHUMANITY

A Little Girl Half Roasted on a Kitchen Stove

SALT RUBBED IN HER SORES

Caused by Knife Wounds Made by the Brutal Guardian—The Story Told Under Oath

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—If the evidence taken at the preliminary hearing of the case of Mrs. Isabella Kelly, charged with cruelly maltreating little Myrtle Frances de Greek, is true—and it was sworn to on oath—the story of the case is the most unique, and at the same time the most shocking and hideous in the criminal annals of Western Canada.

Isabella Kelly now stands committed for trial on charges of having ordered the torture of the little girl by burning, through the agency of a red-hot poker, cutting the child's hands, rubbing salt into the open wounds, and otherwise inflicting tortures of hideous nature.

THE CHILD'S STORY.

Myrtle swore that at the instance of Isabella Kelly, who is a woman probably 45 years of age, Walter Kelly, aged 13, and Oliver Cochrane, 9 years of age, caught her, and despite her struggles put her on a heated stove in the kitchen of the Kelly house at Douglas Bay. At the time it is alleged that the Kelly woman was in the house, but paid no attention the the heartrending screams of the burning child, who howled piteously for help as her flesh was seared by the heated metal. How the Kelly boy and little Oliver Cochrane could have done the sickening bidding is not brought out in the evidence.

According to Myrtle's story, the woman cut her hands till they bled, with a large knife used in the slaughter of sheep. Not satisfied with the pain produced by the cuts, it is alleged that the woman in fiendish delight rubbed salt into the bloody wounds that the pain might be greater.

THE FATHER'S STORY.

The story of other cruelties alleged to have been practised on the child by the Kelly woman came out in the evidence of Myrtle's father, W. H. de Greek. He stated that his daughter who is twelve years of age, was brought from Douglas Bay to Van Anda on August 17th, at his order. Mrs. Kelly would not send the child home, although she had been asked to do so. When Myrtle reached her father's house, he examined her. Horrible burns he found on both hips. On the right leg, from the foot to the knee, were the tell-tale scars of fifty burns, and on the left leg from the foot to the knee twenty-five half healed scars were visible. Myrtle told her father that the burns had been inflicted on her by Walter Kelly, at the order of the woman. Walter had put the stove poker into the coals of the kitchen range, and while at white heat, he had withdrawn it and chased her round the room burning her whenever he could corner her.

The evidence of the father lends a vivid impression of the hell that kitchen must have been when the alleged carnival of torture was being carried out. According to the story of Myrtle to her father, the boy fiend chased her till she was exhausted from loss of breath, and then while helpless, he seared and sizzled her fair young flesh till her body bore the raw, ragged marks of the poker in a hundred places. The father found black and blue marks and welts on the face, neck, shoulders and back of his child. She told him that she had been burned and whipped so often that she had lost count of the number of times. After the periodical tortures, she was placed in a barrel of water to recuperate.

Dr. Christie, of Van Anda, who treated little Myrtle, corroborated the evidence of the father as to the nature of the burns found on the child, and Dr. Christie further stated that they could not have been self-inflicted as claimed by the Kelly woman. Isabella Kelly alleged also that Myrtle several times tried to burn down her house, put caustic potash in the porridge, stole watches, and otherwise gave a great deal of trouble.

Mrs. Kelly was brought to the city from Van Anda this morning by Constable Lucas.

WHERE OLD KRUGER'S GOOD MONEY WENT

EX-PRESIDENTS PRIVATE SECRETARY TALKS ON THE SUBJECT

Some Interesting Statements About President's Savings and Their Disposition

London, Sept. 6.—The correspondent of the London Daily Mail, writing from The Hague, says: I have been able to secure an interview with Mr. de Bruyn, Mr. Kruger's private secretary, on the subject of the large sums of money which the ex-Transvaal president was reported to have sent to Europe before he left South Africa.

Mr. de Bruyn gives an account—of course, the Boer account—to the effect that before sailing for Europe, Mr. Kruger placed the savings from his salary as president, amounting to £40,000, in the National Bank of Pretoria for the use of the Boer government without interest.

Not only did Mr. Kruger leave this ready money for the use of the state, but he placed at the disposal of his children all his other properties, stipulating that they, too, should hand them over to the Government if the necessity arose.

All that Mr. Kruger took to Europe with him, continued his secretary, was the money necessary for his journey.

He is at present living on the rents of two farms which he kept for himself.

The delegates have vouchers for all the expenses they have incurred in behalf of the late republics, but it is open to doubt whether the money which they are entitled to receive will be repaid.

Mr. de Bruyn said nothing about the gold which was shipped from Lourenso Marques to Europe.

AN AUTO WITHOUT BATTERIES THE LATEST

Machine Just Invented will Revolutionize Art of Automobiling.

NO BELTS, CHAINS OR GEARS

Buffalo, Sept. 6.—An electric automobile without batteries is the latest novelty. The machine is the D-S, which is a short way of expressing the names of its inventors, C. J. Dorticus and E. W. Schneider. They believe their machine will revolutionize the art of automobiling, and it certainly has nove lfeatures enough to give color to the idea. Although it will develop the high speed and climb any hill an automobile is capable of mounting, yet there is not one piece of apparatus in view to show how the vehicle is propelled. It looks like an ordinary carriage minus the shafts, and the first question one asks after looking it over is what makes the wheels go round. It has no belts, chains, differential gears or any other power absorbing contrivances common to other machines, says the New York American and Journal.

As a matter of fact the machine is an electrical unit of remarkable efficiency. The four wheels are themselves electric motors, the armatures of which compose the hubs. The current which operates these motors comes from a small dynamo concealed under the seat of the carriage. The dynamo is really the flywheel of a gasoline engine. Every engine must of necessity have a flywheel, and the inventors of the D-S. machine conceived the idea of putting a dynamo on the engine shaft instead of a flywheel. It acts as a flywheel and supplies a current to the motors at the same time. This does away with belts cogs, etc., and hence there is no loss by friction between the engine and dynamo, and as the machine is of the laminated type, the efficiency claimed is over 90 per cent.

WIRES CARRY CURRENT.

The current flows to the motors through the wires which are concealed in the axles of the machine, as the hub of each wheel is a motor the power is applied where it is most needed, directly on the ground. If one wheel should become disabled in an accident, the other three, being independent of it, will go on working just the same. Even if three wheels become disabled, the remaining good wheel will bring the machine home. C. J. Dorticus of 30 East Twentieth street, New York, described the invention for the American. He said:

"There is no doubt of the serious character of the automobile question. The motor carriage has come to stay because, unlike the bicycle, it affords transportation facilities, and hence is commercial. The public has been waiting for a good electric machine, because electricity is the ideal propelling power. Heretofore the only available source of current has been storage batteries. Thomas A. Edison is doing his best to invent a commercial battery, but when all matters of price, weight, efficiency and lasting quality are taken into consideration the success seems doubtful. Mr. Schneider and I long ago made up our minds that the storage battery is a failure and that if an electric machine was to be invented it would have to embody the principles of the central station, in short, would have to be an independent unit, capable of generating its own power whether in Broadway or Kamschatka.

NO GEARING OR CHAINS.

"Of course there is no way of obtaining an electric current except from batteries or from a dynamo. We set out to invent a special dynamo of our own of very high efficiency. Then to do away with friction and economize space, we dispensed with the engine flywheel and put the dynamo in its place. Then tion and economize space, we decided that an axle motor was objectionable because of the friction of the gearing. Finally the idea struck us to make the hub of each wheel a motor. The wheel itself was to be the armature, and the part attached to the axle was to be the field. Of course, hub motors have been invented before, but none in which the very wheel itself is made to revolve by the aid of magnetism.

"The current from our machine flows into the motor in the hub of each wheel and causes them to revolve. There is no gearing, no chains, no belts; nothing to cause loss of power, and we get a very great efficiency which is further enhanced because the horse power is applied most where we need it—on the ground. There is no loss from resistance for this purpose. We have a special controller which gradually cuts out parts of the fields and armatures of the motors, and thus gradually shuts off the power. This controller is so arranged that if you pulled the handle back far enough it would reverse the current, and after stopping the machine would cause it to go backwards. You could stop the machine within its length if necessary. The wheels are the heaviest part of the vehicle, and hence the center of gravity is down near the ground, making the overturning of the vehicle an impossibly and enabling us to build the body higher than is possible with other machines."

MARTINIQUE IS DOOMED ITS EVACUATION URGED

Pillar of Smoke Resembles a Stream of Molten Iron Connecting Heaven and Earth

Guadaloupe Fears a Tidal Wave Should Volcanic Action Wipe Out the Sister Island—Panic at Fort de France

New York, Sept. 5—It is generally believed that the Island of Martinique is doomed to total destruction, and the fear is that when the catastrophe comes Gaudaloupe will be visited by an all-destructive tidal wave, cables the Point-a-Pitre, Gaudaloupe correspondent of the Herald. Business is absolutely at a standstill. Few shops are open, and if it were not for the efforts of a small number of more valiant souls, hundreds would starve to death here, because of their fear of a more terrible death.

Details that have been received during the last two days prove that the eruption of Mont Pelee of Aug. 30 were far more violent than any of the earlier explosions. As the eruptions continue, the mouth of Mont Pelee grows in size. It is now of enormous proportions, Morne Lacroix, one of the peaks that reared skyward from the side of Pelee, has fallen bodily into the crater, and it has been completely swallowed. There seems to be a side pressure in the crater and the burning chasm widens perceptibly every day.

Clouds no more hang about the crest on Mont Pelee. The terrific heat seems to drive everything away. The column of smoke rears directly into the heavens, so that its top is lost to sight. In the darkness of the night it has the appearance of a stream of molten iron, standing fixed between heaven and earth.

FORCED TO RETREAT.

From Morne Capote the relief troops were compelled to make a quick retreat, although they succeeded in taking out a few wounded. The entire country, nearly to Fort de France, is buried under a deep cover of ashes. This has made it almost impossible to find the bodies of those who have perished while fleeing to the sea coast.

Constance Cara, one of the few succeeded in escaping from Morne Rouge after the explosion, found refuge on the steamer Esk. She was with twelve others in her house when Pelee gave its first warning of the disaster which it was about to pour upon the village. She said that the first explosion destroyed many houses. She was hurled with great force against the wall of the room in which she was sitting. On recovering from the shock she was outside, and there saw three separate tongues of fire sweeping down from the mouth of the volcano. The earth shook with so great violence that she could not retain her feet. She was blinded by the glare of the flames. The heat was so terrific that her flesh was blistered. She awaited the death which she believed to be inevitable. Fortunately the fire swept a little to one side of her and she was saved. At Grande Anse the tide swept three hundred feet inshore, destroying many houses and drowning scores of inhabitants. Even at Fort de France, the most stout of heart have lost courage. Col. Lecceur has reported to his Government that it is his opinion that the entire Island of Martinique will have to be abandoned He asks for assistance in transporting the inhabitants to the other islands of the West Indian Ocean.

To Search for North Pole

Montreal, Sept. 5.—Capt. Bernier and the North Pole project are again in Montreal.

They returned safely from the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Murray Bay, after being for two months in charge of Mr. George Childs Drexel, a Philadelphia millionaire, and his yacht.

The captain is greatly cheered by the news from Norway that Baldwin, the American explorer, has returned with the report that the North Pole is still doing business at the old stand, as far as he knows.

If the Quebec Government is as friendly as Captain Bernier believes, the keel of the Artic exploring ship Canada will be laid in some yard on the St. Lawrence River within a month On the day the first timber of the new vessel is in place, "Farthest North" will be brought perceptibly nearer Ottawa and civilization.

A fortnight ago Captain Bernier made application to the Quebec Government for fifteen thousand dollars in aid of his Polar project. He believes the Parent Ministry will promise to have the sum placed in the estimates. The Government is to meet shortly. If it promises him the money, the captain will begin the construction of his vessel without waiting for the Legislature to pass the vote and place him in possession of the actual cash.

The captain has some money of his own and an unlimited fund of faith. On these the vessel will be begun.

Premier Ross of Ontario has promised a contribution of fifteen thousand dollars on behalf of his Province. A large number of Canadians have indicated their faith in the captain and his project by pledging financial assistance.

Mr. Drexel has intimated that he will substantially supplement the sum which the Government gives, and Mr. Zeigler, of New York, the American millionaire who financed the Baldwin expedition, is interested in Captain Bernier plan and has promised the use of the Greenland station to the Canadian explorer in case Mr. Baldwin fails

Captain Bernier wants to head for the Behring ice pack next spring, and in order to do this he must begin the construction of his vessel at once, for it will be necessary to spend four months after the boat is finished in navigating her from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Vancouver around Cape Horn. Building on the Pacific coast would be more expeditious, but more extensive, and if the boat rounds Cape Horn, it will arrive at Vancouver thoroughly tested.

THE BIG CENTRAL FAIR NEXT WEEK

The Outlook for a Successful Show Exceedingly Good

ATTRACTIONS EXTRA GOOD

The Only Thing to be Desired is Fine Weather, and Success is Certain

The Famous Kilties Band Will be on Hand—Other Features of the Big Show

The date of Peterborough's big fair is approaching, and it looks as though this year's show is to be a record breaker. The one thing necessary is fine weather, and this no one of course can foretell for a certainty. The fair will open on Tuesday next, 9th instant, and continue until Thursday night. Wednesday will be the "big day" of the show.

This year there is some very attractive features that should materially assist in making the exhibition a success.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITS.

In addition to the general exhibits which promise to be large in all departments, following the bountiful harvest, the directors have sought to introduce some features that may be termed instructive. In the care of poultry, at very considerate expense, the most modern system of coops and pens have been provided, sufficient to show nearly 800 birds. The exhibit will, it is hoped, far outgrow the accommodation provided in previous years, and to meet the demand the poultry exhibit will be housed in a mammoth tent, 60x40 feet, adjoining the sheds used for poultry. The display will be well placed, and every opportunity afforded to inspect it. This matter of poultry is growing to be one that will presently have a large commercial value, the export trade to the British markets growing larger and larger each year. There is now a demand that is never satisfied for all the poultry that can be raised. The directors have engaged the services of Mr. D. C. Trew and A. E. Silverwood, two experts in the matter of poultry. Mr. Trew has had twenty-five years experience as a breeder of poultry, both in the plain and ornamental varieties and breeds, and his duty will be to attend the exhibit and afford information to all who care to enquire as to the best breeds to propagate, the best varieties for producing eggs, for the table, for the export market. The information he is able to afford should be absorbed and put into practice. Mr. Silverwood will have coops of live fowls at hand, will have them killed, picked, dressed and prepared for the market, for the export trade, and will give all information on any point that may be raised. His advice and suggestions should prove to be of great service.

The matter of judging has been settled as far as that of live stock is concerned. A complaint has been heard all over the country during the last few years, that the judging of horses, cattle, sheep, etc., has not always been consistently done. It has been felt that often local preferences decided the animals instead of strict attention to the merits of the animal or animals. Growing out of the feeling referred to above, the department of agriculture has organized a body of expert judges, whose services are at the disposal of the directors of fairs, who should choose to apply to the department. The officials of the Central Fair were quick to see that the new department was one sure to give satisfaction and have engaged the services of experts, who will be sent by the department and who will do the judging of live stock. Who these gentlemen will be is not known, only this, they will be thoroughly competent. The exhibitor of the animal, if he so wish, may ask that the judge point out exactly where the animal excels or falls short of the standard, and so find out reasons for the award. This is an education feature of the judging that should prove of value.

Space will not permit of fully noting other and commendible features of the coming fair, but reference may be made to the matter of attractions. Desiring that the attractions should be clean, and interesting the directors have engaged "The Kilties" the band of the 48th Highlanders, of Toronto, the crack musical organization of the Dominion, as one of the special attractions of the fair. The directors have secured this fine band at very considerable expense, and trust that the opportunity of hearing the superb music rendered will not be neglected. The "Kilties" were selected and engaged to play at the Pan-American, and filled a long engagement. They have just concluded a triumphal American tour, playing at all the principal cities and being warmly received. In addition to a superb programme of music, given on afternoons of both days of the fair, Highland dances, bag pipe selections, sword dances and other specialties will form a feature of the programme.

Most of mankind like a competition in horseflesh, so the following events have been arranged for the days of the fair, as follows:

Wednesday afternoon, September 10th.—Special ring competitions:

Pony competition.—Pony under 13 hands, harnessed to vehicle, driven by boy or girl under 15 years. First, $3.00; second, $2.00.

Road drivers' parade.—Trot or pace. Single roadster outfit. Speed and outfit to be considered. First $5.00; second, $3.00; third, $2.00. Entrance, $1.00.

Poultry is Scarce

Mr. R. Williams, in conversation with a Times man yesterday morning, said he had spent two or three days in going through the country, to see what the prospects were for the chicken fattening business this fall and winter. He reported that he had found chickens very scarce; people who had hatched from one or two hundred had only a few left. The wet weather through July was responsible for a great mortality among the young chicks, and the consequence is they will be much scarcer than usual, although growers had made an effort to increase the number they usually raised.

Wedded in Ashburnham

On Wednesday last a quiet wedding took place at All Saint's Church, when Miss Margaret Graham, of Galaway, was united in marriage to Mr. Richard Payne, of Bobcaygeon. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. J. Creighton of Bobcaygeon. The bride was supported by her sister, Miss Jennie Graham, whilst Mr. Wm. Dummitt supported the groom. The newly married couple will reside in Bobcaygeon.

The Moonstone Sphinx

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson,

Author of "A Girl of the People," Etc.

He was short and stoutly built, and walked with a limp. There was something about his figure, too, which vaguely suggested deformity, though—perhaps because a clever tailor helped him keep the secret—it was impossible to fasten upon the exact cause of the startling impression.

But it was his face which sent a creeping chill through the veins of the man or woman who saw it for the first time, and drove children who looked at it shrieking to their mothers.

Some horrible accident must have happened to spoil the face in the past, and what it might have been before that time it was impossible to guess. For all that one could tell it might have been the most perfect face ever made; but it was now the most grotesque since Caliban's.

The accident which wrought such havoc had destroyed the skin from chin to forehead, leaving a deep, purplish redness, a peculiar glaze which gave the appearance of a thin coat of varnish over raw flesh. No hair was left in the eyebrows, which might otherwise have been prominent, and one of the eyes had been injured, leaving a queer, ragged lower lid, while the upper lid drooped, thus giving its fellow a peculiar, staring effect. The eyes were yellowish in color, very light, appearing lighter than they were in contrast to the dull red of the face with its marred and shapeless features.

"I thought you were goin' to speak to Mr. Anderson," said the doorkeeper, not without sarcasm, when both gentlemen had passed on, followed by the actor-manager's valet. "But you never made a move."

"It was the other man," answered the stranger. "His awful face took my wits away for a minute. I must ask you to send my name to Mr. Anderson instead."

"You may well say an awful face," Hanney rejoined, ignoring the request in his new interest, "and yet there ain't many women in England wouldn't be willin' to have it for their husband's face. That's as rich a man as there is in London. Where others have thousands, he's got millions. His name's Macaire—Lionel Macaire; but he's called another name behind his back—whether he knows it or not—'Nero the Second.' He's struck up a friendship with the governor just lately, and comes behind with him once in a while."

"He looks a monster," said the handsome, aquiline-faced stranger.

"So he does. And there's those who say he's as bad as he looks—as bad as his nickname, though it ain't only his evil ways have earned him that, I believe, but something else. If he's got enemies though, he's got friends as well—heaps of 'em."

"I don't think I should care to be one of them," said the young man; for he had no inkling of the surprises which Fate had hidden in her sleeve. "But look here, will you take or send my name to Mr. Anderson?"

"Not a bit of use doing that till Mr. Macaire's gone out again," pronounced Hanney, "for the governor never sees anyone, no matter how important, when Mr. Macaire's with him—I know that. Or perhaps Mr. Macaire may go in front, in which case he won't pass this way. When the curtain's rung up and the governor's on the stage I'll find out for you. Mr. Anderson's first scene isn't a long one, and he hasn't to change between that and the next. He often sees people then."

"Nevertheless, I should be very much obliged if you'd send the card now," said the other.

He had an agreeable voice—the voice of a gentleman—but it was not the voice of an English gentleman. Neither was it like that of any American whom Hanney had ever heard speak; and the doorkeeper's curiosity grew as the persistency and the personality of the stranger impressed themselves upon him. Who could this queer fellow be who dressed like a cowboy, had never been inside an English theater, who let the "governor" go by without an attempt to catch him, yet who appeared so calmly confident of the effect which his name scrawled on a card would create?

Shrugging his shoulders in his conviction that Mr. Anderson would not let himself be bothered by this unknown person, Hanney nevertheless went off himself with the card. The passage was dimly lighted; but when he had picked his way across the stage, through a confusion of scenery that was being set and carpets that were being rolled down by silent men in list slippers, he came out into a more brilliant region. There, before knocking at the door of the actor-manager's outer room, Hanney held the card near his eyes, and read what its sender had written. "Hope Newcome, introduced by F. B. Z.," was scrawled upon it in pencil.

Hanney, little wiser than before, tapped on the panel. The door was flung open after an instant's delay, the figure of Mr. Anderson's valet blocking up the aperture. The card was received, and carried through the anteroom to the drawing-room, while the stage-doorkeeper waited outside for the answer.

George Anderson took the bit of pasteboard somewhat impatiently from the hand of his servant, and read the name and initials which followed aloud. But as he reached the initials his voice changed. "By Jove—F. B. Z.!" he exclaimed, and turned impulsively [illegible] ing quietly on at the process of making-up.

Never before had Anderson seen Lionel Macaire's face pale, but to his surprise the purplish flush had partly faded away. The man looked ghastly.

CHAPTER II.

In Winifred's Dressing-Room.

Mr. Anderson and the leading lady both dressed near the stage; but Winifred Gray was not the leading lady, and she and her maid Jameson had to go up a short flight of stairs.

Jameson opened the door and turned on the electric light, while her mistress followed slowly, with a friendly glance round the little room as if she loved it.

And she did love it dearly. It was still new to her to be acting in a great London theater, and every night when she came to her dressing-room she felt the same thrill of excitement that had tingled through her nerves when she first took possession.

She had a good salary, but there were many uses for it, and she had not much money to spend on beautifying her dressing-room with exquisite rugs and curtains and hangings as Mrs. Peter Carlton, the leading lady, did. Still, she had made it look very cosy, and in her eyes it was perfect.

A small basket lounge, with two or three ruffly silk cushions, stood against the rose "distempered" wall. Here Winifred sometimes lay down to rest between a matinee and an evening performance, having her dinner sent in from a restaurant near by, if the weather were bad and she did not care to go out. Above the lounge was a shelf with some of Winifred's favorite books, and there were a few framed photographs and a water-color painting or two by an admirer who was a "coming artist." In one corner stood a long Psyche mirror, provided by the "management," and another large mirror was tilted over the dressing-table which held materials for making up.

STOCK MARKETS

No Wonder Stocks Boom

New York, Sept. 5.—These facts considered no wonder stocks boom. Think of the gigantic earnings constantly reported by the great railway systems, consider what it means for the share holders. The Pennsylvania lines directly operated show an increase in net earnings for July amounting to seven hundred and thirty six thousand three hundred dollars. The surplus of the Manhattan Company for the year ending June 30th last increased seven hundred and fifty one hundred and fifteen dollars. Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's showing for July will show an increase in gross earnings of about $31,000 and a large gain in surplus, amounting to nearly one hundred thousand dollars. Atchison and the grangers are reporting after the same manner. Every road in the United States will, during their present fiscal year, make the largest earning they have ever recorded.

The railroads of the country have already contracted for one million and a half tons of new steel rails for 1903 delivery, the bulk of which will be supplied by the United States Steel Corporation. Pennsylvania is about to spend ten million dollars in new cars and fresh equipment; other roads are doing proportionately. The coal companies will this fall and winter make new records for the mining and transportation of coal. Their earnings will consequently be enormous; they will get higher prices for their product also, and will be kept busy indefinitely mining and hauling coal to the various distribution points, as supplies are exhausted.

These facts are also before the market. Record breaking carrying of corn and wheat is also ahead of us. The producers will have plenty of money, and their consumption of luxuries as well as necessities will naturally increase, and the wheels of commerce will spin in a lively manner. Never before in the history of the United States were so many of its people comfortably off, consequently consumers of even luxuries. Such a state of affairs is always accompanied by business activity, a period of money making, and rising values for stocks and other commodities. We cannot too strongly urge you to come into the market at the present time and buy, thereby participating in the general era of prosperity at least to some extent.

St. Paul, sold 191. M. O. P. sold up to 120. Excellent demand all day for Pennsylvania, Manhattan, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, C. & O., O. W. and the Atchisons. Reading may possibly sell a shade lower, temporarily, as the demand for control seems to be satisfied. Reading will be selling before many days above par. Insiders throughout the day tried to bag the stock drippings of such holders as were scared into selling by a firmer rate of money. Should tomorrow's bank statement prove disinteresting, there will probably be more shading of prices. Take advantage of it by purchasing. It is a bull market. Total sales 800,000.

Finds His Long Lost Sister

Special to The Times.

Joliett, Ill., Sept. 4.—Sixty years ago in Montreal, Canada, James Bothwell, then a lad of 7, parted from his sister Jane, two years his junior. Their parents had died and the children were adopted by neighbors. Yesterday, after a search of over half a century t ogot some trace of the whereabouts of his sister, Bothwell found her in the person of Mrs. James Herbert, who runs a little grocery store in Joliet. During his long search he had spent a fortune and travelled over nearly every part of the United States and Canada. He had just about given up in despair when he secured a clew that led to success.

AN INDUSTRIAL MONOPOLY, VAST PROFITS SURE.

Every reader knows that the enormous profits of the Trusts are due to the fact that they "control the situation."

There is one important branch of the enormous manufacturing industry where work in the past has always been done solely by hand, making the expense very high.

A machine has now been invented to do this work, and a company is the exclusive proprietor of the Patents.

THIS MACHINE WILL DO THE WORK OF 20 SKILLED WORKMEN AND DO IT BETTER. IT IS POSITIVELY THE ONLY MACHINE OF ITS KIND ON THE MARKET. HENCE THERE CAN BE NO COMPETITION.

There are over 25,000 manufacturers in the United States who cannot afford to be without the machine, for, besides saving enormously in time and money, the superior quality of work done makes its use by one imperative for all who would be up with the times.

PLANTS ARE ALREADY ESTABLISHED IN NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA, AND ARE ON A PAYING BASIS.

"Last year from continued strain in literary work I became very much exhausted, my nerves seemed to give way, and I had backache, headache and serious indigestion.

"One of my friends suggested that I try Peruna. It certainly acted like magic on my system.

"Within ten days I felt new life and health given me; and by taking an occasional dose off and on when I feel extra tired, I keep my system in perfect order."—MISS A. BRADY.

Driven Insane by Love

William Noad, an English farm hand in the employ of Mr. Thos. Partridge, near Lakefield, has finally been placed in the insane asylum. Disappointment in love was the cause of his trouble. He was first taken to the hospital at Peterboro for treatment, but becoming violent was removed to the gaol at Cobourg, from whence he was recently removed. His case is a sad one.

The Suability of Trades' Unions

In the suit being brought by the Metallic Roofing Company, Limited, against several of the strikers and the local union of sheet metal workers another step has been taken, when an appearance was entered by Messrs Lee & Donoghue, Dineen building, on behalf of the individual defendants. With respect to the union only a conditional appearance was entered, as it is intended to fight the question of the application of the Taff Vale decision in Canada. The contention of the defendants is that a trade union cannot be sued as such in Ontario. The matter is of great importance to unionism in general, and the case will be watched with much interest by labor in all parts of the Dominion.

CORDOVA GOLD MINE

The Road from Havelock to the Mine to be Repaired

Mr. A. W. Campbell, Assistant Commissioner of Public Works returned to Toronto Thursday from the Cordova gold mine in Peterborough County, where he has been inspecting the road between the mine and Havelock. The road, he stated, would be improved immediately, as the traffic over it was now very great; and necessitated its being in first class condition, as all the supplies for the mining camp had to be teamed over the road.

Mr. Campbell said that the village around the mine was growing, and that everything appeared to be in a prosperous condition. A compressor had been installed which utilized the water power, the compressed air being sent through a 12-inch main two and a half miles to the works, the greatest distance that compressed air is carried for such a purpose on the continent of America. Ten shafts have been sunk, and a 20-stamp mill is in constant operation. Mr. Kerr, the manager of the mine, stated to Mr. Campbell that the company contemplated duplicating the plant. The stamp mill was running regularly with the exception of two hours on Sunday, and the machinery was of the very finest quality.

BRAINS RULE THIS WORLD

Not muscle, but brains governing muscle.

The quality of brain can be changed by certain selection of food

A food expert perfected a brain-building food by preparing certain elements in wheat and barley in a way that nature would make use of. That food is

GRAPE-NUTS

In it the phosphate of potash, obtained from nature's grains (not from the drug shop), is retained in minute particles. This has an affinity for albumen, and together they make the soft, gray matter in the brain and nerve centers

A solid fact you can demonstrate by the use of Grape-Nuts.

You can see the difference in yourself

A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

Five Dollars for One Dollar

With a Guaranteed Dividend of 30 Per Cent.

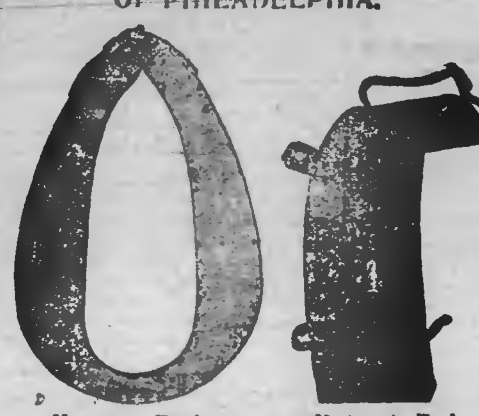
We have just been notified that we have been granted a Patent on the Collar in Great Britain This enhances the assets of this Company greatly, so that in order to meet the demand on it and extend the business in both countries, we have decided to sell 40,000 shares of the Treasury Stock at One Dollar per share, and as the returns will be large from the business we will sell it all under the 30 per cent guarantee.

We must remind investors that this is not all their stock will earn, but they will be entitled to their share of all profits above this.

And as this Company will have a complete monopoly of these Collars, the dividends will go far beyond the guaranteed dividend, and beyond all expectation.

NATURE'S FACING FOR HORSE COLLARS.

THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR CO., OF PHILADELPHIA.



Nature's Facing. Nature's Pad.

Comes before the investing PUBLIC with a BUSINESS PROPOSITION OF UNUSUAL attractiveness. THE COMPANY'S special Claim lies in the ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF HORSE COLLARS, SADDLE PADS, and RIDING HOUSINGS, made with interlaced CURLED HORSE HAIR, which is fully protected by UNITED STATES LETTER PATENTS and other PATENTS now pending also in FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

One of the Company's specialties which has proven far superior to anything of the kind on the market is THE INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR, made of PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR. For years the great want felt by horsemen has been a collar that a horse could wear and be worked in that would keep his shoulders cool; also one that a horse with tender shoulders could wear in the heaviest kind of work without fear of galling. It is almost impossible for a horse to get galled or sore shoulders or sore neck, no matter how tender, when working with this collar, which can be washed with either hot or cold water without injury to it any way. The washing does not stiffen or harden it as it does a lined collar, being faced with the purest kind of curled horse hair. The hair comes in direct contact with the animal's skin, and the hair being porous, allows the healthy action of the skin and flesh. It at once absorbs the sweat, and in hot weather is invaluable, as it prevents the gathering of lather, as is the case with most cloth or leather-faced collars. These collars will outwear a cloth or leather-faced collar, as the hair is practically indestructible. These collars are no experiment. They have been in use for 1 1-2 years, and have proven their merits without the shadow of a doubt. Everyone who has used them can testify to their efficiency. They are admittedly the most common-sense horse collars in the world.

THIS COMPANY IS NOT TRYING TO CREATE, nor is it asking investors for THEIR MONEY to experiment with. We have gone through the experimental stage, and now have Our Articles as near perfection as they can be gotten. The material we are using in the Facings and Cushions of our Collars and Pads is not a New Article, but is the True and Tried Material, PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR, which has defied and has outlived all imitations.

It is the policy of THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR COMPANY to license or re-let the privilege of Facing Collars under their patents to the numerous harness and collar makers in the United States, of which there are over 32,000.

The profits from this source alone will undoubtedly be large, and in a very short time enable the Company to pay large dividends on its Stock. This will increase the value greatly, and will enable those who take advantage of this first-class offer to make well out of their investments.

The Company has already a complete factory in Bridgesburg, a section of the City of Philadelphia, equipped with the latest patterns of machinery for the manufacture of its products, free from all indebtedness.

As Our Articles of production are of the most stable kind, and to thoughtful people articles of necessity, therefore it is necessary that we bring the Articles before the People in general, and in order to do so, we offer to the PUBLIC A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THE TREASURY STOCK (ALL THE STOCK IS COMMON), THEREFORE ALL INVESTORS WILL SHARE EQUALLY AND FULLY OF THE COMPANY'S PROSPERITY.

In order that we may at once push the business forward, for we have an immense field before us, Free from Competition on articles of merit:—

We will sell 40,000 Shares of the Treasury Stock for One Dollar Per Share, after which the sale will be withdrawn and the price will be Five Dollars par.

So positive are the officers of this Company that this business will be a sure success, and yield large returns to the investors, that they will sell the above allotment of stock at the price stated above, and will guarantee a dividend of Six Per Cent. per annum at the least on the par value of the stock for five years.

We will attach ten coupons to the certificates of stock, payable in January and July.

Thus paying 30 per cent. on the investment.

This is a reasonable offer, as large revenues will be derived from the re-letting system, which guarantees us to make the above offer.

Aside from this there will be large profits from the sale of the goods, and from the material furnished those who re-let the system.

The revenues from the business will be such as to make this a first-class investment.

Every dollar from the sale of this stock will go into the treasury of the Company, free from all expenses, and the Business will be conducted on a very conservative and economical basis.

This is not a Stock Speculation Scheme, but it is the intention of the Officers to Establish the Business on a Solid Basis.

After the Business has been extended in the U. S. it is the intention of the Company to extend its Articles at once to the Foreign Markets, from which will be Large Returns, and an immense Business Established.

All subscriptions for stock which shall be in the secretary's hands before the 15th day of August will receive a coupon due January 1st, thus paying six months' guaranteed interest.

Persons wanting to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity will have to do so at once, as all the allotments will be quickly taken up, and no stock can be bought on the market, as none can be had.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A LEADING SADDLERY OF THE U. S.

Office of Buck and Mehlbach,
106 Chambers Street, New York,
Thursday, March 14, 1901.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Philadelphia Pa.:

Gentlemen,—I have your letter of yesterday, wherein you ask me to send you whatever letters of recommendation or approval we may have received, treating on the interlaced hair saddle cloths, etc., since we have been handling them—now about one and one-half years.

Whatever letters there are of this kind I have not kept separately, and they are, therefore, mixed up with the rest of our filed letters. But, as I told you, my own testimony should be sufficient for intelligent people—for I appreciated the value of interlaced hair for the purpose of saddle cloths, etc., long before I knew you, and at first sight of the cloth—and I am about twenty-five years in the business—I have since, as you know, marketed a great many of them to riders all over this country—South America, Cuba, etc. As you know we are dealing with the most intelligent people, and when a mining engineer, for instance, tells you: "I have now used so many of these hair cloths, and they keep my horse's back free from sores, while formerly I was constantly troubled with them," and then of his own volition orders another lot, that is good evidence in favor of the Interlaced Hair System—is it not? The Interlaced Hair does everything felt and other like materials do not do. It is elastic, it is cool, it does not pack, it can easily be cleansed, and keeps its shape. For harness pads it is surely as good as for saddle cloths, while applied in the manufacture of horse collars it is simply ideal; and I surely wish you plenty of success in your undertaking, for your article deserves it.

Very truly yours,
WM. C. C. MEHLBACH.

FROM HALPEN, GREEN & CO.

Wholesale Grocers, Nos. 18 S. Front St. and 17 Letitia St.
Philadelphia, December 28th, 1901.

The American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Gentlemen,—Referring to the collars which we bought of you something like six months ago, we desire to say that our stableman advises us that they are giving great satisfaction. Would recommend and advise horse owners to use them, especially for heavy hauling.

Yours, truly,
HALPEN, GREEN AND CO.

FROM A ROUGH RIDER.

Coatesville, Pa., December 18, 1900.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of the 15th instant, I have resigned my position with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, but I cannot speak too highly of the Interlaced Curled Hair Riding Housings. This is the first thing of the kind we ever used that would keep horses' backs from getting sore. The sample that was given us for the English Soldiers, they claim they never used anything in their cavalry to equal it, and the cowboys, the acknowledged horsemen of the world, claim it the best housings ever used under a saddle, as it absorbs all perspiration and moisture, so that the air can pass through to cool the backs.

I will refer your letter to the company at once, also will send you size wanted for cowboy saddle, as I wish one of your housings for my own use on the western ranges, which will enable me to introduce them, as I take a great interest in the welfare of horses.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BURCH,
Chief of Buffalo Bill's Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

FROM A CAVALRY LIEUTENANT

Camp Detachment, 2nd U. S. Cavalry,
Matanzas, Cuba, February 27th, 1900.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Interlaced Hair Saddle Cloth for sixteen months, and am now prepared to say something of its merits, but can find nothing to say to its detriment.

It is necessary in the cavalry service to save one's horse as much as possible, and particularly his back. Your saddle cloth keeps the horse's back cool, and keeps down the humps that will generally appear after a long, hot ride.

I have used it in Arizona, and during the recent war in Cuba, and am still using it; it has seen some hard service and stood it mighty well.

Yours,
S. M. KOCHERSPERGER,
Lieutenant 2nd Cavalry.

RUSSIA ADOPTS LESSONS FROM THE BOER WAR

In the Grand Manoeuvres About to be Held Attack in Close Formation is to be Abandoned

Sir Gordon Sprigg is in a Minority—Vote on a School Question Results in His Defeat by a Majority of 14

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 7.—A Cape Town correspondent says that most important division thus far in the session of the Cape Parliament was taken in the Assembly on Thursday. On a private member's motion for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into the position and emoluments of teachers, Chairman Theron, of the Afrikander Bond, moved in amendment that the scope of inquiry be extended to include the powers of school committees. The Ministry opposed the amendment, which, however, was carried by 41 to 27. There was no cross-voting. The correspondent says the importance of the division lies in Sir Gordon Sprigg's repeated assertions that he had an ample majority, yet on his question the Ministry were defeated by a majority of 14. The question arises: How could Sir Gordon Sprigg state that he had an assured majority?

GRAND MANOEUVRES IN RUSSIA.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 7.—The Odessa correspondent of the Times says the Czar's pavilion for the grand manoeuvres in Kursk has been nearly finished. State kitchens, 300 feet long, have been built. In the manoeuvres a cut and dried military hand-book will not be relied on. The transport will be cut down to an irreducible minimum, and a fixed supply of stations will be abandoned. Troops will have to supply themselves as best they can, the responsibility for feeding the men resting on the commanders. Individual firing will be one feature of the operations. Armored trains will be used for a scouting convoy and railway defence purposes. Commanders are recommended to urge men to use every description of natural cover. The infantry attacks in close formation is to be discontinued in certain cases. In addition to their ordinary kit, the men will carry tents so cut into sections as to make it possible for them to be rigged in a few minutes.

KING WILL NOT VISIT CANNES.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 7.—The Times says Captain Ponsonby, equerry to King Edward, replying to an inquiry regarding the statement published that the King would visit Cannes after Christmas, staying there for the regatta, telegraphed as Follows: "King has made no plans whatever about going to Cannes."

SECURING LOYALTY OF POLES.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 7.—It is not expected in Austria, says a Vienna correspondent, that Emperor William's language at Posen will conciliate the Poles, but at least it does not wilfully offend them. Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung says that in order to secure the loyalty of the Poles, Emperor William must grant national as well as religious toleration.

OPPOSITION TO RENAN STATUE.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 7.—The Bishop of St. Brieuc, says a Paris correspondent, threatens to suppress Pardon, and the procession at Treguier, unless the proposal to erect a statue of Renan is abandoned. The Marquise De Joigne intends to reopen the closed nuns' school at Juigne, in order to prevent children from being forced to attend a secular establishment.

BOERS TAKE INTEREST IN NATIVE TREATMENT

Watching with Intense Eagerness the Course of the Government, Should Disarm Blacks

Special to The Times.

Johannesburg, Sept. 7.—There is one subject beyond others in which the Boers take the keenest interest—the treatment of the natives; and they are watching with intense eagerness for the Government pronouncement.

Legislation for the natives presents extraordinary difficulties. On the one hand, British public opinion, being based, according to the best colonial and Boer authorities whom I have consulted, on insufficient knowledge of the native character, appears unfavorable to repressive measures. On the other hand, no doubt, the Boer treatment of the cases exceeded in many cases the limit of firmness joined with kindness which is supposed to characterize our own policy towards them. At the same time, it is fair to record the fact that during the late campaign there were many instances in which natives followed Boer masters and showed great devotion to them.

The great danger to be feared from the natives at the present moment is that of attacks upon Boers returning to their farms, and assaults upon white women, arising from insolence inspired by the British victory. Although it would be incorrect to say that the state of things is alarming, there is no doubt that the Boers on farms isolated from the garrison towns are becoming nervous with regard to the attitude of the natives.

ALLEGED MURDER.

Some cases have been reported—which, however, I am unable to authenticate—of armed natives murdering Boers who were returning to their homes. In one such case some Boers coming in to surrender are said to have been murdered. The Boers, however, are most concerned at several attempts to outrage white women which have recently occurred. When caught in such attempts in the old days the native received summary justice in the shape of a bullet through the head. Under the present regime there has been no legislation on the subject as yet, nor in the opinion of those able to judge would it be advisable to hasten legislation until all concerned are able to voice their opinions. The natives openly declare that the issue of the late war was the treatment of the natives; consequently they have shown a truculent demeanor towards the Dutch, who feel the change intensely.

During the war the military authorities collected all natives unable to subsist on their farms, and formed concentration camps in the neighborhood of the railway under Major Lobiniere, and when peace was declared a very small proportion of the natives were willing to return to take service with the Boers, alleging fear of bad treatment. Many colonials, however, interpret their unwillingness as disinclination to exchange a lazy existence in the camps for a life of hard work.

THE WORST FEAUTURE.

But the worse feature of the situation is the fact that many natives have somehow or other procured firearms, which they do not even take the trouble to conceal. An anomalous position results, the white inhabitants who have been disarmed by the British Government having to live side by side with natives who still retain their arms.

In conversation I have had with prominent colonial Englishmen on the subject they expressed their opinion by freely declaring that such a state of things was bound to have the worst effect. On inquiry in other quarters I find the opinion almost universal that the moment has come to disarm every native in South Africa. Upon this subject there is wonderful unanimity, among Boers and Britons. In fact, those who are optimistic about the future of the country and the peaceful settlement of differences declare that if the native question is treated reasonably a grievance of the Dutch would be removed. They urge that for the moment it would be wise to retain the old native legislation—at least until the question has been fully thrashed out—and, above all, to make rape upon white women punishable with death. If the Government decided to disarm all natives in the new colonies, it would be a most popular step among British colonials, and would go a long way to reconcile the Dutch to our rule. The process now would be comparatively easy, as there is still a great number of troops in the country.

In conclusion, it would be impossible to emphasize too strongly the extreme importance of this question, and the great delicacy which is necessary in treating it. To quote the words of one of the foremost South African authorities, "On the question of the natives depends the whole future of the new colonies, whether the Boers will loyaly accept British rule or continue in a state of sullen resentment."

Lindsay Post:—Offers for the construction of sewers on Cambridge and Peel streets were opened by Chairman O'Rielly. They were as follows—Jas. Bogue $2360 and $1230; P.G. Pilkie, $2370 and $1160. On the recommendation of Commissioner Chalmers, Mr. Pilkie's tender was accepted, it being the lowest.

A POLICEMAN'S LOVE MAKING

Interesting Incident in the Life of a Policeman in Pittsburg

Special to The Times.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 8.—Has a policeman the right to make love to a girl to win from her a confession of crime? This is what Sergeant Wheelwright of the new force has done, and the ethics of the thing are not bothering him at all, for he has succeeded in recovering $6,000 worth of jewelry for Mrs. Samuel Goldberg. Wheelwright suspected the maid, Miss Nettie Goldman, and, hiring out as a gardener on the despoiled woman's premises, he began making strenuous love to the girl. The maiden's heart was lightly won, and in three days she was ready to elope with him. How could they go to Paris without a lump of money? Nettie fell into the trap. She confessed that she had taken the jewelry, and offered to turn it over to her lover with the understanding that he would convert it into cash for their honeymoon. Then Mr. Wheelwright locked her up. Miss Goldman used three languages—French, German, and English — to tell the sergeant what she thought of him, but the sergeant says he does not mind.

HOW A STRIKE BEGAN

Telegraph Messenger Boys who wanted More Money Try Strike Methods

Chicago, Sept. 8.—There's a telegraph messenger boys' strike on in Chicago. Possibly that's what started the G.N.W. messenger boys in Hamilton. Anyway, whatever started them, they did start yesterday afternoon. Nine of them got together and formed a plan of campaign. The rate of 1 1-2 cents per message wasn't good enough to be union wages; in fact, in view of the rise in coal prices and the general increase in price of food supplies the boys decided they couldn't keep their families on such starvation wages.

A statement was written out explaining to the management that at least 2 cents per message would be demanded. One hour was given to the manager to yield, the alternative being a general strike and closing down of the company's business.

The hour passed and no word came from the manager's office. True to their promise, the nine boys marched out of the office, and, for the moment, were really, truly strikers. The sensation was new and felt good. It felt good until one of the operators appeared at the door and shouted "Who's first out?" this indicating that a message was ready for delivery.

No one knows just who it was made the first move, but they all know that in a minute they were all inside arguing as to which of them had the right to take the message at 1 1-2 cents. And thus the strike ended; but the management is considering the situation and the boys may get what they have asked for without either strike or bloodshed.

TALES OF THE SHAH

He is a Tremendous Spender and Hard to Entertain

The present tour of the Shah, Muzaffer-ed-Din, in Europe is the fifth made by a sovereign of Persia. The first was in 1873, when a Shah journeyed through the continent in superb style, spending $10,000,000 during his six months' tour. In England a wing of Buckingham Palace was set apart for the august visitor and his numerous suite. Some curious incidents marked his stay. The palace would have witnessed the execution of five Persian courtiers for a trifling breach of etiquette had not the Shah been imperatively informed that such an event could not be allowed in England. His appearance in society yielded some embarrassing moments, as, for instance, when he calmly suggested to a beautiful English countess that she should join his harem, and offered $60,000 as compensation to her husband.

Muzzafer-ed-Din is rather fine looking with strongly marked features and a big mustache. He is a great shot. On one occasion a copper coin was thrown into the air and he shot a hole through its center. His other hobbies are photography, telegraphy, cycling and riding in a swift automobile. His strongest trait is obstinacy. When half-way to Vienna he declared he would take a rest before resuming his journey. It was no use telling him the Emperor was waiting for him at the station. "What is the telegraph for?" he asked.

He has a globe of the world made of seventy-five pounds of pure gold, studded with 51,366 gems. Persia is made of torquoises, England of diamonds, India of amethysts, Africa of rubies and the sea of emeralds. It is valued at $4,750,000. His throne is a wonderful work of art and it is valued at $65,000,000.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Simla, India, Sept. 5.—At a meeting of the council today, the Viceroy announced that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught would represent King Edward and Queen Alexandra respectively at the Delhi coronation Durbar, the King being unable to absent himself from England long enough to enable him to be personally crowned in Delhi.

London, Sept. 5.—It is reported here that a regular exchange of "marconigrams" is proceeding directly across Spain, between the Italian warship Carlo Alberto, which is at Cadiz, and the wireless telegraph station at Poldhu, Cornwall and that it is anticipated that a commercial line between Italy and England will soon be in operation.

Dutton, Sept. 6 — While plowing the other day, Phillip Englehart, who resides west of Dutton on Clay street, unearthed some teeth, which no doubt belonged to either a behemoth or mastodon. The death are in a perfect state of preservation, and must have been buried in the earth for hundreds, or for probably a thousand years. The largest of the teeth is four inches long and no doubt belonged, at one time to an infant mastodon. It is probable that further excavations will result in exhuming the greater portion of the animal.

Without a word Mrs. Gehm sprang at the man's throat and clasped both hands around it. The intruder was taken by surprise, but only for a moment. Then, with all his force, he landed blow after blow on Mrs. Gehm's body. The little woman made no outcry but hung on like a bull terrier Around the room the couple swayed, until, with a final effort, the man broke away and dashed upstairs.

Only then did Mrs. Gehm raise her voice. Her screams were heard by a man named Roberts who lives above the Gehm apartments. Roberts came from him room in time to see the one armed man dash upstairs. He followed to the roof, where the fugitive produced a revolver, which he had taken from the Gehms' and threatened to blow out Roberts' brains. The revolver wasn't loaded, but Roberts didn't know that and so retreated.

Meanwhile the hubbub had been heard by Detective Sergeants Brady and Mooney, of the Central Office, who were in the neighborhood. Learning the circumstances the detectives climbed to the roof of the Gehm house and found the fugitive trying to break open the skylight of another house. They placed him under arrest, and took him to Police Headquarters. He gave the name of George Moore, and was identified as No. 5528 in the Rogues' Gallery. The detectives say he is known as "Wingy" Moore, a professional burglar.

Moore was taken to Yorkville Police Court this morning. While the affidavit was being made out, Magistrate Hogan took occasion to praise Mrs. Gehm for her pluckly fight. "you are one of the pluckiest little woman I ever heard of."

Then the burglar was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

New York Sept 5—Mrs. Clara Gehm who is about twenty years old, and weighs not much more than eighty pounds, proved yesterday afternoon that her pluck is large.

Yesterday was house-cleaning day with Mrs. Gehm, who lives in the frist floor at No. 229 East Sixty-third st. In the course of her work Mrs. Gehm needed something from a grocer's store and despatched a neighbor's child on the errand.

While the young woman stood outside waiting for the child's return a one-armed man passed her and went in. A few moments later the child returned. Mrs. Gehm went to her flat, and tried to open the door. She found that someone was holding the handle on the inside. After a short struggle Mrs. Gehm managed to force the door open and found herself face to face with the one-armed man. In the corner of the room were some articles of clothing which he had put together to carry away.

San Francisco, Sept. 4—Fred. Marriott, the editor of the San Francisco News-Letter was shot three times and seriously wounded at his home last night. His assailants were Thomas H. Williams, jr., president of the California Jockey Club, and Truxton Beale, a former United States Minister to Persia and Greece, and a well-known clubman of this city. Neither will say who did the shooting, but Mariott says that it was Williams. The following account of the shooting was given by Mariott before he was put under anaesthetics at the hospital:

"An appointment was made by telephone for a meeting by Truxton Beale. About 9 o'clock Beale and Williams came to my house, and I answered the door myself. When reaching to take their hats Beale struck me a heavy blow in the face and made another slash at me with his fist. 'Smash him,' cried Williams. I retreated as the blow on the forehead almost blinded me. I then started upstairs and Williams began shooting.

The first shot fired shattered Marriott's left leg below the knee and he fell to the steps. As he rolled to the bottom of the steps two more bullets struck him. One cut through the thigh, a few inches below the hip, passing clear through the leg. The other struck him in the right hand.

Mrs. Mariott, hearing the first shot, came to the head of the stairs in time to see her husband fall. She started down to him, then, it is claimed, the revolver was turned in her direction, and two more shots were fired. One passed within four inches of her head.

Williams said:—"We consider it our duty to publish Marriott for publishing article last week reflecting on the reputation of a young lady."

Beale said that although the ladies' name was not mentioned her identity was so plainly indicated that he felt bound to resent the publication. After the shooting Williams and Beale went to the Pacific Union Club, where they were placed under arrest. Marriott's wounds, it is thought will not result fatally. Williams and Beale were released on $10,000 bonds each.

London, Sept. 7.—The approaching session of Parliament is likely to be utilized to elicit information on the general attitude of the Government with regard to two important railway schemes, viz:

1—From the sea to Lake Nyasa, in British Central Africa.

2—From Belize, in British Honduras to the Guatemala frontier.

The importance of the first one is intensified by the question of native labor in South Africa. At present, owing to the absence of the railway from the sea to Lake Nyasa, the planters have to fall back on the natives as their only means of transport. Build the railway, and one opens up the colony and liberates 100,000 or 200,000 natives north to Zambesi, who would gladly go to work in the mines if the British Government invited them. This it cannot do as long as the railway is not built. At present it seems that the Foreign Office and the Treasury put every obstacle in the way of capital being applied to the making of the line.

The continuous postponement of the proposed line in British Honduras is becoming a very serious matter. The colony is decaying year by year, and colonist after colonist is on the brink of ruin. Every one who knows the country is in favor of the construction of the line—the Governor, the Legislature, and the colonists. It is a relatively easy undertaking. The line has been surveyed, and it is understood that Messrs. Perks, Fowler & Co. are ready to construct the line, which is seventy-five miles long, for a cash subvention of £100,000 and 200,000 acres of land (value a dollar, or 4s., an acre), the standard being that of the Uganda Railway. This offer the colony warmly supports.

Moreover, the Government of Guatemala has signified its willingness to grant facilities for the continuance of the line into its territory, and will moreover, co-operate in the way of according land and other privileges to accompany the work of construction.

GEN. BOOTHS' VISIT, TO TOUR THE COUNTRY

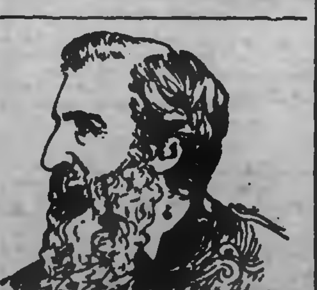
The Head of the Salvation Army Will Arrive Next Month

WILL VISIT ONLY THE LARGE CITIES OF THE DOMINION

Will Arrive at St. John on Oct. 11 and Go Through to Manitoba

General William Booth, the father and founder of the world-wide Salvation Army, will visit Canada next month. It is some seven or eight years since his last visit, on which occasion he was publicly received everywhere. In Peterborough the General was met at the station and escorted to Central Park, where addresses were made. In the evening the drill shed, which had been elaborately decorated and seated, was filled to the doors by citizens anxious to hear the general. On the present occasion he will not visit Peterborough, unless he may do so on his return trip from the West, which is improbable. His programme will be as follows: St. John, N.B., Saturday to Tuesday, Oct. 11 to 14; Halifax, N.S., Thursday, Oct. 16; Montreal, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 18 and 19; Ottawa, Tuesday, Oct. 21; Kingston, Ont., Wednesday, Oct. 22; Hamilton, Ont, Thursday, Oct. 23; Woodstock, Ont., Friday, Oct. 24; London, Ont., Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 25 and 26.

The General will also preside at the annual congress, Toronto, the programme for which will be as follows: Tuesday, Oct. 28, public reception at the Massey hall; Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 29, 30 and 31, staff and field officers, councils; Saturday, Nov. 1, united soldiers' council;



Sunday, Nov. 2, day of salvation in the Massey hall. Over 800 staff and field officers will be present at the congress.

General Booth will visit Winnipeg and Western Canada the first week in December, to attend the largest Salvation Army gathering ever held in Western Canada. It will be attended by officers from all parts of the Pacific and western divisions, which include the States and Provinces of Idaho, Washington, Montana, British Columbia, the Northwest Territories, Manitoba and North Dakota.

THANKSGIVING FESTIVAL

The harvest thanksgiving festival of the Salvation Army is announced from Sept. 20 to 23 inclusive, and the meeting places of the army will be generously decorated for the occasion. The Peterboro officers are already preparing for the event. The meeting hall at the Winnipeg Citadel will be decorated with grains, fruits and vegetables. Special services will be held during the four days, at which special collections will be taken in aid of the officers' assistance and pension fund.

AUSTRALIAN HOME RULERS ASSIST THE IRISH PARTY

Devoted to the Gladstonian Solution for Troubles of Ireland--“ Larry's ” Fighting Speech “ Landlords' Ring ” and “Tory Despotism ” Get Some Hard Knocks Aid for the Irish.

Special to The Times.

Melbourne, Sept. 7. — Whatever views may be now entertained by the official Liberal party in England and Scotland with respect to Home Rule, there is no doubt that Australian-Irishmen and Australian Radicals are still passionately devoted to the Gladstonian solution for the troubles of Ireland. This fact has sprung into prominence at the present moment on account of the sudden fruition of a remarkable movement, having for its end the extension of material aid and sympathy by Australian Home Rulers for all creeds and economic schools to be United Irish party in the House of Commons. The outward and visible signs of the movement were exhibited at two densely-packed public meetings in Melbourne and Sydney. At the Melbourne demonstration a letter was read from Archbishop Carr, the chief Roman Catholic prelate in Victoria, in which the following dignified sentence occurred:

"Hitherto only one English statesman has risen to a just conception of what is required as a reparation of the past and a sure means of reconciliation for the future. Mr. Gladstone failed in his well-intentioned effort to weld the whole empire into one harmonious whole. But he has left behind him the solution of the political problem. The Irish Parliamentary party are following in his footsteps, and the Liberal party, with some defections, are still faithful to his principles. Time and patience and conciliation will be required before Ireland is granted what the different States in Australia have long possessed—Home Rule. Meantime the Irish Parliamentary party must be sustained and encouraged."

HOME RULE FIDELITY.

The first speaker was Mr. Higgins, M.P., a leading equity lawyer and the principal spokesman of the new school of Radical-Evolutionary Socialists. He moved a resolution pledging the meeting to "unswerving fidelity to the principle of Home Rule." The motion was seconded by Mr. Prendergast, M.L.A., a member of the Labor party in the Victorian State Parliament, and supported by the Chief Secretary, Mr. John Murray, M.L.A., in the new "Reform" Victorian Ministry, and by Senator Dawson of Queensland, who was Premier of his State for the short period of some few odd hours. The resolution was also spoken to by Senator McGregor, the leader of the Labor party in the Federal Senate. A second resolution committing the meeting to Mr. T. W. Russell's land purchase scheme, was moved by a man characterized as the pluckiest and most wrongheaded—although a master of deep learning and wide reading—public man in Australia, the Rev. Professor Rentoul, D.D., of the Presbyterian Ormonde College. In the course of a fighting speech "Larry" Rentoul said.

He was a Protestant—(hear, hear.) —and from the black north—(laughter and "hear, hear")—and proud to be an Irishman. (Loud "hear, hears.") He had never before appeared on a public platform here to speak on Home Rule, not because he did not hold intense views in its favor, but because he thought Australia should be satisfied to govern itself had not Chamberlain came along—(a voice, "Judas")—and introduced that perilous principle that all parts of the sisterhood of the English speaking nation should interfere with one another's affairs. It was time they should tell him what they thought of the misrule of Ireland. (Loud cheers.)

The landlords' ring in Ireland, the most merciless ring of Tory despotism ever known in a modern land, had received a great shock in the recent defeat of their nominee, Col. Wallace, fresh back from South Africa, by the combined Catholic and Presbyterian farmers. He reminded them that the King himself would be a Home Ruler if the champions of misrule would allow him to get near the people of Ireland. (Cheers.)

Politicians from all sides of the State and Federal Houses dittoed Dr. Rentoul's vigorous denunciatoin of Unionism in Ireland.

The Sydney meeting was hardly less successful than the Melbourne demonstration. The mayor was in the chair, and apologies for non-attendance were received from the Federal Minister of Customs, "No Surrender" Charles Kingston; the Federal Home Secretary, Sir William Lyne, Archbishop Kelly, and a host of local politicians. The first resolution was moved by the leader of the Federal Senate, Senator R. E. O'Connor, regarded as the soundest pleader at the Australian bar, in the estimation of at least two-thirds of the profession. It was seconded by the State Minister of Lands, Mr. O'Sullivan, and supported by a representative of the "fat men's" branch of the local legislature, Mr. John Hughes, M.L.C.

AID FOR THE IRISH.

The first outcome of the movement will be the despatch of about £1,500 to the Irish party at a time when Australian politicians can little afford contributions to anything outside their own immediate districts. The second will be an extension of an invitation to Mr. Redmond to send a delegation to the Commonwealth; and the third the holding of an Irish-Australian Convention in Sydney.

It is not desired to over-rate the importance of this revival of Home Rule agitation in Australia; but English statesmen who are considering means by which Australia may be given a voice in the councils of the empire, should give it some weight. The Irish vote and Irish influence are powerful factors in Antipodean politics, and no ministry, federal or State can ignore them. Speaking generally, political Australia stands for Home Rule of some kind for Ireland; and she will say so clearly if her opinion is sought in the matter. Whether she will be of the same view when the rapidly combining forces of Protestantism have completed their organization throughout the States, is open to question. In Victoria the Protestant movement — largely a Unionist movement, too — has reached the stage of crystallization into what is to be called the Protestant Union, whose aims include the following:

The enlightenment of public opinion and the uniting of Protestants, with a view to the attainment of the following objects:

(a) To obtain for the Bible its due place in our State system of education.

(b) To procure a just and equitable distribution of employment in the public and municipal services.

(c) To defend the general interests of Protestantism in matters political, social, and commercial, and to protect all persons in the community in the enjoyment of their civil and religious liberty.

(d) To obtain the return to Parliament of representatives who will support the above objects.

There is a very bitter time in store for the Australian political world at the next State and federal elections.

ARMY MARCHES IN MOUNTAINS.

Instance of the Fine Training of the Austrian Army

Vienna, Sept 7.—The very thorough way in which the Austrian army is trained in marching over all kinds of country is well exemplified in the recent exploit of the 14th Infantry Regiment, stationed in the Tyrol. This regiment was instructed from the headquarters of the army corps to cross the Zillerthal Alps from Maierhofen over the Schwarzenstein Glacier to the Ahrnthal, and carried out the order in most unfavorable weather, the men climbing to an altitude of more than ten thousand feet without any accident or a single soldier falling out of the ranks. The regiment was in full marching order, but the troops carried alpenstocks as well as the ordinary equipment. The first day's march was from Maierhofen to the Berlin Shelter Hut, over six thousand feet high, which they reached after nine hours' march in the midst of rain and snow. This shelter hut, which is the largest in the Austrian Alps, can provide sleeping accomodation for two hundred men. On the arrival of the regiment, forty mountaineers were already there and lying down. Room was only to be had for the officers, so that most of the rank and file had to sit crowded closely together all night, as it was freezing outside and too cold for bivouacing. Heavy snow fell during the night, and when the regiment started again at four o'clock next morning, the conditions were as bad as could be imagined, including, as they did, thick mist and snowfall.

TWELVE GUIDES.

When the regiment, which had twelve mountain guides with it, reached the glacier, after two and a-half hours' march, everyone was roped, each company being divided into three or four sections of about twenty-five men each. It took four hours during which an icy wind was added to other discomforts, to reach the end of the glacier, where the Leipzig Shelter Hut stands, at an altitude of about ten thousand feet; but, as another glacier had to be crossed afterwards, the men could not be unroped, and went on without a halt to the Daimer Shelter Hut, which was reached after another hour and a-half. Here the men cooked their dinner; after which they resumed their march, and reached St. Johann, in the Ahrnthal, their next sleeping place, in another two hours. The day's march was, therefore, one of ten hours.

This is the first time that a whole regiment has crossed so high a pass, previous experiments having been carried out only by single companies of Tyrolese sharpshooters.

On the same day, August 12, the 1st Tyrolese Sharpshooters Regiment crossed the Hundskehljoch, seven thousand, five hundred feet high, from Zimmerthal to St. Jakob, in the Ahrnthal, doing the distance in eight hours without an accident.

EX-PRESIDENTS PRIVATE SECRETARY TALKS ON THE SUBJECT

Some Interesting Statements About President's Savings and Their Disposition

London, Sept. 6.—The correspondent of the London Daily Mail, writing from The Hague, says: I have been able to secure an interview with Mr. de Bruyn, Mr. Kruger's private secretary, on the subject of the large sums of money which the ex-Transvaal president was reported to have sent to Europe before he left South Africa.

Mr. de Bruyn gives an account—of course, the Boer account—to the effect that before sailing for Europe, Mr. Kruger placed the savings from his salary as president, amounting to £40,000, in the National Bank of Pretoria for the use of the Boer government without interest.

Not only did Mr. Kruger leave this ready money for the use of the state, but he placed at the disposal of his children all his other properties, stipulating that they, too, should hand them over to the Government if the necessity arose.

All that Mr. Kruger took to Europe with him, continued his secretary, was the money necessary for his journey.

He is at present living on the rents of two farms which he kept for himself.

Mr. de Bruyn said nothing about the gold which was shipped from Lourenzo Marques to Europe.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 8, 1902.

THE SHORTEST ROUTE

In connection with the proposed trans-Atlantic fast steamship service there has naturally been considerable discussion as to which would be the best terminal points for the line. In Canada, under present conditions, the choice appears to be between Montreal, Quebec and Halifax, while Liverpool is generally suggested as the British terminus. Mr. Robert Reford who has been for years the agent of freight steamers from Montreal to various ports of the United Kingdom, in a recent article in the London Times, advocates Galway as the British port and Halifax as the Canadian terminus of the proposed line, and the arguments which he advances in support of his suggestions are, at least, worth careful attention.

The shortness of the suggested route is one of the chief arguments in its favor. The distance between Galway and Halifax is about 2,150 miles, as against 3,150 between Liverpool and New York, or 2,840 between Liverpool and Montreal. The ocean can be crossed from Galway to Halifax by steamers of 24 or 25 knots in three days, as compared with seven to eight by the St. Lawrence or New York routes. From London to Galway is a journey of twelve hours, and from Halifax to Montreal fifteen hours, or transit between London and Montreal by the suggested route is possibly in something over four days, or less than one-half the time by New York or any other route.

As the shortness of the Canadian route would be the chief recommendation it is urged that every advantage should be taken of any possible saving in time on transit. By adopting Galway, instead of Liverpool, as the British terminus, the congested waterway in the neighborhood of Liverpool, where fast steaming is dangerous, would be avoided, and Halifax has the advantage of avoiding the dangerous navigation of the St. Lawrence route. It is also pointed out that if the fast steamers did not find it necessary to go further than Halifax and Galway the shortness of the route would necessitate the employment of a less number of steamers than would be needed for an equally frequent service on the longer route. There would be thus a saving in the cost of steamers as well as in maintenance, fuel, insurance, wages, interest and depreciation, and, as less fuel would be required there would be more space available for cargo. Mr. Reford calculates that there would be a saving of £1,650,000 in the maintenance of a line of five steamers from Galway to Halifax as compared with nine steamers from Liverpool to New York. This would give the Canadian route a very substantial advantage.

The question is one which involves many considerations, and it should be decided by the Government from a national, not from a local, standpoint, and only after full consideration has been given to the advantages which are offered by the various routes. The Dominion will only be willing to pay a heavy subsidy to the line on condition that the best possible service is rendered. The fast service would be so arranged that it may be in every respect superior to that of its rivals. Only under such circumstances will Canada reap the full benefit of the service.

THE POOR DOUKHOBOR

Those people who so much admire the Doukhobors will have opportunity this winter to test their love. About 4,000 of these people, settled in the Northwest, will starve to death during the coming winter if somebody doesn't feed them. They are pious, these people—so exceedingly pious that they depend upon the Lord to provide them with food and clothing, and there they are, in the middle of a land of plenty, already suffering from insufficient raiment and food, with a long, cold winter coming. Piety is all very well in its way; but that particular brand which prevents people from working, and leaves to the charitable the duty of providing food and clothing for the pious, is the piety of fools. The Government of Canada imported a beautiful white elephant when it induced these peculiar people to come here and herd together in a colony which will curse the surrounding country for ages. Of course, they will be fed, and petted and coddled, and the missionaries will make a living trying to convert them to business ideas, will continue to tell how exceedingly good they are, and the evil work of the Government will be perpetrated.'

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The people of Manitoba are tickled to death over the fact that they are in for a good thrashing.

SEVEN BEARS IN A BUNCH

Silver Man Ran Across Them in His Oatfield —Two of Them Killed

Bobcaygeon, Sept. 5—A Silver Lake correspondent writes as follows:

"Talk about bears, why bears are around here in flocks like sheep. Mr. William Coulter, our popular mail driver, went out in his back field of oats the other day to see if they were ready for cutting. Noticing a big patch that appeared to have been knocked down he went over to see how they were. When nearing the place he was a trifle surprised to see a good sized bear calmly chewing away at the oats. He was within half a dozen yards of it, and it did not pay any more attention to him that to move off a few paces and take another mouthful of Mr. Coulter's oats. A trifle riled by the cool nerve of the animal and the quantity of oats tramped down, Mr. Coulter was stooping to pick up a stone, when his eye caught another bear. Turning around there was another and another and they were going through the oats to their heart's delight. Noticing a movement to his right, Mr. Coulter threw a stone into the oats, and before he could say Jack Robinson he had two young cubs running round his legs. At this point Mr. Coulter thought he had seen as much bear as he had any use for, and made tracks for home. Altogether there were seven, three large old ones and two pair of cubs. The following night a party went out to look for the game, and Harry Lambert came onto the flock. At last he got sight of one big fellow and raising his rifle let fly. The affect of the report was astonishing. The rushing through the oats sounded like a tornado and the three cubs went scrambling up trees. Then there was some banging of fire arms, and the cubs backed down like cats This was fatal to one, and the others got away. Harry hit his big one all right, and after tracking him a short distance into the woods came upon him dead. Wanting to get another shot at the others, Harry marked the spot in his mind, as he thought, and returned to the field, but he did not get any more shooting and when he returned in the morning was unable to find the bear. The cub weighed about a hundred pounds, and was as fat as butter. The pelt, too, was in good condition. Fully an acre of the oats had been eaten and trampled down by the bears."

A Tailor's Cunning.

"You've made a mistake in my bill," said a young man excitedly yesterday to the proprietor of a prominent tailoring house.

"That can't be," asserted the tailor, mildly.

"Oh, but it's so," exclaimed the youth in a flurry. "Look here! Ten dollars too much charged on this bill."

The proprietor compared the bill with his books. "You're right, Mr. Blank," he admitted. "I'll take ten dollars off, and how much did you say you wanted to pay on account?"

The young man grew red, coughed, and finally produced a five-dollar note.

"That works every time," confided the tailor to an interested bystander, after the customer had departed. "Nothing brings a man here in such a hurry as to overcharge him on his bill. When a customer gets a little backward and dodges the place, I send him a bill overcharging him. He comes on a rush to have the mistake corrected and a little diplomacy does the rest. Best of all, it doesn't hurt his feelings, as would a visit from a collector."—Philadelphia "Record."

Chimmie Fadden on Etiquette.

"Peoples get good manners from good meals. De nation dat cooks de best, dat serves meals de best, dat makes de most of de ceremony of eating, has de best manners. De nation dat cooks de worst has manners next to de bad. I shall not mention de nations I has in mind, because France and England has odder troubles between 'em, already. De better a meal is cooked, de more care is took, naturally, wit its service; de more elegant de service, de more ceremony de diners observes wit each odder. Good manners is de observance of dese social ceremonies dat usage proves produce de least friction and de pleasantest relations. If Lord Chesterfield and Ward McAllister had met in de wold, and accident made 'em dine togedder on camp-fire fare, witout servants, table linen, china, silver, glass, flowers — just ill-cooked meals, wit only fingers to eat wit—deir manners, in a week, would been no better dan de Eskimos."

The Moonstone Sphinx

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson,

Author of "A Girl of the People," Etc.

One side of the wall was covered with a great sheet, under which hung the various dresses which Winifred wore in the play, and another sheet was suspended underneath the frocks to keep them from contact with the wall. The upper sheet Jameson removed from the hooks to which it was fastened by rings, and from the collection of pretty garments it had protected took a Japanese dressing-gown which she laid over the back of a chair in front of the table.

It was early still, and Winifred curled up on the lounge to look through her letters, slowly drawing out hairpins and pulling off gloves as she read, while Jameson moved about the room preparing for the business of the evening. She folded up the big clean towel which had covered the neatly-arranged make-up things on the table, laid out other towels on the stationary wash-hand-stand, and lit the gas-jet surrounded by a wire cage, which was needed, despite the electric lighting, for heating the dark blue grease-paint which Winifred used on her eyelashes for stage effect.

Meantime the girl was laughing over her letters. The doorkeeper's vulgarly-worded prophecy had proved correct, for the budget largely consisted of declarations of admiration from silly youths, whose names she had never heard, and appeals for her portrait or autograph from girls who thought it must be "simply too lovely to be on the stage."

Presently all were finished and tossed aside, and Winifred gave herself into the hands of Jameson, who had the neat little tailor-made frock off and the Japanese dressing-gown on in a twinkling. The pretty blue enamel watch was pinned on the window curtain where Winifred could glance at it as she sat at the table to make up; and then down came the great coils of wavy yellow-brown hair, which the maid would arrange for the part her mistress played in the style of 1830.

Winifred would be quite beautiful by and by when, powdered and delicately painted, her lips pointed into a red Cupid's bow, her long dark lashes and the pencilled arch of her brows accentuated, her charming figure set off by a quaint gown of pink and green brocade, she made her first appearance of the evening. But she was far more bewitching now as she sat before the glass with her lovely hair gleaming and curling round her girlish shoulders, her white neck half exposed, and the roses and cream of her own charming, faintly sunburnt complexion untouched by stage make-up.

Perhaps some childish stirring of vanity had been roused by the adoring letters; at all events, as she looked in the mirror before dipping her fingers into the pot of cold cream, which smelt like violets, she told herself that she really was a very, very pretty girl, and she wondered if it had been only for her face, or because he believed she could act, that Mr. Anderson had summoned her to London, and his theater, from the provincial Shakespearian touring company in which she had made her debut.

"I do hope it was because I could act," she thought, "for anyone can be pretty." Then down went her fingers into the cold cream, and in another second it would have been on her face had not her bedaubed hand been arrested by a sharp tap at the door.

CHAPTER III.

The Champion.

Jameson answered the knock at once, and Winifred heard the voice of "the governor's" valet. "Mr. Anderson's compliments, and will Miss Gray go as soon as she is dressed to the 'boudoir?' It is something important."

"F. E. Z.!" repeated George Anderson. "What memories those initials bring back to me! When I hear them—when I see them, I am a boy again. I suppose, Macaire, as you have lived so much of your life out of England, they suggest nothing to you?"

He asked this question with his dreamy eyes fixed on his friend's face, for he was still wondering at the sudden ashy pallor which overspread it, and asking himself if it could possibly have a connection with the initials that had caused his own emotion.

Lionel Macaire sat forward with elbows on knees, and hands hanging listlessly; but a slight quiver went through the gloved fingers, though his marred features remained passive.

"I once knew an actress who made those initials rather celebrated," he answered in the thick, yet harsh voice which sounded as if he had some chronic affection of the throat. "It was a long time ago."

"For my sake don't count the years," laughed Anderson, who was nearly fifty and looked thirty-three at most. He turned to his valet. "Send word to Mr. Newcome that I'll see him——"

"One minute!" interrupted the millionaire. "Does this Mr. Newcome come from—the lady with those initials?"

"That's what I want to find out," Anderson replied. "I had a letter from him this morning saying that she had recommended him to see me when he came to England—he didn't mention from where—and asking for an appointment. I was in a great hurry—just had time to meet you for our business talk—and I sent a verbal message by the boy who brought the note telling Newcome to call to-night about half-past seven. Then our conversation of to-day and everything connected with it put the man's existence out of my head, though I was really curious to see and question him, or I wouldn't have said he might come."

"Didn't you think he'd prefer to talk with you alone?" asked Macaire.

"I don't see why he should. He probably wants an engagement—it can't be anything more private than that. If you ever knew her you must have wondered over the mystery of her disappearance, as we all did; and now that there seems a chance of its being cleared up wouldn't you like to be on the spot——?"

"It isn't a question of what I might like or dislike," broke in the millionaire. "I think it would be rather hard on the young man. I'll be gone in a few minutes if Miss Gray——"

"All right, old man; it's very considerate of you. Wallis"—to his valet—"say that I'll see Mr. Newcome during my first wait. Let him be brought to me at ten minutes to nine precisely."

"In the boudoir, or here, sir?"

Mr. Anderson frowned slightly. The "boudoir" was an exceedingly pretty room on the other side of the stage, fitted up luxuriously by him for his own use in receiving certain favored friends.

It was particularly engaged for the early part of this evening, and a great deal hung upon the scene which would take place there. "I will see the gentleman here," returned the actor-manager.

The faithful and discreet Wallis went out into the ante-room to pass on the information to Hansey, who stood patiently waiting outside the door. As soon as his back was turned Lionel Macaire spoke again, in a lowered voice.

"If this young man asks you for an engagement, don't give him one. I'll explain why afterwards—when you've told me what he has to say about the lady."

"It will be rather hard to refuse a favor to an applicant sent by her," murmured Anderson, regretfully. But there was no rebellion in his mind. On this night, and in this theater, Lionel Macaire's wishes must be law; he only hoped that a certain person whom his thoughts named would see this necessity, this duty, as clearly as he did.

"You can keep his address, and hint at something for him later on, perhaps," suggested the millionaire. "Have you sent word to Miss Gray yet that she will be wanted?"

"No. There's been no time. But Wallis shall go at once."

"It will be better to let the message come from you, and keep me out of it."

"Oh, certainly. I quite understand."

By this time Wallis had come back again. "Just put me into these riding-boots," commanded his master, "and then take a message from me to Miss Gray's dressing-room. She's wanted on a matter of great importance in the boudoir at the end of the first act."

But Mr. Macaire, though he had caused Mr. Anderson's unknown visitor to be delayed, did not intend to take up any more of Mr. Anderson's time for the present. He rose and limped to the portiere which divided the dressing-room from the ante-room. His left foot was an artificial one, and though he never helped himself even by a stick, and very few people knew the cause of his lameness, he had a peculiar hobbling walk which added to the grotesqueness of his appearance.

"Well, I think I'll stroll out in front till the first act's off," he remarked. "See you later. Ta-ta!"

And so he was off. He had stopped just long enough to prevent the young man waiting in the doorkeeper's room from seeing the "governor" before the curtain went up, for already the orchestra was "rung in," and Mr. Anderson's first entrance as the hero was "worked up to" a few moments after the beginning of the act.

Anderson had many things to worry about that night, but despite the crowding anxieties he thought a great deal about "F.E.Z.," and wondered, not so much what sort of man she had sent him, as what that man would have to tell about her. He generally spent his "wait" during the first act either in the green-room or the boudoir, but this evening he did not delay a moment in getting back to his dressing-room. He had left word that Mr. Hope Newcome should be there at precisely ten minutes to nine, and as it was now almost on the hour the young man was already in the ante-room, observed somewhat suspiciously by Wallis, when the actor-manager arrived.

For the fraction of a second the two men looked at each other without speaking. "An extraordinarily handsome fellow, but where on earth did he spring from with that get-up?" Anderson was saying to himself.

"He's as handsome as she said," the younger man was thinking.

Then the manager smiled agreeably and held out his hand, for he wished to be conciliatory. "Mr. Newcome," he said, in his deep, rich voice, "you

STOCK MARKETS

Shaping Towards Further Concentration.

New York, Sept. 6.—It looks now as if the Pennsylvania Road has become the possessor of a majority of the Reading stock. If it has, after a possible further set back in the price of the shares of that coaler, it will do to purchase and hold the common stock for par. It would definitely settle for all time the coal situation, and hasten the enhancement in values of all coal properties. The coal combine is to-day practically a unit in its management and operation, and the consumption of coal is found to increase with gigantic strides in this country while sources of supplies are the only existing mines. Undoubtedly the Morgan and Vanderbilt interests are associated with him. With their vast systems working in unison the division and distribution of coal will be carried on amicably and to the common benefit of all. Things continue to shape towards further concentration in the handling of the railway business of the country. It means better earnings, lower expenses, consequently higher prices. Atchison will also drift into possession of some other lines, or be so closely affiliated with them that it will amount to the same thing. The same condition of affairs is coming about in the southern States. It is also ceaselessly working to the same ends in the great southwest, where Gould forces are dominant. The Gould systems will get through to the Atlantic seaboard, and there will be business enough for all the new Gould line, whether it be some existent lines bought up or an absolutely new built line, will have sufficient business supplied it by the Gould system to maintain it splendidly. Time will probably witness the Wabash Company as the medium by which it will be accomplished, and the securities of that property will then be selling way above what they are at present. It is more than probable that this country will never see again the prices formerly ruling for railway stocks. They will steadily increase in value.

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

ONE MACHINE VS. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 50 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

Investigation led to the indentification of the suit worn by Moore as the one that is missing. The prisoners misdeeds may be said to be crowding him pretty close.

COUNTY POLICE COURT

Monday afternoon was a busy occasion in the local police court. County Police Court Magistrate Edmison presided. The first case called was the enlargement of the gun case, which was first heard in May last. The defendant was acquitted for want of sufficient evidence. The the next case was one of theft, Mr. S. Wessels charged Fred Haughton, both of Cordova, with stealing a watch. Haugton, who is a Marchmont Home youth, was let out on suspended sentence, pending investigation of his evidence. The watch was returned. W. Duncan, of Belmont, was charged with assault by his daughter Ella. Dan Grieves was charged with assault and battery by W. Duncan, and Dan Grieves made a counter charge of the same. Both were enlarged for hearing until next Tuesday, after hearing Duncan's evidence. In the meantime the Children's Aid Society, of Peterborough will investigate the alleged wretched condition of Duncan's motherless family.—Havelock Standard.

—Lindsay Post: It is a lucky thing that our pavements match Kent street, in being of commanding width. If they were like the Peterborough walks, for instance, there would not be room on them for the immense stocks of goods now being received by our merchants, and citizens would have to take to the hard pan.

The first regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.W.C.A. for the season of 1902-3, will be held on Monday, Sept. 8th, at 3.30 p.m. All members are urged to make a special effort to be present as very important matters are to be discussed.

—A Peterborough young man and two of our young ladies were out driving one night last week. It was quite dark as they passed along a suburban street. The horse stopped suddenly and the earth seemed to rise right under the carriage; the vehicle was thrown high in air and the occupants landed in a heap. A close inspection showed that the carriage had gotten on top of a cow that was sleeping on the road, causing the animal to spring up suddenly, which upset the carriage.

Dentists to Move

The dentist, following the doctors' example, are now moving for a Dominion resigtration scheme, under which, the passage of one examination will enable them to practice their business anywhere in Canada. The provincial rights men will be against the project, and there will be difficulty in getting it through. There are Little Canadians, as well as Little Englanders—or rather, to be accurate, there are Little Ontareoans, and Little Quebecers, and Little all the rest who are not equal yet to sinking petty local prejudices or self-interest for a broad Canadian patriotism.

AN OLD WAR

Pretty Near Time to Stop

Wouldn't it make your friend mad to tell her she was in reality a drunkard, but many women are drunkards unconsciously from the use of coffee, which wrecks their nervous systems, and they seem unable to reform.

A lady in Philadelphia, Pa., was very badly affected by coffee, causing her to have nervous prostration, and she finally woke up to the fact that she was in reality a coffee drunkard. Her doctor had told her that she must give up coffee, but she seemed unable to do it.

One day she read an advertisement about Postum Food Coffee and thought she would give it a trial. She says: "Coffee had such a strong hold on me, that at first I did not make it all Postum, but added a teaspoonful of coffee. After a while I quit putting coffee in at all, and soon found I felt much better. Continued use stopped my headaches and biliousness, and I [illegible] that my nervousness had evidently left me for good. Now I would not use anything else, and the smell of coffee makes me sick.

"I am using your Grape-Nuts too, and think it a wonderful food. I lately cured an attack of indigestion by eating nothing but Grape-Nuts and drinking Postum for two weeks [illegible] feel so different." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE KAWARTHA LAKES GROWING FAMOUS

A Philadelphia Manufacturer Decribes a Two Week's Holiday

Unequalled Fishing Along a Stretch of Seventy Miles of Lovely Lakes

The following article is taken from The Manufacturer, a Philadelphia business publication, and describes the impressions of one of the "Captains of Industry" of that city on making his first visit to the Kawartha Lakes. His unstinted admiration will no doubt be the means of arousing the enthusiasm of others, and we may look forward to the coming of a regiment of Philadelphians next season. The letter, which is headed "Better Take a Rest," reads as follows;

The life of the average manufacturer is an exacting one. In season and out, his nose is at the grindstone, and the grinding goes ahead pretty steadily. If there is any individual who deserves a regular vacation, it is he; and if there is any one to whom a vacation would be more beneficial, he remains to be found. The fact is that there is something particularly strenuous in manufacturing activity which should be relieved by frequent periods of rest. The manager of the whole concern and his assistants need intervals of inactivity just as much as the great engines and dynamos which furnish the physical power to their works. Brain power may be easily exhausted, and it is just as necessary that it be kept to a full head as it is that steam shall not be lacking in the boilers.

Now, of all ways of spending a vacation there is one that meets every necessity of recuperation beyond any other. One may sing the praises of golf and extract a certain amount of pleasure and a moderate amount of exercise by driving or attempting to drive the elusive sphere over an 18-hole links; others may sigh for the delight of the rolling ocean, viewed from the vantage of a six-by-nine bedroom, and others blessed with the provide for contingent expenses, consequent upon the injured feelings of more or less injured pedestrians, may tour about the country in lightning motor cars, but for pure enjoyment and the greatest amount of health-giving ozone, he who hies himself to the woods and waters with a nine ounce rod and a quadruple action reel, containing 50 yards of well-woven silk, need ask no odds of any others, nor envy any in his choice of vacation methods.

But there is fishing and fishing. Like hunting, fishing is possible everywhere. It is the catch which is the question, and that is where he who having found teeming waters unselfishly imparts the information to his fellow Waltonites is a benefactor indeed. To those to whom the rustle of the green wood and whirl of the reel is music to the ear, the recital of one experience may be pleasant and profitable.

There lies in Middle Canada, about 80 miles north of Toronto, bordering upon the primeval woods, a chain of lakes called "Kawartha," less known than they deserve to be, and are certain to be because of their piscatorial wealth and surpassing beauty sought by thousands. Here is the home of fish worthy the name. The swift, leaping, weighty and cunning muscallonge, and the real black bass type, which attaining portly dimensions and a weight of five pounds, makes a mockery of anything less than a line of 17 pounds breaking strain. In each of the five lakes, which constitute the 70 miles of water way, the game fish makes his home, and in each one he is awaiting the angler in sufficient numbers to make satisfactory catches certain no matter what the wind or weather may be. Both the fish and the catching are of the highest order; made none the less agreeable by the entire absence of mosquitos, gnats and other disagreeable forms of insect life.

To be sure, it is only for a week or so, immediately after the season opens in June, that the wily bass will consent to be decoyed by an artificial fly; at all other times the real thing is food, and preferably a good-sized minnow must be offered him. Once hooked, however, there is as pretty a fight awaiting you as one could well wish, and the sportsman will not consider it a detracting circumstance to know that only such light tackle is used that the fish, with exceeding cunning, secure their freedom almost as often as they are caught. It is queer, too, that this great natural fish preserve is not better known to the fishermen who gladly seek the more distant waters of Northern Maine, for accessibility is one of its strongest points. Scarcely any other waters so prolific in sport giving can be reached in such comfort.

By means of the beautifully appointed Lehigh Valley trains leaving the Reading Terminal in Philadelphia at 8.45 a.m., one makes connection with the Grand Trunk Railway at Suspension Bridge, and with an all too fleeting glimpse of Niagara, from the world famous bridge erected by Grand Trunk enterprise, in a couple of hours is in Toronto, when after a short wait, an interesting two hours' journey over the same road, lands him in Lindsay, a quaint town in the Province of Ontario, and the southernmost port on the Kawartha Lakes; here the admirably clean and commodious steamer of the Trent Valley Navigation Company which controls navigation on the Kawartha Lakes is taken, and in a short time any one of the fishing villages on the lakes from Buckhorn Falls on the east to Bobcaygeon, the central point, to Coboconk, the most northern point, may be reached, so that in less than a full day's ride from Philadelphia, one can be in a clean and hospitable inn, with plenty of time remaining to engage his guide and make his preparations for beginning early next morning a campaign, every minute of which will be filled with the delight known only to the true fisherman.

Try it yourself for a couple of weeks, and see if it is not so.

That Gold Spoon.

There are some men who seem to be favorites of fortune. They are industrious, cheerful workers, full to overflowing of the energy of splendid health, and success seems fairly to drop into their hands. It is of such as these that the less hardy and less successful men says enviously, "That fellow was born with a gold spoon in his mouth." And yet on analysis it will be found that this success is largely due to splendid health, the endowment of a healthy mother.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the mother health to give her child. It cures nervousness, nausea and sleeplessness. It makes the body comfortable and the mind content. It gives physical vigor and muscular elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I will endeavor to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. R. H. Robertson, of Medicine Lodge, Barber Co., Kans. "In the fall of [illegible] I was expecting to become a mother and suffered terribly with pains in the back of head; in fact I ached all over. Suffered with awful bearing-down pains; I was threatened for weeks with miscarriage. A lady friend told me to use Dr. Pierce's medicines. She had taken them and felt like a new woman. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and took four bottles before my baby came and two afterwards. I suffered almost death with my other two children, but hardly realized that I was sick when this baby was born and she weighed twelve and one-quarter pounds. She is now eleven months old and has never known an hour's sickness; at present she weighs thirty-seven pounds. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

Five Dollars for One Dollar

With a Guaranteed Dividend of 30 Per Cent.

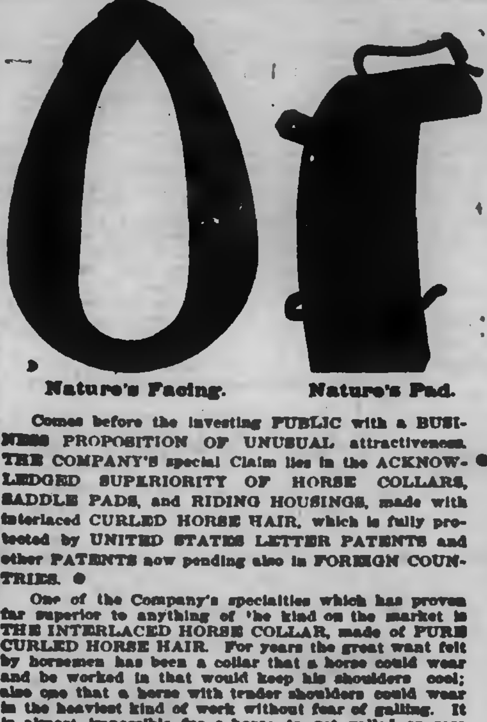
We have just been notified that we have been granted a Patent on the Collar in Great Britain This enhances the assets of this Company greatly, so that in order to meet the demand on it and extend the business in both countries, we have decided to sell 40,000 shares of the Treasury Stock at One Dollar per share, and as the returns will be large from the business we will sell it all under the 30 per cent guarantee.

We must remind investors that this is not all their stock will earn, but they will be entitled to their share of all profits above this.

And as this Company will have a complete monopoly of these Collars, the dividends will go far beyond the guaranteed dividend, and beyond all expectation.

NATURE'S FACING FOR HORSE COLLARS.

THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR CO., OF PHILADELPHIA.



Nature's Facing. Nature's Pad.

Comes before the investing PUBLIC with a BUSINESS PROPOSITION OF UNUSUAL attractiveness. THE COMPANY'S special Claim lies in the ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF HORSE COLLARS, SADDLE PADS, and RIDING HOUSINGS, made with interlaced CURLED HORSE HAIR, which is fully protected by UNITED STATES LETTER PATENTS and other PATENTS now pending also in FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

One of the Company's specialties which has proven far superior to anything of the kind on the market is THE INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR, made of PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR. For years the great want felt by horsemen has been a collar that a horse could wear and be worked in that would keep his shoulders cool; also one that a horse with tender shoulders could wear in the heaviest kind of work without fear of galling. It is almost impossible for a horse to get galled or sore shoulders or sore neck, no matter how tender, when working with this collar, which can be washed with either hot or cold water without injury to it any way. The washing does not stiffen or harden it as it does a lined collar, being faced with the purest kind of curled horse hair. The hair comes in direct contact with the animal's skin, and the hair being porous, allows the healthy action of the skin and flesh. It at once absorbs the sweat, and in hot weather is invaluable, as it prevents the gathering of lather, as is the case with most cloth or leather-faced collars. These collars will outwear a cloth or leather-faced collar, as the hair is practically indestructible. These collars are no experiment. They have been in use for 1 1-2 years, and have proven their merits without the shadow of a doubt. Everyone who has used them can testify to their efficiency. They are admittedly the most common-sense horse collars in the world.

THIS COMPANY IS NOT TRYING TO CREATE, nor is it asking investors for THEIR MONEY to experiment with. We have gone through the experimental stage, and now have Our Articles as near perfection as they can be gotten. The material we are using in the Facings and Cushions of our Collars and Pads is not a New Article, but is the True and Tried Material, PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR, which has defied and has outlived all imitations.

It is the policy of THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR COMPANY to license or re-let the privilege of Facing Collars under their patents to the numerous harness and collar makers in the United States, of which there are over 22,000.

The profits from this source alone will undoubtedly be large, and in a very short time enable the Company to pay large dividends on its Stock. This will increase the value greatly, and will enable those who take advantage of this first-class offer to make well out of their investments.

The Company has already a complete factory in Bridgesburg, a section of the City of Philadelphia, equipped with the latest patterns of machinery for the manufacture of its products, free from all indebtedness.

As Our Articles of production are of the most stable kind, and to thoughtful people articles of necessity, therefore it is necessary that we bring the Articles before the People in general, and in order to do so, we offer to the PUBLIC A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THE TREASURY STOCK (ALL THE STOCK IS COMMON), THEREFORE ALL INVESTORS WILL SHARE EQUALLY AND FULLY OF THE COMPANY'S PROSPERITY.

In order that we may at once push the business forward, for we have an immense field before us, Free from Competition on articles of merit:—

We will sell 40,000 Shares of the Treasury Stock for One Dollar Per Share, after which the sale will be withdrawn and the price will be Five Dollars par.

So positive are the officers of this Company that this business will be a sure success, and yield large returns to the investors, that they will sell the above allotment of stock at the price stated above, and will guarantee a dividend of Six Per Cent. per annum at the least on the par value of the stock for five years.

We will attach ten coupons to the certificates of stock, payable in January and July.

Thus paying 30 per cent. on the investment.

This is a reasonable offer, as large revenues will be derived from the re-letting system, which guarantees us to make the above offer.

Aside from this there will be large profits from the sale of the goods, and from the material furnished those who re-let the system.

The revenues from the business will be such as to make this a first-class investment.

Every dollar from the sale of this stock will go into the treasury of the Company, free from all expenses, and the Business will be conducted on a very conservative and economical basis.

This is not a Stock Speculation Scheme, but it is the intention of the Officers to Establish the Business on a Solid Basis.

After the Business has been extended in the U. S. it is the intention of the Company to extend its Articles at once to the Foreign Markets, from which will be Large Returns, and an Immense Business Established.

All subscriptions for stock which shall be in the secretary's hands before the 15th day of August will receive a coupon due January 1st, thus paying six months' guaranteed interest.

Persons wanting to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity will have to do so at once, as all the allotments will be quickly taken up, and no stock can be bought on the market, as none can be had.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A LEADING SADDLERY OF THE U.S.

Office of Buck and Mehlbach,
106 Chambers Street, New York,
Thursday, March 14, 1901.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Philadelphia Pa.:

Gentlemen,—I have your letter of yesterday, wherein you ask me to send you whatever letters of recommendation or approval we may have received, treating on the interlaced hair saddle cloths, etc., since we have been handling them—now about one and one-half years.

Whatever letters there are of this kind I have not kept separately, and they are, therefore, mixed up with the rest of our filed letters. But, as I told you, my own testimony should be sufficient for intelligent people—for I appreciated the value of interlaced hair for the purpose of saddle cloths, etc., long before I knew you, and at first sight of the cloth—and I am about twenty-five years in the business—I have since, as you know, marketed a great many of them to riders all over this country—South America, Cuba, etc. As you know, we are dealing with the most intelligent people, and when a mining engineer, for instance, tells you: "I have now used so many of these hair cloths, and they keep my horse's back free from sores, while formerly I was constantly troubled with them," and then of his own volition orders another lot, that is good evidence in favor of the Interlaced Hair System—is it not? The Interlaced Hair does everything felt and other like materials do not do. It is elastic, it is cool, it does not pack, it can easily be cleansed, and keeps its shape. For harness pads it is surely as good as for saddle cloths, while applied in the manufacture of horse collars it is simply ideal; and I surely wish you plenty of success in your undertaking, for your article deserves it.

Very truly yours,
WM. C. C. MEHLBACH.

The American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Gentlemen,—Referring to the collars which we bought of you something like six months ago, we desire to say that our stableman advises us that they are giving great satisfaction. Would recommend and advise horse owners to use them, especially for heavy hauling.

Yours, truly,

FROM A ROUGH RIDER.

Coatesville, Pa., December 13, 1900.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of the 18th instant, I have resigned my position with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, but I cannot speak too highly of the Interlaced Curled Hair Riding Housings. This is the first thing of the kind we ever used that would keep horses' backs from getting sore. The sample that was given us for the English Soldiers, they claim they never used anything in their cavalry to equal it, and the cowboys, the acknowledged horsemen of the world, claim it the best housings ever used under a saddle, as it absorbs all perspiration and moisture, so that the air can pass through to cool the backs.

I will refer your letter to the company at once, also will send you size wanted for cowboy saddle, as I wish one of your housings for my own use on the western ranges, which will enable me to introduce them, as I take a great interest in the welfare of horses.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BURCH,
Chief of Buffalo Bill's Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

FROM A CAVALRY LIEUTENANT

Camp Detachment, 2nd U. S. Cavalry,
Matanzas, Cuba, February 27th, 1900.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Interlaced Hair Saddle Cloth for sixteen months, and am now prepared to say something of its merits, but can find nothing to say to its detriment.

It is necessary in the cavalry service to save one's horse as much as possible, and particularly his back. Your saddle cloth keeps the horse's back cool, and keeps down the humps that will generally appear after a long, hot ride.

I have used it in Arizona, and during the recent war in Cuba, and am still using it; it has seen some hard service and stood it mighty well.

Yours,
S. M. KOCHERSPERGER,
Lieutenant 2nd Cavalry.

A NEW SOUTH AFRICA NOW A CERTAINTY

Boers Looking Forward to a Great Commercial Future

READY TO TURN AND HELP GREAT BRITAIN

What a Prominent Boer has to Say Regarding the future of the Conquered Republics

Special to The Times.

New York, Sept. 9 — J. H. Munnik, who was State Mining Engineer under the Transvaal Government, who was made a prisoner by the English after a sharp engagement in the South African war, and whose personal cards read "Prisoner of War, Camp Trichinopoly, came to this country about a week ago on a business trip to visit John Hays Hammond, late of South Africa and now of this city. Mr. Munnik sails for Southampton to-day on his way back to South Africa. In Mr. Hammond's office in the Mills building yesterday afternoon he talked freely of the late war, of the prospects of amicable relations between the Boers and their old-time enemies, the British, and particularly of the business outlook in South Africa. Of this last he takes a very optimistic view.

"There is one thing concerning the war," he said, which I would be very glad to put correctly before the American people. A great deal was said about our state of preparedness for the war and about the vast number of millions which Paul Kruger took to Europe with him.

"Now I know it to be a fact, and the statement can be confirmed by the Treasury archives at Pretoria, that the total amount of minted money in the Transvaal Government Treasury when the war broke out was £240,000 or about $1,200,000. When war was proclaimed and we had to look for the sinews this sum was what we had. In addition to this there were in the banks belonging to the English mining companies some uncoined gold, but a mere trifle compared with the necessities of carrying on a war. Mr. Kruger gave strict instructions that the surplus of the banks be not touched, and it was not touched. It was perfectly legitimate, however, for us to appropriate the raw gold belonging to the companies, and we did so.

It was necessary to do something to replenish the treasury with a war fund. The British inhabitants were run out of the country, and the mining companies closed their operations, and we found it necessary before it was too late to restart the mines. I was put in charge of that work. We succeeded in keeping twelve of the mines in operation, including the Robinson, Ferreria, the Rose Deep and the Bonanza. The twelve mines we selected were those which with the least expense could produce the best results.

"We kept these mines working until the British entered Johannesburg—about eight months in all—and during those eight months we took about $12,000,000. This total, with the $1,200,000 in cash and the raw gold taken from the banks, represents the entire amount which the Transvaal expended upon the war. It also includes the fabulous millions which Paul Kruger is supposed to have escaped with from Delagoa Bay.

"The question of why we failed to blow up the whole of the Johannesburg chain of mines has been raised, and indeed we have been criticised for not doing so. The Government did send for me at one time and asked me what it would require to blow up the mines. We had then in stock about 150,000 pounds of dynamite, and with that, I replied, it would be possible to reduce the whole of the Johannesburg mining region to a state of havoc.

"Action was subsequently taken, in a certain way. We went about here and there among the mines drilling holes and running fuses into them, leaving the ends dangling out. There was no dynamite in the holes and there was not the slightest intention of blowing up the mines. But we had people of all countries of Europe among us—Germans, French, and what not—and we felt sure that the news of what we had done would soon get abroad, and in this we were not mistaken.

"Two days after, all Europe knew it, as we intended should be the case. It was our hope that the agitation our action would cause among the capitalists would bring about foreign intervention. It was simply a big game of bluff, but it did not work. It scared the capitalists, but it did not scare the politicians.

"The reason we did not blow up the mines was because we knew that to do so would be to inflict a blow from which the country never would recover. Furthermore, we knew it would not be the capitalists who would be hurt, but the small investors whose surplus money was invested in the mines. No, never for a moment was the subject of blowing up the mines seriously considered.

"It is marvellous what a change has come over the spirit of the Boers since the war. I am a Boer born and bred, and I know my countrymen well. I was a prisoner in India, and what I saw among my fellow prisoners there I have learned with surprise was common in all the prison camps. And that was that even the old farmers, the very type of our people that has been represented to the world as the most stupid, indolent and retrograde in their notions—even men of this class in the prison camp—were busily engaged preparing for the active life of progress which they were all awake enough to see was before them when the war would be over. And what do you think it was those old farmers were studying in order to fit themselves for the life of hustle which was before them. You would never guess. Well, it was shorthand! Think of one of those conservative old Boer farmers putting in his time in the prison camps studying stenography! It would be laughable did it not have so strong a pathetic side.

"But this war is history, and what we are looking to now is the future, not the past. Politically we are content to give the British Government from eighteen months to two years to straighten things out. During that time we are content that England should administer the Government and we will loyally give her every aid in our power to bring order out of chaos. If there should be any unrelenting old Boer to break out we will help to hunt him down. I do not in the least believe there will be any such instances. There will be loyal aid and support from the Boers.

"But when the two years are up then we will demand the full limit of our pound of flesh under the British constitution to the last fraction of an ounce. We are Republicans, but we recognise the English Government as in substance Republican, and we are willing to accept the British constitution. We will not be Helots in our own land. We will not permit our land to be made the dumping ground of worn-out scions of nobility to be our Governor-Generals. We will not be averse to a Governor-General from England provided he be a man of brains and character, as Lord Rosebery for instance. Under those circumstances we will be content to furnish due part to the maintenance of the British navy, and to admit Great Britain's goods under the most-favored-nation clause. That is the limit to which we will submit.

"So much for politics. Now as to the commercial future of my country. For my part I represent the Young Africander party, and we look upon Africa as our home. We are going back there to live because it is our home. I have received a tempting offer to go to Mexico, but I am going home, for home is where I belong. And there I expect, as we all expect, to hustle. There is going to be a tremendous development of business activity in South Africa. There are vast fields of gold which are untouched. It was not the policy of the Boer Government to extend the gold fields.

"And there is another thing I would like to tell you. You would never guess that what kept the staunch old Boer veterans fighting on in the face of certain defeat was the story of your American Revolution. When things were at their bluest and somebody would be saying that it was hopeless, that it was idle to continue longer, then some old fellow would say, 'But look what George Washington did! His army was down at one time to 3,000 men, and he didn't lose heart for a moment. He kept fighting on and on, and he won, and look what America is to-day!' And so all the rest would fire up again with resolution to win more firmly fixed than ever. Yes, the story of your American struggle with Great Britain had much to do with prolonging the war, and indeed, I might say, with convincing the old conservatives in the beginning that there was a chance of winning. Had it not been for the example of your success, perhaps the war would not have been begun.

It brought in swarms of foreigners who threatened to swamp the original population. Under Great Britain all this will be changed. Gold fields everywhere will be opened up. The same is true of the diamond fields. The diamonds have been in the hands of a monopoly of which that man (pointing to a picture of the late Cecil Rhodes which hangs on the north wall of Mr. Hammond's office) was the head. But new diamond fields are opening so rapidly that it is putting the monopoly on its mettle to gather them in.

"I look to see large sums of American capital invested in South Africa, and in fact I have been assured since my arrival that such sums would be invested. We need manufacturing interests there, and a great field is before capitalists in that direction. We have the best of iron and unlimited supplies of excellent coal. The coal industry has not been developed, because there were no factories to create the demand. But the factories will come and I confidently expect the coming few years will see such a commercial development as South Africa has never known before."

And a second half-yearly dividend on Ordinary Stock of 2 1-2 per cent., payable October 1st, 1902			$1,625,000.00 for the year amounted to 62.44 per cent. of the gross earnings, and the net earnings to 37.56 per cent., as compared with 60.75 and 39.25 per cent. respectively in 1901.

The earnings per passenger per mile were 1.75 cents, and per ton of freight per mile 0.75 cents, as against 1.66 and 0.70 cents respectively in 1901.

Four per cent. Consolidated Debenture Stock to the amount of six hundred and fifty thousand pounds (£650,000) was created and sold on account of the construction of branch lines authorised, and for the purpose of acquiring first mortgage bonds, on which the interest is guaranteed by your company, of the Mineral Range Railway Company, the Columbia and Western Railway Company and the British Columbia Southern Railway Company, as shown in the statement.

LAND SALES.

The sales of the company's lands during the year amounted to one million three hundred and sixty-two thousand eight hundred and fifty-two acres (1,362,852) for four millions four hundred and forty-two thousand one hundred and thirty-six dollars ($4,442,136), being an average price of three dollars and twenty-six cents ($3.26) per acre, and the cash receipts enabled your directors to redeem and cancel Five per cent. Land Grant Bonds to the face value of one million four hundred and one thousand dollars ($1,401,000), leaving in the hands of the public at the end of the fiscal year one million four hundred and thirty thousand dollars (1,430,000) of these bonds, all of which have since been called for redemption and cancellation.

NEW BRANCHES.

For the purpose of improving the company's position in the city of Ottawa and adjacent territory, and with a view to the ultimate shortening of the line between Montreal and Pembroke, your directors entered into an agreement for the control of the Ottawa Northern and Western, the Pontiac Pacific Junction and the Hull Electric Railway Companies, owning one hundred and fifty-one miles of railway and the interprovincial bridge across the Ottawa river. The terms of the arrangement will be fully set out in the proposed agreement of lease which will be submitted for your approval.

An agreement has been made for an extension of the Montreal and Western Railway, one of our acquired lines in the province of Quebec, a distance of twenty-two miles, on basis that will involve the payment of practically no interest or rental for a period of twelve years.

A branch line one hundred and five miles in length from Kirkella on your main line west of Brandon, to serve the country north of the Qu'Appelle River, and an extension of the Manitoba and North Western Railway forty miles in length, are now under construction with a view to their completion before winter sets in.

IMPROVING ALWAYS.

Four hundred and eighty miles of eighty-pound rails are being laid in the main line this season, and before the end of 1904 your directors hope to have the lighter rails replaced on all the main lines of your system.

Among the more important works completed during the year were a diversion of the line about seven miles in length between Field and Ottertail on the Pacific Division, and the construction of a tunnel eight hundred and ninety four feet long, at the loop on the Crow's Nest line, for the purpose of improving gradients and alignment. Two steel grain elevators of an aggregate capacity of three millions seven hundred thousand bushels are being built at Fort William. When these are completed there will be storage at that point for nine millions of bushels.

During the fiscal year your Company endorsed its guarantee of interest, at four per cent. per annum, on bonds of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company, to the amount of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000), representing the cost of additional mileage constructed.

THE NEW STOCK.

Pursuant to the resolutions adopted at the special general meeting of the shareholders, held March 27th ultimo, one hundred and ninety-five thousand shares (195,000) being nineteen millions five hundred thousand dollars (19,500,000) of the Common Stock of the Company, were offered to the shareholders of record at par, and were accepted by them with the exception of Rights to the face value of three hundred and sixty-eight thousand dollars ($368,000), which are being sold for account of the Company in open market by order of your Directors. The proceeds of the issue are being expended in accordance with the terms of the Order in Council of the Dominion Government granting the necessary legal authority, and of the shareholders authorizing it.

"THESE BUSY DAYS."

In these busy days it is very difficult to secure additional locomotives and cars to keep pace with the growth of your traffic; contracts were made however, for all that could be delivered during the current year. On the completion of your locomotive and car shops at Montreal, now in course of erection, you will be able to provide these facilities more rapidly and economically.

The earnings of the Duluth South Shore and Atlantic Railway Company show some improvement, and the increase in the net revenue of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company is very striking, the net surplus after the payment of all charges for the year, being one million two hundred and eighty-six thousand five hundred and one dollars ($1,286,501.) A conservative and prudent policy on the party of the Directors of the latter Company will, beyond doubt, have your approval and commendation, but, with this large income, it is reasonable to expect that dividends on the shares in that Company, held in your interest, will be forthcoming in the near future.

There will be submitted for your approval an amendment of the existing by-law relating to the election of Directors, providing only for the retirement of only a limited number of Directors at the end of each year hereafter, instead of the whole Board, as was the practice heretofore.

IN MEMORIAM.

Your company sustained a serious loss by the death, in July last, of Mr. John W. Mackay, who had been a member of your Board of Directors since 1890, and whose advice and co-operation were particularly valuable in connection with your telegraph interest.

INTERESTING FACTS AND FIGURES.

The total cost of the railway and equipment to date has been $290,872,641.28.

The hotels and real estate held in trust are valued at $1,785,411.99.

The company has no less a sum of cash in hand than $15,227,891.47.

The net proceeds of the sales of land have been $27,000,988.13.

There has been set aside for the new Montreal shops $446,981.64.

The enormous value of a railway company's freight earnings is well illustrated by the showing that while the passenger earnings of the company for the year ended June 30 last were $9,889,862, the freight earnings were $24,109,438.14.

The development of the Dominion is well demonstrated in the description freight carried. A comparison shows these results:

	Year ended June 30, 1901	1902
Flour, bbls.	3,738,875	4,981,806
Grain, bush.	36,587,468	52,719,700
Live stock head.	946,288	960,742
Lumber, feet	890,214,046	1,089,888,377
Firewood, cords	294,918	294,962
Manfd articles, tons	1,964,296	2,228,234
All other articles tons	2,206,979	2,571,126

The earnings per ton of freight carried were last year 75 cents against 70 cents in the previous year.

THE KILTIE'S BAND

In the Market Hall—Grand Concert by This Famous Organization—An Evening of Music Such as may Seldom be Heard Outside the Large Cities

On Wednesday morning the famous band of the 48th Highlanders, of Toronto, the renowned "Kilties," will arrive in town. They will be here to play an engagement with the directors of the Central Fair, and will no doubt prove to be an attraction at the grounds. They will give an ample and interesting programme during the two afternoons of the fair days.

As of necessity there will be many whose avocations and engagements will not permit of their going to the grounds to hear the band, and an opportunity will be afforded so to do by attending the grand concert to be given by the band in the market hall, on the evening of Wednesday, 10th inst. Please keep the date in mind.

The last time, and in fact the only time, this fine band has appeared in Peterborough, they were brought here by private enterprise, which was appreciated, as should always be the case, but the admission fee was placed at 50 and 75 cents for tickets to the concert. These prices did not do more than let the promoters out without loss. On Wednesday evening next, the opportunity will be afforded to hear the band at the moderate fee of 25c. It is more than cheap. It is an opportunity for the people to hear the finest class of music for a trifle, and it is only possible because the band are here on a day engagement.

The programme will be thoroughly interesting. It will embrace, as is shown by the items following, the very best of music. In addition to the band selections there will be given Sword Dances, by the experts in that art, vocal selections by singers of the company, in short a very complete and interesting programme, and one embracing sufficient variety to be sure to please.

PROGRAMME

Military Marches, "Pomp and Circumstance,"... ... ...Elgar
Grand National Fantasia, "Albion," ....Baltens
(Introducing English, Scotch and Irish airs)
Highland Fling... ....

Three Dances, "Nell Gwyn,"...German

(Introducing national and patriotic airs of all the British colonies and possessions)
Humorous piece, "The Chanticleers," ....Hartman
Descriptive Piece, "Down South."...... ....Myddleton
Sailors' Hornpipe...... ....
Tommy Campbell
Male Chorus, "Annie Laurie," ... Coe
(Rendered by the Choir of the Band)
Concert Morceaux, "Invitation a la Valse,"...... ....Weber
Regimental Marches of Famous Scotch Regiments...... ....J. Slatter
Auld Lang Syne. God Save the King.

The concert will be given, as stated, in the market hall, the opera house being engaged by a visiting organization some time ago. Ample seating conveniences will be provided. No seats are reserved, as that would entail considerable bother in the hall, it not being fitted and equipped to allow of seats being reserved. It is hoped that the low price, 25 cents, will enable a large number to take advantage of the occasion and hear the band. Tickets will be sold only at the door.

Paine's Celery Compound

Permanently Cures Sick and Nervous Headaches That Make Life Miserable

Sick and nervous headaches are amongst the worst ills of life. The man or woman who is subject to headache at irregular intervals, goes through life bearing a load of misery and wretchedness that is terrible to think of.

Headaches, as a rule, result from a disordered condition of the nervous system. Mental excitement, loss of sleep, bodily fatigue and disordered digestion are exciting causes. When the brain becomes tired and debilitated, the whole nervous system is weakened, and headaches result. If the liver is sluggish, the kidneys inactive and digestion deranged, headaches invariably follow. To cure and prevent headache, the nervous system must be strengthened and vitalized. The most persistent cases of headache, nervous feebleness and sleeplessness are permanently cured by Paine's Celery Compound; it is the great reconstructant of the nervous system. Mrs. A. H. Watson, Creemore, Ont., writes as follows:

"For many years I was sorely troubled with violent headache, so that at times I was completely prostrated and unable to attend to household duties. I started to use Paine's Celery Compound, and experienced immediate relief, and since using it I have not had a recurrence of the trouble. I consider Paine's Celery Compound an invaluable remedy, and will always be pleased to say a word for it."

GERMAN GUNBOAT ATTACKS AND SINKS HAYTIAN SHIP

Surprised the Crete-a-Pierrot and Destroyed Her, Claimed She was a Pirate

Haytian Government Says That The Vessel Destroyed Is Regarded as a Pirate—Hayti Doesn't Care

Berlin, Sept. 8.—The German gunboat Panther on Saturday surprised and destroyed the Hautian gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot before Gonaives. The crew of Crete-a-Pierrot fled ashore There were no losses on board the Panther, which remained several hours before Gonaives, and then returned to Port Au Prince.

HAYTI DOESN'T CARE.

Berlin, Sept. 8.—The German Foreign Office informs the Associated Press that the Haytian provisional Government has communicated to Germany that Hayti regarded the Firminist gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot as a pirate, and that the interests of Hayti was untouched by the action of the German gunboat Panther in sinking the Crete-a-Pierot at the entrance of the harbor at Gonaives.

ANOTHER STORY.

Boston, Sept. 8.—Commander Henry McCrea, of the gunboat Machias, now at the navy yard here, who recently was in Haytian waters in charge of the United States interests, was requested to-day for his opinion on the situation there. Commander McCrea was much interested in the reports of the sinking of the Firminist gunboat, Crete-a-Pierrot at the entrance of Gonaives harbor by the German gunboat Panther. The commander said:

"From the newspaper accounts I presume the orders of the German commander were to seize the Crete-a-Pierrot and prevent further interference with innocent foreign commerce, and to sustain the position that the Crete-a-Pierrot had no right to seize or search foreign merchantmen since the Firminist Government had not been recognised as belligerents.

"As to the sinking or firing upon the Crete-a-Pierrot, I take it that this was done to prevent an explosion of the magazine from the fire started by the crew.

A Prominent Hamilton Lady Writes About Malt Breakfast Food

She Recommends This King of Cereal Foods to Her Friends

The Food That Has Made Thousands Strong

A prominent lady in Hamilton, Ont., writes as follows to the Malted Cereals Company:

"After reading the strong testimonial letter of the President of the Ralston Health Club, I commenced the new century with Malt Breakfast Food, and am now a strong believer in its many health advantages. After many years of experience with other breakfast foods, I declare without hesitation that Malt Breakfast Food is the most beneficial article of diet that people can use at the morning meal. I find Malt Breakfast Food so delicious and strengthening that I recommend it to my friends when I have opportunity." Grocers everywhere.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT

Mr. Albert Anthony Has a Foot Taken Off by a Railway Train

A distressing accident occurred shortly after noon yesterday, when Mr. Albert Anthony, a young man about 25 years of age, who was employed as machinist in the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company's Works, had his left foot so badly crushed that amputation was necessary.

It appears that the young man boarded the Toronto express, as was his custom, and rode down to Simcoe street, to his boarding house, at the Queen's Hotel. In alighting he in some way missed his footing, and his left foot was swung under the wheels of the car, frightfully crushing it.

Aid was at once summoned, and he was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where the foot was amputated by Drs. Bradd, McGrath and Greer. He is now doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. Anthony is the eldest son of Mr. W. H. Anthony, the well known boot and shoe maker. The young man, who was very popular with his companions, has much sympathy in his great misfortune.

A LITERAL GOLD MINE

The Immense Banks of Sawdust at Dickson's Mills

The immense banks of sawdust on both sides of the river in the vicinity of the Dickson Company's mills, are a very valuable asset to the Cereal Company, and are said to be worth to them more than the purchase price of the entire property. The company will use the sawdust as fuel for their drying processes, and are, in fact, already doing so. Sawdust fresh from the saws is being taken for this purpose.

The company propose to erect carriers that will take the sawdust from the bank and dump it directly into the retort, thus saving a second handling.

When the Cereal Company purchased the property from the Dickson Company, this sawdust was taken into account, and probably was the means of causing them to decide to locate here. There are many hundreds of thousands of tons, all of which is nearly worth its weight in coal.

CONVENTION

Of the Public School Teachers of Peterborough County

The Peterborough County Teachers' Association Executive Committee met on September 6th, and made arrangements for the annual convention to be held on Thursday and Friday, October 16 and 17, at Ashburnham and Peterborough, of which particulars will be given on the programmes when issued.

It was decided to discontinue paying part of the subscription price of the "Canadian Teacher," owing to the present condition of the finances of the Association.

An excellent programme is being arranged, and as the meetings will be on Thursday and Friday, it is hoped that every teacher in the county will be present.

WILL ESAIBLISH NEW BANK AT ONCE

Arrangements Made For Starting the Metropolitan

A MILLION CAPITAL AT 200

This Will Provide a Reserve Fund of $1,000,000—Public Offering of Stock

The new Metropolitan Bank, the charter for which was obtained at last session of the Dominion Parliament is to be started at once, with an authorized capital of two million dollars, through a public offering of Messrs. A. E. Ames & Co. The incorporators are Messrs. A. E. Ames, R. H. Warden, D.D., S. J. Moore, and T. Bradshaw.

It was not originally intended to proceed to organization immediately upon securing the bank's charter, which was applied for because it was expected to be needed before next session of Parliament. Owing to this no facilities for subscribing for stock were provided until a few days ago.

The bank will be launched in an unusually strong basis. It is intended to issue $1,000,000 of capital at two hundred, which will provide for the bank starting business with a capital of $1,000,000, and a reserve fund of $1,000,000. This will put it at once in as good a financial position as many banks are after twenty or more years of active work.

It is generally understood that Mr. A. E. Ames, an old Peterborough citizen, and son-in-law of Hon. Senator Cox, will be made President and R. H. Warden Vice-President, and that an experienced banker will be placed in charge as General Manager.

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well, and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica or lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

LIVE LAKEFIELD LOCALS

Budget of Interesting News from the Pretty Northern Village

As already known, the Cement Company propose to double their capacity, and will consequently employ a much larger number of men. The dam known as No. 3 will be utilized for power, which will supplement the Young's Point power, which is insufficient for the work.

Miss Beamish, of Toronto Junction, is visiting in the village, the guest of Mrs. (Capt.) Reynolds.

There are still a number of American guests registered at the Craig House. Mr. Craig reports a splendid season's business.

The oil stock is on the upward grade. Dr. Baker and Capt. Reynolds, who were chosen to look over the property in Texas of the Canadian Osage Illuminating Oil Co., recently formed here, report by wire that everything is satisfactory, and the citizens interested are patiently awaiting the representatives that they might learn more of the property.

Quite a number of our citizens went up to the Toronto Fair yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Duidge, of Toronto, are visiting Mr. Duidge's parents in the village.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 9, 1902.

WE MAY DISCRIMINATE TOO!

If the German Government persists in its declared purpose to discriminate against Canadian products, the general consumers of this country may feel impelled to hit back by refusing to buy German goods. In the year 1901 our purchases from that country amounted to nearly $11,000,000, while Germany bought from Canada only about one million and a quarter, or a proportion of ten to one in Germany's favor. On reading some extracts from the German press recently in abuse of England, a loyal Canadian was heard to say that it made him feel like not spending another dollar for anything "made in Germany." If he felt so in mere resentment of the abusive language in the press, what must be his sentiments when the action of the German Government comes home to Canada in an unfair and unreasonable boycott of our lines of product against which no film of sanitary indictment can be preferred? The Germans have embargoed the hog products of the United States on the plea of health. They object to the borax used for their preservation. No such objection can be raised against Canadian wheat, hay, and other products which they might buy from us. The reason must be sought for on other grounds. And the only ground that could afford even a scintilla of excuse is the action of the Laurier Government in persuading the British authorities to denounce the German commercial treaties in order that the so-called preferential duties might go into effect. The present ill-feeling in Germany against Canada may possibly be accentuated to some degree at least, by the cordial exchange of commercial views between Premier Laurier and the French ministry at Paris. The age has not yet come for race feeling, and Rhenish animosities to have died out. The Germans probably regard with keen resentment the efforts of Sir Wilfrid to conciliate French sentiment, to promote French immigration to Canada, and to bonus direct steamship lines between Quebec and Bordeaux, while making absolutely no commercial overture to the fatherland, but on the contrary treating it with contempt by denouncing its treaties. Why should Canada go on buying from either France or Germany more than it sells to either of them by from five to ten times over? Canada is strong enough in wealth and business enterprise to create within herself lines of manufacture for which she has largely depended on these countries. It is galling in the extreme to find this country discriminated against in respect of the commodities we produce, while our people are so thoughtlessly generous as to spend their millions where we can only sell thousands. Our best customer is Great Britain, which buys at the rate of $125,000,000 a year from us, while we do not send back more than $50,000,000. So long as our agricultural products are discriminated against by a continental country, it is there we should send the money.

THE SOURCES OF TYPHOID

The Hamilton Herald utters a timely warning on the subject of typhoid, the season for which is about due. The warning is for cleanliness in all food and drink. To contract typhoid fever you must swallow the typhoid germs, and therefore the disease is almost always conveyed by means of food and drink; but it is quite probable that the germ itself may be bred in food and water through contact with putridity in some form, hence the necessity for cleanliness. In the typhoid season, says the Herald, it is not less important to be careful about the food supply than it is to guard against a contaminated water supply.

Yet Dr. M. A. Veeder, of Lyons, N.Y., has just been ventilating the theory that typhoid fever may come from other sources than water supply. Probably the most important point made by Dr. Veeder in his address is that which relates to the history of the typhoid bacillus living in the ground. It survives there, he says, just as successfully as it does in water, perhaps even more so, and the burial of typhoid material in the earth without adequate disinfection is, he says, the surest way of perpetuating the disease in any given locality. Vegetables eaten raw, dust blown by the wind, and flies, are among the favorite methods of transportation of the germ, and absolute disinfection of the typhoid material is the only sure means of preventing the spreading of the disease.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

And now comes the dread news that our bread is full of germs. First thing we know they will be discovering germs in whisky, and Hamilton will have to fall back on water.

A company with a capital of a million dollars is being formed in New York, which will turn out compressed tablets of wine and whiskey. This will complicate matters greatly. Even a man who on Sunday feels in his vest pocket for a cough losenge will be viewed with suspicion.

The western railway passenger agents are again considering the question of half fare permits for clergymen. They should go very slowly about cutting off this perquisite of a poorly paid profession, particularly as the preachers are more than willing to reciprocate by extending unlimited courtesies over the route they represent.

Stole the Clothes

James Moore, who created a sensation Tuesday morning by his breaking into Barrie's store, made himself busy in the Township of Otonabee, it seems. Mr. David Lawrence came to town this morning and interviewed the police department with reference to the disappearance of a suit of clothes from his residence in Otonabee, a few weeks ago. Investigation led to the indentification of the suit worn by Moore as the one that is missing. The prisoners misdeeds may be said to be crowding him pretty close.

STOCK MARKETS

Fall Market Outlook Magnificent

New York, Sept. 8—Another week has started with the people conducting the campaign of rising values as confident and energetic as ever. The past week has witnessed, if anything, an accumulation of stockholdings by them considerably in excess of their sales. The vanguard of the public has made its appearance in the street, and they are commencing to make some purchases. We predict that later on in the fall the public will be falling over itself in its anxiety to buy stocks and at considerably higher prices than those existing at present. Then will be a time for some discrimination until the overloaded purchasers are shaken out of their holdings, with the drift of shares again into possession of the cliques and manipulators.

Last week several of the great railway companies made wondrous reports as to increasing monthly gross and net earnings. In some instances the figures were absolutely staggering; they will be greater still during the winter and fall. No power on earth can keep the railways from coming into their own in the way of net earnings during that period, facing as they do the most beneficent crops ever harvested in this country. Partly accountable for the immense increase in railway earnings, is the greater stability of rates brought about through the various community of interest operations now in vogue in the railway as well as the industrial world. Probably it has had more to do in bringing about such results than has the increased volume of traffic. The fact that the corn carrying roads all made vast increases in earnings while transporting a poor crop last year plainly indicates the above statement to be a fact. The community of interest factor is becoming greater all the time, and will continue to have its beneficial effect upon earnings. It also enables the roads to transact their business at a greatly decreased expense, and in the railroad world as elsewhere the penny saved is the penny earned. Earnings are in all instances the dominating indicators and makers of values. There is no getting away from the trite truth, and such as are gauging their market operations by the history of the past will fail to participate in the profits which will be distrbuted this fall and winter through medium of stock speculation. We regret that many among this class, if our clientele are, it is their fault and not ours.

ARMY MARCHES IN MOUNTAINS.

Vienna, Sept 7.—The very thorough way in whihc the Austrian army is trained in marching over all kinds of country is well exemplified in the recent exploit of the 14th Infantry Regiment, stationed in the Tyrol. This regiment was instructed from the headquarters of the army corps to cross the Zillerthal Alps from Majerhofen over the Schwarzenstein Glacier to the Ahrnthal, and carried out the order in most unfavorable weather, the men climbing to an altitude of more than ten thousand feet without any accident or a single soldier falling out of the ranks. The regiment was in full marching order, but the troops carried alpenstocks as well as the ordinary equipment. The first day's march was from Maierhofen to the Berlin Shelter Hut, over six thousand feet high, which they reached after nine hours' march in the midst of rain and snow. This shelter hut, which is the largest in the Austrian Alps, can provide sleeping accomodation for two hundred men. On the arrival of the regiment, forty mountaineers were already there and lying down. Room was only to be had for the officers, so that most of the rank and file had to sit crowded closely together all night, as it was freezing outside and too cold for bivouacing. Heavy snow fell during the night, and when the regiment started again at four o'clock next morning, the conditions were as bad as could be imagined, including, as they did, thick mist and snowfall.

TWELVE GUIDES.

When the regiment, which had twelve mountain guides with it, reached the glacier, after two and a-half hours' march, everyone was roped, each company being divided into three or four sections of about twenty-five men each. It took four hours during which an icy wind was added to other discomforts, to reach the end of the glacier, where the Leipzig Shelter Hut stands, at an altitude of about ten thousand feet; but, as another glacier had to be crossed afterwards, the men could not be unroped, and went on without a halt to the Dalmer Shelter Hut, which was reached after another hour and a-half. Here the men cooked their dinner; after which they resumed their march, and reached St. Johann, in the Ahrnthal, their next sleeping place, in another two hours. The day's march was, therefore, one of ten hours.

have been sent to me by the most beautiful woman in the world. Tell me of her."

"She is no longer in this world," answered the other, a shadow passing over his face.

"Dead!"

"Dead only four months ago."

"But I understood she sent you to me?"

"She advised me before she died to try and see you if I ever went to England. I started as soon as possible after her death."

"Ah! But she—why, she gave me my first engagement. I was only seventeen years old. When I recall her glorious face, it seems but yesterday."

"She told me. It is thirty years ago."

George Anderson's dreamy eyes darkened, as they did when they were annoyed. He did not like being reminded of his age, especially when he was floating in romantic visions.

"You have not told me what she was to you?" he said, in a changed tone.

"She was a dear friend of my father's, and, through him, of mine"

"England and the English stage have been the poorer without her for—as you remind me—a good many years. I hope she spent them happily?"

"Only in some ways, I am afraid. She was very poor, and—she died almost in want. Still, she was loved. That is something—to be loved."

"It could not have been otherwise with her. There were many here who would have been only too glad to help her had they known. But her disappearance was a mystery which was never cleared up. I was hoping you might throw some light upon it."

"I know nothing of that," said the younger man, turning away his face, so that George Anderson could see the strong, aquiline profile. "She sent a message to you, though, in case I should ever meet you. It was her 'kindest remembrance'; and she thought of the past with which you were connected, very often, with great pleasure. She hoped you, too, sometimes recalled it."

"No one could ever forget her who had seen her even once!" exclaimed the actor, with genuine emotion. "She—er—though I might be of use to you, as her friend?"

"She knew I should need friends," the other amended. "And, as a matter of fact, Mr. Anderson, I have come tonight to ask if you will give me an engagement when you put on 'As You Like It,' as I hear you intend to do very soon."

"I'm exceedingly sorry, but my cast is all made up," the manager replied.

"I read in the paper yesterday that the man you were to have had for the wrestler had disappointed you."

"That's true—though it was in the paper!—but I must have the real thing, you know——"

"I think I may call myself the real thing. I was champion of the amateurs in America."

"Indeed!" Anderson's eyes traveled from the handsome, dark face over the shapely, vigorous body in the queer clothes. "Then you are an American? I didn't — pardon me! — recognize the accent. From what part of the States do you come? I know them a little."

The young man dropped his eyes. "I have lived in many parts of America," he said.

"And you came to England because—but no, of course you did not come here merely with an eye to such an engagement as this?"

Hope Newcome looked straight into the actor's enquiring eyes with rather a strange and baffling expression. "I came to find something," he replied. And perhaps Anderson was mistaken in fancying that the words really meant more than they seemed to mean.

"I'm extremely sorry," said the actor, "but when you come to think of it, you will see for yourself that it's impossible for me to give you an engagement as the wrestler, much as I should like to please you for the sake of one who is gone. You are a tall man, but you are not so tall as I by an inch or two, and besides, as fits the difference in our years, I am of stouter build than you. Orlando would get little sympathy from the audience out of a match with a wrestler smaller than himself. I must remember the interests of the play; and it would never do; don't you see that?"

"Perhaps," admitted Hope Newcome. "I had not thought of that point of view. At all events, thank you for seeing me. I'm afraid I've taken up a good deal of your time."

"Lord Arthur, ple—ase!" shouted the call-boy, outside the half-open door of the ante-room.

"Lord Arthur" was the name of the character played by Mr. Anderson; and this call told him that in five minutes at latest he must be at his entrance to take up his cue.

"Not at all too much time," he politely answered his guest. "But I'm called. Is there something else I could do for you?"

His eyes added: "If you are hard up, I might be equal to a few pounds;" and Newcome read the eyes, and flushed. "Nothing else, thank you," he said, hastily. "Good-night."

"If you'll leave your address with me, something might turn up," the actor went on, not forgetful of Lionel Macaire's instructions. But he had spoken too late. Already the young man sent him by "F. E. S." was gone.

CHAPTER. IV.

Something Dazzling.

Winifred was rather awe-struck by the managerial command to proceed to the boudoir. She had been in Mr. Anderson's company since March, when they had put on the new play, the run of which would soon be over; and it was now close upon October. She knew that she was popular in the company (although she had made a phenomenal hit in the part for which she had been specially engaged) and she thought that Mr. Anderson liked her personally, but she had never so much as been inside the boudoir. She had passed by and glanced in; but the boudoir was usually sacred to the entertainment of royalties or other important personages who "came behind" during a performance to see Mr. Anderson. Winifred was afraid that she must inadvertently have done something wrong, and that she was to be scolded by the "governor," who could say very nasty things when he chose (so she had heard), despite his delightful voice and dreamy eyes.

She wore the same dress in the second act as in the first; therefore when the curtain had gone down she had nothing to do until her next entrance, which fact no doubt Mr. Anderson had

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

ONE MACHINE vs. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 10 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

Turning Down the Doctors

The marvellous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills cold in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, lung troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c., at druggists.

The "Kilties" the famous band of the 48th Highlanders, will give a concert in the Market Hall, Wednesday evening, Sept. 10th. Be sure and hear them. The finest musical treat of the year. Only 25 cents. No seats reserved. Tickets for sale at the door.

The Cereal Company's Dam

Work on the new dam for the Cereal Company is progressing satisfactorily. Contractor O'Toole is erecting a steam pump to keep the water out as the foundation work progresses. Mr. Boschier is the engineer of the works, and Messrs. Murphy and Hogg, of Ottawa, are looking after the office work, Mr. Lounsd being foreman on the works. Mr. Larmont, of Ottawa, represents Mr. Keefer, as the Cereal Company's engineer. A big steam shovel is at work, and a rail track has been laid to carry away the refuse.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT AT CHEMONG LAKE

JAMES ROBERTS AND HIS TWO YOUNG SONS LOSE THEIR LIVES

The Bodies Recovered—Particulars of How the Accident Occurred—Much Sympathy for the Remaining Family

One of the saddest drowning accidents that ever took place on our back lakes occurred late on Sunday night, when Mr. James M. Roberts, a prominent farmer in Smith, and his two young sons, lost their lives.

It appears that Mr. Roberts, as was his custom, left his home, which is on the shore of Chemong Lake, and with his two sons, Kenneth, aged 10 years, and Edward, aged 12, paddled over to the Indian village, where he conducted religious services. Not arriving home at the usual hour, Mrs. Roberts naturally became very anxious, and finally started out to search for them, accompanied by one of the farm hands. Taking a skiff the two made their way to the Indian village, where they were horrified to learn that Mr. Roberts and the boys had started for home at 8.30. The Indians at once organized a search, and after some hours the upset canoe was found. This practically confirmed the heart-broken wife and mother's worst fears that he dear ones had met a watery grave.

Yesterday morning grappling irons were procured, and the whole neighborhood turned out and assisted in the search, which resulted in the recovery of the bodies.

The late Mr. Roberts was a son of the late Rev. E. Roberts, formerly Baptist minister at Smith, and was highly esteemed. His wife was a Miss Benson, of Port Hope, who with a boy and a girl survive him. The eldest and only surviving son is attending Woodstock College, and passed through town last night on his way home. The boys were promising lads, and were well known in town, having spent much of their time with their aunt, Mrs. Agnes Roberts, 690 Bethune street. Just how the accident occurred will never be known, as the lake was quite calm in the evening.

The bodies of the unfortunate victims were discovered about 9 o'clock yesterday morning on the Smith side of the lake, by Mr. Dan Whetung, jr. The body of the father was found standing in an erect position, in about six feet of water, the bodies of the sons lying at his feet.

Mr. D. Belleghem, undertaker, went out to Selwyn to repare the bodies for interment, the date of which has not yet been announced. Three hearses will be required for the triple funeral.

The New Metropolitan Bank

As will be noticed in another column, Mr. A. E. Ames, President of the Toronto Board of Trade, will probably be the first President of the New Metropolitan Bank, which is about to be started. Mr. Ames was for several years a resident of Peterborough, where he held a position in one of the local banks. He is a son-in-law of Hon. Geo. A. Cox, and has many friends in Peterborough who will be pleased to hear of his success. It is possible that the Metropolitan may open a branch in Peterborough.

Their Vacations.

The musicians will live on the Sound, and the ping-pong players will go to Table Bay, suggests New York "Life." The summer girls will naturally go to the Isle of Man, and those too old to be loved will seek the Isle of Pines. Dipsomaniacs will go to Bar Harbor, brewers to Behring Straits, while all reformed drunkards will go to Haddam. The coal men will flock to Asheville, poets will go to Attica, geometricians to Cuba, tramps to Bath, horseback riders to Canterbury, funny men to Chestnut Ridge, golf players to Bunker Hill, philanthropists to the Bounty Islands, Boston girls to Chili, and chiropodists to Cornwall.

Printers will go to Ems, aurists to Erie, pawnbrokers to Hocking Valley, spiritualists to Knoxville, burglars to Lock Haven, Pullman car porters to Palm Beach, but there is some doubt about the Filipinos going to Liberty. Those who linger too long will go to Tarytown.

All the stuffs will go to Turkey. Prohibitionists will go to the Water Gap, and all practical jokers to Cape Cod. Some Wall Street men will go to Great Bear Lake and others to Bull Run. Folks troubled with insomnia will go to Sleepy Hollow. Roulette players will go to Wheeling, and poker players to Council Bluffs. Fat men will go to Great Neck, thin men to Littleton, and melancholy men to Sulphur Springs.

The cooks will go to Pottstown, the anarchists to Bombay, cabmen to Hoboken, vivisectionists to the Catskills, and all the shoppers to Paw Paw.

Pool players will go to the Pyramids, leather men to Morocco, magnates to the Rockies, while those whose fortunes are falling will go to Sag Harbor.

All the peach growers will go to Pittsburg, and the lace-makers will go to Old Point. The confectioners will flock to Mt. Desert, and the gossips to Pekin.

And finally, those whose thoughts are fixed on Heaven will go to St. Petersburg.

And those whose thoughts are in the other direction will go to Fire Island.

Catabolic Man.

According to a writer in the "Lancet," the male human needs more food than the female, not only on account of his larger stature, but also because he is the more catabolic of the two. The man tends to expend energy and the woman to store it up in the form of fat; he burns the faster. This sexual difference shows itself in the very blood; the man has a larger percentage of chromocytes than the woman, showing that he needs a proportionately larger quantity of oxygen in order to maintain his more active combustion—a fact which one may associate with his comparative freedom from chlorosis; moreover, weight for weight, his pulmonary capacity is greater than that of the woman, whose smaller respiratory need is further shown by the facility with which she can without discomfort diminish her breathing power by means of the corset. "The great contrast between the metabolic activity of the two sexes," continues the writer, "was forcibly brought home to me by a military display given by a troupe of dusky Amazons, with whom were also a few male warriors. The women, in spite of their daily exertions, were all rounded and plump, some very much so, no single muscle showing through the skin, and it was noticed that their movements, though full of grace, lacked energy and 'go.' The men, on the other hand, were spare, their muscles standing out plainly under the shiny skin, and they, in further contrast with the women, displayed a truly amazing agility, bounding about and whirling round in a most astounding fashion; the women, in short, were essentially anabolic and the men were catabolic. I may here draw attention to the fact that men are apt to be larger meat-eaters than women, just as they are, possibly in consequence of this very fact, more prone to drink alcohol and to smoke tobacco."

Price of a Shave.

A man walking through the suburbs of a certain large town noticed a barber's pole to which was attached a signboard with the inscription, "Shaving One Halfpenny."

His chin being rough and his funds low he promptly entered the shop, seated himself in the chair, and asked to be shaved.

The knight of the razor carefully lathered and scraped away at one side of the customer's face, sponged it, and drew the cloth away with the usual flourish.

"But you don't call this finished?" expostulated his victim, keeping his seat.

"Beg pardon, sir, do you want the other side done as well?" said the barber with a hair-oily smile.

"Cert'nly I do. Do you think I can go out in the street half-shaved?" replied the other.

And the barber proceeded to operate on the other side of his customer.

When the job was finished the man, who began to smell a rat, fumbled in his pockets and fished out a halfpenny, which he tendered to the barber.

"Another halfpenny, if you please, sir," said the latter.

"What? You've got on your board outside, 'Shaving a ha'penny.'"

"Very true. But if you will have the goodness to observe, you'll find that that inscription is on each side of the board."

"I know that."

"Very good, sir. There are two sides to my board—and two sides to your face."

"I see," replied the man, with his hand on the door-knob, "and, if you will have the goodness to observe that ha'penny, you will find there are two sides to that as well."—"Tit-Bits."

The Proper Term.

Martha, the colored washerwoman, was complaining of her husband's health to one of her patrons. "He's ve'y po'ly, ma'am, ve'y po'ly. He's got dat exclamatory rheumatism." "You mean inflammatory, Martha. Exclamatory is from exclaim, which means to cry out." "Yes, miss," answered Martha, with conviction, "dat's what it is. He hollers all de time."

HOPELESS CASES.

When the doctor leaves and says the case is hopeless, what remains to be done? Nothing, if the doctor's word is final. Much, if you will listen to the statements of men and women who were once "hopeless cases" given up by doctors, and who were perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Nothing is more sure than that thousands of men and women with diseased lungs, obstinate coughs, hemorrhage, emaciation and night-sweats, have been restored to perfect health by the use of the "Discovery." Will it cure you?

It has cured in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred where it was given a fair and faithful trial. By that record you have only two chances in a hundred of failure and ninety-eight chances of being restored to perfect health. It is worth trying.

Abram Freer, Esq., of Rockbridge, Greene Co., Ill., writes: "My wife had a severe attack of pleurisy and lung trouble; the doctors gave her up to die. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of a large amount being sold here. I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

A NOVEL PROPOSAL

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—It has been suggested, I believe, that the old rink be made into an opera house, which could be easily and cheaply done. The building is in a capital position for an opera house, and would cost comparatively little to transform it.

I am informed that it is also proposed to build a new curling rink on what is known as the Chamberlain lot, off Charlotte and Louis streets. Now, this is also a good idea. The present rink is unsuited for curling, as it is too much divided. With a new rink, the curlers would be all together which would cause them to fraternize and greatly popularize the "roarin' game."

Let the matter be taken up without delay, and the above suggestions put into practical shape.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

A READER.

A FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT

Five Dollars for One Dollar

With a Guaranteed Dividend of 30 Per Cent.

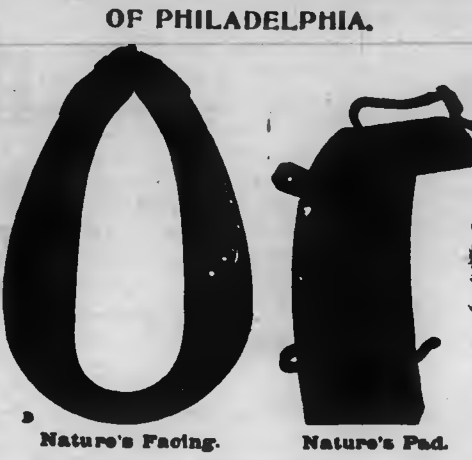
We have just been notified that we have been granted a Patent on the Collar in Great Britain This enhances the assets of this Company greatly, so that in order to meet the demand on it and extend the business in both countries, we have decided to sell 40,000 shares of the Treasury Stock at One Dollar per share, and as the returns will be large from the business we will sell it all under the 30 per cent guarantee.

We must remind investors that this is not all their stock will earn, but they will be entitled to their share of all profits above this.

And as this Company will have a complete monopoly of these Collars, the dividends will go far beyond the guaranteed dividend, and beyond all expectation.

NATURE'S FACING FOR HORSE COLLARS.

THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR CO., OF PHILADELPHIA.



Nature's Facing. Nature's Pad.

Comes before the investing PUBLIC with a BUSINESS PROPOSITION OF UNUSUAL attractiveness. THE COMPANY'S special Claim lies in the ACKNOWLEDGED SUPERIORITY OF HORSE COLLARS, SADDLE PADS, and RIDING HOUSINGS, made with interlaced CURLED HORSE HAIR, which is fully protected by UNITED STATES LETTER PATENTS and other PATENTS now pending also in FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

One of the Company's specialties which has proven far superior to anything of the kind on the market is THE INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR, made of PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR. For years the great want felt by horsemen has been a collar that a horse could wear and be worked in that would keep his shoulders cool; also one that a horse with tender shoulders could wear in the heaviest kind of work without fear of galling. It is almost impossible for a horse to get galled or sore shoulders or sore neck, no matter how tender, when working with this collar, which can be washed with either hot or cold water without injury to it any way. The washing does not stiffen or harden it as it does a lined collar, being faced with the purest kind of curled horse hair. The hair comes in direct contact with the animal's skin, and the hair being porous, allows the healthy action of the skin and flesh. It at once absorbs the sweat, and in hot weather is invaluable, as it prevents the gathering of lather, as is the case with most cloth or leather-faced collars. These collars will outwear a cloth or leather-faced collar, as the hair is practically indestructible. These collars are no experiment. They have been in use for 1 1-2 years, and have proven their merits without the shadow of a doubt. Everyone who has used them can testify to their efficiency. They are admittedly the most common-sense horse collars in the world.

THIS COMPANY IS NOT TRYING TO CREATE, nor is it asking investors for THEIR MONEY to experiment with. We have gone through the experimental stage, and now have Our Articles as near perfection as they can be gotten. The material we are using in the Facings and Cushions of our Collars and Pads is not a New Article, but is the True and Tried Material, PURE CURLED HORSE HAIR, which has defied and has outlived all imitations.

It is the policy of THE AMERICAN INTERLACED HORSE COLLAR COMPANY to license or re-let the privilege of Facing Collars under their patents to the numerous harness and collar makers in the United States, of which there are over 83,000.

The profits from this source alone will undoubtedly be large, and in a very short time enable the Company to pay large dividends on its Stock. This will increase the value greatly, and will enable those who take advantage of this first-class offer to make well out of their investments.

The Company has already a complete factory in Bridgesburg, a section of the City of Philadelphia, equipped with the latest patterns of machinery for the manufacture of its products, free from all indebtedness.

As Our Articles of production are of the most stable kind, and to thoughtful people articles of necessity, therefore it is necessary that we bring the Articles before the People in general, and in order to do so, we offer to the PUBLIC A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THE TREASURY STOCK (ALL THE STOCK IS COMMON), THEREFORE ALL INVESTORS WILL SHARE EQUALLY AND FULLY OF THE COMPANY'S PROSPERITY.

In order that we may at once push the business forward, for we have an immense field before us, Free from Competition on articles of merit:—

We will sell 40,000 Shares of the Treasury Stock for One Dollar Per Share, after which the sale will be withdrawn and the price will be Five Dollars per.

So positive are the officers of this Company that this business will be a sure success, and yield large returns to the investors, that they will sell the above allotment of stock at the price stated above, and will guarantee a dividend of Six Per Cent. per annum at the least on the par value of the stock for five years.

We will attach ten coupons to the certificates of stock, payable in January and July.

Thus paying 30 per cent. on the investment.

This is a reasonable offer, as large revenues will be derived from the re-letting system, which guarantees us to make the above offer.

Aside from this there will be large profits from the sale of the goods, and from the material furnished those who re-let the system.

The revenues from the business will be such as to make this a first-class investment.

Every dollar from the sale of this stock will go into the treasury of the Company, free from all expenses, and the Business will be conducted on a very conservative and economical basis.

This is not a Stock Speculation Scheme, but it is the intention of the Officers to Establish the Business on a Solid Basis.

After the Business has been extended in the U. S. it is the intention of the Company to extend its Articles at once to the Foreign Markets, from which will be Large Returns, and an immense Business Established.

All subscriptions for stock which shall be in the secretary's hands before the 15th day of August will receive a coupon due January 1st, thus paying six months' guaranteed interest.

Persons wanting to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity will have to do so at once, as all the allotments will be quickly taken up, and no stock can be bought on the market, as none can be had.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A LEADING SADDLERY OF THE U.S.

Office of Buck and Mehlbach,
106 Chambers Street, New York,
Thursday, March 14, 1901.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Philadelphia Pa.:

Gentlemen,—I have your letter of yesterday, wherein you ask me to send you whatever letters of recommendation or approval we may have received, treating on the interlaced hair saddle cloths, etc., since we have been handling them—now about one and one-half years.

Whatever letters there are of this kind I have not kept separately, and they are, therefore, mixed up with the rest of our filed letters. But, as I told you, my own testimony should be sufficient for intelligent people—for I appreciated the value of interlaced hair for the purpose of saddle cloths, etc., long before I knew you, and at first sight of the cloth—and I am about twenty-five years in the business—I have since, as you know, marketed a great many of them to riders all over this country—South America, Cuba, etc. As you know we are dealing with the most intelligent people, and when a mining engineer, for instance, tells you: "I have now used so many of these hair cloths, and they keep my horse's back free from sores, while formerly I was constantly troubled with them," and then of his own volition orders another lot, that is good evidence in favor of the Interlaced Hair System—is it not? The Interlaced Hair does everything felt and other like materials do not do. It is elastic, it is cool, it does not pack, it can easily be cleansed, and keeps its shape. For harness pads it is surely as good as for saddle cloths, while applied in the manufacture of horse collars it is simply ideal; and I surely wish you plenty of success in your undertaking, for your article deserves it.

Very truly yours,
WM. C. C. MEHLBACH.

FROM HALPEN, GREEN & CO.

Wholesale Grocers, Nos. 18 S. Front St. and 17 Letitia St.
Philadelphia, December 28th, 1901.

The American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Gentlemen,—Referring to the collars which we bought of you something like six months ago, we desire to say that our stablemen advised us that they are giving great satisfaction. Would recommend and advise horse owners to use them, especially for heavy hauling.

Yours truly,
HALPEN, GREEN AND CO.

FROM A ROUGH RIDER.

Coatesville, Pa., December 18, 1900.

American Interlaced Horse Collar Co., Bridesburg, Pa.:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter of the 15th instant, I have resigned my position with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, but I cannot speak too highly of the Interlaced Curled Hair Riding Housings. This is the first thing of the kind we ever used that would keep horses' backs from getting sore. The sample that was given us for the English Soldiers, they claim they never used anything in their cavalry to equal it, and the cowboys, the acknowledged horsemen of the world, claim it the best housings ever used under a saddle, as it absorbs all perspiration and moisture, so that the air can pass through to cool the backs.

I will refer your letter to the company at once, also will send you size wanted for cowboy saddle, as I wish one of your housings for my own use on the western ranges, which will enable me to introduce them, as I take a great interest in the welfare of horses.

Yours truly,
GEORGE BURCH,
Chief of Buffalo Bill's Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

FROM A CAVALRY LIEUTENANT

Camp Detachment, 2nd U. S. Cavalry,
Matanzas, Cuba, February 27th, 1900.

Gentlemen,—I have used your Interlaced Hair Saddle Cloth for sixteen months, and am now prepared to say something of its merits, but can find nothing to say to its detriment.

It is necessary in the cavalry service to save one's horse as much as possible, and particularly his back. Your saddle cloth keeps the horse's back cool, and keeps down the humps that will generally appear after a long, hot ride.

I have used it in Arizona, and during the recent war in Cuba, and am still using it; it has seen some hard service and stood it mighty well. Yours,

S. M. KOCHERSPERGER,
Lieutenant 2nd Cavalry.

Big Bargain of Land and Timber IN OTONABEE.

West half Lot 25, Con 2, near Shearer's church and school, Norwood road; 2 miles from C.P.R. at Indian River station, and 12 miles from Peterboro; 100 acres choice land; 50 fit for machinery, balance heavily timbered with maple, beech, elm, ash, cedar and some tamerack. A competent inspector of long experience estimates the timber that might be sold as 1,000 cords hardwood, and 2,000 cords mixed soft wood, all of which in this market would sell readily for more than $10,000, and total expense would not exceed $6,000. A man with teams and two or more boys should be able to make big money on above, and we can make price and terms so reasonable as to enable a man of limited means to buy and pay for out of the timber. Wise man will see us quickly about this. Ploughing possession at once.

IS NOW SAID TO BE ALMOST CERTAIN

Uncle Sam is After The Fisheries of the Island Colony—Canada is Disappointed

Quebec, September 10 — The definite news that Sir John Bond, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, has sailed from England to the United States, fully empowered by the British Government to treat with the authorities at Washington for the ratification of the Bond-Blaine convention, is causing bitter disappointment in this country, where it was fondly hoped that the meeting of all the colonial premiers in London was likely to be productive of colonial, if not of imperial union, and that one of the first fruits of this union would be the entrance of Newfoundland into the Canadian confederation. It seems now, not only that such annexation is to be indefinitely postponed, but that an important step has been taken by the representatives of the island colony in England toward closer union with the United States.

Those who had counted upon the early annexation of Newfoundland to the Dominion, had made up their minds that the achievement of this project would have resulted in a complete deadlock in the fishery relations between the United States and Newfoundland.

If only the Dominion Government could obtain control of the Newfoundland fisheries, the influence of the New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island fishermen would quickly insure the prohibition of American access to their ordinary bait supplies off the coast of Newfoundland, and the consequent crippling of the New England fishing industry. Even the concession of reciprocity in fish products by Newfoundland to Canada, which was positively anticipated by Canadians, would have resulted in such heavy exports of fish from the maritime provinces, including Newfoundland, to the United States as to compel a reduction in the price of the American-bought article, and a corresponding decline in the profits of the American interests involved.

Not only is access to the Newfoundland bait supply necessary to the prosecution of the American North Atlantic fisheries, but Canadian control of the Newfoundland fisheries would virtually put a stop to the winter herring fishery, now almost exclusively controlled by Americans, who go to Newfoundland every winter and carry away with them a quarter of a million dollars worth of this fish. There is no doubt that if Canada had the power she would endeavor to control this fishery, either by absolutely forbidding Americans to engage in it or by imposing an export tax on herring shipped in foreign bottoms, which would compel the fishermen of New England to abandon the industry.

The present American tariff, which imposes a duty of half a cent a pound on all fish brought into United States ports in foreign bottoms, makes it impossible for either Newfoundland or Canadian fishermen to engage in this industry now, but should Newfoundland enter the Dominion, it would then be quite possible to turn the tables on the Americans and to control the fishery from the other end. Newfoundland fishermen, however, especially those on the south coast of the island, do so much business with the Americans that this would not be in their interests. They are not desirous of any change in their political condition, and are especially opposed to confederation with Canada, knowing that it would be a great loss to them if the American fishermen should be excluded from their coasts.

The American fishing schooners are constantly running in and out from the Banks during the fishing season, purchasing bait, ice and fresh provisions in Newfoundland harbors, crewing their vessels in great part with Newfoundland men and spending their money generously. The same thing occurs in connection with the frozen herring industry each winter. Placentia, Fortune Bay and the Bay of Islands are enriched by a generous distribution of American gold, for not alone is a large sum expended in buying the herring, but almost as much more is paid out for handling them, because the crews are too small for the work, and gangs of coast folk have to be employed about the vessels.

Canada has her eye upon more than the fisheries of Newfoundland. She is after her trade as well. This amounts to $7,000,000 a year, and is at present about equally divided between Canada, the United States and England. Western Canadian millers supply about half of the flour imported by the island, and these are very much stirred up over the fact that Sir Robert Bond has secured the necessary authorization for negotiating a reciprocity treaty with Washington. They have protested to Sir Wilfrid Laurier by cable against any such arrangement, which they assert will destroy Canada's existing trade with the island, but Sir Wilfrid is evidently powerless in the matter. He has endeavored to assure the Canadian millers that nothing detrimental to Canada's trade will emanate from the Government of Newfoundland.

There is great rejoicing in Newfoundland over the success of the colony's Premier in obtaining imperial consent for seeking to bring about reciprocity with the United States, in preference to a union of the island with Canada. For no less than twelve years has Sir Robert Bond struggled, in power and out of power, with this single object in view. In 1890 he visited Washington, armed with permission from the Imperial Colonial Secretary, to negotiate with the American Government for the enactment of a treaty of reciprocity with the United States, subject to the assistance of the British Ambassador, and, of course, to imperial approval of the arrangement when concluded. The result of his negotiations with the late Secretary Blaine was the famous Blaine-Bond convention, which would undoubtedly have been ratified by the imperial authorities but for the vigorous opposition of Sir John A. Mc-course, to imperial approval of the Canadian Government. The strongest possible protests were sent to England against the right of one part of the empire being permitted to discriminate in tariff against another part, by means of a treaty with a foreign State. Sir John's imperious order to the home Government to put an end to the convention which had already been agreed upon, was given on the eve of an election and was obeyed by the imperial authorities, though the action served to shake the loyalty of the islanders considerably and to stir up a very bitter feeling against Canada throughout Newfoundland.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will certainly not repeat the action of Sir John Macdonald, and if Sir Robert Bond finds the Washington authorities in as favorable a mood toward a treaty of reciprocity with Newfoundland as those of 1890 were, it is pretty sure that the wail of the Canadian fishermen and exporters against the proposed treaty will go for nothing, and that the new convention will receive the necessary imperial sanction.

TO FREE BOER WAR CAPTIVES

Americans the Only Ones Left to be Provided For

New York, September 9—A conference of Boer sympathizers, representing German and Irish societies in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Providence and other cities, was held at 271 Broadway yesterday, for the purpose of considering the relief of the foreign soldiers of the Boer army who are now prisoners of war in the hands of the British and will not be liberated until they have the means of procuring their passage to whatever country they wish to go. George H. Schreiner, who acted as secretary of the conference, said that all the European soldiers, mainly Germans, Hollanders and Frenchmen, had been taken home by their own people, and that the only foreigners who remained in the prison camps were the Americans and the Irish. John L. Gannon of Providence announced that all Irishmen who had fought for the Boers, about 30 in all, and who are now prisoners of war, would be attended to by the Clan-na-Gael. Former Judge Van Hoesen, who presided at the conference, in the name of the other societies thanked the Clan-na-Gael for its prompt and effective work and after appointing a committee to attend to further details the conference adjourned.

HOCKEY.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star says: Port Hope have already started talking hockey. They are building a new rink and securing "new men," both of which are badly needed there. It is said that Masterson and Roach, two fast men from the Point St. Charles, Montreal Club, have located there. Peterborough is also undergoing the same experience, and have a new man named Robinson from the Niagara District Club, and Cavanagh, an old point player of the Champion Colts of 1901, is to return. These two teams intend making it warm for one another. Cobourg may also have an intermediate team this year, and Oshawa has signified its intention of running a lacrosse ranch in hockey this winter. This district will have good hockey if all these clubs go into it.

A Very Particular Lawyer

A good story is told of a Peterborough lawyer, who was defending a man charged with larceny. A witness had been called who gave very straight evidence, when the local disciple of Blackstone undertook to discredit his statements.

"So your name is Tom Wilson, is it? Are you the Tom Wilson who was arrested and sent to prison for stealing?"

"No, sir," replied the witness.

"Well, then you are the Tom Wilson, aren't you, who got run in by the police once when drunk and disorderly?"

"No, sir. I'm not that Tom Wilson either."

"But you've been in jail, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir—once."

"A-h-h-h! For how long?"

"About an hour, sir."

"An hour? Be careful! I'm very particular—very particular—to get the truth! Now, what do you mean by saying you were in jail for only an hour?"

"I went there, sir, to whitewash a cell for a lawyer who, like yourself, sir, was very particular—very particular."

THE KNOUT IS STILL USED IN RUSSIA

Most Brutal Punishment Known Still in Vogue in the Empire

MANY WOMEN ARE KNOUTED

Victims Rarely Recover from the one Hundred and one Strokes Usually Administered—It Breaks Their Hearts

St. Petersburg, September 9 — The knout, the death-dealing instrument which is now being used to quell rebellious students in Russian universities, is the most terrible castigator ever invented by man, and to be sentenced to it, as administered by Russian "justice," is practically the equivalent to a decree of death. In fact, the usual 101 strokes is commonly regarded as a capital sentence.

Compared to it the cat-o'-nine-tails for highwaymen, as formerly used in England, is soothing and gentle.

The knout is a heavy leather thong about eight feet long. The lash is about the breadth of a wide tape, and is curved to give two sharp edges along its entire length. It is sometimes bound with wire thread, with a little hook at the end. At each blow the sharp edges of the lash fall on the victim's back and cut like a flexible two-edged sword. The prisoner is bound on an inclined frame, with his hands and feet extended at full length. A skilled operator of the "knout" could smash a brickbat into dust at a single blow. It was Peter the Great who by imperial decree limited the number of blows to 101—but that is quite enough.

One of the most terrible stories of knouting is that of seven Tartars who had been found guilty of murder and robbery in several towns. Their sentence was that they were to be knouted in each of the towns in which they had committed their crimes. Not one of them survived the full punishment.

The idea of subjecting a woman to such treatment is hardly understandable, but one of the most terrible "knoutings" in history was that in which the victim was a beautiful and brilliant woman, Madame Capuchin, one of the leading ladies of the court of Elizabeth of Russia. She had been compromised through a love affair with an embassador. She was at first ordered to have her tongue cut out, but this the empress mitigated to knouting.

Women of all classes are knouted and it is not uncommon for society beauties to be given half a dozen cutting blows for simply gossiping.

Extraordinary as this may seem, it excites no comment in Russia. As a matter of fact, the rod is a national institution in Russia. Women in the highest social circles take a cruel beating as a token of love for their husbands. If they are not chastised from time to time they suspect that their husbands no longer love them.

THE IRISH AGITATORS ARE SUMMONED

Michael Reddy, E. H. Burke, John O'Donnel and Three Other Prominent Men

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 10.—In connection with the United Irish League meeting held at Birr last month, says a telegram from Dublin, summonses are being issued under the Crimes Act against Michael Reddy, M.P., E. Haviland Burke, M.P.; John O'Donnell, M.P.; Chairman Lowery of the Birr Board Guardians and the two local members of the League.

London, Sept. 10.—A high authority who has just returned from Constantinople says, according to a Paris correspondent, that the Turkish finances were never in a more critical state than at present. The penury of the Exchequer is seen in the treatment of the members of the diplomatic service, who have received only a month's pay since last February. The frequent pulling up of crops by the roots rather than pay taxes partly explains the diminution of the revenue.

London, Sept. 10.—According to a Bucharest report, says a Vienna correspondent, Count Tolstoi is about to pay a long promised visit to the Queen of Roumania, for whose character and writings he has a warm appreciation. Tolstoi will, it is expected, arrive at Sinaia, the summer residence in the Carpathians of the Roumanian King and Queen, sometime this month. The inhabitants of Jassy are organizing a demonstration in honor of the Russian author.

London, Sept. 10.—The Times' correspondent at Tangier telegraphs that the Sultan of Morocco received him at Fez. The Sultan declared the reports of the Berber rebellion had been grossly exaggerated. During the Sultan's seven years' absence from Fez, says the correspondent, the Berbers have not been governed, and they now object to the restoration of law and order. Reinforcements have been sent to the scene of trouble, some irregulars and cavalry being carried out.

London, Sept. 10.—Petite Republique in an article quoted by a Paris correspondent, publishes two letters which have been secretly circulated in Russia by a workman who recently attempted to assassinate Prince Obolenski, Governor of Kharkoff and Poltava. In his argument in justification of his act, he man says: "I consider it the greatest honor to have been chosen to avenge the blood of peasants on the Czar's bandit and hangman. The peasants of Kharkoff and people deserved death. The peasants of other provinces will learn, on reading the pamphlets of our party, that we are struggling for the welfare of the people. We know we have no quarter to expect from the Czar. Death does not terrify us."

London, Sept. 9.—Stipends of sixteen priests in Brittany, says a Paris correspondent, have been suspended by the French Government because of resistance to the Association's law decrees. Prince de Lucinge-Faucigny, Mayor of the village, near Laval, has been suspended for a month for denouncing the decrees as infamous.

London, Sept. 9.—A telegram from Dublin says the offices of the Sligo Champion, the property of Patrick McHugh, M.P., who was declared bankrupt, were closed on Saturday by order of the official assignee. It is understood that arrangements have been made for publishing the newspaper as usual.

London, Sept. 9.—Villa Gina, at Mentone, says a Paris correspondent, has been hired for Kruger from the middle of October. Festivities in his honor are prepared.

London, Sept. 9.—A despatch from Tangier says the Sultan of Morocco has ordered that a large army be collected in readiness to leave Fez on December 1st. Its destination is not disclosed.

London, Sept. 9.—The Brussels correspondent of the Times says that ex-President Steyn's health continues to improve. He can now use his hands and arms a little. He will not go to Montreux for the present, as the doctors agree the air of Holland is equally favorable to his convalescence.

London, Sept. 9.—A Paris correspondent says the delay in the operation of the shipping bounties bill is attributed to a clause restricting bounties to vessels making ten or more knots an hour. This clause was inserted at the last moment, and is said to thwart the plans of intermediaries, who have previously contracted with British ship owners to purchase vessels of lower speed and little value.

London, Sept. 9.—A Berlin correspondent says that ever since Emperor William's telegram to Prince Leopold of Bavaria (offering to provide $25,000 which the Bavarian Chamber refused to vote for the purchase of pictures and other objects), official journals have preserved discreet silence regarding the incident, which undoubtedly wounded Bavarian susceptibilities. The forthcoming visit of the King of Saxony to Potsdam now provides an opportunity for a hint from the Kaiser that the federated States and their rulers have no reason to fear that Imperial power will be unduly asserted.

London, Sept. 9.—A Constantinople correspondent says the Turkish Minister of Public Works, replying to a protest by the French Quays Company, proposes a twelve months' renewal of the convention of last autumn. The company refuses this, declaring that the project for Turkey to repurchase the property has lapsed, and demanding the immediate enjoyment of its privileges under the original concession. The French Ambassador strenuously supports the company's claim.

AS THEY SAT IN A HAMMOCK

A Young Man Shoots Himself in Presence of His sweetheart

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 9 — A special from Cincinnatus, N.Y., says that last night Geo. Taylor, of Pitcher, 22 years of age, committed suicide in the presence of his sweetheart, Miss Alice Rorapaugh, by shooting. The couple were sitting in a hammock when the shooting occurred. The young woman said they had not quarrelled, and that he was holding her cheek against his face when the shooting occurred. From the facts at the inquest, it is supposed that the young man intended to kill the girl as well as himself.

DOURO COUNCIL

The Estimated Presented and Rate Struck

The Douro council met in the town Hall on Monday, September 1st, at ten o'clock a.m. Present, the reeve and Councillors Sullivan, Allen and Condon. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The following accounts were presented and ordered to be paid: Portland Cement Co., Lakefield, $81.20; clerk, part of salary, $10; Robert H. Little, repairing pump, $1.25; George Rutherford, work on road, $2; John Towns, work on road, $1; Patrick Davey and Widow McMahon, $2 each as charity, and $12 to the House of Providence, Ashburnham, as charity for the keep of Widow F. Leahy; J. H. Campbell, arrears of statute labor against M. R. Co. A requisition from the County Clerk was received requiring the sum of $2195.52 for County purposes for 1902. School trustee requisitions:

No. 3	180 00...	142,820 00
No. 4...	170 00...	69,750 00
No. 5...	68 00...	71,750 00
No. 6...	70 80...	48,135 00
No. 7...	250 00...	97,715 00

No. 11...	150 00...	67,530 00

Debenture rate No. 11, $139.18. Township tax, $1756.42; total amount $763,664.

The average rate on the dollar for all purposes is something less than 1 cent, a pretty good showing for the economy practiced by our township legislators during the present year. On motion of Mr. Condon and Mr. Allen the sum of $7 was appropriated towards making a water-place for the use of the public on line of road between concessions four and five, in front of lot six, on condition that persons residing in the vicinity contribute the balance, if any, necessary to complete said watering place. On motion the council adjourned to the 17th day of November next, to meet at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Kendrey, who was completely taken by surprise, replied in a few feeling words, expressing her sorrow at severing her connection with this Auxiliary and her many warm friends in this church. The ladies then adjourned to the lecture room where tables were laid for tea, and all enjoyed a very pleasant social hour.

BRITAIN'S INDIA RULE FIRMER THAN EVER

Her Army Being Increased by Over Forty Thousand in India

Compared With Russia England's Strength and Power is Supreme in the Far East

London, Sept. 10 — The British army in India numbers 218,210 men, and is composed of 73,362 British troops and 144,848 natives, the latter constituting the armies of Bombay, Madras, Bengal and the Punjab. The nearest Russian troops are the two army corps in Turkestan, numbering 60,000 men and thirty-four batteries. Thus, leaving out of consideration the native troops, Great Britain has 13,362 more men than Russia immediately available. But, England will require eighteen days to bring reinforcements from the home country, whereas Russia can obtain from the Caucasus in twenty-four hours, by way of Baku over the Caspian sea to Krasnovodsk, some 70,000 men. Moreover, the British available force in India is somewhat reduced by the necessity of a garrison of 1,500 men for the occupation of Burmah; and the native troops are always an element of suspicion as to their conduct in a general war.

Finally, the mobilization of the British troops is a matter of great difficulty, because there are in all 191 garrisons, ten of which are large and occupied by 43,000 men, but the other 181 are small and generally far from railroads, so that it is practically impossible to concentrate them for extensive manoeuvres, so essential to the training of an army for war.

The British troops in India are now completely armed with the new small calibre rifle, and it is proposed to increase the army there by 40,000, in which case the superiority of Great Britain in the East will be re-established, and with the new Bagdad railroad and the Persian Gulf under her control she will continue to rule in India for some time to come.

FIFTY POUND MUSKALLONGE

A Fish Story with Affidavits to Substantiate It

Washington, Sept. 9.—George L. Wood, Assistant Superintendent in the Division of Salaries and Allowances of the Post Office Department, will leave to-morrow for the summer home of Postmaster-General Payne on Beaver Lake, Wis., to examine a number of affidavits and other documentary evidence, and make a thorough investigation as to the truth of certain information contained in a recent letter received at the department from Francis H. Whitney, Mr. Payne's private secretary. If Mr. Wood succeeds in sustaining Mr. Whitney's story he will remain at Beaver Lake for a week or so in an endeavor to duplicate the private secretary's experience. The letter, which is evidence that Mr. Whitney, when not dictating official correspondence and confined to official forms of expression, is a slang slinger of note and a worthy successor to the lamented "Billy Baxter," is as follows:

"While the facts remain clear in my mind and I can discuss the matter intelligently, I want to relate an experience that befell me while at Lake Minocqua. The piscatorial epic that you are about to hear, and the truth of which is fully substantiated by affidavits and other documentary evidence, is certainly the limit and would have made even Izaak Walton take to the tall timbers.

"I went out on the lake in the morning, with the Hon. John W. Sutton as guide, and did not get even a nibble. Then we went to dinner, country fashion, about noon, and piked back to the lake at 1.30. We were rowing slowly along the shore, trying to beguile the festive muskallonge from his haunts, but without much success, when at about 3 o'clock I had a strike that nearly lifted me out of the boat and hooked a fish that took me two days and a half to land. Don't stop—that is an absolute fact and I can prove it. I played the fish—I thought at the time it was a stray whale—for about three hours, and when I was nearly ready to drop from exhaustion, I finally succeeded in getting him up next the boat, while half a hundred other fishermen in other boats came rowing over to see the fun and find out what I had hooked—whether a sperm whale or a man-eating shark.

"I had the fish up so close to the boat that I could almost lay my hands on him, when the Hon. John Sutton—bad luck to his careless soul—discovered that he had left the gaff hook on shore. Of course, you know that to catch a muskallonge you have to work him out into deep water, and as we were in the middle of the lake at the time we tried to work back to the shore to pick up the gaff. The whale in disguise knew what we were up to, I guess, for with one supreme grand stand effort he made a break for liberty and got it, together with about a hundred yards of three-ply silk line. I was so exhausted and discouraged I wanted to jump into the drink after the king-pin of the muskies, but was restrained by Hon. John.

"And now comes the hair-raising part of the tale. Two days later, while rowing around the lake, I noticed a fish line floating around in the water, and being of a thrifty disposition, I caught hold of the end and began to pull it in. I had another narrow escape from drowning, and it came to me in a minute that my long lost musky was on the other end of that hundred yards of silk three-ply. He made a desperate fight to get away, having completely rested after his three hours' fight two days before, but I fought him to a finish, and as we had the gaff this time, after two hours' work I managed to land him. I don't know whether you'll believe it or not until you see the affidavits, but, that whale measured sixty-three inches and weighed fifty pounds."

With this letter Mr. Whitney sent a photograph of a fish nailed against a house. He called attention in a foot note to the fact that the boards were six inches wide, with an inch lap on each piece and that by counting the boards the length of the fish can be determined. The evidence of himself and friends, under oath, substantiates the weight of the fish.

Mr. Wood, despite the documentary evidence, is frankly sceptical and is going to Wisconsin just to find out. Incidentally he is going to take his fishing tackle along.

—Pte. Wm. Shoulden, of Baden Powell's Police, arrived in town last evening and was welcomed by his many friends.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Special to The Times.

Rome, Sept. 10.—Five persons were killed yesterday and ten were wounded in a conflict between troops and strikers at Candela, a small town in the extreme southeastern part of Italy. Owing to a dispute with the land owners on a question of wages 400 peasants stopped work yesterday. The strikers occupied all the roads in the district and prevented others from proceeding to their work. The gendarmes, in attempting to intervene, were assailed with stones and sticks and a corporal was severely wounded. Troops were then called out and were received with volleys of stones, which felled several of the soldiers. A couple of the latter were disarmed by the rioters, who walked on with their rifles and revolvers. The troops then fired, killing five strikers and wounding ten. An official of the Ministry of the Interior has gone to Candela to open an inquiry into the disturbance. Order has been restored there.

In three British colonies acts have been passed providing for old age pensions. Four years ago New Zealand adopted an old age pension scheme, and the example of New Zealand has been followed by Victoria, and, later, by New South Wales. In New Zealand the pension is fixed at $90 a year, while in Victoria and New South Wales the rate adopted was ten shillings a week, or $120 a year. Victoria has, however, reduced the pension to eight shillings a week.

In New Zealand, where the pension system has been longest in operation, the beneficiaries must be over sixty-five years old, and must satisfy certain requirements as to residence and character. No one who has property of the value of $1,250 or an income of $250 is entitled to draw a pension, and a deduction is made for every dollar from the full rate in proportion to such property or income as the pensioner may have. Although the payments for pensions have been large, New Zealand is not experiencing financial embarrassment from the scheme. The total population of the colony is about 750,000, and, in the first five months after the passage of the pension act, 7,487 pensions were granted. During the succeeding 12 months the number of pensions was increased by 4,000, and in the following year by 2,227, and for the next year, an increase of 1,000 was provided for, although it was calculated that nearly 1,000 deaths would occur among the pensioners. The expenditure on account of pensions is expected soon to reach $1,500,000 annually.

The reports that are coming from South Africa of the efforts of Sir Gordon Sprigg to rule constitutionally, and at the same time in line with British policy, do not sound encouraging; but it should be borne in mind that his attempt is to be judged by results and not by the clatter of Dutch politicians who come up to the Cape Parliament with the irritation of defeated ambition and a long term of military rule in their hearts. If speech is to be left free they will, of course, "say things;" and it is bound to be exasperating to British subjects to hear them criticise the enforcement of martial law which the conduct of the Cape Dutch themselves rendered necessary. But this is a part of the price which Britain voluntarily pays for endeavoring to keep the constitutional government in all her properly self-governing colonies. Colonial autonomy is made more secure thereby, and we in the colonies should be willing to endure some annoyance for so good a return. But Sir Gordon Sprigg must get results. Laws must be passed making for the stability of British institutions and predominance at the Cape. And the Empire will wait, with what patience it may, until he has had ample time to show these results.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

In three British colonies acts have been passed providing for old age pensions. Four years ago New Zealand adopted an old age pension scheme, and the example of New Zealand has been followed by Victoria, and, later, by New South Wales. In New Zealand that pension is fixed at $90 a year, while in Victoria and New South Wales the rate adopted was ten shillings a week, or $130 a year. Victoria has, however, reduced the pension to eight shillings a week.

In New Zealand, where the pension system has been longest in operation, the beneficiaries must be over sixty-five years old, and must satisfy certain requirements as to residence and character. No one who has property of the value of $1,350 or an income of $250 is entitled to draw a pension, and there is a provision also for a deduction from the full rate in proportion to such property or income as the pensioner may have. Although the payments for pensions have been large, New Zealand is not experiencing financial embarrassment from the scheme. The total population of the colony is about 750,000, and, in the first five months after the passage of the pension act, 7,407 pensions were granted. During the succeeding 12 months the number of pensions was increased by 4,000, and in the following year by 2,227, and for the next year, an increase of 1,000 was provided for, although it was calculated that nearly 1,000 deaths would occur among the pensioners. The expenditure on account of pensions is expected soon to reach $1,500,000 annually.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The chill high winds of autumn are beginning to move and the leaves are falling, but there is no fall in the price of coal, and the coal trust show no signs of feeling the blow.

There continues to be quite a movement in land in the island of Martinique, but the tourist business is falling off owing to the dust and the uncertainty of securing steady lodgings.

The "saw-off" has turned up in Ontario again, just to remind the voters that the average politician cares less about keeping corruptly elected representatives out of parliament than he does about seeing to it that the other party seats no more alleged misrepresentatives than his.

Interesting Items.

A Chicago playwright advertises that he has written and invented a melodrama in five acts, called "In Death's Shadow," "introducing the most absolutely startling and realistic scene in existence, the eruption of Mount Pelee and the destruction of St. Pierre. Fully protected. Western and southern rights for sale."

Perhaps we are coming to railways without rails. Several automobile owners in New York are planning to construct on Long Island fifty miles of road, to cross other roads above or below grade so that they may have a free course on which to speed their machines. From running a single motor car on such a road to attaching one or more "trailers" is a short step, and the next leads to passenger and freight service. Even if special roads are not built for their accommodation, it is probable that automobile coach lines will be run as feeders to the steam or electric lines in districts where it would not pay to lay a track.

A petition to the President and Congress of the United States asking an appropriation of $600,000,000 to assist negroes to leave the United States has been prepared by the International Immigration and Commercial Association, an organization of negroes, who were in session in Chattanooga, Tenn., a fortnight ago. The petition recites a long train of abuses to which it is asserted the negro is subjected, among which are the denial of all social and political recognition and the violation of his constitutional rights. The leading spirits in the convention are Bishop Turner of Georgia and Mr Heard, former minister to Liberia.

In spite of the opposition of his famous mother Maurice Bernhardt has applied to the state council of Paris for permission to change his name to Maurice Clairin. This is in order to conform to the usage which requires that children should bear the name of their father, not their mother. This step is said to have been taken at the instigation of Mme. Maurice Bernhardt who is about to become a mother, and does not desire to inflict the brand of illegitimacy upon her offspring. M. Clairin, whom Maurice now selects as his father, was a painter, whose infatuation for the "Divine Sarah" nearly caused a triple tragedy twenty-five years ago.

A remarkable instance of the intelligence of ants is described by Dr. Schroeder, in the "Zeitschrift fur Entomologie." Last summer a country house was so overrun by ants that the owner, after destroying a large anthill near the house and collecting the numerous pupae for poultry feed, laid sticky fly-paper before the door of the house in such a manner that the ants could not enter without crossing it. In the morning he found his poultry feed gone and the fly-paper covered with sand, dry grass and pine needles, over which the ants had passed "dry-shod." The anthill had also been rebuilt during the night. This case is well-authenticated, and a piece of the fly-paper is shown in evidence."

A well-dressed young woman entered a Boston car the other day and took a seat next to a man. Presently she leaned forward and began to tie up her shoe-lacing. It proved rather difficult to do with her gloves on, but after a while the passengers witnessing the performance saw the feat accomplished and the lady sit back calmly gazing out of the window as if "she was always tying her shoe" in electric cars. At the next stop the man beside her rose to get off, but lo! there came a struggle and then horror, mutual and general. The two were fastened, not exactly hand and foot, but shoe and shoe! So diligently had the lady tied the knots that the lacing had to be cut by a ready pocket-knife before the embarrassed couple could be separated.

Clarence Davies has bought for $500 a triangular strip of land 14 inches by 6 inches, and comprising 40 square inches, at the south-east corner of One Hundred and Forty-Ninth street and Third avenue, New York. Mr. Davis expects to derive an income of about $1,000 a year from this investment. As the parcel is a corner one, its owner has the right to occupy the sidewalk to the stoop line, which would give him a space 6 inches by 5 feet fronting in Third avenue, and 14 inches by 5 feet in One Hundred and Forty-ninth street. Mr. Davies can also get the right to build a vault under the sidewalk and the size of this vault could be 20 by 20 feet, or 400 square feet. He can use the vault as a subterranean store. The triangular plot was made by widening Third avenue and title to it has been held for some time by Samuel G. Walker as executor. It is said that a man stood on the plot for three nights some months ago, so that no one could build on it. He covered the plot almost with one foot.

A LITERAL GOLD MINE

The Immense Banks of Sawdust at Dickson's Mills

The immense banks of sawdust on both sides of the river in the vicinity of the Dickson Company's mills, are a very valuable asset to the Cereal Company, and are said to be worth to them more than the purchase price of the entire property. The company will use the sawdust as fuel for their drying processes, and are, in fact, already doing so. Sawdust fresh from the saws is being taken for this purpose.

The company propose to erect carriers that will take the sawdust from the bank and dump it directly into the retort, thus saving a second handling.

When the Cereal Company purchased the property from the Dickson Company, this sawdust was taken into account, and probably was the means of causing them to decide to locate here. There are many hundreds of thousands of tons, all of which is nearly worth its weight in coal.

A NOVEL PROPOSAL

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—It has been suggested, I believe, that the old rink be made into an opera house, which could be easily and cheaply done. The building is in a capital position for an opera house, and would cost comparatively little to transform it.

I am informed that it is also proposed to build a new curling rink on what is known as the Chamberlain lot, off Charlotte and Louis streets. Now, this is also a good idea. The present rink is unsuited for curling, as it is too much divided. With a new rink, the curlers would be all together which would cause them to fraternize and greatly popularize the "roarin' game."

Let the matter be taken up without delay, and the above suggestions put into practical shape.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
A READER.

STOCK MARKETS

Accounting for St. Paul's Rise

New York, September 9th — Various reasons have been presented and discussed for the remarkable continuous and sustained advance in the price of St. Paul shares. Ingenious explanations and theories have been given circulation from time to time. The real reasons have probably been mentioned but in the many stories it is difficult to fix upon the true one. The main reason for the advance in the stock is its splendid showings of earnings, its magnificent physical condition and the changes in its territory brought about by increase of population and continuous traffic increase of such a nature as can be declared permanent. One thing is obviously certain—St. Paul must get through to the Pacific coast, the present position of the Atchison and Northern Pacific routes make this obligatory. It is going to do so in one way or another. It will either build, or make such traffic alliance of a permanent nature with other lines as will accomplish the object. This is the meat in the cocoanut. The latter method will more than probably be the method of accomplishing it, as it will be cheaper, quicker and better than to build new lines. It has been suggested that the close affiliation of the Rockefeller-Gould interests, the former so strong in St. Paul, would be the likely way. A combination between the St. Paul and M.O.P. would carry St. Paul into Kansas City and west, giving it a through line over the Denver and Rio Grande, which is controlled by the Gould interests. The activities of the Goulds in their march to the Atlantic seaboard would also prove beneficial to St. Paul under such conditions. One thing is certain, St. Paul did not go above 190 upon a possibility of an increase in the dividend rate to 7 per cent. They could have taken the guarantee made them by Hill and Morgan at the instigation of the standard oil interests. The offer was refused, and the Great Northern people were compelled to take Burlington, which was their second choice. St. Paul has spent in five years some $36,000,000 upon their road, charging same to their operating expenses. We have steadily predicted over 200 for St. Paul, and expect very shortly to see the prediction more than realized.

LIVE LAKEFIELD LOCALS

Budget of Interesting News from the Pretty Northern Village

As already known, the Cement Company propose to double their capacity, and will consequently employ a much larger number of men. The dam known as No. 3 will be utilized for power, which will supplement the Young's Point power, which is insufficient for the work.

Miss Beamish, of Toronto Junction, is visiting in the village, the guest of Mrs. (Capt.) Reynolds.

There are still a number of American guests registered at the Craig House. Mr. Craig reports a splendid season's business.

The oil stock is on the upward grade. Dr. Baker and Capt. Reynolds, who were chosen to look over the property in Texas of the Canadian Osage Illuminating Oil Co., recently formed here, report by wire that everything is satisfactory, and the citizens interested are patiently awaiting the representatives that they might learn more of the property.

Quite a number of our citizens went up to the Toronto Fair yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Doidge, of Toronto, are visiting Mr. Doidge's parents in the village.

Amusing Mistakes.

Some years ago a school teacher began to keep a record of amusing mistakes made by the children in her charge. These grew so quickly to respectable dimensions that a volume of them has just been published, fortified by an introduction from Mark Twain. The author expressly states that every reply is genuine, and that in no case has there been any tampering with the originals.

One child, asked for a definition of plagiarist, replied "a writer of plays." Very good also is the definition of a demagogue as "a vessel containing beer and other liquids."

"To find the number of square feet in a room," writes a young mathematician, "you multiply the room by the number of feet."

There is a quaint truth in the statement that "Henry VIII. of England was famous for being a great widower, having lost several wives."

Perhaps, however, the best of all is one which comes under the head of "Music," and which says that "emphasis is putting more distress on one word than another."

No Need of Assistance.

The father of the family had stepped into a bookstore to buy a birthday present for his fourteen-year-old son. "What kind of book would you like?" asked the salesman, to whom he had confided his purpose.

"Something that would be useful for the boy," was his reply.

"Well, here is a very good one on 'Self-Help.'"

"Self-help!" exclaimed the father. "Son don't need anything of that kind. You ought to see him at the dinner-table!"

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers, Fortune's Spor, Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

remembered in sending for her at that time. Her heart was beating fast as she knocked at the door of the boudoir.

Instantly it was opened by Mr. Lionel Macaire, and though Winifred glanced quickly about the rose, white and gold interior she did not see anyone else.

"How are you this evening, Miss Gray?" said the millionaire. "I've just this minute come round from the front. I sat in the royal box watching your big scene. It never went better—which is saying a great deal. Why do you stand outside the door? Aren't you coming in?"

"Mr. Anderson sent for me," explained Winifred, still lingering on the threshold. "I thought he would be here—but perhaps he's been detained, or has forgotten."

"He hasn't forgotten, I know, for I heard him mention the appointment," answered Macaire. "But the fact is, he asked me to speak to you. I hope you don't mind?"

"Oh, no; of course not," said the girl, in a puzzled way.

She walked slowly into the pretty room, her quaint brocade rustling. She knew that Mr. Macaire had been coming to the theater a good deal lately, and for the last few weeks had often stood chatting with her outside an entrance where she was obliged to wait for nearly ten minutes in the third act—a privilege which the stage manager would not have granted to anyone save an intimate friend of Mr. Anderson. "He has seen some fault in my acting," she said to herself," and has been speaking to Mr. Anderson about it."

"You've plenty of time for a little talk now, haven't you?" asked the millionaire, bringing forward the most important looking chair for the girl.

"I've five-and-twenty minutes before my next entrance, in the second act," she replied before she stopped to think, and then was sorry that she had spoken.

Mr. Macaire might fancy that she wanted to spend the whole five-and-twenty minutes in talking to him, which she did not at all. She had noticed that the leading lady and two or three others rather toadied to the rich, hideous man, but that made her all the more anxious not to do so. There was no real reason for disliking him, as he had invariably almost gone out of his way to be nice to her, since she had first met him at the theater; yet his reputation was against him, and he was so ugly that she could not bear to look at him, and was uneasy in his presence. She was even a little afraid of him, though she did not know why.

As she replied to him, Macaire touched the bell and spoke for a moment to the person who answered.

"You seem to think twenty-five minutes a long time," he went on, turning again to her. "But it won't be half long enough for me—I have so many things to say to you. Have you heard any gossip, Miss Gray, about my connection with this theater?"

"No," returned Winifred, showing her surprise. "I didn't know you were connected with it. I thought you were just a friend of Mr. Anderson's."

"You thought I came here three or four times a week merely for the pleasure of seeing him?"

Winifred smiled — and when she smiled, showing a deep dimple in either cheek, she was divinely sweet. "I hadn't thought much about it," she said. "It wasn't my business, you know."

"You mean you didn't know it was your business. But——"

Someone knocked at the door, and Macaire, who had continued to stand near by, opened it. A man appeared carrying a silver tray with a bottle of champagne and two glasses. There was also a tiny silver and porcelain chocolate pot and a little Sevres cup.

The tray, at a gesture from Macaire, was placed on a small table, and, as soon as the door had softly closed after the servant, the millionaire sat down on a sofa close to which he had placed the chair now tenanted by Winifred.

"Some new arrangements are under negotiation for this theater," he said, "and they intimately concern you. But don't look so startled. It is nothing to be frightened about—on the contrary, indeed, I sent for some champagne in the hope you'd join me in drinking to their success."

"I seldom drink champagne, thank you," said Winifred, with a slight stiffness of manner. She liked the man less than ever to-night, and wished that if he had any criticism to make he would make it and have done with it. Anyway, she would certainly not drink champagne with him, alone here in the boudoir.

"Won't you make an exception this once, and please me? Mr. Anderson always offers his friends something when they visit him in this room," pleaded the millionaire.

"But I'm here on business." And Winifred's smile salved the abruptness of her speech.

"This chocolate then. I asked for it in case you didn't like champagne. It's cold this evening. I shall think it unfriendly of you if you won't; and it would be a grief to me if you were unfriendly. I know what a Caliban I am, Miss Gray; and I'm very sensitive where women I admire are concerned."

He poured out the chocolate, and, because she was sorry for the hideous man although he had millions, Winifred took the little cup from him. As she did so his fingers touched hers. Something made her look up at the same instant. She met his eyes, and shivered faintly.

For a moment he did not speak. Then he went on quietly: "I am going to talk to you in confidence. I know, and Mr. Anderson knows, that you are to be trusted. Mr. Anderson has had some bad luck."

"Oh," exclaimed Winifred. "I'm sorry! I thought this piece had done so well."

"So it has, or it wouldn't have run all through the hot summer, with only the short holiday you all had in August. The bad luck was before the present play, and the receipts from it have only been enough to pay old debts. A dead secret is that the man who has acted as business manager for the last year was put in by Mr. Anderson's creditors to look after their interests. A superior 'man in possession,' so to speak. Of course, a very embarrassing position for Mr. Anderson, who has got precious little for himself out of his present success."

"I am so sorry," said Winifred again, wondering very much why she—a comparatively insignificant member of the company—should be told these things, unless Mr. Macaire had for some queer reason been deputed to suggest that

Finance and Mining

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

ONE MACHINE VS. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be opened in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 10 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

The Opera House Last Night

One Common Cause of Headache

Perhaps the most general cause of headache and pain across the eyes is nasal catarrh. The simplest cure is to inhale the medicated vapor of Catarrhozone which traverses every air cell and air passage of the throat, lungs and nose. It kills myriads of germs at every breath, clears away mucous discharges, preserves and heals the membrane. Catarrhozone is just a splendid remedy for headache, and its action is certain and unfailing in diseases of the throat and lungs, deafness, bronchitis, asthma and catarrh. A trial will convince the most sceptical that Catarrhozone is all right. Large size, $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

Pitch-in Near Garden Hill

An accident occured to a Grand Trunk train near Garden Hill, on the Port Hope line. There is a heavy grade at that point, and long trains have to be cut in two in order to make the passage. When the second section was being handled it was allowed too much headway, the result being a rear end collision with the front section. Three or four cars were badly jarred and splintered.

The Late Miss Hendren

On Monday evening Miss Hazel Hendren, youngest daughter of Mr. Abraham Hendren, of Lakefield, passed away. The deceased was a sister of the late Miss Myrtle Hendren, who passed away early in the summer. Pulmonary trouble was the cause of death, the deceased having taken ill at about the same time as her sister. The funeral will take place at half past two o'clock.

The "Kilties" the famous band of the 48th Highlanders, will give a concert in the Market Hall, Wednesday evening, Sept. 10th. Be sure and hear them. The finest musical treat of the year. Only 25 cents. No seats reserved. Tickets for sale at the door.

Practicing for [illegible]

The old and true axiom of one man leading a horse to water, but ten nor being able to make him drink, was demonstrated a few days ago, when a well known newspaper reporter rode a horse up the steps of the hotel at McCracken's Landing into the bar, but the animal refused to indulge in the flowing bowl. We have known people to make a bluff at standing treat when they knew nobody would drink, but our genial contemporary had not this idea in his mind when he invited the horse to "have something."

THE BIG SHOW WILL OPEN TO-DAY

THE PETERBOROUGH CENTRAL'S ENTRIES AHEAD OF FORMER YEARS

Yesterday's Downpour of Rain Did Not Prevent the Work of Placing the Exhibits—The Show Now Ready—The "Kilties" will Arrive at Noon

The great attraction, the Kilties' Band, will also be present with their splendid music and program of special national dances. The band will arrive in town at noon in full force. The other events of the day will be the special ring competition, as follows:

Pony Competition, — Pony under 13 hands, harnessed to vehicle, driven by boy or girl under 15. First, $3; second, $2.

Farmers' trot or pace. — For single horses which have never won public money in a race; owned and driven by farmers or farmer's sons, engaged exclusively in farming not less than 50 acres, the horse to be owned by exhibitor. First, $5; second, $3; third, $2. Entrance fee, $1.

Road drivers' parade. — Trot or pace. Single roadster outfit. Speed and outfit to be considered. First, $5; second, $3; third, $2. Entrance fee, $1.

At night, the 48th Highlanders Band will give a grand concert in the Market Hall, with moving pictures of the King's Coronation. Admission only 25 cents to all parts of the hall.

COFFEE BLOATING

Coffee Causes Liver Congestion in Some People

"We drank coffee some years and it seemed an established law in our household to take refuge with some medicine of physic to make the bowels move or relieve the stomach of its pressure (coffee is generally the cause of persistent constipation, as it produces more or less congestion of the liver).

I was so nervous that my hands trembled sadly and sleep fled from me; I felt irritable all the time, and unable to do much of any work. I had to force myself to do things; always felt lazy and had to drive myself to get around; the food I ate belched up and I always felt as if I were bloated, and had such a narrow and tight sensation in my chest so that every little exertion started hot waves running through the whole body, followed by a cold, chilly sensation.

But after I commenced to use Postum Food Coffee and quit coffee these complaints all disappeared; I feel well, energetic and hopeful, am better nourished and able to sleep well every night.

My husband was often sick and the doctor and medicine were constantly needed in our house, but since we stopped coffee and used Postum, all these things are changed and that heavy feeling around the chest has gone.

Every wife should introduce this wholesome beverage into her family. She would discover in a few days what a rich food she had prepared for her loved ones, and would be rid of all of these oppressing sensations and stomach and bowel complaints which are caused by coffee drinking." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Family cares and duties do not weigh down the well woman, and the children are never in her way. But when the womanly health fails, and there is a constant struggle with weakness and pain, household duties are a burden almost past bearing, and children are a ceaseless annoyance and worry.

Weak women are made strong and sick women are made well by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I had been ailing some time, troubled with female weakness," writes Mrs. Wm. H. Johnson, of Avondale, Chester Co., Pa. "Every month I would have to lie on my back. I tried many different medicines and nothing gave me relief until I began Dr. Pierce's medicines, using two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' These medicines have cured me. When I began your treatment I was not able to do very much, but now I do the work for my family of nine, and feel better to-day than I have for a year. I thank you, doctor, from the bottom of my heart, for well do I know that you are the one who cured me."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best laxative for family use.

Alsoe, Obituarist, giving Departed Friends Glorious welcome to the Hairafter. Alsoe, will write Novels of Business or Pleasure."

—The young men of Lindsay, encouraged by the success of their last minstrel performance given here in the opera house, has re-organized and are preparing another performance on an elaborate scale for Thanksgiving Day night. They expect to put on a chorus of about forty male voices. They are negotiating for an orchestra of ten pieces from Peterborough to play for the performance. This no doubt will be one of the best events of the season, so keep the date open.

Come and hear the "Kilties" band at the Market Hall on Wednesday evening, Sept. 10th. Full programme of band selections, dances, vocal selections. A chance to hear this fine band at a low fee. 25 cents to all parts of the hall.

Interpreting Dreams.

"Can you interpret dreams?" asked Beatrice, eagerly.

I could not, but I saw no reason why I should make the confession.

"Certainly," I replied; "I never fail."

"Oh, I'm so glad," she returned. "Lately I've been dreaming such a lot, and—well, I'm sure there must be something in it."

"I haven't the least doubt about that," I said, thinking of those charming, if slightly indigestible suppers which we had been having.

"Perhaps if you could tell me some of the dreams," I suggested.

"Well, last night I narrowly escaped being burned to death in a fire in the house at which I was staying."

"No difficulty there," I said promptly. "It means marriage."

"Not—not death?" she asked, somewhat anxiously.

"Death? No. What put that into your head?"

"The night before I dreamed that I saw a coffin and ——"

"My dear Bea! You must allow me to congratulate you."

"Why?"

"It is quite evident that you are to be married soon. The coffin is—er—marriage again."

"A second marriage?"

"No—I mean it corroborates the fire."

She looked at me with some distrust.

"I hope you know what you are talking about. The coffin couldn't very well corroborate the fire, as it came first, and——"

"Ah, you don't understand dreams," I cut in, anxious to restore her faith in my powers. "In real life, of course, the corroboration couldn't come first, but it's quite different in dream life."

"Oh—oh!" She waited for a moment or two and then added: "I suppose dreams always mean something exactly opposite?"

She seemed anxious that I should answer the question in the affirmative, so, of course, I hastened to do so.

"That is the case. I never heard of a dream episode being enacted in real life."

She gave a sigh—of relief, I imagined.

"Three nights ago I dreamed that I was being married," she said. "What did that mean? That I am to be an old maid?"

"It meant——," I said, and then paused. It was my earnest wish that she should be married to me.

"I'm sure I have puzzled you now."

"Anything but," I returned. "I was only wondering whether—was the man fair or dark?"

"Dreams always go by contraries, you said," she remarked, studying my golden locks intently. "Yes; he was fair, very fair."

"Tall or short?"

She took in my six feet one.

"Tall."

"Stout or thin?"

"Medium."

"Very like——"

"Very like yourself," she interrupted. "But of course that doesn't matter, so far as I can see. All I want to know is, what does dreaming about marriage mean? You say that it can't mean marriage?"

"I didn't say anything of the sort, Bea. It—er—does mean marriage. The only question is as to the man you are going to marry. That's why I required a particular description of him."

"You certainly said that a dream must mean the opposite," she insisted.

"But surely you don't mean to hold me down to a foolish statement of that kind."

"A foolish statement! Why, Hugh, I thought—do you know anything about dreams at all?" she asked, suspiciously.

"To be candid, I do not, Bea. But——"

"Well, I'm sorry that we have wasted so much time," she said. "I'm going now to see Aunt Sarah. I'm sure she knows all about dreams, and—and that coffin really troubles me."

"Don't go," I implored. "The fact is, Bea, I can help you—if you'll let me."

"I gave you the opportunity," she said.

"Oh, I know, but I can't—I mean—I——"

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"I mean that I can interpret your coffin dream for——"

"But you admitted a moment ago that you couldn't," she said, looking at me tantalizingly.

"You might allow me to finish," I said. "The dream may mean marriage or not. But you can make it mean marriage if you like."

She looked mystified.

"Marry me," I said, "and then—and then the dream can't mean anything else."

"And if I don't?" she asked.

"If you don't I refuse to answer for the consequences. The dream might mean—something dreadful. In fact, I'm sure it would."

She gave a little shiver.

"Oh, anything rather than that. Hugh, I am yours."

I sealed the bargain with a kiss, but she did not respond to the caress. It was evident that she had something on her mind.

"What is it?" I asked presently.

"I suppose," she replied slowly, "that whether I had dreamed about a coffin or not you would have——"

"Have asked you to marry me?" I cut in eagerly. "Of course I should."

"And so—it doesn't really matter whether I dreamed or not."

"Bea! What do you mean?" I asked.

"I hate to have everyone wondering when we are going to become engaged," she remarked calmly, "so I hastened matters a little, and invented some dreams."

"But—how did you know that would—er——"

"When you said that you could interpret dreams, I knew," she replied. "A man nearly always makes out that marriage is the interpretation of"—she bowed mockingly—"a fairly good-looking young woman's dream. And when the would-be interpreter happens to be in love with the fairly good-looking——"

"Bea," I interrupted, "you ran a great risk."

"Why?"

"Because you are not a fairly good-looking young woman," I replied, letting my eyes rest on her with open admiration. "And if it is only to women of that sort that men interpret——"

"In all the great affairs of life one must run some risk," she remarked; and she looked so charming as she spoke that I was constrained to tell her that she had run no risk at all.—"The King."

A competent inspector of long experience estimates the timber that might be sold as 1,000 cords hardwood, and 2,000 cords mixed soft wood, all of which in this market would sell readily for more than $10,000, and total expense would not exceed $6,000. A man with teams and two or more boys should be able to make big money on above, and we can make price and terms so reasonable as to enable a man of limited means to buy and pay for out of the timber. DEADLOCK CONTINUES IN CAPE COLONY

Premier Sprigg and Progressives Cannot Agree, The General Feeling

The Bond Supports Him on Condition That It Dictates His Measure The House May Dissolve

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 10.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Times says the political situation there is unchanged. Two meetings held between the Sprigg Ministry and the Progressives only widened the breach. Premier Sprigg refused to move an iota from his present position, and reconciliation is impossible.

Regarding a motion appproving Sprigg's action in opposing suspension, the Progressives offered to abstain from speaking if Sprigg would move the previous question. This he declined to do, and it is gravely feared the debate fixed for Thursday will be largely personal. The Bond caucus resolved to support Sprigg, but on the tacit condition that he shall not introduce measures disapproved by the Bond.

The general feeling is that Sprigg, being in the minority, should have a short session, commence a new registration immediately, and then dissolve the House. The Progressives are wholly united, and acting with moderation and good sense.

A PARADISE ON EARTH

The Rev. Dowie's Zion City Thus Described

What Arthur W. Lee Says About the Model Community Located Forty-two Miles from Chicago

Mr. A. W. Lee, who went to Dowie's Zion City, near Chicago, a little over a year ago, is at present on a short visit to friends in town, says the Lindsay Post. He was briefly interviewed by The Post and gave some interesting information concerning the new religious departure. He said that when he first went to Zion City there were no buildings outside of the ordinary farm houses, with the exception of the lace operatives' houses and a small lace factory. The railway depot was about the size of a boxcar. There were some fifty tents pitched in a grove nearby, giving shelter to about two hundred persons.

The city lots were not offered for sale until the fourteenth of July. Scarcely fourteen months have elapsed since then, and the change is simply marvellous. To-day there stands on this chosen spot one of the most beautiful places on the face of the earth, the creation of John Alexander Dowie. It is a city about the size of Lindsay, beautifully laid out with all the modern sanitary conditions. The land purchase embraces ten square miles. The lace industries cover five acres of land, with seven acres of floor space, ten machines being in operation. The capacity of the brick factory is 60,000 per day. The planing mill and lumber yard is a busy spot, as building operations are very active. The dwellings erected range in cost from $500 to $30,000, quite a number costing from $5,000 to $10,000. An hotel, which is called an Hospice, costing $75,000 has just been built. The other principal buildings in the place are the Tabernacle, seating 6,000 persons; the Administration structure, costing $30,000, and the educational buildings, which are to cost some $25,000 when completed. The block of stores are operated on the departmental plan, and the prices of goods range lower than in Chicago.

The present population of Zion City is about 6,000. The community is one of the most intelligent in the world, besides undoubtedly being the most moral. It is indeed a paradise on earth. Freed from the blighting influence of sin, the people aspire to that perfect condition which would make a veritable heaven upon earth. The management of Zion City and its business is systematic and ideal in its character. There are no drones in this hive of religious industry. Workers are well paid for labor according to earning capacity, and liberal interest is allowed on moneys invested in the industries. The Rev. Mr. Dowie does not control everything, but is allowed only five per cent. of the net profits.

The present Mayor of the city is Mr. Richard Harper, a former resident of Oshawa. The city does not tolerate the sale of intoxicating liquors, tobacco, drugs or swine flesh, while no doctor is allowed to practice. The religious tenets of the community is a firm belief in the old Gospel of Jesus Christ, in all its fulness—salvation, healing and holy living, with triune immersion. The strongest working factor in the Christian Catholic Church is the Seventies, who go from house to house in cities and towns in twos, with the salutation, "Peace be to this house!" an appropriate printed message being offered. It should be stated that all investors in real estate hold a lease for eleven hundred years; rents are high, land values have doubled, and lease-holders have profited thereby. As for Mr. Dowie, Mr. Lee considers him a remarkable man doing a marvellous work for good. He is a Scotchman by birth, and well educated.

Mr. Lee is quite satisfied with the change he made and has firm faith in the Rev. John A. Dowie, who claims to be the incarnation of the Prophet Elijah. Zion City is situated about 40 miles north-west of Chicago, on the shore of Lake Michigan. Although there is a community of interests amongst the people of this "New Jerusalem," yet it is neither based upon Communism nor Socialism. Individualism and independence are preserved. All business is conducted upon a cash basis. Mr. Dowie preaches in the Auditorium in Chicago every Sunday, as well as at Shiloh Tabernacle, in Zion. Existing evils and national wrongs are dealt with in such a manner as to attract great audiences.

PERPETUAL MOTION PROBLEM SOLVED BY MAGNET

James Houlehan, Inventor of Well-Known Telephone Devices, Says He Has Mastered The Puzzle of All Ages

Special to The Times.

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 10 — James Houlehan, of this city, declares that he has invented a method of utilizing the energy of permanent magnets in the production of continuous motion and steady power.

Mr. Houlehan is the inventor of the automatic device for calling "Central" now used in all telephones. In place of a crank which had to be turned to make a call, he arranged the method whereby taking the receiver off the hook does the work.

Mr. Houlehan has already patented a form of permanent magnet, in which there is no zero point, or dead centre. This is the basic patent of the new magnetic motor which, if its inventor's claims are realized, will run and furnish power up to the capacity of the magnets of which it is composed, without consuming a pound of coal or a drop of water, and without the use of a battery of extraneous electric current.

"A horseshoe-shaped piece of steel can be magnetized in a few seconds by an electric current of a few amperes from a battery or a dynamo," said Mr. Houlehan, "and the amount of electrical energy used is ridiculously small. But the magnet so made can lift many pounds of iron in contact, or a less weight without contact. And, stranger still, the exercise of this power strengthens the magnet.

"That magnet will hold up that weight of iron for all time; and every second it is, of course, expending energy. The total of the energy thus continuously developed would foot up an almost inconceivable total of actual power

"Where does this energy come from? That is a question which science as yet cannot answer By what process does the magnetizing of a bar of steel make it a machine for the transformation of energy? It is not a storage or reacting device, like a steel spring, which, when it is wound up, gives back approximately the force required in winding, but no more The magnet resembles a spring that, when you wind it, keeps wound up, giving out its force indefinitely

"This mystery of the magnet has never been solved It is beyond me. All that I claim is that I have discovered a method whereby its "pull" on a piece of iron can be made to produce rotary motion. By this means it is possible to use the magnet's force in the driving of machinery or other application of power."

HIRSCH'S GREAT SECRET

For the Colonization and [illegible] of the Jewish People

Special to The Times.

New York, September 10—The Jewish World publishes a detailed balance sheet of the accounts of the Jewish Colonization Association, the trust created by the late Baron de Hirsch with the magnificent donation of $50,000,000, for the purpose of helping his persecuted co-religionists. It is best known by its formation of colonies of the Argentine. Hitherto the accounts have been kept absolutely secret. Mr. Israel Zangwill recently challenged administration to produce their accounts and tell the Jewish people what they were doing with the money. The Jewish World has secured the statement of accounts for 1901, and thus the accounts see the light of day for the first time.

The balance shows that $2,919,397.20 was spent, and seven-eighths of this sum was obtained by interest and one-eighth by drawing on capital.

The Argentine project roughly cost last year $290,000 for direct relief, $425,000 for purchase of new land for colonies and $65,000 for administrative purposes. American organizations received $40,000 by way of subventions, $110,000 by way of loans for agricultural work, the settlement of individual farms. In Russia the Association spent $100,000 on schools, $5,000 in subventions, $130,000 for erecting workers' dwellings in Wilna, $30,000 in loans. In Roumania the schools cost $14,000, and $113,000 was given in subventions, besides $8,000 in loans. Palestine received $20,000 for schools, $30,000 by subventions, while Asia Minor absorbed $65,000. The most remarkable items in the accounts are a loan for the weavers of the prayer shawls in Dubroyne, amounting to $170,000, and the purchase of land in Galicia for the purpose of colonization, requiring an outlay of $120,000. The administrative expenses were $150,000, or about 7 1-2 per cent. of the total expended.

KILLED 166 WHALES

Shetland Islanders Drive a Whale School of Them Ashore

London, Sept. 10 — A great whale hunt took place at Hillswick, in the Shetland Islands, last Saturday. When on that day a school of herring whales was reported approaching the coast the entire fishing population put to sea aboard of everything that would float.

They drove the whales ashore and slaughtered 166 of them. The longest whale measured thirty-five feet.

BREAK IN WEST VIRGINIA

300 Men Go Back to Work in the New River Mines

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 10—Three hundred union men went to work in the New River mines to-day. This is the first break in the ranks of the strikers and it is believed that many more will follow them, as they have simply been waiting for the start to be made.

Five of the eight companies of State troops were ordered home from duty there to-day and it is thought the others will be withdrawn by Thursday.

Five thousand tons of coal were loaded at New River to-day, this being about 40 per cent. of the normal output.

SEACE RUMOA IN MINE REGION

That Operators, Ignoring the Union, Offer Men Directly 10 per cent Increase

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 10.—At the meeting of the Bellevue local in this city yesterday afternoon, when relief was being distributed, the men were told that it was the last that they would get, as they would all be back at work by Sept. 15.

The Scranton Republican will print a story to-morrow morning that John Mitchell told a friend in Wilkes-Barre on Saturday that the strike would end, the men be back to work on Sept. 15; that it would be a defeat for the men, who would get no concessions, but that it was necessary to end the tie-up to save the union. The Republican says that it is unable to give the name of its informant, being pledged to secrecy.

ACTION OVER TRADE SECRET

A Case of the Stanley Piano Co. Comes up at Toronto for Retrial

The re-trial of an action brought by the Stanley Piano Company against George B. Thomas and A. Marcy & Co., piano manufacturers, of Toronto, not now in business, was begun before Mr. Justice Lount in the Non-Jury Assizes on Tuesday at Toronto.

The plaintiffs originally sued for an injunction to restrain the defendants from using a piano scale which the plaintiffs claim is a duplicate of their own "Scale No. 10." Also for the return of the patterns from which the scale is made, and damages.

Since the commencement of the action four years ago, Marcy & Co. went out of the business of piano manufacturing, and the plaintiffs now want to secure all the patterns of the scale in question, which they say was stolen from them.

The co-defendant, Thompson, was once a foreman in the Stanley factory, but in March, 1892, he was hired by Mr. Marcy to be foreman in a factory that he had just started to operate. The making of Scale No. 10 was a trade secret known only to the Stanley Company, and shortly after Thompson left their employ, they allege, they missed patterns of the scale, and a little while later, they further allege, they found a scale in the Marcy piano an exact duplicate of their own "No. 10."

The case was heard by Mr. Justice McMahon on April 17, 1900, who nonsuited the plaintiff. The latter ap- the New River mines to-day. This pealed to the Court of Appeal, and Chief Justice Armour ordered a new trial.

The argument before Justice Lount may last a couple of days.

THE PETERBOROUGH CENTRAL FAIR

The Exhibit Good in Quality but Poor in Quantity

KILTIES' BAND PRESENT

A Good Programme Arranged for To-Day at the Grounds

The Concert in the Market Hall by the Highland Band—The Rain on Tuesday "Dampened" the Fair

The rain on Tuesday did much to prevent a larger exhibit at the Central Fair, although the quality of the articles shown were good, but unfortunately they lacked in quantity. Yesterday morning threatening clouds hovered in the sky, but finally the sun broke through, and those interested in the exhibition took heart. During the morning the officers and exhibitors were busy getting their exhibits into shape for the opening, which was informal.

The Kilties Band was the centre of attraction, and fully sustained their high reputation as musicians.

INSIDE EXHIBITS.

The inside exhibits are not numerous, no doubt on account of the rain.

The domestic products are not up to former years.

There was a satisfactory show of roots and vegetables. Though not numerically large, the quantity, in some cases, was superb. This applies especially to potatoes.

To the right of the eastern entrance are the grains and dairy exhibits. Grains are of excellent quality this year, and although there were not so many entries, some very fine samples of wheat, oats, peas, beans, and Timothy seed were seen. In fact, the judges were having an interesting time deciding between samples for first and second prizes.

About the usual quantity of cheese and butter exhibited, but the judges reported that the butter was hardly up in quality to last year.

Messrs. Tully and Morrill, managers for Messrs. Gough Bros., have made an attractive display of clothing, furnishings, hats, shoes, etc.; C. B. Routley, who has a most creditable exhibit of wall papers, etc.; R. M. Roy, photographer, who has a good exhibit of fine work. The fourth corner is occupied by the horticultural exhibit.

Special exhibits on the ground floor also included several cream separators.

On the west side of the building are the garden vegetables and roots. The former are practically no exhibit this year, the showing made being very small. This was also the case with honey, home-made bread, canned fruit, etc., which is usually pretty well represented. The absence of exhibits in this department was said to be due to the fact that under a new rules all exhibitors had to pay ten cents for each entry of exhibits made over ten. This barred the market gardeners and others who wanted to make an exhibit of garden stuff. Roots were a fair exhibit. The quality was good considering that this has not been a good year for roots in all districts. Potatoes, reported poor by some, were shown in many fine specimens.

Upstairs the fruits were found, and while not a varied collection, there was a large display. Apples made the showing, and were there in large quantity. All were rather green, showing the slow season, and the majority bore the marks of the hailstorms earlier in the season, the hailstones leaving deep indentions on the fruit. No grapes were on view this year.

The ladies' work, occupying the centre portion of the second floor, was a grand display. It was better in every respect than other years, and some very fine work was to be seen. There was fancy work of all kinds, from the dainty creations in silk to the filmy point lace, and also all descriptions of useful needle work. Some good work in fire-etching on wood and leather were there. There were many things here to interest and please the lady visitors. Mrs. Birdsall was in charge of this excellent department.

Domestic manufactures were also represented by some well-made quilts, blankets, rugs, carpets, etc.

A couple of specimens of penmanship were also on view upstairs, being samples of the vertical writing.

HORSES.

In horses the exhibition is good, the number of entries being ahead of last year. The quality is up, also, and some fine animals were to be seen in all classes.

The principal exhibitors in heavy draught class were James Lang, geld mare, brood mare and foal, colt or filly foal, and filley two years old; M. D. Sullivan, brood mare and foal, colt or filly, foal and filly, one year old; Geo. Ward, geld mare, filly, foal, colt three years old, span; R. Scully, filly two year old; J. Garbutt & Son, brood mare and foal, and filly foal; and foal and colt or filly two year old; Fowler Bros., colt or filly two years old; P. C. Sullivan, brood mare and foal and colt or filly; P. Leahy, colt or filly one year old, colt or filly two year old, and colt and filly three year old; James Dixon, colt two years old.

Agricultural horses were shown by James Lang, colt two years old; H. A. Mulock, colt of 1902; J. Garbutt & Son, brood mare and foal and filly foal; Wm. Stillman, brood mare and foal and filly foal; F. J. Miller, brood mare and foal; Geo. Ward, brood mare and foal and filly foal; Robt. Bowles & Son, brood mare and foal and filly foal; Geo. A. Fair, span of horses; James Lang, geld mare; R. Scully, filly two years old; John Garbutt & Son, filly two years old; Geo. Mailer, filly two years old; James Martin, single horse and span; Fowler Bros., filly two years old; Geo. Warden, geld mare; P. Leahy, filly one year old, filly two year old, filly three year old; C. B. McAllister, span; R. Scollie, single horse; W. J. Pritchard, single horse.

In carriage horses the entries were made by Herbert McMillan, colt three years old; Fred Roseborough, single driver; Jos. Rightbuyer, filly three years old; R. S. Trew, filly three years old; Wm. Gray, single driver; R. Hambidge, colt three years old and single driver; W. B. Stewart, filly one year old and filly two year old; F. E. Kline, single driver; W. H. Snowden, single driver; Wm. Yelland, pony under 14 1-2 hands; John Hambidge, single driver and filly three year old; T. J. Hetherington, single driver; James Martin, filly three years old and single driver; Geo. Taylor, colt three year old and single driver; Fowler Bros., two single drivers; H. J. Hall, filly three years old and two single drivers; C. W. Hughan, single driver; Sam Deyell, two single drivers; Geo. A. Gillespie, pair of carriage horses under 14 1-2 hands; Wm. Campbell, three year old filly; R. Vance & Son, two single drivers; Alex. Elliott, single driver; R. Lillicot three year old mare and two single drivers; C. B. McAllister, single driver; N. Nicholls, pair of carriage horses under 14 1-2 hands; W. J. Pritchard, filly one year old; W. S. Hamblin, two single drivers; W. L. Smith, geld. mare; F. Jory, pair carriage horses under 15 1-2 hands and pair over 15 1-2 hands; Milburn Bros., two single drivers; Harvey Fowler, single driver, and H. C. Garbutt, pair of carriage horses under 15 1-2 hands and a pair of roadsters.

SHEEP.

In the sheep pens there were some fine exhibits, but the number was not up to former years.

The exhibitors included the following: Southdown, R. L. Holdsworth & Son, twelve head. Oxford Downs—R. L. Holdsworth & Son, six and pen. Shropshire Downs—A. E. Meadows, twelve and two pens; C. H. Curtis, four head; R. L. Holdsworth & Son, shearling ewe. Leicesters—John Fairbairn, two head; Allin Bros., thirteen head and two pens; Andrew Cameron, seven head and pen. Cotswolds—Wm. Stillman, nine head and two pens.

SWINE.

Swine was a small exhibit, although some of the entries attracted attention. The principal exhibitors were John Fairbairn, E. O. Sargent, C. H. Curtis, Robt. Bowles & Son, Wm. Dawson, S. D. Rightmyer, and A. Vance & Son.

Poultry had a prominent place just at the main entrance. The old coops were occupied, and new ones in a commodious tent furnished additional accommodation. The exhibit was a good one all round, although not equal in numbers to last year, when there was a record-breaking exhibit.

STRIKERS DEADLOCK A JURY

They Hold Out Against Conviction in Shenandoah Riot Case

Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 10.—The jury in the case of Anthony Radiewicz, who is charged with participating in the Shenandoah riots which led to the calling out of the State troops, has been deadlocked all day. The case was held over from last week and given to the jury this morning.

There are a number of strikers on this jury and it is believed they are holding out against a conviction.

Radiewicz is charged with shooting Officer David Ringheiser and assaulting Deputy Sheriff Beddall. The Commonwealth had exhausted its challenges and could not keep a number of mine workers off the jury.

Two strikers charged with the killing of Sheriff Beddall's brother, will be placed on trial to-morrow for murder in the first degree. John Myers, of Ashland, will be placed on trial for the killing of Abram Llewellyn, a striker.

END OF STRIKE SEPT. 15?

Men in Scranton Feel That They'll be Back at Work By That Date

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 10—During this week and starting to-morrow the operators report that they expect substantial gains in the number men who desire to work.

What mines may be the next to resume the operators will not say, fearing that the strikers may endeavor to make trouble for them.

A fresh peace rumor to-day is that the operators are to offer a 10 per cent. increase to the men, ignoring the union directly in the offer, but making it to the employees of each colliery.

President Mitchell, who was to have gone to New York this morning changed his mind and went to Scranton this afternoon instead, where he will visit friends. He said that there was nothing at all new in the situation and that he knew of no plan for a settlement.

The seventeenth week of the strike ended yesterday and the estimated losses for that time, including that to operators, employees, railroads, mines and the cost of maintaining Coal and Iron police and soldiers, are a little over $100,000,000.

Sports and Past imes.

The committee holding the F. S. Schneider Challenge Cup have met and decided to hold the Taylor-McGrath race on the track at the Driving Park at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Sept. 15th. The event will doubtless prove a great drawing card as considerable interest is being manifested in the race. Both men have good reputations as runners, never having been beaten, and as they have been training hard for the last two weeks a fast race is certain. The cup is on exhibition in Mr. F. S. Schneider's window. The race is to be run in heats, the best two out of three winning.

DEMANDS OF VANQUISHED BOERS UPON BRITAIN

Full Report of the Recent Conference Shows That the Generals Asked Impossible Things

Wanted Britain to Reinstate Boer Officals, Pay an Indemnity to Boer Widows and Maimed Burghers

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 11.—A Parliamentary paper issued this morning gives a full report of the recent conference between Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and the Boer Generals, Botha, De Wet and Delarey. Prior to agreeing to the interview which the Boers asked for on August 20, the Colonial Secretary requested a list of the subjects which it was desired to discuss, and the Generals forwarded a list of subjects, including the following:

Complete amnesty to rebels.

A yearly grant to all Boer widows and orphans and maimed burghers

Equal rights for the English and Dutch languages in the schools and courts.

That equal rights with the British be conceded to burgers' complying with the terms of surrender, including the right to return to South Africa.

The immediate release of all prisoners of war.

The reinstatement of the officials of the late South African Republics, or compensation for their loss of office.

Compensation for all loss occasioned by the British troops by the use, removal, burning or destruction by other means, of all private property.

The reinstatement of the burghers in the ownership of their farms confiscated or sold under the proclamation of Aug. 7, 1901.

Compensation for the use of the properties of burghers taken by the British authorities.

Payment of the lawful obligations of the late South African Republics, including those incurred during the war.

The rescission of the decision to add a portion of the Transvaal to Natal.

Granting an extension of time for the payment of all debts due by the burghers of the late Governments of the South African Republics.

CHAMBERLAIN SURPRISED.

Mr. Chamberlain, in replying, expressed great surprise at the number and character of the proposals, pointing out that the conditions agreed on at Vereeniging were duly accepted by the burghers and the British Government, and that they could not be reopened, nor could proposals rejected at that time be again discussed.

If the interpretation of the agreement was open to question, His Majesty's Government would endeavor to review all doubts. At the opening of the conference, the Boer Generals disclaimed any desire to alter the terms of surrender in any way. On the subject of amnesty to rebels, General Botha expressed disappointment that after the promise given by Lord Kitchener that the rebels had not been granted amnesty at the time of King Edward's coronation, in reply to which Mr. Chamberlain promised that the Imperial Government would not hinder any generous intention of the Governments of Natal and Cape Colony in regard to rebels.

As to the return of burghers to South Africa, the Colonial Secretary declared it was the Government's intention to retain the right to prevent the return of disloyal persons who had not frankly accepted the terms of peace, instancing former State Secretary Reitz of the Transvaal as a case in point, and saying that Mr. Reitz was using language on the continent inconsistent with the declaration he had signed at Vereeniging.

Gen. Botha said he hoped that the "sins of one man would not be visited on others," adding: "If one man says foolish things, let him suffer therefor alone."

MOORE GETS FIVE YEARS

The Man Pleaded Guilty to Burglarizing Barrie's Store

James Moore, who appeared at the Police Court yesterday morning, pleaded guilty to breaking into the store of Barrie & Co. The prisoner made a feeble appeal for mercy, claiming that he had always borne a good character.

The Magistrate evidently regarded Moore as a dangerous character, and thought it better to give him a sentence that he would remember. He accordingly sentenced him to the Kingston penitentiary for five years.

A LITTLE PAIR OF DEUCES

The following lines were written and sent to The Times for publication. So far as this great family journal is concerned, it is unfamiliar with poker lore, and the "point" is therefore not apparent to us. If the matter had referred to the game of "lost heir," "nations," or "old maid," this g.f.j. would have been in it up to the neck However, as the writer wants it to appear, here goes:

There's a little game called poker, which the same is wicked, quite,
And playing in that little game I know is never right,
Yet, in my sinful, sinful way, I've sometimes held a hand,
And tried to hold a nine-spot high and still look pleased and bland;
I have met the race of bluffers, and I know their little ways;
I have tried to look serenely on an unexpected raise;
But at end I've always noticed, if the hand was played with care,
That a little pair of deuces was better than no pair.

This life's a mighty poker game, sometimes I fancy still;
We take the cards the Dealer deals,
and play them at our will,
And some of us are bluffers; with words of cant and gush
We try to make the players think we hold a royal flush;
With nothing but a nine-spot high
we puff and swell and blow,
And think we're playing shrewdly, for it seems to work, you know,
Till some thoughtful, watchful fellow says, "I call you." World of care!
For his little pair of deuces is better than no pair.

The man who wears twelve dollar hats
on seven-dollar pay;
His bluff will work all right enough until it's called some day.
The politician, prating of "me own loved native land," While his hand's extended backward,
some day we'll see his hand.
The man who thinks effrontery is bound to take the trick
Is sure to hear, "I call you," and the words will make him sick.
Somewhere, somehow, shall merit count, though it have naught to spare,
For a little pair of deuces is better than no pair.

ASHBURNHAM PUBLIC SCHOOL

An Exceedingly Good Showing—Principal Matchett Congratulated

Miss Clara Adams, of the Entrance class of this school, was also successful at the recent Entrance examinations, but owing to a clerical error, her name did not appear in the list first published. This makes a total of thirteen successful pupils from Ashburnham public school, out of 16 who wrote, or 81 per cent., a very creditable showing indeed. These thirteen pupils, together with the principal, M. W. Matchett, are to be congratulated on their success. The school this year has passed the largest number of pupils, and also taken the highest percentage in its history.

Mr. Matchett severs his connection with the school at the end of September. We understand he has secured a good position with Mr. W. H. Hill, manager for Central Ontario for the Sun Life Assurance Company, of Canada, and enters on his new duties on October 1.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Gonaives, Hayti, Sept. 11.—An investigation made by a correspondent of the Associated Press into the sinking of the Firminist gunboat Crete-A-Pierrot, at the entrance of this harbor Saturday, shows that Admiral Killick, her commander, personally fired the after magazine of that vessel when the German gunboat Panther attempted to capture her, and that he apparently went down with his ship. The Panther, which had previously attempted to board the Crete-A-Pierrot, the latter being moored to the shore, reversed her engines when the magazine exploded, and one hour afterwards fired thirty shots from her guns at the Crete-A-Pierrot in order to finish the work of sinking her. The Panther then left Gonaives.

It is claimed here that the rifles and machine guns of the Crete-A-Pierrot have been saved.

The body of Admiral Killick was recovered Saturday afternoon, and was buried the same evening.

The surgeon of the Crete-A-Pierrot who was asleep in his cabin, and two sailors of that vessel also perished. The Panther is expected to reach Cape Haytien on Friday.

When the Boer generals interviewed Hon. Mr. Chamberlain last week it is reported that, though they can speak English, they insisted on the interview being carried on through the medium of an interpreter, and the Boers all spoke Dutch. One object of the conference was to secure the recognition of the Taal as an official language in the new colonies. By the terms of the peace treaty at Vereeniging the future existence of the Dutch language was somewhat vaguely recognized, more especially in connection with the schools and courts. But it is apparent that the Boer leaders recognize the advantage that would be secured in maintaining their nationality by the recognition of the Taal as an official language, and with true Dutch diplomacy they are pressing on Mr. Chamberlain its recognition. On his decision and the wisdom of his advisers depends whether the new colonies are to be saddled with a dual language problem and all that it entails. It was [illegible] that a mistake was made in recognizing the Dutch language in connection with the terms of surrender and the Boer leaders show that they are losing no time in pressing the advantage to secure further concessions.

When the Boer generals interviewed Hon. THE C. P. R. EARNINGS

The prosperity of Canada's great trans-continental railway, the Canadian Pacific, is a matter of gratifying interest to Canadians, so intimately has the history of that enterprise been connected with the growth and upbuilding of the Dominion. The report for the year ending June 30, 1902, is published and the results are an index of the general prosperity of the country. The net earnings for the year amount to $14,465,912 as compared with $12,108,273 in the previous year. The gross earnings of $37,503,053 show an increase of nearly seven million dollars and the working expenses have increased from $18,745,828 to [illegible]714,114. Over 8,700,000 tons of freight were handled as compared with 7,155,040 in 1901 and the number of passengers has increased from 4,337,799 to 4,798,504. The freight rates have been reduced from 0.80 cent per ton to 0.79 cent, and the passenger rate per mile from 1.83 to 1.75. The company has added 200 miles to its mileage.

The Canadian Pacific is becoming one of the best railway properties in America. Its assets amount to $316,504,240, exclusive of over 21,000,000 acres of land it owns, and its obligations are only $222,000,000. During the year the company redeemed $1,601,000 worth of 5 per cent. land grant bonds and the value of its Northwest lands is steadily rising with the influx of population to the Northwest, which population will steadily increase its railway earnings later on.

UNRECONCILED POLAND

The mutterings of discontent heard during recent years in Poland arose from the avowed policy of the German emperor to "Germanize" the schools, and the language especially, of that portion of the ancient kingdom of Sobieski, the land for which Kosciusko made such a gallant struggle in 1793, as fell to the lot of Prussia on the tripartite partition. The Kaiser and his minions, who are very zealous and not over scrupulous in carrying out his mandates, used pretty severe measures to execute this policy of denationalizing the schools, even to the extent of changing the language of the religious instruction therein. It has even been said that the emperor's subordinates tried to force upon the Catholic children of Warsaw, Posen, and other cities within the sphere of their authority the German version of the Lord's prayer used in Protestant services. Whether this is so or not, the Polish people resisted the innovation in language so vehemently that much popular tumult ensued and in many instances severe measures were adopted by the authorities.

The German emperor may not have realized the intensity of the spirit of opposition he invoked while he was surrounded in his own country with loyal and devoted subjects, but he understands now. He and the empress and his imperial entourage visited the city of Posen last Tuesday, in connection with the army manoeuvres. He saw a sight in the grand old city that should have made him reflect how impotent is power in conflict with patriotism.

Not a single Polish word of welcome he heard during his journey through a double file of troops that extended the whole length of his passage through the city. Not a single decoration appeared on a public building or residence or place of business owned or controlled by Polish people. He was greeted with hurrahs and welcomed with flags by the very small German contingent of the city, but this merely emphasized the sullen and unreconcilable demeanor of the real inhabitants. Posen turned her back on the Kaiser!

Very few nations have adhered so stubbornly to the principle of independence as Poland has done. She has never yielded one iota of her nationality to any of the three powers that have gobbled up her territory. She has preserved her language, her traditions and her customs to a remarkable extent. She recognizes in the Emperor of Germany or of Russia or of Austria-Hungary a foreign despot to whom she must submit, but to whom she owes no allegiance.

It should be plain enough to the Kaiser and to those who assist in shaping his political course that in dealing with Poland there is nothing to be gained by coercion. He can keep the Prussian portion of the country in subjection by arbitrary rule, but he cannot thereby win the affections of the people, without which mere authority and sovereignty are of little account. A wise and beneficent ruler might gain the affections of a conquered people by leniency and by respecting their prejudices and preferences and showing respect for their religion, language and literature. He can only confirm them in opposition to his rule by futile endeavors to suppress the national spirit and to abolish what they hold dearer than life. Will the great and mighty Kaiser accept the lesson, or will he choose rather to perpetuate the existence of an Ireland in his dominions?

FIFTY POUND MUSKALLONGE

A Fish Story with Affidavits to Substantiate It

Washington, Sept. 9.—George L. Wood, Assistant Superintendent in the Division of Salaries and Allowances of the Post Office Department, will leave to-morrow for the summer home of Postmaster-General Payne on Beaver Lake, Wis., to examine a number of affidavits and other documentary evidence, and make a thorough investigation as to the truth of certain information contained in a recent letter received at the Department from Francis H. Whitney, Mr. Payne's private secretary. If Mr. Woods succeeds in sustaining Mr. Whitney's story he will remain at Beaver Lake for a week or so in an endeavor to duplicate the private secretary's experience. The letter, which is evidence that Mr. Whitney, when not dictating official correspondence and confined to official forms of expression, is a slang slinger of note and a worthy successor to the lamented "Billy Baxter," is as follows:

"While the facts remain clear in my mind and I can discuss the matter intelligently, I want to relate an experience that befell me while at Lake Minocqua. The piscatorial epic that you are about to hear, and the truth of which is fully substantiated by affidavits and other documentary evidence, is certainly the limit and would have made even Izaak Walton take to the tall timbers.

"I went out on the lake in the morning, with the Hon. John W. Sutton as guide, and did not get even a nibble. Then we went to dinner, country fashion, about noon, and piked back to the lake at 1.30. We were rowing slowly along the shore, trying to beguile the festive muskallonge from his haunts, but without much success, when at about 3 o'clock I had a strike that nearly lifted me out of the boat and hooked a fish that took me two days and a half to land. Don't stop—that is an absolute fact and I can prove it. I played the fish—I thought at the time it was a stray whale—for about three hours, and when I was nearly ready to drop from exhaustion, I finally succeeded in getting him up next the boat, while half a hundred other fishermen in other boats came rowing over to see the fun and find out what I had hooked—whether a sperm whale or a man-eating shark.

"I had the fish up so close to the boat that I could almost lay my hands on him, when the Hon. John Sutton—bad luck to his careless soul—discovered that he had left the gaff hook on shore. Of course, you know that to catch a muskallonge you have to work him out into deep water, and as we were in the middle of the lake at the time we tried to work back to the shore to pick up the gaff. The whale in disguise knew what we were up to, I guess, for with one supreme grand stand effort he made a break for liberty and got it, together with about a hundred yards of three-ply silk line. I was so exhausted and discouraged I wanted to jump into the drink after the king-pin of the muskies, but was restrained by Hon. John.

"And now comes the hair-raising part of the tale. Two days later, while rowing around the lake, I noticed a fish line floating around in the water, and being of a thrifty disposition, I caught hold of the end and began to pull it in. I had another narrow escape from drowning, and it came to me in a minute that my long lost musky was on the other end of that hundred yards of silk three-ply. He made a desperate fight to get away, having completely rested after his three hours' fight two days before, but I fought him to a finish, and as we had the gaff this time, after two hours' work I managed to land him. I don't know whether you'll believe it or not until you see the affidavits, but that whale measured sixty-three inches and weighed fifty pounds."

With this letter Mr. Whitney sent photograph of a fish nailed against a house. He called attention in a foot note to the fact that the boards were six inches wide, with an inch lap on each piece and that by counting the boards the length of the fish can be determined. The evidence of himself and friends, under oath, substantiates the weight of the fish.

Mr. Wood, despite the documentary evidence, is frankly sceptical and is going to Wisconsin just to find out. Incidentally he is going to take his fishing tackle along.

English Humor.

Mr. Max Beerbohm, in a recent review, writes that he has codified, as it were, all the English comic papers, and finds the following list to comprise, in the order of their importance, all of the subjects discussed:

Mothers-in-law.
Hen-pecked husbands.
Twins.
Old maids.
Jews.
Frenchmen, Germans, Italians, niggers (not Russians or other foreigners of any denomination).
Fatness.
Thinness.
Long hair (worn by a man).
Baldness.
Sea-sickness.
Stuttering.
Bloomers.
Bad cheese.
Shooting the moon (slang expression for leaving a lodging-house without paying the bill).
Red noses.

Questions and Answers.

Here are some answers to questions in examination papers:

What religion had the Britons? A strange and terrible one called religion of the dudes.

What caused the death of Cleopatra? It was because she bit a wasp.

What can you tell of Johnson? He survived Shakespeare in some respects.

What is the spinal column? Bones running all over the body. It is considered dangerous.

Name a domestic animal useful for clothing, and describe its habits. Ox. Doesn't have any habits, because it lives in a stable.

What is the function of the gastric juice? To digest the stomach.—New York "Tribune."

Her Plea.

A priest asked a young man who had come to confess how he earned his living.

"I'm an acrowbat, your riverence."

The priest was nonplussed.

"I'll show ye what I mean in a brace of shakes," said the penitent, and in a moment was turning himself inside out in the approved acrobatic fashion.

An old woman, who had followed him to confession, looked on horrified.

"When it comes my turn, father," she gasped, "for the love of heaven don't put a penance on me like that; it 'ud be the death of me!"

STOCK MARKETS

Get Some Copper and Some Sugar

New York, September 10th — These two stocks are preparing to wheel into line, become active and advance. When they fairly start, the pace will be remarkably rapid. At present writing public holding of both stocks is extremely small. Heavy cumulative buying of copper has been going on for the past three months and bearishly inclined articles have appeared regularly every week in the press of the country generally. They have been put out in the interest of the insiders in order to deter outsiders from buying the stock and to enable them to accumulate such stock as they desire without materially advancing the price. It now looks as if their demands for stocks were about satisfied and that the movement will from now on develop with rapidity. Last week copper metal rose 1-4 cent per pound and the demand for it is more sharp and there is every probability of a further advance.

President White, of the New England Metal Co., and who is an authority, says: Present consumption the world over is beyond precedent and further growth is in sight. The decrease in output through the higher cost of mining, and disasters and difficulties at various mines will go far towards offsetting the increased productions of such mines as the Greene, Shannon and South Range. We believe copper will in a very short time sell 75, and this fall sell above 80. Some one has been quietly accumulating sugar stock for over a month. It has been fairly held down with everything about it fairly boiling. Sugar, when it starts, will rapidly catch up through means of the gigantic and quick market it makes when in action. It has been sleeping, and a good advance is shortly before it. It is estimated that the undivided profits of the sugar companies on their coffee business for the past year aggregate $15,000,000.

The market continues to present a strong front all along the line, though comparatively insignificant and spotty reactions put in their appearance from time to time. They are speedily checked, however, by the demand for stocks, which puts in an appearance each and every time concessions appear. The entire market is still a good purchase. B & O was the day's market leader, rising about 3 points. L. N. was particularly strong; as also was M.O.P. and the Pacifics. U.S. Steels was absorbed in large blocks, at advancing prices, creeping up a full point. The strength of the current market is surprising even the cliques and manipulators themselves. It is easier to sell stocks than to purchase them. We are as confidently bullish as ever, and advocate most strongly the bull side of the account. Money closed last loan 6 per cent. Sales 1,291,000.

A Clue That Failed.

Deductions in the manner of Sherlock Holmes do not always work out successfully. They did not in a case reported by the Washington "Post." A group of reporters were talking together, and one of them, who liked to play the amateur detective, devoted part of his time to watching a man standing some distance away.

"That man used to be in the army," he said.

"How do you know?"

"See how he puts his hand into his trousers pockets. He lifts up the side of his coat—look! he's doing it now—instead of pushing the coat back as we do. He acquired the habit from wearing a fatigue coat in the army. A fatigue coat, you know, is cut square about the body. To put the hand in the trousers pocket, one must lift up the side."

Some discussion followed, with the result that one of the reporters volunteered to lay their speculations before the stranger. He proved to be a worthy real estate dealer. After listening to the reporter's explanation, he replied, with much amusement:

"I'll tell you why I put my hand in my pocket that way. I used to be a butcher in New York thirty years ago, and I got that habit raising my butcher's apron to make change."

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers, Fortune's Spor., Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

everybody should take half salaries.

"It is in your power to help Mr. Anderson place things on a far better footing," went on the millionaire.

"I'd be glad to do anything," stammered the girl.

"Would you really?" The hideous face drew nearer; the marred eyes looked closely into hers. Involuntarily she shrank back.

"Mrs. Peter Carlton and Mr. Anderson have not been getting on very well together of late," he announced. "I don't care for her acting, and she's getting too passee to be much of a 'draw.' I have told my friend Anderson that, if he had a different leading lady, I would act as his backer. He might call on me for anything he liked, up to half a million. Naturally," continued Macaire, "Anderson is much taken with the idea. It should be a new lease of life for him. He could do things very differently in the theater. His productions would be on a finer scale; the salaries paid would be better. I asked his permission to speak to you on the subject."

"To me?" Winifred hardly dared to think that she understood. The blood surged to her forehead; but her make-up hid the sudden change of color, and she was thankful that it did.

"You would be my choice as leading lady; and Mr. Anderson agrees with me in thinking that it is good."

His face was very close to her shoulder, as he bent forward from his sofa, and Winifred sprang up. "Oh, Mr. Macaire," she exclaimed, "I can't think that you mean it."

"I never meant anything more in my life—except once, perhaps." (His face changed and darkened with some memory, which seemed to pass across his light eyes like a storm-cloud.) "No—on second thoughts, not more even then. You have begun to rehearse Celia, in 'As You Like It,' I believe, Miss Gray. How would you like to play Rosalind instead? You would be an ideal Rosalind to my thinking."

The girl's brain was in a whirl. She had been Rosalind in the country touring company from which Mr. Anderson had transplanted her. To play the part here—in London—would be too glorious to be true. She was very young—only just twenty; and for a moment she could hardly breathe, confronted with such a magnificent thought. Then, behind that thought, a dark shadow seemed to steal, and hover.

CHAPTER V.

A Four-Wheeled Cab.

"Mrs. Carlton surely won't leave Mr. Anderson so soon—so suddenly?" Winifred said.

"She is leaving at once. You may take it from me, Miss Gray," answered Macaire, "that the place of leading lady will be vacant for you to fill."

The girl felt curiously giddy. "And—if—I should have to refuse?" she faltered.

"I'm afraid, in that case, there'd be trouble—for everyone. Mr. Anderson's in a peculiar position. He has been careless. He must have money at once. Some enemies of his have been at work. Certain firms have refused to trust him. The new production is imperilled. If I should not see my way to backing him, Mr. Anderson would be at his wits' end."

"But—you have promised him, haven't you?"

"Only conditionally."

"You mean—but no, you can't mean that——"

"I do mean that, and nothing else. With you for his leading lady, matters are to go smoothly with my friend, George Anderson."

Lionel Macaire had not risen when Winifred rose. He had sat still, watching her. But now he got up, with his peculiar limp, like the sideways gait of a crab, and stood in front of the girl. She was obliged to look him in the face, unless she turned abruptly from him, and in her confusion she stammered out the first words that came into her mind.

"It's the strangest thing I ever heard! Why should you do all that for me? You scarcely know me. We are not friends. It's you and Mr. Anderson who——"

"But I wish that we should be friends. Don't you really understand? Winnie, don't you see that I'm in love with you?"

As he spoke, he caught her hands, but she snatched them away, panting, her eyes dilated. It made her sick to hear him call her "Winnie." She was that to no one save her mother and brother.

"You must be making fun of me!" she cried. "You are almost old, and you are very rich—horribly rich—while I'm only a young girl, and nobody at all. I—I thought you were married. Anyway, you can't really want to marry me. I——"

"My darling child, I can give you anything on earth," pleaded the millionaire. "But I can't marry you. You can have a theater of your own, if you like, when you're tired of being leading lady here——"

"Stop!" cut in Winifred, in a low, changed voice. "I do understand you now—at last. I—was very stupid at first. Mr. Macaire, we needn't talk about this any more. I've quite decided."

"You're going to let me lay the world at your feet?"

"I'm going to do nothing of the kind!" the girl broke out irritably, almost childishly, for she was keeping back hysterical tears. "Oh, it doesn't seem a bit real, but it's horrid, perfectly horrid, that such a thing should happen to me. I must go now—and please, Mr. Macaire, never speak to me again—about anything."

He caught her dress and held it tightly. "You shan't go!" he ejaculated. "As you said, I am old—and I'm the ugliest man on earth—I know that. But I can give you things that queens might wish for in vain. And I can love more than other men. I've made love to many women, but I've only loved one woman in my life before I saw you. You've got hair and eyes like hers. That's why I thought of you at first. Now I love you for yourself. I love you with all the love I gave her, and as much again besides. I will have you."

"No you won't, Mr. Macaire." The girl's voice trembled between anger and tears. "Let my dress go. You will tear it to pieces."

"I will do more. I'll tear you to pieces if you try to resist me," said Macaire. "I have done that with everyone who went against me, all my life. I never failed."

"I—I'm not afraid of you!" (She was

Finance and Mining

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realised from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

ONE MACHINE VS. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been endorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 10 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

The 57th Band played at the Toronto Industrial Exhibitoin yesterday, and received the congratulations of many of the musicians of the city, who went expressly to hear them, on their fine playing. A despatch published elsewhere gives details.

The Band Concert

The concert given last night by the band of the 48th Highlanders, in connection with the Central Exhibition was well patronized. The programme consisted of some fine selections by the band, solos, bagpipes and Highland dancing. The band leaves for home to-night.

President Stocker

We congratulate Mr. Walter Stocker on his elevation to the position of President of the Canadian Master Bill Posters' and Distributors' Association, annual meeting of which took place in Toronto on Monday. Walter is the right man in the right place, and shows what may be done by "sticking" to it.

The Band Engaged

The management of the Peterborough Turf Club has engaged the Band of the 57th Regiment for both days of the races, which take place on Monday and Tuesday next, 15th and 16th instant. The band will play both afternoons, and will greatly enliven the proceedings. There is no doubt but the forthcoming meet will be the best ever held in Peterborough.

Good Show at the Opera

Last night Perry, Odell and Dee's comedians made their second appearance in the Opera House to a fair audience. The concert by the Kilties in the Market Hall detracted largely from the excellent performance given by this company, who are all artists of a high order. The company will appear again to-night, with an entire change of grogramme.

A Successful Season

Captain and Mrs. Lane, captain and stewardess of the steamer City of Peterborough, respectively, left yesterday for their home in Bobcaygeon. During the season just closed the genial captain and his estimable wife have made themselves very popular with the travelling public on the lower waters. The steamer has had a remarkably successful summer's trade, largely due to the popularity of the captain and crew, as well as to the labour of Mr. Drain, the manager. The boat is now in winter quarters.

OUR BAND IN TORONTO

The 57th is Well Received at the Industrial Fair

Special to The Times.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—The fine band of the 57th Regiment occupied the stand at the Industrial Exhibition to-day, and attracted a great deal of attention. The audience rapidly increased from the time the band began to play, and each selection was loudly applauded.

Among the spectators were many of the leading musicians of the city, several of whom complimented Mr. Gliddon on the performance of his already justly famous band

A CHILD RUN OVER

Last Evening on Charlotte Street and Severely Injured

Yesterday about six o'clock a little child daughter of Mr. Barnes, who lives at 203 Charlotte street, was knocked down and severely injured by a man with a single rig, who appeared to be from the country. The horse stepped on the child's leg, inflicting a wound that required several stitches by the surgeon. Dr. Halliday, who was summoned, and who dressed the wounds, found no bones broken, and beyond the lacerated flesh there is no further injury.

LAID AT REST

The Funeral of the Three Victims of Sunday's Drowning

The inexpressibly sad spectacle of a triple funeral—three bodies being borne to the grave at the same time, and all belonging to one family—was witnessed yesterday in Peterborough. The terrible accident by which Mr. James M. R. Robertson and his two young sons lost their lives, has cast a gloom over the entire community. The hearses containing all that is mortal of the three victims, headed the procession, which was largely attended, not only by the people in the neighborhood of the Roberts' home, but by scores from a distance.

The services at the house and the grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. Gunton, Baptist minister, Smith, and were very affecting. The father was buried beside his two sons, who were placed in one grave.

—The remains of the late Mrs. Wall were interred yesterday morning in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

—The members of St. Paul's choir will meet for practice this evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Every member is kindly requested to attend.

—The need of an electric railway was again forcibly demonstrated yesterday. Hundreds of people were forced to walk too and from the fair grounds.

—The races which take place here on Monday and Tuesday, promise to be a great success. Some of the swiftest horses in the country will compete.

—The steamer Manita will run from Bobcaygeon to Bridgenorth on Monday and Tuesday next, 15th and 16th instant, in connection with the Peterborough races.

—The committee on Apppointments of the Board of Education met on Tuesday evening and formally appointed Mr. A. Sorsoleil, of the South Central school, to the vacancy in the Collegiate Institute. Mr. W. J. Stacey, Principal of the Inniskillen Public school, received the appointment to the vacancy created by Mr. Sorsoleil's promotion. Mr. Stacey comes to Peterborough very highly recommended.

—We have heard of dogs adopting young wolves, but never before have we heard of a cat taking a young rabbit into her family. A cat belonging to Henry Barrie, near Jackson's Park, had some young kittens, and when a very young rabbit was brought to her she did not offer it any violence, but at once placed it with her own babies and cared for it with all the solicitude a mother cat has for her fluffy kittens.

AN "EXPANSIVE" GIRL

Not Necessarily an Expensive One

A little Kansas girl is called an "expansionist" because her clothes require "letting out" so often. She lives mostly on Grape-Nuts since recovering from a sick spell caused by too much greasy food.

Almost all ailments of children (and grown folks as well) are traceable to the wrong kind of food, and the surest cure is to quit the old sort, the greasy, pasty, undercooked or overdone things that ruin the stomach and bowels.

Put the children and adults on the perfectly cooked food Grape-Nuts.

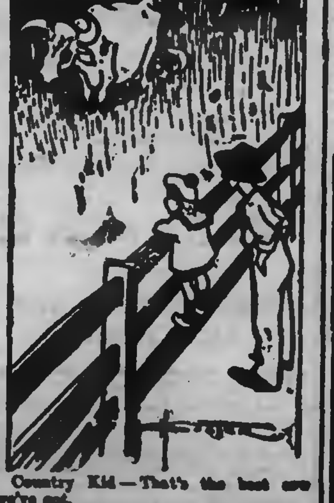
It is digested by the weakest stomach. Has the delicate, sweet flavor of the grape sugar, and surely and quickly rebuilds the body, brain and nerves.

There's a reason.

Running a Great Rapids.

"At the head of one of the great rapids a bowman, seeing that I mated well with a light-weight of his crew, invited me to take a paddle and help them through," writes Arthur Heming in the July "Scribner" in describing the Abitibi fur brigade. "While the brigade are shooting rapids light-weights are at a premium. Tossing in an extra set of paddles we stepped aboard, and with a gentle shove the current caught us and carried us out to mid-stream. Long before we sighted white water the roar of the cataract was humming in our ears. We two midmen sat upon dunnage sacks and braced our moccasoned feet against the ribbing. Presently the bowman stood up and scanned the river. Dark, ominous water raced ahead for a hundred yards, then disappeared, leaving nothing but a great, surging mass of white that leaped high and dropped out of sight in the apparently forsaken river-bed. Then the steersman stood up, too, and Indian words passed between them. Every moment we were gaining impetus, and always heading for the highest crest of foam. Waiting for the word to paddle was even worse than waiting for the starter's gun in a sculling race. At last it came, just as we were twenty-five yards from the end of dark water. With a wild shout from the bowman, we drove our paddles home. The great canoe trembled a little at first as our work was somewhat ragged, but a moment later we settled into an even stroke and swept buoyantly among the tossing billows. Now before us ran a strange, wild river of seething white, lashing among great, gray-capped, dark-greenish bowlders that blocked the way. High, rocky banks standing close together, squeezed the mighty river into a tumult of fury. Swiftly we glide down the racing torrent and plunge through the boiling waters. Sharp rocks rear above the flying spray, while others are barely covered by the foaming flood. It is dangerous work. We midmen paddle hard to force the canoe ahead of the current. The steersmen in bow and stern ply and bend their great seven-foot paddles. The bowman, with eyes alert, keenly watches the whirling waters and signs of hidden rocks below. The roar of seething waters drowns the bowman's orders. The steersman closely watches and follows every move his companion makes. Down we go, riding upon the very back of the river; for here the water forms a great ridge, rising four or five feet above the water-line on either shore. To swerve to either side means sure destruction. With terrific speed we reach the brink of a violent descent. For a moment the canoe pauses, steadies herself, then dips her head as the stern upheaves, and down we plunge among more rocks than ever. Right in our path the angry stream is waging battle with a hoary bowlder that disputes the way. With all its might and fury the frantic river hisses and roars and lashes it. Yet it never moves—it only frowns destruction upon all that dares approach it. How the bowman is working! See his paddle bend! With lightning movements he jabs his great paddle deep into the water and close under the left side of the bow; then with a mighty heave he lifts her head around. The great canoe swings as though upon a pivot; for is not the steersman doing exactly the very opposite at this precise moment? We sheer off. But the next instant the paddles are working on the opposite sides, for the bowman sees signs of a water-covered rock not three yards from the very bow. With a wild lunge he strives to lift the bow around; but the paddle snaps like a rotten twig. Instantly he grabs for another, and a grating sound runs the length of the heaving bottom. The next moment he is working the new paddle. A little water is coming in, but she is running true. The rocks now grow fewer, but still there is another pitch ahead. Again the bow dips as we rush down the incline. Spray rises in clouds that drench us to the skin, as we plunge through the "great swell" and then shoot out among a multitude of tumbling billows that threaten to engulf us. The canoe rides upon the backs of the "white horses," and we rise and fall, rise and fall, as they fight beneath us. At last we leave their wild arena, and entering calmer water, paddle away to the end of the portage trail."

A City Simile.



Country Kid—That's the best cow we've got.

City Kid—Why don't you get his handle-bars straightened?—Drawn by D. H. Souter for the Sydney "Bulletin."

An Oriental Inquest.

The following little scene at an inquest upon the body of a murdered man is reported from Astrachan:

The coroner (dictating to his clerk)—On the table was found a bottle—no, stop a moment, we must ascertain its contents.

The coroner (tasting the liquid)—The bottle contained English gin. Perhaps not, I am not sure. Taste it yourself.

The clerk, having done so, replies—I believe it is simply strong vodka.

The coroner (tossing off another glass)—No, really, it tastes like gin.

The clerk (tasting again)—I still think it is only strong vodka.

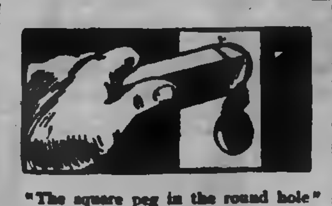
The bottle having gradually become empty, the coroner proceeded to dictate in a decisive tone: "Write: An empty bottle was found on the table, and all measures taken to ascertain what it had contained were of no use."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

A Lindsay Girl Tries to Kill Herself in a Hotel

A few days ago a young lady, who arrived from Lindsay on the evening train, tried to poison herself in her room at one of the local hotels, by taking laudanum. She was discovered and medical aid summoned, and her life was saved. The girl, who calls herself Blanche Royal, was sent to the hospital.

Yesterday she appeared in Police Court to answer to a charge of attempted suicide, and was remanded for a week, as she seemed to be hysterical.



"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for one year. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Big Bargain of Land and Timbe IN OTONABEE.

West half Lot 25, Con. 2, near Shearer's church and school, Norwood road; 2 miles from C P.R. at Indian River station, and 12 miles from Peterboro; 100 acres choice land; 50 fit for machinery, balance heavily timbered with maple, beech, elm, ash, cedar and some tamarack. A competent inspector of long experience estimates the timber that might be sold as 1,000 cords hardwood, and 2,000 cords mixed soft wood, all of which in this market would sell readily for more than $10,000, and total expense would not exceed $6,000. A man with teams and two or more boys should be able to make big money on above, and we can make price and terms so reasonable as to enable a man of limited means to buy and pay for out of the timber. Wise men will see us quickly about this. Ploughing possession at once.

RUSSIA AND INDIAN RAILWAYS

Lord Curzon's Policy Extension Excites Wrath

Special to The Times.

London, September 11 — Russian newspapers are extremely wroth at Lord Curzon's approval of the extension of the Indian railway system to Nushki, on the eastern boundary of Beluchistan. They foresee uninterrupted railway communication between India and Europe. Russia means to have an outlet in the Indian Ocean; and this great railway, which would be in British and German hands, would stop the progress of Russia towards the south. An evening journal in St. Petersburg says Russia must at once build a line through Persia right down to the Indian ocean, and thus paralyse the ambition of Great Britain.

There is a very general desire in this country for some sort of understanding with Russia about Persia, in spite of Captain Mahan's warning that any concession on Britain's part will imperil her naval situation in the far east, her political position in India, her commercial interests in both, and the Imperial tie between herself and Australia.

A WOMAN'S SHARE IN THE BOER WAR

Heroic Deeds of Mrs. Delarey Recalls the Story Helen in Siege of Tory

A WOMAN WHO DID HER PART

Mrs. Van de Velde Wife of Secretary of Generals, Also Plays a Plucky Part

London, September 10 — The party of Boers who have come to England with the generals include many who have had exciting experiences during the war, says the London Daily News. In talking to them you realize that it has been quite as much a women's war as a men's on the side of the Boers. Perhaps, indeed, the most permanent fact that will survive in history will be the part that has been played by the women. Take the case of Mrs. Delarey. She has been actually "in the field" for eighteen months. She does not look like it. She just looks a kindly, middle-aged mother of a family who has lived quiet days all her life.

It all arose in this way. In the course of his "guerilla" war General Delarey would occasionally come and visit his wife in a manner that perplexed and annoyed General Methuen perhaps more than anything else happening in the war. It certainly must have been annoying, but perhaps the best plan would have been to have grinned and borne it. Unhappily that was not the cale with the British general when he found himself crossed by Boer women.

It was intimated to Mrs. Delarey that she must pledge herself not to give lodging to her husband. Now, Mrs. Delarey is a plucky woman, and a devoted wife. She refused. "As long as I live," she replied, "I shall give lodging to my husband when he comes to me." "Very well, then," Lord Methuen intimated, "you must go into camp." But Mrs. Delarey refused to go into camp. "Give me a wagon," she said, 'and I will go and shift for myself." So they gave her a wagon, and they asked her where she was going. "Into the wide world," she said, and she went.

ON THE VELDT

That was at the end of the year 1900, and from that time until the end of the year Mrs. Delarey wandered about the veldt, now sleeping in one place, now in another, always on the eve of being captured, sometimes escaping by the barest interval of time from the pursuing columns. She carried her children with her in her wagon, and cooking utensils sufficient to live a tolerable life. The plucky lady occasionally found a house where she could spend a night or two; but for the most part she was perpetually on the move and perpetually keeping her weather eye open for the pursuing columns.

Every now and then General Delarey would visit her, and on one occasion he came to her sick and she nursed him. But while he was lying sick in the farmhouse the columns came upon them. General Delarey leaped out of bed, and, with the help of a small command of men with him, fought off the attack and succeeded in escaping.

On another occasion Mrs. Delarey proved more clever than her husband. He was proposing to rest a night in a farmhouse; but she did not like the look of it. Her military eye seemed to spy danger. So she persuaded her husband to move. It was fortunate that she did so, as the enemy came to that farmhouse immediately when they had left.

Mrs. Delarey was wandering in this manner when she heard that her husband had captured Lord Methuen. At first she would not believe it, but when she found it was true she made her way to her husband's laager. She said she wanted to see Lord Methuen and have a talk with him. She took with her a fowl and some provisions as a present. Lord Methuen consented to see her, and was obliged to tell her that he had destroyed her house. Mrs. Delarey must have got some Christian consolation after presenting him with the fowl and helping to nurse him.

Then came the question what Delarey should do with his prisoner. The young Boers were all against giving him up, because he had treated Mrs. Delarey in a manner they did not approve of. But General Delarey and his wife took a larger view. "What can we do with him," they asked, "if we keep him? If he goes with us he will probably die on one of our treks, and then his blood will be put to our charge. Better be generous and hand him back." The general had some difficulty with his men, but at last persuaded them. And so General and Mrs. Delarey performed an act of high generosity which was probably the strongest influence in bringing the war to an end.

ANOTHER PLUCKY WOMAN

Mrs. Van de Velde, the wife of the secretary of the generals, is another of the plucky women of the party. She lived in Pretoria all through the war, and managed somehow or other to escape from the concentration camps, though often threatened with deportation. But her difficulty was to earn her living. She did not hear from her husband, and all that she knew was that he was fighting in the field somewhere in the Eastern Transvaal. She was not allowed to touch her money in the bank, and at times it became very difficult to make both ends meet. It is true that she was offered rations. But her spirit would not allow her to take them. She found that her friends who did accept privileges of this sort were on the smallest excuse deported into the camps.

She set to and helped her sister with her school, took in needlework, and did everything that a woman can do for her livlihood. She lost nearly all her belongings one by one. At first there was some pretence of giving receipts; but that soon stopped, and one after another her furniture, her bicycle and all her belongings disappeared. But one does not, as she puts it bravely enough, care about furniture when one's country is at stake. Everything that she had to spare she took out to the camp outside Pretoria, where the children were wasting away like flowers. It was a long and dreary wait, and when the war was over and her husband rejoined her she could have a feeling that under the worst possible circumstances she had earned her living and kept her independence.

RUGBY.

The T.A.S. Rugby team will turn out for practice Saturday afternoon on the Murray street school grounds. That the T.A.S. will make a good showing this year goes without saying when such men as Crowly, Picard, Dennard, and Maher, all of whom were in the game last year and showed up well in the line up of the Peterborough Rugby team, with a number of additional men that are well up in the game and are new comers in town, together with a promising bunch who will get into into the game this season, the T.A.S. will have a team that will make fast company for the rugby teams this season.

GOLF.

The first round in the Stratton Trophy Handicap has been finished, and the draw in the second round has been announced and is given below. The links at Auburn are now in almost perfect condition, and many of the best players are doing the course very close to the record. In the second round which must be completed by Saturday, Sept. 20th, the following gentlemen are drawn against each other:

Dr. Eastwood vs. R. M. Hamilton.
A. J. N. Terrill vs. J. W. Garvin.
H. Walker vs. R. M. Dennistoun.
C. H. Bradburn vs. H. D. Burnett.
R. Granger vs. S. Hay.

CURLING.

The Ontario Curling association met at the Iroquois hotel in Toronto the other day to arrange for the reception of the Scotch curlers, the Royal Caledonian curling association. The question of having games played for the most part in large centres, such as Toronto and Hamilton, was discussed fully, and it was decided to adopt the alternative plan of having the Scotchmen visit as many places as possible. The Royal Caledonian association will be asked to send out ten rinks instead of four, and to alter their program so as to provide for a longer stay in Ontario. Other provincial curling associations will be asked to agree upon a place for a joint reception and entertainment of the visitors.

A REPORT CORRECTED

The report cabled here from New York that Mr. George Hale, of Kansas City, has been invited to reorganize the London fire brigade is dismissed as inaccurate. Probably he has received an invitation to be present at the Conference of the National Fire Brigade Union in London next year.

CANADA'S DEFENCE

Canada will Provide for Her Own Defence

POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

THE DOMINION TO MAINTAIN GARRISONS INSTEAD OF MOTHER COUNTRY

AN SMALL ARMY OF RIFLEMEN

A Proposal will be Submitted at the Approaching Session of Parliament — Any Army of Ri.l men

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Your correspondent is satisfied that at the approaching session the Government will invite Parliament's concurrence in a scheme by which Canada will practically assume the duty of defending her own borders. This will be the Dominion's contribution towards Imperial defence. The information comes from a quarter whose reliability is not open to question. This is about what Australia has already consented to do for herself. The details are yet to be worked out, but it is not unlikely that they will include the taking over of the garrison duty now done on the east and west coast by Imperial troops. The Third Royal Canadian Regiment at Halifax is not yet disbanded, and possibly a start will be made by continuing it as a permanent unit of Canada's small regular force.

THE PREMIER'S VIEWS.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's position in regard to the subject of Imperial defence was clearly stated in Parliament last winter, when he said that it "would be the most suicidal policy that could be devised for Canada to enter into the vortex in which the nations of Europe, England included, are engaged at the present time, and which compels them to maintain great military armaments." But it is not inconsistent with that statement to say that our clear duty is to look after, as well as other means will permit, the guarding of the particular portion of the Empire which we ourselves occupy.

In fact, before ever the Imperial defence conference assembled at which these matters were gone into, the Minister of Militia, on the floor of Parliament at Ottawa, outlined a proposal which he was then engaged upon. His words were: "I may tell the House that at this very moment the suggestion (of a military reserve) which the General has made is being carried into effect. It is one which will involve very little expense, because the extra men who will be required for the purpose of increasing the number up to somewhere near a total strength of 100,000—these men can all be interested in the militia by being brought into the rifle associations, for which provision was made at the last session of Parliament. I hope in this way, without any increase in the annual expenditure, that we shall be able to have what will practically amount to a trebling of the present force of men, who will be almost as effective as the 35,000 which we now have. At any rate, it will be composed of men who have had experience in the art of rifle shooting."

AN ARMY OF RIFLEMEN.

A skeleton force large enough to attend to what garrison service is requisite, to serve as a stiffening for the militia and for instructive work, an organized headquarters staff capable of attending to all the needs of the soldier on active service, any army of Canadians trained in the use of the rifle—this, then, is what the Dominion will be asked to undertake. Much of it is already accomplished, and the spirit is here to perfect what is lacking. In the words of Sir John Forest, the Australian Minister of Militia, "What Canada will do in the matter of defence is left by the Conference for Canada to decide." We are left to settle matters for ourselves; England dictates nothing, but the guarding of our own coast and frontiers, and an ability to deal ourselves with any troubles within, is what your correspondent expects to see accepted as our part.

The Canadian farmer, artisan, laborer, professional man and manufacturer, all have an interest in this matter, but a very little serious reflection will show that the interests of all alike will be furthered by the country shouldering this much of the Imperial burden, if you choose to so term it. Our farmers, and probably other classes of the population as well, might look with pleasure on a decision to saddle a contribution of four or five million dollars yearly upon the Canadian confederation toward the general defence of the Empire. But no reasonable individual, in the face of all that Britain has already done for us, can conceive it worthy for us to leave the cost of defending our own shores to be borne by the people of GGreat Britain. The Dominoin is a young country yet, but she can afford to atke that much of the actual expense of defence off the Motherland. The bill cannot be a very heavy one, and, even from a material point of view, it could not fail to reap us a return in increased sales of our farm produce, in exactly the same way as occurred by the adoption of the preferential tariff on British goods. In dollars and cents the recompense would be ours. But from the higher standpoint of what is right and just it is our plain duty to do this much toward defence, and nothing else.

WILL MAKE DIAMONDS WHILE YOU WAIT

United States Bureau Believes This is Now Possible

BY THE USE OF ELECTRICITY

It Will Make Put an End to Diamond Bluffing, and Place Brilliant Gems Within Reach of the Poor

Special to The Times.

Washington, September 12 — Will the power of Niagara Falls be turned to the manufacture of genuine diamonds? This is a question which is seriously treated in an expert report of the census office on the history and uses of electricity during the decade just passed. In view of the marvels which have already been accomplished, it is the view of the special expert, Thomas Commerford Martin, that it is only a question of time.

Diamonds have already been made artificially. In the modern electric furnaces, where an almost incredible degree of heat is generated, diamond dust has been produced. "The steps leading to the manufacture of the larger crystals," says Mr. Martin, "are but sequential." Niagara Falls is the location which naturally is suggested for the diamond factory, on account of the great electric dynamos which the falls now operate. They have a capacity of 10,000 horsepower, and are capable of generating a current of 22,000 volts, and this at no very great expense.

The great French chemist, Moissan, has employed the electric arc in the making of diamonds, and has made further progress in this line than any contemporary. As early as 1896 he had succeeded in securing minute fragmentary crystals of true diamond formation by the sudden cooling of molten iron saturated with carbon. The liquid iron was plunged into mercury or lead. Incidentally he discovered that graphite could be made artificially from charcoal by heating in the current of the electric arc. This discovery has been made of great commercial and practical value in this country by E. G. Acheson, who has established a factory near Buffalo, where he makes thousands of pounds of "lead pencil filling." The graphite which he makes is of even better quality than that which is mined from the earth, and is used also for metallurgical work, electrodes, rheostats and such articles. Ordinary coke is the basis of his product. The process is covered by patents, which give him a practical monopoly.

THE CENTRAL FAIR

THE ATTENDANCE YESTERDAY EXCEEDINGLY SMALL

The Kilties Fail to Draw the Crowd—The The Entries, Although Good Were Less Than Former Years

It was hoped that the fine weather during the early part of yesterday would induce a good attendance at the Central Fair grounds, but the crowd failed to materialize. The first day it rained, and this, together with the fact that farmers were everywhere busy threshing and "tailing up" the harvest, was responsible for the poor attendance this year.

The Kilties Band marched down to the grounds at 9 o'clock, but the crowd was so small that they did not render a programme, as was intended. In the afternoon, however, many school children were present, a half holiday having been given them to enable them to do so.

Mr. F. Birdsall, President of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society, was on the grounds yesterday. He stated that he and his son had intended exhibiting here this year, but that an accident to the steamer that was to bring their live stock up the river prevented their carrying out their intention. Messrs. Birdsall & Son were formerly large exhibitors in live stock, and their entries had they arrived would have increased the competition in sheep and cattle.

AMONG THE CATTLE.

In the cattle pens some fine animals were on view, but the entries were not as numerous as other years.

Shorthorns were shown by R. Hanbidge, bull, one year old; W. B. Stewart, two heifers one year old; W. J. Bullock, cow three years old, and heifer under one year; J. Garbutt & Son, bull under one year, two cows and heifer two years old; Arnott Bros., bull under one year; Robt. Eagleson, bull three years old; G. H. Simpson, bull under one year, R. Lillico, bull under one year and cow three years old.

Grades were exhibited by Joseph Rightmyer, heifer calf raised by hand; George Ward, cow four years; Wm. Dawson, cow four years; Arnott Bros., cow four years; Robt. Eagleson, two cows and five heifers; W. Stocker, two cows; C. B. McAllister, cow over four years.

Ayrshires were shown by Joseph Rightmyer, cow four years; W. J. Bullock, bull one year old, two cows and four heifers; Anthony Terrill, bull calf and three heifers; C. H. Curtis, heifer calf.

Holsteins were exhibited only by Andrew Cameron, who had a bull calf, bull under one year old, two cows, two heifers, heifer calf and herd.

In Grade dairy cattle the exhibitors included S. D. Rightmyer, cow and two heifers, and Sam Doyell, bull calf.

Jerseys were shown by Wm. Westlick, heifer; Fred J. Macklin, bull three years old, bull one year old, bull calf, four cows, eight heifers and herd; M. L. Burnham, bull one year old, two cows, six heifers.

There were no entries in Herefords, Galloways, Aberdeen, Angus, or "Other Breeds."

Bound by Oath

I do solemnly swear before the Almighty God that in associating myself and in becoming a member of this combine I will vote and act with the combine whenever and wherever I may be so ordered to do.

And I further solemnly swear that I will not, at any place or time, reveal the fact that there is a combine and that I will not communicate to any person or persons anything that may take place at any meeting of the combine.

And I so solemnly agree that in case I should reveal the fact that any person in this combine has received money, I hereby permit and authorize other members of this combine to take the forfeit of my life in such manner as they may deem proper, and that my throat may be cut, my tongue torn out, and my body cast into the Mississippi River.

And all of this I do solemnly swear, so help me God.

St. Louis, Sept. 11.—As a result of the confession made before the grand jury by Jas. K. Murrell, former Speaker of the House of Delegates, thirteen of the nineteen delegates alledged to have formed a bribery combine have been placed under arrest, and the apprehension of the remaining six is expected soon.

A feature of the day's developments that caused a sensation and showed how fierce was the greed for money on the part of the members of the combine was the publication of an oath produced before the grand jury, and said to have been sworn to by every member of the combine. The person taking the oath swore not only that he would not reveal anything about the combine or its doings, but agreed, as a penalty for violation of the oath, that his life might be taken by the other members of the combine, and "that my throat may be cut, my tongue torn out, and my body cast into the Mississippi River."

Murrell's testimony before the grand jury to-day related to the Suburban and City lighting deals and to many other cases in which he said corporations were held up by the bribery combine. He told of the Burlington Railway bill, for passing which, he said, $19,000 was paid in a lump sum to him to be divided equally among the nineteen members of the combine; the Lindell Railway bill, for which the promoters are alleged to have paid $30,000, and the "Missouri Pacific switch bill, which is said to have netted each man in the combine $800.

The men who are caught in the toils are confused, bewildered, disheartened. It is a scramble now as to which shall be the first to confess. John K. Murrell, E. E. Murrell, George F. Robertson, and J. J. Hannigan have turned State's evidence. Many overtures are being made to Circuit Attorney Folk for immunity from punishment as a reward for confession.

BERMEJA ISLAND DISAPPEARS

Small Strip of Land in the Gulf of Mexico Has Sunk

London, Sept 11.—A despatch from Paris Dalziel's News Agency says the Admiral commanding the French naval division in the Atlantic has sent word of the sudden disappearance of the island of Bermeja, in the Gulf of Mexico. No reefs have been discovered on the spot formerly occupied by the island, but navigators are recommended to use extreme caution while sailing in that part of the Gulf. The Admiral says the volcanoes in Mexico, Yucatan and Guatemala are very active.

BORDEN AND THE HEATHEN CHINEE

Another Speech in Favour of Excluding the Yellow Man

A CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION

British Columbia Oppositionists to Meet at Rossland and Select a Provincial Leader

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 11—Mr. Borden and his friends arrived here from Victoria yesterday morning, and received a warm welcome. In his address last night at the opera house Mr. Borden referred scathingly to the way in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier had ignored his promise to deal with the Chinese question. Dealing with the disallowance by the Government, of British Columbia's anti-Asiatic legislation, he repeated his Victoria declaration that there was no Imperial consideration which should prevail against British Columbia's views or wishes, as there was no such consideration allowed to prevail against the wishes of Australia; and, he added, amid loud cheers, "As far as I am able to deal with the question, I would give effect to the views of the people of this province as a whole, whether they be Liberal or Conservative."

Mr. Borden will speak at New Westminster to-day. Some of the party will go to Kamloops to address a meeting there, and all will unite at the Conservative convention to be held in Revelstoke on Friday and Saturday, at which a provincial leader will be elected, and a decision come to whether to run the next provincial election on party lines or not.

RUSSIANS AGGRIEVED

Extension of the Indian Railways Gives Offence—Railway Controversy

THE GERMAN ARMY.

IMPRESSIONS GAINED AT THE MANOUVRES

BRITISH AND AMERICAN GENERAL

The Northern Company Will Reply to Financial Critic—Impression of German Army

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 11.—Russian newspapers are extremely wroth at Lord Curzon's approval of the extension of the Indian railway system to Nushki, on the eastern boundary of Beluchistan. They foresee uninterrupted railway communication between India and Europe. Russia means to have an outlet in the Indian Ocean, and this great railway, which would be in British and German hands, would stop the progress of Russia towards the south. An evening journal in St. Petersburg says Russia must at once build a line through Persia right down to the Indian Ocean, and thus paralyse the ambition of Great Britain.

FRIENDLY FEELING TOWARDS RUSSIA.

There is a very general desire in this country for some sort of understanding with Russia about Persia, in spite of Captain Mahan's warning that any concession on Britain's part will imperil her naval situation in the far east, her political position in India, her commercial interests in both, and Imperial tie between herself and Australia.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN GENERALS.

Most cordial relations have been established between the British and American Generals attending the manoeuvres of 90,000 German troops near Frankfort-on-Oder. Generals French and Young naturally interest each other as cavalry leaders, and Lord Roberts and General Corbin are good companions, although not well matched in stature. General Ian Hamilton, being outspoken and a racy talker, also pleases the Americans. Generals Kelly-Kenny and Wood are both practical men of fine ability as organisers. The British Generals, being a Field Marshal and Lieutenant-Generals, outrank the two American Major-Generals and Brigadier-General Wood, and have precedence in presentations and Court functions.

IMPRESSIONS OF GERMAN ARMY.

The visitors were particularly impressed with the ability and brightness of mind of Count Waldersee. The manoeuvres will probably confirm the impressions formed at the preliminary parades, namely, that the superiority of German cavalry is due to systematic arrangements for breeding horses for military purposes, and that the German regimental method of artillery organisation is workmanlike and tends to concentrate the fire of guns with overwhelming effect.

BRITISH RAILWAY METHODS.

The controversy concerning the administration of British railways goes merrily on. It is stated that the Northeastern Company is preparing a reply to the indictment which was published in the Times.

THE GERMAN MANOEUVRES.

London, Sept. 11.—Special despatches from Frankfurt-on-Oder show that the first day of the German manoeuvres was somewhat uninteresting. The general idea of the manoeuvres is as follows. Two armies are pressing forward from Russia across the Vistula and through Schleswig towards Frankfurt. The third army corps attempts to prevent the advance from Russia, and receives help from the north from a division of guards covered by a division of cavalry. Yesterday the manoeuvres ended soon after noon in a position which would have been impossible in time of war. The cavalry division of the third army corps made a wide sweep to the east, and were repulsed, and, in the meanwhile the cavalry of the fifth army corps, the attacking force, had gone forward in a westerly direction, so that these two large forces of cavalry turning their backs on one another.

New York, September 10—The Jewish World publishes a detailed balance sheet of the accounts of the Jewish Colonization Association, the trust created by the late Baron de Hirsch with the magnificent donation of $50,000,000, for the purpose of helping his persecuted co-religionists. It is best known by its formation of colonies of the Argentine. Hitherto the accounts have been kept absolutely secret. Mr. Israel Zangwill recently challenged administration to produce their accounts and tell the Jewish people what they were doing with the money. The Jewish World has secured the statement of accounts for 1901, and thus the accounts see the light of day for the first time.

The balance shows that $2,610,807.20 was spent, and seven-eighths of this sum was obtained by interest and one-eighth by drawing on capital.

The Argentine project roughly cost last year $200,000 for direct relief.

London, Sept. 12. — The Imperial Chancellor, Von Buelow, is spending a well-earned holiday in the country, says the Berlin correspondent of the Times. He appears to be unable to escape in his recreation from those pressing domestic questions with which he has not as yet been able to deal with successfully. One of these is the Polish problem. The novel expedient of placarding in Posen communes the speech delivered by Emperor William at Posen does not seem to have allayed Polish excitement. Grave offence has been given in various quarters by the publication in Polish, and even in German, journals of that statement that a deputation of Russian officers which accompanied the Emperor on his visit to Posen actually manifested sympathy with the Polish propaganda.

The correspondent quotes what he says in manifestly an inspired article in the Cologne Gazette. This paper declares that the Czar and Kaiser recently arrived at a complete agreement regarding the Polish question, and the Russian policy is now less likely than ever to sacrifice Russian interests for the sake of fantastic ideas of Panslavism.

London, Sept. 12.—The grand jury in the Old Bailey to-day returned a true bill against Prince Francis Joseph of Braganza, a lieutenant in the Seventh Austrian Hussars, and who was a member of the Austro-Hungary mission to the coronation of King Edward, charged with "misconduct under the criminal law amendment."

The hearing of the charges brought against Prince Francis Joseph of Braganza and other men took place in the Southwark Police Court early in July, and attracted much attention. Sir Edward Clarke, the former solicitor-General, defended the prince. The prosecutor altered the charge from "felony" to "misconduct under the criminal law amendment." Sir Edward intimated that the defense would be conspiracy to rob and blackmail. Strict secrecy was observed by the court officials regarding the exact nature of the charges.

Vienna, Sept. 11.—There were three fatal Alpine accidents Sunday. Three members of the Vienna Social and touring club, while ascending the Rax Alps, lost their way. Two of the climbers fell a distance of 600 feet and were killed. The third member of the party, who survived, was obliged to stand upright upon a narrow ledge of rock from noon of Sunday until 10 o'clock Monday morning, when he was rescued. A maker of musical instruments, while on a climbing expedition, fell and broke his neck on the Klostergestige near Vienna. The death record on the Rax Alps for the present season now has reached the total of thirty-two persons.

Rome, Sept. 11.—The volcano on Stromboli Island is in full eruption, and is throwing up great columns of fire and torrents of stones. The island is shrouded in smoke.

Mount Vesuvius is showing signs of activity.

The latest cataclysm of Martinique has apparently now made a modern Pompeii in the Lesser Antilles. It will take many years to restore confidence in any part of the island, which seems doomed to destruction. And the other islands in the group, as St. Vincent has already done, must share in this uncertainty. They are told by geologists to lie within a well-known "circle of fire." Stretching almost continuously from extreme Southern California toward the equator is the great chain of American volcanoes whose fiery cones rise in colossal forms over Mexico and Guatemala. From Guatemala it throws off an extended band through the West Indies, until it unites with the main volcanic band traversing the Atlantic Ocean in a general north to south direction. Most of the islands studding the bright tropical seas are built upon the summits of submarine volcanoes, and Martinique is one of the fire-born type. The backbone of Martinique is formed by a cluster of volcanic mountains in the north, a similar cluster in the south, and an intervening ridge of lower elevations, the whole dorsal structure culminating on the northwest side of the island in Mont Pelee, towering to a height of 4,400 feet above the sea. Though science is powerless to predict when any one of the slumbering furnaces within the volcanic ring will burst forth in fatal activity, old vents may at any time be opened.

Volcanoes that have long been asleep merely mark the positions of openings in the earth's crust through which the tide of subterranean fire may at any time surge upward with the destructive and restless impetuosity of the Krakatoa eruption of recent years, or as the overflow of Manna Loa, which rose and brimmed over the crater "as noiselessly as the rising of the moon." In descending to the bowels of the earth the miner finds that his thermometer rises on the average one degree Fahrenheit in every sixty feet, and this, with many other considerations, shows that within a few miles below the surface the temperature must be high enough to fuse the most refractory rocks. When it is remembered that proximity to the sea in volcanic regions is always a factor of gravest significance in determining dangerous eruptions the impressive and obvious lesson is that in future the sites for cities in tropical America should be selected at a safe distance from every volcanic vent.

STRIKERS DEADLOCK A JURY

They Hold Out Against Conviction in Shenandoah Riot Case

Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 10.—The jury in the case of Anthony Radiewicz, who is charged with participating in the Shenandoah riots which led to the calling out of the State troops, has been deadlocked all day. The case was held over from last week and given to the jury this morning.

There are a number of strikers on this jury and it is believed they are holding out against a conviction.

Radiewicz is charged with shooting Officer David Ringheiser and assaulting Deputy Sheriff Beddall. The Commonwealth had exhausted its challenges and could not keep a number of mine workers off the jury.

Two strikers charged with the killing of Sheriff Beddall's brother, will be placed on trial to-morrow for murder in the first degree. John Myers, of Ashland, will be placed on trial for the killing of Abram Llewellyn, a striker.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 10—Three hundred union men went to work in the New River mines to-day. This is the first break in the ranks of the strikers and it is believed that many more will follow them, as they have simply been waiting for this start to be made.

Five of the eight companies of State troops were ordered home from duty there to-day and it is thought the others will be withdrawn Thursday.

THE MEAT TRUST EXPANDING

It is reported that the Swift Company of Chicago has obtained possession of the Fowler Canadian Company's packing house in Hamilton and, if this is the case, it would indicate a determination on the part of the American trust to reach out after the Canadian packing industry. According to a London despatch, Edward and William Casey, of Buenos Ayres, with the assistance of British capital, are organizing a combine of refrigerating, packing and cattle-growing interests of the Argentine Republic, with a view to joining hands with the Chicago packing trust to control the meat trade of the world. They believe when such an amalgamation has been effected the United States and Argentine will be able to dictate the price of food wherever a human family depends on beef and pork for sustenance. If this enormous combination becomes an accomplished fact the situation will be serious. It is, of course, impossible to get anything like complete control over the meat business, yet such a combination as that suggested could undoubtedly exercise a very considerable measure of control which would not be intended to benefit either the consumers or the cattle raisers. Canada is interested in the cattle raising and meat industries. Indeed, we are only beginning to realize the possibilities before these industries in Canada. Cattle have not been increasing as fast as population in the United States, and it is probable that country will not in the future have as large an exportable surplus as in former years. This makes Canada's opportunity. If the Swift Company are really establishing themselves in Canada it is because they realize the future before the industry in this country. Our problem is to keep the path of development free from the obstruction of trusts.

THE "CIRCLE OF FIRE."

The latest cataclysm of Martinique has apparently now made a modern Pompeii in the Lesser Antilles. It will take many years to restore confidence in any part of the island, which seems doomed to destruction. And the other islands in the group, as St. Vincent has already done, must share in this uncertainty. They are said by geologists to lie within a well-known "circle of fire." THE CHEESE BOARD

Buying was Rather Slow at the Meeting Yesterday

9 15-16 was the Top Price—Number of Factories did not Sell—The Board Adjourned for one Week

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held on Wednesday morning, when 6,031 boxes were boarded, and 9 15-16 was the top price paid. Only a few factories, however, were fortunate enough to sell their cheese at such a figure, and 9 7-8 and 9 13-16 cents were the prices at which most of the cheese sold.

The following buyers were present: Messrs. Kerr, Fitzgerald, Cook, Whitton, Wrighton, Rollins and Bailey.

The factories boarded as follows:

Keene	216
Warminster	130
Shearer	125
Central Smith	200
North Smith	140
Villiers	120
Warsaw	145
Westwood	240
Oakdale	175

South Burleigh	80
Brickley	90
Shamrock	120
Norwood	220
Dartford	130

Percy	200
	6,031

The bidding opened at 9 1-4 by Mr. Whitton, followed with a bid of 9 3-8 by Mr. Rollins, and 9 1-2 by Mr. Wrighton. The bidding rose to 9 15-16 cents. He called Ormonde, Melrose Abbey, Westwood, Villiers and Norwood; all accepted.

Mr. Fitzgerald offered 9 7-8c., but Mr. Bailey brought the price up to 9 15-16 again. Mr. Bailey carried off Percy, Dartford, Shamrock and Cavanville. He offered 9 7-8 for further selections and called Indian River, Mount Pleasant, Otonabee Union, Peterborough and Beaufort; all accepted.

At 9 7-8 Mr. Fitzgerald called Keene, Myrtle and Fraserville; all accepted. At the same figure Mr. Wrighton took Warsaw, Shearer and Central Smith.

At 9 13-16 Mr. Fitzgerald called his further selections. Lang, Fleetwood, Trewern, Lakefield, Buckhorn, East Emily and North Smith, all of which refused.

Mr. Rollins at 9 13-16 tried his luck, but none of the factories would sell at that figure. Mr. Bailey made an offer at the same price, but could get no sellers.

Brickley sold to Mr. Bailey at 9 7-8. Ballyduff sold to Mr. Kerr at 9 3-4, Montreal inspection. Mr. Kerr bought Missing Link at 9 13-16 cents.

A sort of deadlock existed between the buyers and salesmen; 9 13-16 was the highest the buyers would go for the remaining factories, but the salesmen held out. Finally the Board adjourned for two weeks.

—The races which take place here on Monday and Tuesday, promise to be a great success. Some of the swiftest horses in the country will compete.

—The committee on Appointments of the Board of Education met on Tuesday evening and formally appointed Mr. A. Sernoleil, of the South Central school, to the vacancy in the Collegiate Institute. Mr. W. J. Stacey, Principal of the Inniskillen Public school, received the appointment to the vacancy created by Mr. Sernoleil's promotion. Mr. Stacey comes to Peterborough very highly recommended.

BREAK IN WEST VIRGINIA

300 Men Go Back to Work in the New River Mines

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 10—Three hundred union men went to work in the New River mines to-day. This is the first break in the ranks of the strikers and it is believed that many more will follow them, as they have simply been waiting for the start to be made.

Five of the eight companies of State troops were ordered home from duty there to-day and it is thought the others will be withdrawn by Thursday.

Five thousand tons of coal were loaded at New River to-day, this being about 40 per cent. of the normal output.

HIRSCH'S GREAT SECRET

For the Colonization and Striving of the Jewish People

Special to The Times.

New York, September 10—The Jewish World publishes a detailed balance sheet of the accounts of the Jewish Colonization Association, the trust created by the late Baron de Hirsch with the magnificent donation of $50,000,000, for the purpose of helping his persecuted co-religionists. It is best known by its formation of colonies of the Argentine. Hitherto the accounts have been kept absolutely secret. Mr. Israel Zangwill recently challenged administration to produce their accounts and tell the Jewish people what they were doing with the money. The Jewish World has secured the statement of accounts for 1901, and thus the accounts see the light of day for the first time.

The balance shows that $2,019,507.30 was spent, and seven-eighths of this sum was obtained by interest and one-eighth by drawing on capital.

The Argentine project roughly cost last year $230,000 for direct relief, $435,000 for purchase of new land for colonies and $65,000 for administrative purposes. American organizations received $40,000 by way of subventions, $116,000 by way of loans for agricultural work, the settlement of individual farms. In Russia the Association spent $100,000 on schools, $5,000 in subventions, $150,000 for erecting workers' dwellings in Wilna, $30,000 in loans. In Roumania the schools cost $15,000, and $118,000 was given in subventions, besides $8,000 in loans. Palestine received $20,000 for schools, $30,000 by subventions, while Asia Minor absorbed $65,000. The most remarkable items in the accounts are a loan for the weavers of the prayer shawls in Dubroyna, amounting to $170,000, and the purchase of land in Galicia for the purpose of colonization, requiring an outlay of $120,000. The administrative expenses were $150,000, or about 7 1-2 per cent. of the total expended.

—The steamer Manita will run from Bobcaygeon to Bridgenorth on Monday and Tuesday next, 15th and 16th instant, in connection with the Peterborough races.

STOCK MARKETS

These Tractions,

New York, Sept. 11 — Lying quiescent for some months in the share market, which has been steadily advancing, the tractions stocks Met. and BRT now show strong symptoms of preparing for a good advance. One is due them, and a good one also, as they are behind their neighbors in the journey toward upward figures. Stocks that hang fire in an active and advancing market when they finally do start usually make up for lost time. A careful watching of the Brooklyn Transit crowd upon the New York Stock Exchange, by specialists in that stock, leads them to the belief that the buying has been far superior to the selling and makes them of the opinion that a good advance is pending. It is their report that the buying has been excellent, and disguised as much as possible, and while it has been going on the past week or ten days, efforts to hold the stock down and in check were plainly discernable. This is the proper kind of buying to follow. The B.R.T. report made last week shows good progress. The business of the company is increasing, and will continue to do so.

Its neighbor Met. is moving more sluggishly. This is a stock in which it is extremely difficult to pick up any large line with any degree of quickness, consequently the accumulation is more slow. To put in a demand for any great quantity at any one time would send the stock off in the upward direction at a lively pace; therefore when accumulating the stock the work must be done carefully and slowly. We are given to understand by brokers who constantly stand in this stock between ten and three o'clock that the process of slow accumulation is now under way. This is the forerunner of an advance. We are also very bullish upon Mann. Our special letter of recent date appertaining to that stock sets forth our reasons most exhaustively and entertainingly. If you have not read it, it would be advisable for you to send for a copy.

These tractions are bound to have their turn in the natural order of events. It is consequently advisable to purchase them immediately. The whole market looks well. All classes of securities will sell higher. Some of the best opportunities of the present bull market are with us right now. We repeat, buy as many stocks as you can afford to carry.

New York, Sept. 11—The market was more or less a hesitating one to-day owing to the unexpected declaration of the semi-annual dividend on St. Paul. Latent strength underlaid market transactions, and whenever the market was inclined to heaviness it immediately became dull. Activity is still accompanied by advancing prices. This is one of the most important indications for the immediate future of the market. St. Paul, the pivotical stock to-day, declined to 189, recovered to 191 1-2, then was fitful and erratic with tendency to droop. Reading stocks were exceedingly strong, as were L. N. and the Eries. Southern Pacific and Southwesterns. B. R. T. was inclined to heaviness, but each eighth fall met a good buying demand for the stock. Both M., M.R. and B. R. T. are good to buy for fair advance. At 24 the announcement was made that St. Paul has declared a semi-annual dividend of 31-2 and 1-8 extra, the stock jumped immediately. The entire market will sell higher. Money closed at 9 p.c. Sales 1,081,500.

PERPETUAL MOTION PROBLEM SOLVED BY MAGNET

James Houlehan, Inventor of Well-Known Telephone Devices, Says He Has Mastered The Puzzle of All Ages

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 10 — James Houlehan, of this city, declares that he has invented a method of utilizing the energy of permanent magnets in the production of continuous motion and steady power.

Mr. Houlehan is the inventor of the automatic device for calling "Central" now used in all telephones. In place of a crank which had to be turned to make a call, he arranged the method whereby taking the receiver off the hook does the work.

Mr. Houlehan has already patented a form of permanent magnet, in which there is no zero point, or dead centre. This is the basic patent of the new magnetic motor which, if its inventor's claims are realized, will run and furnish power up to the capacity of the magnets of which it is composed, without consuming a pound of coal or a drop of water, and without the use of a battery of extraneous electric current.

"A horseshoe-shaped piece of steel can be magnetized in a few seconds by an electric current of a few amperes from a battery or a dynamo," said Mr. Houlehan, "and the amount of electrical energy used is ridiculously small. But the magnet so made can lift many pounds of iron in contact, or a less weight without contact. And, stranger still, the exercise of this power strengthens the magnet.

"That magnet will hold up that weight of iron for all time; and every second it is, of course, expending energy. The total of the energy thus continuously developed would foot up an almost inconceivable total of actual power."

beginning to be horribly afraid of him. But she would have died at this moment rather than let him see that.) "It is cowardly of you to threaten me."

"I don't threaten, I warn. You are ambitious. I can more than satisfy your highest ambitions on the stage—and in society, too, if you have them. If you mean to be foolish, my little Winifred, you will never get on—you will never get on."

"Some ways of getting on cost too much," said Winifred, "and this is one of them. If you don't let me go, I shall cry out for help. You don't think I'd dare to—but I will—I will! Oh, I loathe you—you are horrible!"

"Go, then!" He released his hold upon her dress so suddenly that, straining to be free, she staggered forward, only saving herself from falling by catching at the handle of the door. "Go, then; but I tell you this, you'll come back to me—on your knees."

"Never!"

"We shall see!"

Blindly, she was fumbling with the door-knob. He caught away her hand, and held the door open for her to pass out, bowing and smiling a hateful smile.

"You loathe me. I am horrible. I shall not forget that. But—we shall see."

• • • • • •

Winifred was only just in time to take up her cue. Her head was throbbing, her heart beating so fast that she could not think. She forgot the lines that were so familiar to her, and twice (in stage parlance) "dried up," having to be prompted in a whisper by Mr. Anderson, with whom she was playing the scene.

If it had been with anyone else, she thought desperately that she might have done better; but it was sickening to feel that he must have known, or at least shrewdly guessed, what sort of things the millionaire meant to say, and that now, every moment, he was watching her to seize anxiously upon the secrets of her mind. Perhaps the matter was not really of as great importance to him as Mr. Macaire had had said that it was; but certainly there was some understanding between the two men in which she was concerned.

Winifred hardly knew how she got through the rest of her part that night. She was conscious during the last act that Macaire was sitting in the Royal box again, his eyes fixed upon her. The giddiness came over her once more, and it was only by a severe effort that she continued the scene.

A good deal of fun generally went on behind the scenes at the Duke of Clarence's, for the members of the company were almost all ladies and gentlemen, and they knew each other very well. Between acts and between scenes much talking and laughing and some flirting was the order of the day in the green-room, but to-night Winifred Gray was missing. She kept closely to her dressing-room, and her maid wondered what had happened to make her so silent.

"After all, I don't quite see what he can do," she assured herself over and over again. "He can't expect Mr. Anderson to discharge me just because I refused to accept insults from him."

Still, she was vaguely afraid and depressed. Something indefinite, yet terrible, seemed to be hanging over her—so indefinite that she did not know in what form to look for it, or in what direction to attempt escape.

The play came to an end at eleven, and every night, at a quarter past the hour, a four-wheeled cab, engaged by the month, called for Miss Gray at the stage door. She was generally ready by that time, but once in a while the driver had to wait.

This evening, as usual, a little crowd began to gather near the stage entrance five minutes after the curtain went down—a crowd of boys and young men who thought lingering no waste of time if they could see the actresses come out; for there were several at the Duke of Clarence's who were "the fashion" by reason of their good looks or some other attraction.

Most of the men were of the invertebrate type known as "Johnnies," and therefore a tall, roughly-dressed young fellow with a wide-brimmed soft felt hat was conspicuous among them. He was ashamed of himself for being there; nevertheless, he had not resisted the temptation to try and see Winifred Gray once again.

When he left Mr. Anderson, Newcome had walked out of the theatre with a nod and a "thank you!" to Hanley at the stage door. For some time he had wandered aimlessly through the streets, with a great loneliness, among the crowds who cared nothing for him; then, suddenly, he had turned and gone back to the Duke of Clarence's. At the it entrance he had paid half-a-crown (an extravagance in his circumstances), luckily finding a seat, late as it was, and seeing the play through to the end.

When it was over he could hardly have told what it was all about; but one thing he was sure of. Miss Gray was the prettiest and the sweetest girl he had ever seen in his life. He would have liked to do some great service for her, not to win her notice, but because of the warmth there would be in his heart only to feel that he had done it. Something about her—perhaps the expression of her eyes, or the way that her bright hair waved back from her forehead—reminded him of a woman who had once been supreme in beauty; a dead woman whose words had sent him tramping, almost penniless and through bitter hardships, hundreds of miles on the way to England.

A girl and a man sitting directly in front of him were talking of Winifred Gray, and Hope Newcome listened with interest. If they had spoken evil of her he would certainly have inflicted summary punishment upon the man, but they had only good things to say. The girl told the man what a surprising "hit" Miss Gray had made last spring, and how she had been "made" after her first night at the Duke of Clarence's by the extravagant praise of one famous dramatic critic. She had only been in London a few months, but already her photographs were in greater demand than those of any other actress (Hope resolved at once to get one), while there was a new style of shoe and a new rose named after her.

Newcome went out with the crowd when it was all over, but almost involuntarily he turned towards the stage entrance for one more look at his divinity, whom perhaps he should never have a chance to see again.

The "Johnnies" stared superciliously at him, and looked at each other with raised, questioning eyebrows. Perhaps

HAVE LOCATED THEIR NEW PLANT AT

Offers to the public the second allotment of $50,000 worth of 6 per cent. first mortgage 20-year Gold Bonds of the issue of $150,000. Out of the first allotment several of the stockholders subscribed to these bonds.

Denominations of these bonds are from $100 to $500 each, and the money received from the sale of these bonds will be deposited in the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., of New York, who are Trustees for the bonds and Registrars for the stock to be used to build four Blast Furnaces to smelt precious metal ores, with an earning capacity of a daily net profit of $3,100 a day. The bonds will be secured by the Company's entire properties and improvements.

Smelter profits are fabulous, and one can scarcely realize profits on Smelter's stock and bonds since the consolidation of the Smelters in America.

This Company offers its bonds at par, with a donation of stock as a bonus, which will be agreed upon to the purchaser of the bonds.

The officers of the Company are F. W. Warnock, Pres., Butte, Mont., who is largely interested in the best-paying mine in Montana; George Pope, Vice-Pres., of New York city, who is treasurer of the American Bicycle Co.; Joseph Johnston, Treas., Butte, Mont., who is the General Manager of the Montana Verde Copper Co.; Joseph Cooper, Secy., of New York city.

If you are interested and wish a safe, permanent income investment, which will grow and compound while you sleep, send your check or draft for $100 up to $10,000 or more, made payable to the Montana Smelting & Refining Company, and let us send you by return mail the bonds and stock as agreed upon, given as a bonus.

The above offer is subject to prior sale, and will not be left open to the public very long, as this is a special offer to the public. The bonds will stand close scrutiny and investigation. Write for further information and particulars, if you want a large block.

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

ONE MACHINE vs. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of [illegible] CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, small at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid intoxicants, keep away from dampness, drink water abundantly, and always rely on Nerviline as a quick reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than ordinary remedies, Nerviline's power over pain is simply beyond belief. It cures also sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, and all pain, whether internal or external. Large bottles, 25c.

The Worm Will Turn

A stranger went into a Peterborough barber shop the other day and seated himself.

"I want to get my hair cut," said he.

"How do you want it cut," inquired the barber.

"Off," snapped the man.

The barber cut on.

Finally the barber made an observation about the weather.

"Say, young man," snarled the stranger, "I came here to get my hair cut, not to be talked to."

After the job was finished the man paid his bill in silence, and started to go out. Then he stopped and inquired: "Say, can you tell me how I can get to Inverlea park?"

"I am a barber, not a town directory," was the curt retort.

Pimples Blotches and Skin Eruptions

How unsightly, sometimes even disgusting, and certainly very mortifying to the sufferer. They are merely an evidence of impure, poisoned blood, and lowered vitality of the elementary organs, which can be quickly changed by taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone cleanses the blood of all poisons and eruptions, makes it rich in red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a healthy, ruddy complexion. To have a pure, soft skin and good complexion simply use Ferrozone regularly. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Married at St. Lukes

On Wednesday a pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Luke's church, by Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, when Miss Gertie Beagley and Mr. Robert Cox were united in marriage. The bride looked charming in a dress of white French organdie with applique, bridal veil and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Miss Maria Byers, the bridesmaid, was prettily attired in silk organdie over blue and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and chrysanthemums. Mr. Harry Cox, brother of the groom, acted as best man. After the ceremony the party drove to the residence of Mr. Thos. Beagley, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. The travelling dress of the bride was of blue corduroy, trimmed with applique, velvet and jet; she wore a black picture hat with plumes. The gift of the groom was a beautiful ostrich ruff, and to the bridesmaid an opal ring. Mr. and Mrs. Cox left on the 5.30 train for Toronto, where they will spend a short holiday before taking up their home in Ashburnham. Unfortunately the grandparents of the bride could not be present. Mrs. Beagley being in Webbwood where she is at the bedside of her husband who is in a very critical condition. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

WEDDING BELLS IN CAVAN

Miss Martha L. Hunter is United in Marriage to Mr. Geo. D. Wallace of Witaskewin, N. W. T.

The home of Mrs. David Hunter, Cavan, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday last, when her fourth daughter, Miss Martha L., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. George D. Wallace, of Witaskewin, N.W.T., by Rev. W. Johnston, pastor of Millbrook Presbyterian church.

The bride, who was beautifully attired in white silk, with overdress trimmed with applique, was given away by her brother, Mr. J. A. Hunter, and entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march rendered by Miss Mattie Swain. Miss Anna Kennedy, of Bobcaygeon, who was prettily gowned in dove-colored crepon trimmed with sequins, gracefully performed the duties of bridesmaid. The groom was assisted by Mr. T. Ritchie, of Strathcona, N.W.T. Little Miss Maggie Swain made a most fairy-like little flower girl in her exquisite white costume.

The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers, every available place being resplendent with bloom.

A sumptuous dejeuner was served in the beautifully decorated diningroom, at the conclusion of the ceremony, after which the happy young couple took the 7.20 C.P.R. train at Cavanville for Montreal amid showers of rice and good wishes.

Many elegant and costly presents testify to the high esteem in which both bride and groom are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome sunburst of pearls.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will leave for Witaskewen, N.W.T., where Mr. Wallace is a rising young hardware merchant, and his bride has been for a number of years a most popular young teacher.

Their many friends here wish them a long life of usefulness and happiness and continued prosperity in their Western home.

A SIMPLE CHANGE

Made a World of Difference

The Health Resort does not always bring back health, but the health resort and proper food make a pretty sure combination.

Mrs. E. Kinnett, Springfield, Mo., writes, "I was pronounced a consumptive and sent to Asheville, N.C., for my health. I just could not eat without a cup of coffee, and my stomach was in such a condition that I could not drink it. I was almost in despair when the landlady of my boarding house said that if I would drink Postum Food Coffee I would find it would take the place of coffee and agree with me. She made it so delicious that I enjoyed every meal I ate, and gained in flesh and strength so rapidly that I was able to come back home and live.

I give Postum more credit for my return to health than climate or anything else. I am sending you this letter for the benefit of those who are having a hard time living, and I am sure that if they will use Postum, their lives will be prolonged."

Interesting Items.

A young swell wore a new style evening coat at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York the other night. It was a swallow-tail, with velvet collar and a pocket for a handkerchief in the left breast. A tiny lace handkerchief peeped from the pocket.

A man advertises in a Syracuse paper for a job as general housework servant. He is a widower, familiar with all phases of housekeeping, and says that he can pickle, wash, and iron, enact the parts of the cook and the waitress, mind the baby, dust, and take care of the furnace.

It is a good advertisement for vegetarianism that a pedestrian who doesn't eat meat came in first in the international walking-match between Berlin and Dresden. The winner made the one hundred and twenty-five miles in the record-breaking time of twenty-seven hours, thirteen minutes, and fourteen and one-half seconds.

The New York "Commercial Advertiser" estimates that Andrew Carnegie's benefactions, up to date, amount to $63,000,000, distributed in the following order: United States, $55,361,673; Scotland, $12,073,750; Canada, $576,500; Cuba, $252,000; Ireland, $65,500. And yet, Mr. Carnegie's wealth is said to be increasing more rapidly than he can give it away, owing to the enormous earnings of the properties whose securities he holds.

In his book on "The Private Life of the Sultan," Mr. Georges Dorys says that during the Armenian massacres it cost the Turkish treasury the equivalent of about $1,000,000 for hush money, or "allocations," to certain European newspapers, besides the distribution of six hundred and forty costly decorations placed where they would do the most good. Abdul Hamid seemed to believe firmly in the cynical saying of Walpole that every man has his price.

Miss Azalene Earle, formerly of Portland, Oregon, but latterly a "hello girl" in San Francisco, is now Mrs. William Halleck Deming, and will travel in Europe with her husband this summer. Says the Portland "Oregonian:" "Mr. Deming, who is a man of wealth, was attracted by her soft and gentle voice in calling 'Number?' through the telephone, and acquaintance and marriage followed. If the voices of the telephone girls in this city have lately become indistinct through muffled sweetness, the above announcement accounts for it."

Thomas A. Edison thinks that in six or seven years horses will have disappeared from the streets as beasts of burden, and automobiles will be made so cheap as to be within the reach of all who wish or need vehicles. He declares this revolution will be brought about by a storage electric battery which he has invented. "The man that cannot quite afford to keep a horse and carriage is the man that I am trying to provide for," he said the other day; "the automobile will be the thing for him. Its first cost will not be great, it will not require care, and the cost of maintenance will come far below the cost of keeping a horse."

An interesting series of experiments has been tried by the school authorities in South Germany to test the faculty of observation as it is exercised by boys and girls. A man dressed as an ordinary workman and with ordinary features was placed in a room by himself. Classes of girls of different ages were sent through the room. All that the teachers told them was that they were to go into the room through one door and out through another. When they returned to their classrooms they were asked to describe the man in the room. Nearly eighty per cent. of the girls confined their attention to the man's clothes; the others described both clothes and features. The same experiments when tried with boys revealed the fact that nearly seventy per cent. of them confined their attention to the man's features, the remainder to both features and clothes.

The Stupidity of Instinct.

Are insects, bees for instance, so very intelligent after all, or does their instinct resemble automatism instead of reason? Mr. J. Carter Beard has assembled a number of interesting instances in the "Scientific American" which lead to the conclusion that the wonderful results often accomplished by insects are due, not to intelligence, but to automatic obedience to external or internal stimuli. We might as well, he thinks, call a watch intelligent as an insect.

In one instance it appears that house-flies exhibit more appearance of real intelligence than do honey-bees. Take a large glass jar with a wide mouth, says Mr. Beard, and imprison in it a bee and some flies. Put the bottom of the jar against a window-pane, draw the curtains around the jar and then uncork the mouth. The flies will quickly find their way out of the open mouth into the room, but the bee will stupidly continue to try to get through the glass where it sees the light and will never think of exploring in the other direction. But perhaps this shows, not superior intelligence on the part of the flies, but less attraction to the light or a greater variety of stimuli to motion.

The bee's whole existance seems to depend upon routine. She always does the same things in the same way and exhibits no capacity to profit by, or repair the effects of, accident. Mason-bees, for instance, build little thimble-shaped structures of mud, half fill them with honey and pollen, then lay their eggs therein and top off the construction with a roof. If a hole is made in the bottom of one of these thimbles while the building is going on, and the honey is allowed to run out, the stupid bee, even after discovering the hole, makes no attempt to stop it up, but continues to pour in the honey at the top, allowing it to run away at the bottom, until, the proper amount required by instinct having been put in, she lays her eggs and seals up the top, content with her vain labor.

Many other instances can be cited which tend to show that the instinct of insects does not resemble human reason.

On the other hand, insects sometimes do things which do not seem to be the result of pure automatism. Darwin found that even earthworms exhibit more adaptability to circumstances than was shown by Mr. Beard's imprisoned bee in the glass jar.

GERMANY AND HAYTI.

The sinking of the Haytian rebel craft Crete-A-Pierrot by the Panther has caused more comment in London than in Berlin. The press there has made little of it. It is evident that the Washington and Berlin Governments have a full understanding in this matter, precisely as they had six months ago over Venezuela.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me, another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

Big Bargain of Land and Timber IN OTONABEE.

West half Lot 25, Con. 2, near Shearer's church and school, Norwood road; 2 miles from C P.R. at Indian River station, and 12 miles from Peterboro; 100 acres choice land; 50 ft for machinery, balance heavily timbered with maple, beech, elm, ash, cedar and some tamarack. A competent inspector of long experience estimates the timber that might be sold as 1,000 cords hardwood, and 2,000 cords mixed soft wood, all of which in this market would sell readily for more than $10,000, and total expense would not exceed $6,000. A man with teams and two or more boys should be able to make big money on above, and we can make price and terms so reasonable as to enable a man of limited means to buy and pay for out of the timber. Wise men will see us quickly about this. Ploughing possession at once.

URGES DOGS OF WAR ON GREAT BRITAIN

New York Journal Says Canada Geographically Belongs to United States

England Must Get off American Continent—Change Monroe Doctrine from "You Shall Not Come" to "You Must Go."

New York, Sept. 12.—The casual reference of President Roosevelt to the Monroe doctrine and the equally casual reference of the British press to his utterances have aroused the Journal. It prints an article in a shade less violent description of type than that used to urge on the Spanish war; to "settle" to coal strike, and to denounce the assassinated McKinley before his death, and to suggest the possibility of "removals" before the trust question could be settled.. The type used is much the same as that which set forth that King Edward (when Prince of Wales) was like unto a "vermiform appendix," good for nothing," having no reason d'etre, or right of station. The amount of hysteria is about the same in the present article as in its forerunners mentioned.

"Every gun England mounts," says the paper, "on this continent, from Halifax to Esquimalt, has it muzzle aimed at us. Her possession of the Bahamas, resort and shelter of the blockade runners, prolonged our civil war and cost us thousands of lives and millions of money. England, though Canada and her West Indian Islands Canada and her West Indian Islands, should we be at war with any nation other than herself, is a menace that would not be endured should a foreign war try the Republic's temper. We are immensely stronger than we were at the close of the rebellion, when, had we felt able, we should have driven Great Britain from the American mainland and the islands which ought to be our military outposts.

MONROE DOCTRINE STANDS.

"Peace with England, friendship and harmony with all Europe, that is our national policy. But the Monroe doctrine stands, and neither England nor any other power may challenge it except that at that power's peril.

And, again: "The Monroe doctrine is not to be questioned by England or any other foreign power. The penalty for challenging it would inevitably be to transform it from a negative to a positive national policy. Now the doctrine says:

"'You shall not come.'

"That can be readily changed into the mandate:

"'You must go.'

"The circumstance that parts of our mainland and islands, which belong to our geographical system, are occupied by European powers is tolerated because the American people have inherited the situation to accept accomplished facts. But upon provocation the incongruity of European flags over American territory would disappear.

"England, of all the old world powers, is the last which should challenge the Munroe doctrine, because she has most to lose by its transformation from negative to positive.

THE GREAT MINERAL WEALTH OF ARIZONA

A Section of Country Teeming With Untold Wealth in Minerals

How Fortunes are Made by Those Who Have Courage to Invest Their Money—The Superior Copper Company's Proposition

In the extreme southern portion of Arizona, where the international boundary, following the geometrical lines laid down by the Gadsden treaty, 1853, turns from its due westerly course to about 25 degrees north—in this broad angle, marked only by the sandbeaten monuments in a trackless desert—lies Pima County, one of the richest precious-metal-bearing districts on the continent. The county seat, Tucson, is the metropolis of the territory and one of the most cosmopolitan cities, regardless of population, in existence.

Clustered about this isolated metropolis, to the east and south, are a host of mining camps, whose products would make the eyes of the tenderfoot bulge with astonishment.

There is nothing incredible in the press dispatches and reports of mining correspondents regarding the wealth of a group of claims held by the Superior Copper Co., 25 miles south from Tucson. Not that all Arizona mining stories are true—not by any means; but when properly supported by the testimony of expert mining engineers who have examined the properties critically, it may be taken with as much faith as anything of human origin.

Such testimony has recently come to light, regarding the mines above referred to, of the Superior Copper Co.'s, in a report of Everitt F. Fries, M.E., to Colonel T. B. Mills, of New York City. It would be well worth while to publish this report complete, but space forbids.

There are ten mining claims in the group, all purchased late in 1901, and are known as the Superior, Ontario, Huron, St. Clair, Alacron, Chatauqua, Champlain, Michigan, Jefferson, and Ashtabula. Each claim is 600 by 1,500 feet, giving the company a mineral area of about 200 acres. The title to all of the mines is perfect and free from all encumbrances.

In a vein of the first named of these mines, the Superior, there is a shaft 90 feet deep. Through the whole 90 feet there was not a pound of rock found that did not carry from $5.00 to $18.00 in gold, and 20 to 65 ounces of silver to the ton, and from 6 to 24 per cent copper, and the richest ore both in gold and copper lay at the bottom of the shaft. This vein extends along the surface of the ground for 4,500 feet, and how wide it is no one knows. Only a series of cross tunnels can reveal that.

Parallel to this Superior vein, there are dozens of others, all visible on the surface, and the very poorest of them giving returns of from $2.00 to $6.00 per ton of gold, besides the silver and copper, and every little gulch and hollow draining these lodes shows traces of gold.

At the foot of the mountain on which the Superior is located, lies what is known as the Chapparal Canon, which has been worked as a placer field by the Indians for 200 years, and even yet men make good wages, washing these sands with crude pans and washers. Not infrequently good sized nuggets, worth $25.00 or $30.00 each, are in this manner found.

Now there is no doubt as to the origin of such deposits. As the engineer reporting the mine said, "They don't grow on trees like apples, nor are they dug from the ground like potatoes." He might also have added that they do not rain down from heaven. As a matter of fact, it is conceded that such deposits of gold find their source in gold bearing ledges, which are eroded by the water draining them, and they are gradually washed down and worn smooth just as are sands and pebbles. Now the veins located above the Superior show very little gold, so the inference is practically certain that this apparently inexhaustible treasure is covered by the Superior claim, and that the ignorant Indian has been for two centuries gathering the tiny particles of yellow metal as they happened to wash down, with sticks and stones from the mountain side, when he might have gone a little higher and found it imbedded in almost illimitable quantities in the primordial rock above.

Then, too, long mining experience has proven that where a series of parallel lodes have burst upward through the crevices of the rocks as these have, that they, too, find a common source below, and it will be a matter of much surprise if further development of these veins does not later, at some depth probably not exceeding 300 or 400 feet, discover a mother lode, surpassing all of these in size and richness, and from which these now radiate at different angles to the surface.

Old mining men who have spent their lives in drifts and shafts and tunnels from Montana to Mexico, visit this field and utter what seems to be wild prophesies. The most conservative prognosticator could not say less, however, than that in a year from now, these would at least be among the leading mines of Arizona.

A limited amount of the stock of the company, full-paid and non-assessable, is offered for sale at 20 cents per share, par value $1. The stock is sold purely for development purposes. Remittances should be made by the usual methods, and payable to the order of the Superior Copper Company, 20 Broad street, New York, whose advertisement appears in our financial page.

MINISTER MURDERS HIS WIFE

Horrible Crime Committed by a Baptist Clergyman

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 12 — One of the most sensational murders in the southern portion of this state in many years occurred last night near Genoa, in Wayne County.

Neighbors heard a woman's screams issuing from the home of Morris Wilson, an aged Baptist minister, and hurrying to the scene found the old preacher in a death struggle with his wife. Her throat had already been cut and blood was streaming from the gaping wounds. Wilson himself with her dying form supported by his left arm was waving a bloody razor aloft with his right, and with his eyes turned toward heaven was calling out: "Without the shedding of blood there can be no remission of sin."

No hand was stretched forth to stop him as he calmly stepped out of the cabin. By the time the frightened spectators had recovered their selfes he had disappeared in the woods in the rear of his home and no trace of him has yet been found. Wilson was one of the most respected ministers in this section of the state.

HAD BEEN BURIED ALIVE

Terrible End of a Young Lady in Buenos Ayres

When Body Was Exhumed For Inquest Because of Suspected Poisoning, It Was Found That She Had Been Buried Alive

London, September 12 — A letter received in Paris from Buenos Ayres records the death of Mlle. Cambacerva, a descendant of the famous French general and a member of one of the leading families in the Argentine capital, under most distressing circumstances.

The unfortunate young lady had just turned 18 years of age, and her birthday was celebrated by a grand reception. All her friends came to offer their congratulations and brought presents. In the evening Mlle. Cambaceres went up to her room to dress for the opera. She was in the act of putting on her hat when she fell to the ground, apparently dead. The funeral took place within 24 hours, as under municipal law a corpse must not be kept longer.

A few days afterwards someone started the theory that Mlle Cambaceres had been poisoned, and the authorities ordered the body to be disentombed and a post-mortem examination made. When the coffin was opened it was found, to the horror of everyone, that the veil which covered the face of the unfortunate girl was torn, and her face scratched all over. From these facts it appeared clear that Mlle. Cambaceres had been buried alive, and had torn the veil and scratched her face in her struggles to get out of the coffin

The case, though not reported in the press, has produced a most painful impression in Buenos Ayres, and more so as Mlle. Cambacères was very pretty, and beloved by all who knew her.

ALIVE IN COFFIN

From Malmor, the picturesque little Swedish town which faces Copenhagen across the Sound, comes a ghastly story of premature interment.

A servant girl of the town who suffered from severe toothache had placed in the hollow of a decayed tooth, before she went to bed, a small wad of cotton wool, which had been steeped in narcotic oil. While she was asleep the cotton dropped into her windpipe, and she was found the next morning apparently dead.

The master, believing that she had taken poison for the purpose of committing suicide, and being anxious to avoid publicity in the matter, at once sent for a coffin. The body was placed in it, and it was screwed up. Later on, in order to obtain the necessary medical certificate, without which the burial could not take place, a doctor was sent for, and, on his arrival, the coffin was unscrewed.

What was the horror of all to discover from the appearance of the girl's body that she had evidently recovered her senses after being enclosed in the coffin, and had made violent and ineffectual efforts to free herself—efforts which had finally ceased only when death really came to her aid.

MR. CRANE CANED

And is Also Presented with an Address by St. Paul's Church Choir

On Wednesday evening, at the conclusion of the choir practice at St. Paul's church, Mr. John Crane, the retiring organist and choirmaster, was presented with a handsome gold-headed cane, suitably inscribed, accompanied by the following very suitable address, which is expressive of the motives which prompted the presentation:

John Crane, Esq.:

Dear Sir,—After a period of over seven years the relations which have existed between us as choir master and choir have, by the vicissitudes which are inseparable from human life, came to an end. While we congratulate you most heartily on your promotion in your chosen field of labor, yet it is needless to add that we regret very much it necessitates the severance of the very cordial, pleasant and harmonious relations which have so long existed between us.

We believe we have made a record for uninterrupted reciprocal harmonious responsiveness between choir master and choir, which has seldom been equalled if ever excelled and of which we all feel justly proud; and we are not saying too much for you when we attribute these satisfactory results very largely to your courteous tact, great energy, enthusiasm and exceptional ability.

We are delighted to know that you still remain amongst us and trust your duties will not oblige you to divorce yourself entirely from the field of music.

Believing that the feelings of regret at our parting are fully reciprocated by you, we have thought you would appreciate some little souvenir to remind you of your first choir. We therefore ask you to accept this cane for that purpose with the hope that it will be a long time before it becomes a necessity to you, but that in the years to come it may recall pleasant associations and appreciative services while connected with St. Paul's church choir.

Signed on behalf of the choir,

JESSIE MEIN.
ANNIE CAMERON,
D. H. MOORE.

Peterborough, Sept. 11th, 1902.

The address was read by Mr. D. H. Moore, and the gift presented by Mrs. Mein. The inscription upon the head of the cane is "Presented to Mr. John Crane by the members of St. Paul's church choir, Peterborough, September, 1902."

Mr. Crane in his very appropriate remarks intimated that the "choir was always raising cane, anyhow." He expressed his sincere appreciation of the honor done him.

STOPS EXPORTATION OF ARMS.

London, Sept. 12.—The royal decree says an Athens correspondent, prohibits the exportation of arms from Greece. This step has apparently been taken in consequence of the activity of Bulgarian agents who are smuggling arms into Macedonia. Bulgarians, disguised as Greek priests, have collected considerable sums under the pretext of founding Greek schools in Asia Minor.

If your sleep is not restful and refreshing, if your spirits are low, if you are morose, melancholic, and oppressed with morbid fears, be assured your blood demands instant attention.

Paine's Celery Compound is the one great and never-failing agent for making pure, fresh blood, for nourishing the dominant organs of the body, for recruiting the strength of young and old. Often, very often, a delay of one day proves fatal. Foul and poisoned blood carries death at every beat of the heart. Mr. D. McMahon, Peterborough, Ont., writes thus:

"I have great pleasure in testifying to the fact that Paine's Celery Compound has caused a remarkable change in my condition. I was troubled with a very bad type of eczema on my face and in patches over my body for four years. I was under treatment of three doctors, and tried many remedies, but all proved useless. At last I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and put in Iodide of Potassium as recommended on the label. The one bottle did me so much good that I bought five bottles more, and now am happy to say I am perfectly cured and completely free from the troublesome disease."

DUTY ON WOODEN LEGS

Classed as "Family Supplies" at New York Customs

Experience of a Chicago Man Returning From Europe—Reasons for the Ruling—Other Classification Suggested

New York, Sept. 11.—The Times says that a problem which for months threatened to undermine the health of the New York customs officers has been happily solved. The automobile of a Chicago man abroad undertook to climb a church spire, and after the amputation he bought a wooden leg at Berlin. On reaching the shores of his native country he did no declare this purchase as dutiable, and his leg was seized by an inspector. The owner of the leg maintained that he had carried away from this country a real leg which was more valuable than the wooden substitute with which he returned; therefore he brought back less than he took away, and it would be absurd to tax him as though his possessions had been enlarged from the rich spoils of the European markets.

The inspector, although confident that the leg should be pulled, could not say how it should be classified; and the appraisers, collector and deputies were just as uncertain. The department at Washington merely directed the attention to a number of irrelevant rulings, and left the decision to the New York office, stipulating only that one trousers leg should be assessed as covering at the same rate of duty, whatever that might be.

After stumping along with a home-made pegleg, while his bought member rested in the custody of the Government, the Chicago man has been allowed to take away his property on paying the duty on it as "family supplies." The Times suggests that in theirplexity the customs officers were glad to seize any suggestions for classifying such an article, and, that they followed a recent case in the police court in which a man with but one leg applied to the magistrate for a writ to compel his wife to give up his wooden leg, which she had concealed after beating him over the head with it. It was the wife's testimony that the family depended on the pawning of the leg for drink, and and that it was to prevent the husband from pawning it for his own selfish indulgence that she had hidden it. This is about as near to being "family supplies" as a wooden leg can get.

Still, says the Times, the classification is absurd, and in violation of the rule that every imported article shall be assessed at the highest possible rate of duty. It would have been an easier construction of the laws to classify it as bottles or bar-room fixtures, with their higher duties. In the prohibition State of Maine a man with a wooden leg was convicted recently of filling that hollow member with riotous liquor, which he sold at stiff retail rates to the bibulous.

$100,000,000 LOST SO FAR BY COAL STRIKE!

The Figures of the Great Struggle Between Owners and Miners to Date

Special to The Times.

Indianapolis, Sep. 12 — Secretary Wilson, of the United Mine Workers, last night gave out the following statement and review of the great anthracite strike, which yesterday completed its eighteenth week of continuance:

Approximate loss, $100,000,000.

Length of strike, eighteen weeks.

Number of miners involved, 147,000.

Miners' average weekly wages, $7.

Average weekly output of miners, 1,150,000 tons.

Normal price of anthracite, $4.50 per ton.

Normal cost of production, $1.50 per ton.

Had the mines been operated 21,250,000 tons would have been mined in period covered by strike.

Market value of this coal would have been $93,625,000.

Total weekly wages of strikers, approximately, $1,020,000.

They would have earned in seventeen weeks $17,190,000.

Total cost of producing coal ready for market would have been $31,875,000.

Operators' profit would have been $63,750,000.

Loss to mining property during idleness, $6,000,000.

Operators have spent $1,000,000 in policing and protecting properties.

State of Pennsylvania has spent $500,000 to keep troops in field.

RECEPTION TO BOERS WAS DISTINCTLY QUIET

Even a Pre-Arranged Ceremony Did not Produce Enthusiasm, Boer Resentment

Alleged Pan-Germany Intrigues Against Britain—Merriman's Violent Speech—Russian Demand Withdrawn

London, Sept. 12.—A Brussels despatch says that though a large crowd ing Great Britain. Even at a prearranged ceremony at the railway station little enthusiasm was manifest.

PAN-GERMANY INTRIGUES.

London, Sept. 12.—A Vienna correspondent draws attention to alleged Pan-Germany intrigues to prevent the reconciliation of the Boers with British rule. He says that the Pan-Germans, one of whose chief objects is the destruction of British naval and commercial supremacy, think that the continuance of Boer resentment will be an excellent means of embarrassal Boer revolt were successful the revived Boer states would find they had drifted into informal dependence on Germany, which would be very profitable to the latter.

PRINCE WILLIAM IS AFFLICTED.

London, Sept. 12.—A Paris correspondent says the report that Prince William of Luxemburg has met with an accident or, according to one account, that he has suffered a stroke of paralysis, has created uneasiness, as he is the only son of Grand Duke and has no male issue. Temps suggests that a problem menancing to the peace of Europe may arise.

MERRIMAN'S VIOLENT SPEECH.

London, Sept. 12.—A Cape Town correspondent says the speech by ex-Treasurer General Merriman, in the Assembly, supporting a motion introduced by him, condemning the agitation for the suspension of the Cape Colony constitution, was unusually violent. It bristled with minatory reference to events which led to American independence. Merriman declared the suspensionists' council would have been a kindergarten of young Balliol men. He said Lord Milner had outraged Cape Colony by his threats of martial law and charged him with conspiring to destroy the liberties of the colony.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 12.—The residents of Leamington are greatly stirred up over the disappearance of Henry Wide and his wife. The woman was the first to disappear, and after the husband had disposed of his household effects and given his child, an infant, to a Mrs. Colison, he, too, left the town and Mr. Colison has heard from him but twice since. One letter was postmarked Chicago, Ill., and the other St. Louis, Mo. In the last letter Wride stated that he intended going farther west, and cautioned Mrs. Colison not to write as he would not receive her letter.

It is known by the neighbors that Wride and his wife had a violent quarrel the day she left home, and the husband struck her several times. She left the town and was seen by a man named Robinson going in the direction of Wheatley. This is the last trace that her father, William Nop, who is a farmer living on the third concession of the township of Mersea, could get of her. He has personally investigated a number of rumors as to where his daughter went, but each clue proved to be a false one, and the old man is now at a loss what to do next.

He is of the opinion that his daughter has met foul play, and so universal is this opinion in Leamington that a posse of citizens have searched the fields and woods around the town, and have also paid several visits to the cemetery, as it was rumored that a man was seen in the cemetery after nightfall about the time Mrs. Wride disappeared, and the theory was that she had been murdered and buried.

What appears to the people peculiar is the action of Wride. When he came home and discovered that his wife had left, he went to a neighbor's where she had left the child and took the baby home with him. He kept it for three nights, and then it was legally adopted by Mrs. Colison. Wride made the remark at the time that his wife would never return again, and that he was going to leave the town. He reiterated this statement to several, but nothing was thought of it at the time, as the couple were in the habit of separating for weeks, only to come together again. However, when Wride left the town after disposing of his household effects some of the neighbors started inquiries, and the woman's father was finally informed of her protracted absence. He at once instituted a search of the places his daughter was likely to be, but she had not visited any of her friends.

Her father will now ask the aid of the police in his search for the missing woman.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—An important subject for the consideration of the Anglican Synod meeting here was brought up by Mr. Jenkins, of Petrolea, in a proposal to revive the diaconate as an aid to the clergy.

Prof. Clark, of Toronto, seconded the motion, saying that there are many ways in which a deacon can help a priest. He was not willing to admit the Methodists had better material than the English church, but the latter's needed bringing forward.

Rev. Dr. Langtry, of Toronto, sympathized with the idea to the extent of moving an amendment that would allow the church in Canada to adopt the scheme at once, and this, with the substantive motion, was carried.

The Bishops sent word that they concurred in the publication of a Canadian edition of the prayer book.

The report of the Committee of Beneficiary Funds advised that reciprocity in these funds be entered into between the different diocese, as had been done in Toronto, Huron and Niagara, so that the clergy of one diocese to another without loss of status. This would facilitate the interchange of clergy, but the formation of a general fund for superannuated clergy, widows, and orphans was the ideal to be kept in mind.

The Bishops proposed that the revised translation of the Bible be allowed to be read in the churches. Prof. Clark of Toronto strongly concurred. In the 270 years since the King James translation many discoveries of manuscript and in science have been made, and great care has been taken in the text to make it accurate and euphonious, he said.

"It is most important to laymen who are not scholars to know that the lessons from the pulpit are true," said Mr. N. W. Hoyles of Toronto.

Archdeacon Davidson opposed the motion, as it cast a slur on the scholarship of our forefathers, and he referred to the advocates of the revised version as "faddists" and "zealots."

Dean Kittson of Ottawa stuck to the authorized version because of its music and rhythm.

The vote proved the house to be overwhelmingly in favor or the reading of the revised text.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—The Record-Herald says to-day: The long-expected merger of the great meat packing interests in the United States will go into active and open operation Saturday, Sept. 27, unless there should be an entirely unlooked for change in the plans agreed upon by those concerned in the deal at a meeting held here to-day. An industrial combination second only to the steel trust in point of magnitude and importance is, therefore, practically an accomplished fact.

It is said the combine is to be capitalized at the rate of twenty-five times the last year's earnings of the constituent companies. For example, Cudahay & Co., are said to have earned about $840,000 in 1901, which would make their share of the capital stock of the merger $21,000,000. A four per cent. dividend that the new consolidation might be expected to declare would amount to $840,000, on this lot of stock—approximately its legitimate earnings.

On the basis of capitalization Armour & Co., whose last year's profits are supposed to have been about $8,000,000, will receive $200,000,000 in the new securities in exchange for their business. Swift & Co. will receive $50, ,000, their net earnings for the past year probably not amounting to more than $2,000,000, by reason of the fact that this concern does not own its subsidiary companies, such as car lines and selling agencies. Carrying out this method to the end, the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. would receive $25,000,000.

It is said that it is the undoubted determination of the consolidated meat interests to control all of the packing houses and stock yards of the country, and save every possible dollar in the cost of manufacturing and distribution. In addition to this, all byproducts will be absolutely controlled, and efforts made to buy up industries that are closely allied to the meat business.

THE CAPE PARLIAMENT AND THE AFRIKANDERS

It is acknowledged on all hands that the future of South Africa depends largely on the question whether English speaking or Dutch speaking voters shall be preponderant in Cape Colony. Let us mark the bearing of some recent events upon this question.

It will be remembered that a petition for the suspension of the Constitution of Cape Colony, a petition signed by a great many Loyalist, or so-called Progressive, members of the members of the Cape Parliament, was rejected by Mr. Chamberlain. Consequently, the Cape Parliament reassembled, and is now in session. The Premier, Sir Gordon Sprigg, although originally a Progressive, opposed the suggested suspension of the Cape Constitution, and thereby gave great offence to the Loyalists, who, since the death of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, are headed by Dr. Jameson, notorious for his connection with the futile "raid." For support the Premier has to rely almost exclusively upon those members of Parliament who belong to the so-called Afrikander Bond.

The support of a parliamentary majority is of vital importance to the Premier, because he and his colleagues for more than a year, acting under instructions from the Imperial Government, have violated the Colonial Constitution in a variety of ways, the most notable being their omission to convoke Parliament when the convocation of it was their legal duty. It follows that, unless Sir Gordon Sprigg can secure an act of indemnity, he will have rendered himself liable to impeachment. It is understood that he has entered into an agreement with the men of the Afrikander Bond, in pursuance of which they will pass an act of indemnity by way of rewarding his resistance to any further suspension of the Cape Constitution. That the agreement can be carried out seems certain from the fact that the Cape Parliament at the present moment consists of thirty-nine Bondsmen, thirty-three Progressives and seven Independents, four of the Independents being of mixed British and Boer parentage, and counted upon to vote with the Afrikanders.

To appreciate the relation of this state of things to the future of Cape Colony, and, incidentally, of South Africa, we should recall what the Afrikander Bond is, and the purpose for which it was originated. It was not President Kruger of the Transvaal, but Mr. Hofmeyr of Cape Colony who was the first to formulate the cry of "Africa for the Afrikanders," and to promote the fulfilment of his aim by the establishment of the association known as the Afrikander Bond. The aim of the association was to revive the national spirit of the Boers, and to teach them to use their electoral power so as to secure the return of representatives to the Cape Parliament who could be relied upon to vote solidly for the Bond leaders. A subsidiary object was to create division in the British Loyalist or Progressive party, and to detach from its ranks a sufficient number of professional politicians to secure a working majority for the Bond.

This policy has been remarkably successful. Even Mr. Rhodes, the great champion of British supremacy in South Africa, had to avail himself of the support of the Bond party during his premiership of Cape Colony. On the collapse of the Jameson raid and the resultant resignation of Mr. Rhodes, Sir Gordon Sprigg became Premier, but he was able to hold office only so long as he retained the favor of the Afrikanders. Mr. Schreiner, who was the leader of the Bond party, and Premier of the Cape Colony on the outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and the Boer republics, was driven from office by his own party because, at Lord Milner's instance, he agreed to propose a treason bill, making the rendering of assistance to the Boers on the part of Cape Colonists a treasonable offence. Sir Gordon Sprigg, who succeeded him, managed to pass the treason bill, but was unable to do more, owing to the opposition of the Bond majority. Then as we have said, by the direction of the Imperial Government, the Cape Parliament was suspended, and those violations of the Colonial Constitution were permitted for which Sir Gordon must now obtain an act of indemnity.

Thus we see that, although the war in the Transvaal and the Orange River country is over, the Afrikanders, who are Boers by race and language, by their aims and their sympathies, are actually preponderant in the Parliament of the Cape Colony. Moreover, they are likely to remain so for some time to come, at all events. It is commonly admitted that a new general election held under existing conditions would give the Afrikander Bond a fresh lease of life.

Such are the facts. Their gravity, no doubt, is recognized by Mr. Chamberlain, and there is reason to believe that he was personally inclined to listen to Lord Milner, and to grant the petition of the Loyalists at the Cape for an indefinite suspension of the Colonial Constitution. What overruled his inclination was the knowledge that the Colonial Premiers assembled in London for the coronation regarded with undisguised disfavor a measure which might be viewed as establishing the principle that the Imperial Government has the right, of its own motion, to cancel the constitution of any self-governing colony. The Secretary of the Colonies could not help alienating Australia and Canada, after he had been at so much pains to gain their good will, and had publicly plumed himself on his success in that direction.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company have issued a statement to the effect that the whole of the remaining 5 per cent. land grant bonds, amounting to $1,314,500, not yet redeemed, are now called in for redemption. Each bond will be redeemed at ten per cent. premium, and with accrued interest to date of redemption, provided it be presented for that purpose at the office of the treasurer of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at Montreal before the end of sixty days.

It is stated that by the end of the year the Grand Trunk Railway will have 775 miles of double line. The double tracking between Montreal and Niagara Falls will be completed by the end of November. The general manager has also stated that grades on the Chicago section have been so reduced that he believes the train loads can be materially increased.

The Boer generals evidently forgot something when they were drawing up their list of demands. They should have asked that the bad British Government indemnify the country for that million and a quarter sterling that old Kruger stole.

If the British government granted a tithe of the demands laid before Mr. Chamberlain by the Boer generals the Transvaalers would be considerably better off than if they had won the war.

Division Court Clerks Meeting

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Division Court Clerks' Association of Ontario was held in the Private Bills Committee room, Parliament buildings, recently, President Benjamin Allen of Owen Sound in the chair. W. H. Higgins, Deputy Inspector of Division Courts, attended the meeting, and answered a number of questions on procedure which were put by the members. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, B. Allen, Owen Sound; First Vice-President, J. W. McIntosh, London; Second Vice-President, Geo. F. Bruce, Beaverton; Secretary-Treasurer, Peter McIntyre, Woodville, all re-elected. Executive Committee — E. H. Duggan, Toronto; H. Falconer, Shelburne; A. McL. Howard, Toronto; F. J. Bell, Peterboro; James McGuire, Wingham. Special Committee on Legislation — Messrs. Allen, Howard, Duggan, McIntosh and Whelan. Votes of thanks were tendered to the department and officers.

—The committee on Appointments of the Board of Education met on Tuesday evening and formally appointed Mr. A. Sorsoleil, of the South Central school, to the vacancy in the Collegiate Institute. Mr. W. J. Stacey, Principal of the Inniskillen Public school, received the appointment to the vacancy created by Mr. Sorsoleil's promotion. Mr. Stacey comes to Peterborough very highly recommended.

—A gang of men, numbering 30 in all, passed through town on Wednesday from Tweed to Huntsville, where they have been engaged to work in the Rathbun Company camps a few miles from that town.

—The races which take place here on Monday and Tuesday, promise to be a great success. Some of the swiftest horses in the country will compete.

ONE MACHINE VS. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 50 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

STOCK MARKETS

Pennsylvania Bound to Sell Much Higher

New York, September 12th—We have frequently written in the most bullish strain, when speaking specially of Pennsylvania stock, and when it was well below 150, predicted in these letters that it would sell at 175 before the end of the year and above 200 some time after that date. As matters are unfolding we are more confident than ever that these predictions will come true. The buying of Pennsylvania since it left 160 has been even better and upon a larger scale than when the stock was between 150 and 160. The gigantic rise in the market value of its assets, B. & O., Norfolk and kindred securities, of which it owns considerable more than a controlling interest in each instance, is a powerful bull argument for Pennsylvania. The fact that it is probably the most substantial railway stock extant is also worthy of consideration. Among the railways it is the largest earner in the United States, its revenues having exceeded the sum of two hundred million dollars per annum. It looks now as if the Pennsylvania was the dominant factor in Reading affairs, through medium of the Baltimore & Ohio, which it controls; that certainly is the indication from watching the tape reporting the transactions in Reading shares, Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania. Under Pennsylvania control, Reading common would work its way to par, Baltimore & Ohio would easily sell up 15 to 20 points more, and Pennsylvania will enhance in price accordingly. Buying stocks is like buying any other commodity or property, it is always advisable to purchase some of the best in the market. It pays best in the end, and by so doing you place your stock market commitments in the position that you can feel confident should they temporarily go against you that they would return to such figures as will allow you to dispose of your holdings at a profit. These remarks not only apply to Pennsylvania, but likewise to N.Y.C., B.O., Mop., L.N., Atchison and Reading issues, etc., the best is always advisable to have on hand. A lesson can be learned from the expose of the investment box of a Newark brewer recently insolvent. It held barely any securities that were marketable, in flush times—simply wads of stock certificates, of which the assignee would have to report of uncertain market value.

To-day's market was reactionary; it discounted the probable bad bank statement to-morrow. Upon its appearance the entire list should be a purchase. We deem it wise to purchase at the opening Saturday, and upon any further concessions give an additional buying order at the market. We would specially call your attention to our letter issued to-morrow afternoon, Saturday. It has a special logical argument upon which can be drawn an idea when the different cliques will likely realize. The bull market has considerable distance to travel before reaching maximum prices. Some new high records will probably be made next week. Money closed 20 p.c. Total sales, 600,200.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

they would have laughed; but Hope Newcome was not exactly the sort of man one laughed at unless one were over six feet in height and broad in proportion. Still, he was ashamed of himself for forming one of such a group, and was half inclined to go away again without waiting for a glimpse of Miss Gray, when a smart brougham drove up, and close behind it a four-wheeled cab.

"That's Mrs. Peter Carlton's little turn-out," one youth said to another, nodding at the brougham; and at the same moment a big man, who appeared to be without companions, stepped to the kerbstone and spoke in a low voice to the driver of the cab.

"That's our Winnie's chariot. Comes for her every night. Not quite so grand as the other, eh?" remarked the youth.

"Give her time," said his friend; and they both laughed.

Hope Newcome clenched his hands and breathed hard. He would have liked nothing better than to teach the pair a lesson in discretion, but he realized that for Miss Gray's sake he had better let them alone. He looked with great interest at the plain vehicle which had the honor of taking Winifred Gray home, and he wondered what the well-dressed man on the pavement was saying in such a low, earnest tone to the cabman. He could not hear the words, but, as he listened, he caught the driver's answer: "That's all right, sir, but I couldn't do it. It's as much as my place would be worth."

Newcome's ears seemed suddenly to be sharpened. "But look here," the other urged, "there's no reason——" Again his voice dropped so low that the rest was lost.

For three or four minutes the conversation went on, Newcome the only one in the crowd who continued to give it attention, for meanwhile Mrs. Peter Carlton and her maid had come out from the stage door, the actress in a magnificent evening wrap over a ball gown. She was evidently "going on" somewhere. Then appeared two or three pretty girls, whose small parts and salaries to match did not prevent their being beautifully dressed.

But Newcome did not even see them. The man who had been talking with the cab-driver had now climbed up on the seat beside him, where, having turned up the collar of his light overcoat and pulled his round black hat somewhat down over his eyes, he sat silently with arms folded.

At any moment now Miss Gray was likely to come out. The blood was beating in Hope Newcome's temples. He had only landed in Liverpool a week ago from the ship in which he had been a steerage passenger. From Liverpool he had walked much of the way to London, to economize the little money he had left.

In that part of America whence he came, men did not take very long to make up their minds or to act after they were made up, and Newcome had not spent time enough in a slower country to change his ways.

For a moment he hesitated, because he hated making himself more conspicuous than he was already, and prudence whispered that he might be stumbling into a mare's nest. But it was only for a moment. Then he took one stride across the pavement and addressed the driver of Miss Gray's cab.

"If I were you," said he, "I wouldn't have anyone with me on that box seat."

Cabby stared, flushed and frowned, each phase of his emotion being visible in the light over the stage door.

"Of all the cheek I ever 'eard," he observed in return, "if that ain't about the wust! Wot business is it o' yours, anyhow, Mr. Buffalo Bill?"

Hope Newcome's handsome face was red, and his eyes flashed; but he was not going to spoil everything by a vulgar brawl with a cabman. He had spoken in a low voice, but cabby had purposely replied in a loud, clear tone, so that everyone near turned to see what might be going on.

"I overheard your conversation a few minutes ago with the man you've got beside you," Newcome answered, as quietly as before. This was an exaggeration of the truth; but it had the effect he intended. The driver wriggled on his seat and flashed a look at his companion, as if demanding to be got out of the difficulty.

"I'm a friend of his," said the other quickly. "If you heard anything, you must have heard that. I'd like to know what affair it is of yours, though?"

"Well, I just thought I'd mention it, that's all," drawled Newcome, speaking for the first time, with a pronounced Yankee accent. "And see here, I haven't got much time to spare for you. How long are you going to take about getting down?"

"Do you want me to call the police and recommend them to pack you off to Bedlam?" demanded the man by the driver.

"You can do as you like about that," said Newcome, through his nose, "after you've come down off your perch."

Mrs. Peter Carlton had driven away, and the pretty girls had gone, and the crowd that was left threw itself heart and soul into the scene. Nobody had interfered as yet; for it appeared to all that under the badinage there was more than met the eye or ear.

"Come now, you clear out of this," advised the driver's companion, "or you'll get something you won't like."

"I'll go when you've got down."

The man, who had kept his temper, and kept his voice under control as well, grew suddenly reckless. It was twenty minutes past eleven, and he was anxious to be rid of this persistent Paul Pry, whose interference was likely to prove inconvenient. He had been employed to do a certain thing, and though his bargain with cabby was far from complete, he had found the man amenable to reason, and was morally sure he would be open to further, more dazzling offers. Already he had paid five pounds down for the mere privilege of sitting on the box-seat of Miss Gray's cab, the driver so far suspecting nothing more serious than love-sick romance; and there were other instructions which must be carried out.

He leant across the cabman and snatched the whip from its socket. "Now," he exclaimed. "Will you stop this drunken game?"

He glared down at the young man on the pavement, chuckling over the secret of his own great strength — the strength by which he partly got his living.

Hope Newcome gave him back stare for stare. With a quick movement he caught the threatening whip in the middle, a few inches higher up than Offers to the public the second allotment of $50,000 worth of 6 per cent. first mortgage 20-year Gold Bonds of the issue of $250,000. Out of the first allotment several of the stockholders subscribed to these bonds.

Denominations of these bonds are from $100 to $500 each, and the money received from the sale of these bonds will be deposited in the U. S. This Company offers its bonds at par, with a donation of stock as a bonus, which will be agreed upon to the purchaser of the bonds.

The officers of the Company are F. W. Warnock, Pres., Butte, Mont., who is largely interested in the best-paying mines in Montana; George Pope, Vice-Pres., of New York city, who is treasurer of the American [illegible] Co.; Joseph Johnston, Treas., Butte, Mont., who is the General Manager of the Montana Verde Copper Co.; Joseph Cooper, Secy., of New York city.

The above offer is subject to prior sale, and will not be left open to the public very long, as this is a special offer to the public. The bonds will stand close scrutiny and investigation. Write for further information and particulars, if you want a large block.

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

Hon. J. A. Simpson, Secretary of the Board of Education of San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"I have found Peruna an ideal tonic. Some months ago I suffered with neurasthenia (systemic catarrh), caused by too close application to office work. My system seemed worn out and I felt far from well. I found Peruna benefited me very much. It built up the entire system and made me feel like a new man. I believe it is well worthy the high praise bestowed upon it."—J. A. SIMPSON.

Systemic catarrh always gives fair warning of its approach, and can be easily warded off by the proper treatment. Floating brown specks before the eyes, mental confusion, fits of nervous headache, sleeplessness, flashes of heat, chilly sensations, palpitation, irritability, despondency; any of these symptoms or all of them should be promptly met by the use of Peruna.

Congressman E. V. Brookshire, from Indiana, in a recent letter from Washington, D. C., says:

John Fay Palmer

John Fay Palmer, the scholarly exponent of Shakespearian and the classic drama, has passed through a training for the work he adorns, equalled by few legitimate players on the stage to-day. Mr. Palmer was associated with Frederick Warde two seasons, two seasons with Mlle. Rhea, the eminent French actress, and co-starred with the celebrated Mde. Janauschek in one of her latest tours of the country. Gifted by nature with a magnificent physique and voice by earnest study his art has now matured and developed to an enduring success and in Shakespeare's greatest characters, such as "Shylock" and "Richard III." he is masterful. Not resting alone on his individual talent, Mr. Palmer has surrounded himself with the best legitimate talent available and given the gems of classic drama a stage setting seldom equalled by his predecessors. His productions are the event of the current season, and a New York manager has offered him a theatre for a long run fall of 1903. He will be seen here in one of his greatest impersonations, "Pharoah." He will appear in the Opera House on Monday evening.

Wedded in London

London, Ont., Sept. 10th, 1902.

On Wednesday afternoon the home of Mr. Jno. Elliott, "Canobie Place" was the scene of a very pretty but quiet wedding, when his daughter, Mrs. Alice Elliott Charlton, was married to Mr. G. M. Edmison, son of Mr. Geo. Edmison, K.C., Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Johnston in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmison left on the afternoon train on their honeymoon to New York and other eastern cities, and on their return will take up their residence in Streetsville, where Mr. Edmison is engaged in the woolen business with the A. W. Brodie Company.

A Funny Mistake

The following story was handed The Times for publication: A philanthropic lady visited the gaol the other day, and displayed great interest in the inmates. One man in particular gained her compassion. "And how long have you been here, my man?" she enquired. "About 25 years," was the answer. "Do they treat you well?" "Yes." After addressing a few more questions to him, the visitor passed on. She noticed a broad and broadening smile on the face of her attendant, and on asking the cause heard with consternation that the man was none other than Mr. Henderson Nesbitt, the superintendent of the institution. She hurried back to make apologies. How she succeeded may be gathered from these words: "I am very sorry, Mr. Nesbitt. I will never be governed by appearances again."

LIKE A PROVIDENCE

A Floating Box Changed a Man's Life

Things drift into our lives in a curious way. A man was visiting the seashore while an invalid, and one day a little empty Grape-Nuts box floated to him. The food facts he learned changed his whole life—but let him tell his story.

"The doctors said it was acute indigestion or gastritis. There was really nothing that I could eat and enjoy, and when one cannot enjoy his meals, he may as well be dead. There was a time when I could eat and digest anything, but for two years previous to last spring I was in a wretched state. I tried everything I heard of, took all kinds of medicine, almost enough to float a ship, but with no lasting purpose.

Last spring I had to give up work and went to Atlantic City. One day while strolling along the beach, I noticed a box being tossed about on the breakers and finally thrown up on the sand. I sat down on the sand and looked at it idly at first, but after reading a few words on the box, I got interested. It told how Grape-Nuts Food was prepared and all its good qualities, and I made up my mind then and there that I would try it.

I have not taken a drop of medicine from that day to this, but used about a half-package of Grape-Nuts each day for two months. I then gradually began eating meat and vegetables and fruit, and now I can eat anything I care to without it distressing me, but I still cling to Grape-Nuts food, as I am fond of it prepared in various ways, and never a day passes that I don't have it in some form.

After the first two months of using Grape-Nuts, I weighed myself every fifteen days, and found I gained from three to five pounds each time. I have been working every day since, and can say I never felt better. Thanks to Grape-Nuts. I now have an appetite like a billy-goat and am no more troubled with a bad stomach.

I wish I could talk with everyone troubled as I was. I know a good many people say, "Oh, I've tried everything. I am tired of trying," etc., but I say, "Don't give up until you try Grape-Nuts Food and you will not regret it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BLANCHE HAS A RECORD

The Young Girl Who Attempted Suicide in a Local Hotel

Regarding the young girl, who appeared before the Police Magistrate a few days ago, charged with attempted suicide in a local hotel, and who was remanded for eight days, the Lindsay Post says:

"Blanche Royal is not known here, and it is supposed that the bearer of the nice-sounding patronymic is a young girl known here as Alice Real, who has acquired a fondness for kicking up didos of that sort. Only a few weeks ago Alice rehearsed her tragic act in a Lindsay hotel, causing no end of trouble to the proprietor and staff. On that occasion the laudanum bottle was also in evidence by the bedside, and it was supposed that the girl had swallowed the contents, but after an application of the stomach pump she admitted that she had merely tasted the stuff and threw the rest away. The girl should be examined as to her sanity.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

Brigadier and Mrs. McIntyre, of the Salvation Army, Buffalo, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund on Saturday and Sunday last. Their addresses at the various meetings were instructive and very much enjoyed.

Staff-Capt. David Creighton, of Montreal, conducted the Holiness Convention on Monday night, when a fair and interested gathering gave him attention.

Sergt.-Major Leeds hails from Toronto and specials at the Army on Sunday next, Sept. 14th. For years he belonged to the headquarters staff, and also to the celebrated brass band of the headquarters staff. He comes to remain for the Musical Festival taking place here on the following Tuesday night.

By the way, that is to be quite an affair on Tuesday night, Sept. 16th, the Peterborough Brass Band already well known for their good music, will render an excellent programme. They have obtained the assistance of three Toronto musicians, Staff-Capt. Harry Morris, Ensign Easton and Sergt.-Major Leeds. Are you a lover of music? You will do well to take this in.

The Salvationists are very busy just now pushing the Harvest Home collecting. Peterborough friends are happy to assist in an effort which is so much for the interests of the local work.

Staff-Capt. Page, private secretary to Commissioner Eva Booth, and well known through her writings in various army publications is announced for Harvest Sunday, this interesting lay visited here once before, and therefore needs no introduction, she so captivated her hearers that a crowded barracks is assured for her this visit.

Out of Plumb.

When the wall is out of plumb the building is more or less unsafe, and the higher the wall is carried out of the perpendicular the greater the danger of collapse. It's about so with the health; it is out of plumb when the digestion is impaired, when there is a dull, sluggish feeling, with nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness. Every day that these symptoms are neglected increases the liability to physical collapse.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and cures nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness by curing the diseases in which they originate.

"For three years I suffered untold agony," writes Mrs. H. R. White, of Stanstead, Stanstead Co., Quebec. "I would have spells of trembling and being sick at my stomach, pain in right side all the time; then it would work up into my stomach and—such distress it is impossible to describe. I wrote to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, stating my case to them, and they very promptly answered and told me what to do. I took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and five vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Thanks to Dr. Pierce and his medicine I am a well woman to-day. Dr. Pierce's medicines also cured my mother of liver complaint from which she has been a sufferer for fifteen years. We highly recommend these medicines to all suffering people."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 31 one-cent stamps for expense of customs and mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Big Bargain of Land and Timber
IN OTONABEE.

West half Lot 25, Con. 2, near Shearer's church and school, Norwood road; 2 miles from C P.R. at Indian River station, and 12 miles from Peterboro; 100 acres choice land; 50 ft for machinery, balance heavily timbered with maple, beech, elm, ash, cedar and some tamarack. A competent inspector of long experience estimates the timber that might be sold as 1,000 cords hardwood, and 2,000 cords mixed soft wood, all of which in this market would sell readily for more than $10,000, and total expense would not exceed $6,000. A man with teams and two or more boys should be able to make big money on above, and we can make price and terms so reasonable as to enable a man of limited means to buy and pay for out of the timber. Wise men will see us quickly about this. Ploughing possession at once.

LORD MILNER TOURS WESTERN TRANSVAAL

He Is Accompanied by General Baden Powel and Many Other Officers

Scots Excited by King's Trip—London Criminal Court—Clericals Govern the Reichstag

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 13—Lord Milner, says a Johannesburg correspondent, left that city Thursday on what it is hoped will be the first of a series of long tours in South Africa. He is accompanied by General Baden Powell and other officers. The party will proceed on an extended tour in the western Transvaal, the most fertile part of the country. A large number of Boers are alreday back on their farms there, the work of repatriation and settlement having progressed more quickly in that section than any other. Tours like this will bring the Governor of the Transvaal into closer touch with the people of outlying districts.

CLERICALS GOVERN THE REICHSTAG.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 13—A Berlin correspondent says that notwithstanding the efforts of the whole semi-official press to represent Russo-German relations as vastly improved by the meeting of the Czar and Kaiser at Reval, and the presence of a deputation of Russian officers during Emperor William's recent visit at Posen, doubts are expressed in many quarters regarding the reality of the entente as proclaimed in Berlin. The clericals are the "governing party" in the Reichstag. They are closely allied with the Poles, and their papers endeavor to combat the view that the Polish policy of the Prussian Government finds any support beyond the Russian frontier.

BIG REVENUES FOR CYCLE TAX.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 13—The French cycle tax, says a Paris correspondent, is yielding an increased revenue. The number of cycles in the country has has risen steadily from 256,000 in 1896, to 987,000 in 1901. The receipts for the latter year were over $3,000,000. Paris and suburbs have 220,000 cycles.

NEW LONDON CRIMINAL COURT.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 13—The Times says instructions have been issued by the City of London Corporation for the demolition of the female wing of Old Bailey, and it is hoped the demolition of the remainder of Newgate Prison will shortly be begun for the purpose of erecting a new central criminal court. In designing the new building the attempt which has been made to preserve the traditions, and style of architecture, may be described as thoroughly English, being founded on the work of Sir Christopher Wren and his pupils.

MARQUIS REFUSED TO PAY TAXES.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 13—A Paris correspondent says that Marquis Coratel lave having refused to pay taxes, his goods have been distrained. The Marquis treats the affair as a farce.

LENIENCY STRONGLY CONDEMNED.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 13.—An interviewer for Eclair, says a Paris correspondent, has seen Deroulede and Marcel Herbert at the place of exile at San Sebastian, and asked their opinion of the conduct of Col. St. Remy and the sentence of court-martial passed upon him. Both strongly condemned St. Remy and the leniency of the sentence. The interviewer was much surprised, remembering how Deroulede tried to induce General Roget to march on Elysee Palace, but Deroulede said there was no analogy between his case and St. Remy's. Marcel—Habert said the chief reason why he regretted court-martial leniency was that it rendered hopeless such an attempt as Deroulede wanted General Roget to make Insubordination had become a venial offence, and if another general wished to lead troops on Elysee, his soldiers would feel safe in disobeying him.

London, Sept. 13.—Ireland—or, rather, Dublin—was the scene of all the excitement last week. This week it is Scotland's turn.

Such heavy trains as have departed for the north and also such crowded steamers from Ireland to the Clyde have not been experienced since a few days before the "glorious twelfth," when the grouse shooting enthusiasts made a dash for the rain sodden moors, but it is questionable if the West of Scotland has been in such a state of turmoil and excitement for many years.

Great has been the speculation as to which piers—they could hardly be called ports—the royal yacht, with the King and Queen aboard, would put in at, and great has been the disappointment where the yacht passed without even coming within hailing distance. But the greatest woe of all was experienced at Oban, the picturesque capital, as it is called, of the western highlands. It was thought that the King could hardly miss such a place as that, whereas Oban, with its crowds of tourists and scores of yachts in the bay, was just one of those places that the King, who wants peace and quietness, would be most likely to avoid.

GUNBOAT STARTS THE FUN.

The excitement was great when one day a gunboat appeared on the horizon and anchored in the bay. "The King is coming!" was the word that passed like lightning from mouth to mouth. The Provost of the town, which is Scotch for Mayor, woke up to the importance of the occasion, and in a remarkably short space of time the whole town was in a blaze of flags and bunting.

People nearly went frantic with excitement when the royal yacht was seen at a distance. But whither was she starring? That was not the way to Oban pier.

The people's hearts sank into their boots as the yacht passed on, northward bound, and the gunboat, having got the royal mails, weighed anchor The poor Provost's dreams of knighthood vanished, and he went sadly home. How much of the fiery, yet soothing mountain dew was consumed that night the local historian recordeth not.

Meanwhile the King is now on his way to Balmoral.

In regard to this I again learn from a Scotch correspondent of a rather amusing state of affairs. Would the King land at Aberdeen or at Dundee?

Without the least bit of authoritive information, the Aberdeen and Dundee papers waxed very hot, both claiming precedence and asserting that the King would land at their respective harbors. For several days the debate waxed very fierce as only Scotchmen can wax fierce, and the heather was on fire with a vengeance, when suddenly something dropped. The King will land on Monday at neither Aberdeen nor Dundee, but at Invergordon, on Cromarty Firth, and proceed southward by train to Balmoral.

THE TARTANS HAVE GONE.

It must be about a year ago that I mentioned in this letter how the tartan upholsterings of Balmoral Castle, which were maintained during all the time of the life of the late Queen Victoria, were to be removed. The same Scotch correspondent who writes me says he has been through the castle and found the interior entirely transformed from the old days. Every bedroom even was entirely refurnished, and it was not like the old familiar place at all.

While Scotch Tartans are often very charming in their proper place, they do not, especially some of the more glaring patterns, lend themselves to upholstery. Balmoral is now upholstered in artistic colors, and the tartan has been altered in the most beautiful and ar[illegible] banished. It now looks more like a royal palace, whereas before it had more the appearance of a big shooting box.

From the Toronto News.

The recent utterances of President Roosevelt in support of the Munroe doctrine have lead to a great deal of interest in the old historic proclamation, and it is confidently asserted by some that the doctrine exists only in name. The reason for its creation has ceased, and the purpose it was originally intended to serve has been almost lost sight of. This view is championed by Professor McGregor Young, of this city, who kindly consented to explain his position to The News.

Mr. Young contends that the doctrine of today is not the doctrine of Monroe, but a revised and enlarged version of the dangerous slavery doctrine. It is a menace to the free development of independent nations, and in its pretensions to override the established principle of international law, it involves consequences of the gravest perils to the peace of the world and the cause of humanity.

The Monroe doctrine was created at the suggestion of a British statesman and for the most legitimate reason. It was decided upon as a means of offsetting the growing influence of the Holy Alliance, and in accordance with the desires of Canning. Self defence justified its origin.

The Holy Alliance was composed of the Emperors of Austria, Russia and Prussia. They engaged mutually in the most solemn manner to put an end to the system of representative government in whatever country, and to put republicanism down in the Western Hemisphere. Their first move was an effort to overthrow the revolutionary governments set up against Spain in South America. As this endangered British trade there, Canning, as Foreign Secretary, who could not view the matter otherwise than with alarm, suggested to Secretary Rush of the United States that they should set forth their views in a joint declaration. The American Congress was agreeable, and when Canning delayed to act, went ahead alone, bringing down the famous message known now as the Monroe doctrine.

WHAT JEFFERSON SAID.

Jefferson, who was consulted by Monroe before anything was done, said: "With Great Britain on our side, we could face the whole world. With her we could most sedulously cherish a cordial friendship, and nothing would tend more to knit our affections than to to fighting once more side by side in the same cause." In this spirit the doctrine was laid down. Certainly it was not intended as a mark of hostility toward England.

To bear out this theory of origin the message itself says: "It is impossible that the allied powers should extend their political system to any portion of either continent without endangering our peace and happiness; nor can anyone believe that our Southern brethren, if left to themselves, would adopt it of their own accord." Preceding this sentence are the important statements that "The political system of the allied powers is essentially different from that of America. We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers, to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power, we have not interfered, and shall not interfere."

Surely this proclamation can only be regarded as a proper measure of self-defence, fully justified by international law. So it was regarded by Great Britain at the time, that country being prepared to stand by it with her army and navy. The Holy Alliance was dissolved, the real purpose of the proclamation was accomplished, and its work was done. So Mr. Calhoun, the only survivor in 1848 of the Cabinet which approved of it, declared in the Senate.

The Monroe doctrine of today is a very different thing. It asserts the supremacy and overlordship of the American nation on this continent, and is a defiance of international law. It is a symptom of imperialism, showing a hunger for land. In 1853 the American Secretary announced that his country would view all efforts on the part of any other power to procure possession of territory on this continent, whether peaceably or forcibly, as an unfriendly act. It was this spirit of overlordship which led President Cleveland to interfere in the Venezuelan boundary dispute, in which Great Britain finally consented to arbitration. It is this bold declaration that prevents the civilizing of parts of the South American Continent by the German Empire. Yet while the United States assumes this attitude, it declines to establish a protectorate or become responsible for the good conduct of the different republics. Nothing could be more illogical.

EX-PRES KRUGER'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Volume of 100,000 Words Dealing With Many Subjects

THE STORY OF HIS EARLY LIFE

The Book Will be Translated Into Many Languages and Large Demand is Anticipated

Special to The Times.

London, September 13 — Kruger's autobiography, which will be published simultaneously in many countries on November 15, will be a volume containing 100,000 words. The Munich publisher, Lehmann, has paid a high price for the book, and its serial rights in all languages. Mr. Kruger's friends assert that whatever is made out of it will not be kept by him, but will be handed over to suffering burghers. A French translation has been arranged. Nighoff has purchased the rights for Holland, and Fisher Unwin has acquired the copyright in the English language for great Britain, Canada and other British colonies, and the United States. The book contains the story of Mr. Kruger's life from childhood to the negotiation of peace. It was dictated by Mr. Kruger to his private secretary, Mr. H. Bredell, and to Mr. Peter Grobler, formerly Under Secretary of State in the Transvaal. The English translator is Mr. Texeira Demattes, author of the current version of Chateaubriand's Memoirs.

The manuscript of the work received here brings the narrative down to the Jameson Raid, and the remainder will include the story of the negotiation with Mr. Chamberlain, an account of the war, Mr. Kruger's departure from the Transvaal and incidents of his life in Holland. The early chapters describe his youth, education, hunting adventures, shooting his first lion, experiences in chasing the rhinoceros and tigers. The succeeding chapters contain an account of the various expeditions against the Kaffir chiefs. One of his most exciting adventures was when he was alone in a cave underneath the Kaffirs, who were besieged. His leadership began with a journey to Orange Free State to act as mediator in making peace with Mosesch. A chapter on civil war brings out his protest against the violation of the constitution by Commander Schurmann.

Political chapters contain incidental treatment of the food tariff, native labor in the mines, the dynamite monopoly, and railway interests, and the history of the Jameson raid is accompanied by a reflection on what Mr. Kruger describes as the irritating policy of Mr. Chamberlain in the negotiations. Mr. Kruger's astuteness in diplomacy is revealed in this portion of a deeply interesting book. He also attaches great importance to a series of telegrams between Miss Flora Shaw and Mr. Cecil Rhodes, in which Mr. Chamberlain's name is freely used. Mr. Kruger, while politically dead, still speaks in this memoir with oldtime vigor and subtlety.

MANITOBA WANTS HELP

It Will Take Two Months and Six Thousand More Men to Save the Crop

THE THRESHING OUTFITS

ARE BADLY CRIPPLED FOR WANT OF HARVEST LABORERS

THE LARGEST CROP ON RECORD

The C.P.R. Asked to Supply More Help—The Last Excursion Partly Relieves the Wants of the Farmers

Special to The Times.

Winnipeg, Sept. 15 — Manitoba's wheat is nearly all cut, still fully one-half of the work of harvesting remains to be done, and to do it the province is sadly in need of 6,000 more hands.

Such was the statement made to a Times representative by Hugh McKellar, Chief Clerk of the Department of Agriculture. He has just returned from a trip to Pilot Mound, and the foregoing was the conclusion he came to from what he saw and from communications which he has received from all parts of the country.

Much of the grain that is cut is lying in the swaths. It has yet to be stooked and stacked and threshed and marketed, and to do this the 6,000 men are urgently needed.

Fully two months of strenuous work will be required to accomplish all this.

The impression in the east seems to be that Manitoba's harvest is so far advanced that it is hardly worth while coming west for all the work that is to be done. To correct this false impression Mr. McKellar yesterday telegraphed to James Hartney, agent of the Manitoba Government at Toronto, and asked him to leave no stone unturned to secure more help for the west.

At present threshing outfits are crippled for want of men, and if they cannot be secured the effect will be felt not only in the handling of this year's crop but also on the crop of the coming year, for threshing operations will be dragged out to such an extent that farmers will be unable to do fall plowing or make any preparations for next year's seeding.

This is a calamity which the Manitoba officials are trying to avert by doing all in their power to bring in help.

Mr. McKellar said that the recent rains had delayed stacking to some extent, but not cutting, and as a consequence those who were behind in getting their binders to work are up to the more fortunate ones who had their grain cutting under way first.

Mr. McKellar also said that threshing would be pretty general throughout the province to-day, but many machines are tied up for want of men.

It is probable that if more hands can be secured in the east another series of excursions will be run by the C. P. R.

"We still have hope, said Mr. McKellar, "that the east will come to our assistance and will send enough help to save the immense crop that is now lying in the fields.

A VIOLENT SPEECH IN THE CAPE COLONY ASSEMBLY

Merriman Assails Milner and Those Who Have Advocated Suspending the Constitution

London, December 14 — The Cape Town correspondent of the Times says that the speech by ex-Treasurer-General Merriman, in the Assembly, supporting a motion introduced by him condemning the agitation for the suspension of the Cape Colony Constitution, was unusually violent. It bristled with minatory references to the events which led to American independence. Mr. Merriman declared that the Suspensionists Council would have been a kindergarten of young Balliol men. He said Sir Alfred Milner had outraged Cape Colony by his threats of martial law, and charged him with conspiring to destroy the liberties of the colony.

HEROES OF THE WAR

Whose Names Have Not Appeared in the Newspapers

London, September 11—One feature there is in connection with the working of the military railways, in South Africa, that must always form a proud chapter in their history—namely, the devotion of the staff, and especially of the engine drivers and firemen. Civilians for the most part, these men never faltered, though they knew that each time they boarded their engine, they carried their lives in their hands. Blown up, derailed, shot at, they stuck to their work, remaining often 70, and even 100 hours on end on their engine. On one occasion a driver took his train through a force of the enemy, and brought it in safety to the next station, his fireman dead beside him, and he himself, as he stood with one hand on the lever, the other on the brake, shot through both arms.

BABES COOKED IN STOVE

According to Charge Against a Chicago Maternity Hospital

Special to The Times.

Chicago, September 12 — Cremation of living babies in her kitchen range is a charge made by Charles Early against Mrs. Paulina Traeschier, who conducts a private hospital for women in South May street. Early made this and other serious charges before the state board of health. As a result officials of the board secured a warrant against Mrs. Taeschler on a charge of practicing medicine without a license, and the woman has been arrested. Mrs. Taeschler attributes the charges to motives of revenge inspired by her refusal to allow Early to visit a woman patient in her hospital.

NEWFOUNDLAND LOYAL

Has no Desire To Be Annexed To the United States

New York, Sept. 12—Sir Robt. Bond, premier of Newfoundland, who has been in Washington for negotiations relating to the Newfoundland fisheries, left for Newfoundland yesterday. Of his negotiations he would not speak, but of the possible annexation of Newfoundland to the United States he said:

"Newfoundland is as loyal to the mother country to-day as it ever was, and if there is any sentiment in favor of annexation to the United States it certainly has never been openly expressed by the people to my knowledge, although the idea has not infrequently suggested in foreign newspapers. If such a feeling does exist to any extent—and, of course, it is quite possible—I am pretty sure it has not been strengthened by the present attitude America is taking in her dealings with Cuba. The vast natural resources of Newfoundland practically assure it at least commercial independence. The country, too, is prosperous, and its people are industrious and contented and well able to develop the resources at their command. Certainly not one iota of good would result in changing the present integrity of the island, and this fact its people have intelligence enough to foresee."

Got Lame Back or Lumbago

No need of that now. That sort of pain can be knocked out in short order, for Polson's Nerviline, which is five times stronger than any other, penetrates at once through the tissues, reaches the source of suffering, drives it out and thus gives relief almost instantly. Not magic, but strength, that gives Polson's Nerviline this power. You will think it magic, however, if you try it, pain goes so quickly. Sold by dealers everywhere, in large 25c. bottles.

MORE HARVESTERS ARRIVE AT WINNIPEG

They Were Promptly Picked Up at $2.50 a day and Board—Frost Last Night

Special to The Times.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Sept. 14—About four hundred more harvesters arrived this morning. They were in the city only a short time when they were offered $2.50 a day and board and all were distributed throughout the province. Officials said that farmers and threshers want fully seven thousand more men, and that the shortage of labor would seriously interfere with the threshing operations and affect the old crop estimates.

From ninety thousand to one hundred thousand bushels of new wheat are being marketed daily. The prices are a shade firmer at 70 to 70 1-4 cents for No. 1 hard, and 68 1-4 for No. 1 Northern in store at Fort William, September delivery.

Cold weather was general throughout the West last night, with the temperature below freezing at several points. Serious reports of crop damage have not yet come in.

PREMIER ROSS WILL GO TO THE COUNTRY

It Is Said That This is Now Almost a Certainty

BYE ELECTIONS WILL TAKE PLACE FIRST

And if no succor Comes from That Quarter There Must be An Appeal to the Country

Toronto, Sept. 14—The political atmosphere is greatly disturbed during the last few days, particularly since the Globe came out in favor of coalition. The Times was the first paper to announce that coalition was being seriously considered, which it did several months ago. Your correspondent is in a position to state that the government is almost certain to go to the country again, notwithstanding the serious objections to such a course. Coalition will not go, in spite of the fact that the Globe and Goldwin Smith endorses it. Mr. Whitney emphatically repudiates the motion, as also does his lieutenant, Mr. J. J. Foy. The Liberals are unwilling to concede Mr. Whitney the Premiership, and no Conservative will accept office under Mr. Ross, so it is safe to say there will be no coalition. The Government therefore has decided to fight the bye-elections to a finish, and if no relief is forthcoming, which is said to be exceedingly improbable, they will again appeal to the country. If the latter course is adopted, as seems almost certain, it is thought that Mr. Ross will carry several seats that should have gone with the Government at the last elections had they been properly managed.

Mr. Whitney says that Mr. Ross must quit. This statement, however, must not be accepted without a grain or two of salt. Mr. Ross, with a majority of one, is certainly in a better position than his opponent to carry on the affairs of the country. Mr. Whitney says that his supporters are loyal, and cannot be induced to accept office under Mr. Ross, and that when a speaker is elected, the parties will be a tie, and a deadlock will result. Provided the courts and bye-elections will not interfere, this is the correct view of the case. Therefore an appeal to the country must be made either by one party or the other, and Mr. Ross says that he will stay till after the people hand in their verdict.

SIR. W. LAURIER AND MR. CHAMBERLAIN

Rumors of Serious Differences Between Them

ON IMPERIAL DEFENCE SUBJECTS

Canadian Ministers Take no Notice of the Reports—Laurier's Resistance An Open secret

London, Sept. 14—The Dominion Ministers have not taken notice of the reports that there were serious differences of opinion between Mr. Chamberlain and themselves on the question of Colonial expenditures for Imperial defence. While these reports are exaggerated, it is an open secret that Sir Wilfrid Laurier offered strenuous resistance to any resolution or policy committing Canada to responsibility for the maintenance of military and naval armaments. He was supported by his colleagues, who considered it most impolitic to introduce the principle that self-governing confederations like Canada and Australia were liable to a proportionate share of the liabilities for Imperial armaments based upon European standing armies and preparations for war. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's phrase "The Maelstrom of European Militarism" indicated the point of view of the Dominion Ministers. There was, however, no sharp divergence of views, at any stage of the Imperial conference.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Chicago, Sept. 13—The price of soft coal in Chicago has risen to $9 a ton, as compared with $3.75 on September 1. Anthracite is practically unobtainable and is quoted by some dealers as high as $25 a ton. The sudden advance in prices is attributed to the demand caused by the cold weather, which, while not severe in itself, has aroused householders to a realization that their bins are empty.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 13—The conference between Governor Stone and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, on matters pertaining to the coal strike ended at 4.30 o'clock this morning after a discussion of two hours and a half. The others at the conference were State Senator William Flinn, of Pittsburg, a political friend of the Governor, and a large employer of labor in Allegheny County; M. K. McMullen, of Pittsburg, a wealthy man of many interests; Col. W. F. Richardson, of Harrisburg, keeper of the state arsenal and assistant quartermaster of the National Guard, and District Presidents Thomas D. Nicholls, of Scranton; Thomas Duffy of McAdoo, and John Fahey of Shamokin. At the conclusion of the meeting Governor Stone gave to the waiting newspaper correspondents a written statement reading as follows:

"Messrs. Mitchell, Nicholls, Fahey, Duffy, Senator Flinn, Colonel Richardson, and Governor Stone have been in conference. All the differences have been discussed with the best of feeling."

Every effort to get the participants in the conference to divulge what took place proved unavailing. Governor Stone and Senator Flinn immediately retired and refused to be seen, and the others would say nothing beyond what was contained in the non-committal statement given out by the Governor. After the conference Messrs. Mitchell Duffy and Fahey were rapidly driven from the Governor's residence where the conference was held, to the Pennsylvania Railroad station, where they took the 4.40 a.m. train for Wilkesbarre. Mr. Nicholls remained here.

President Mitchell, before leaving, would not even say whether the conference was satisfactory to him and his district presidents.

While no official information can be had on the matter, it is believed here that Governor Stone and his colleagues submitted a proposition to President Mitchell which will tend to end the struggle in the hard coal field.

A LOST TRIBE OF ESQUIMEAUX FOUND

Untill Recently Had Never Seen a Whiteman—Virtrallo Live in Stone Age. Houses Made of Bones of Whale and Skins

Quebec, Sept. 13—There has been discovered upon one of the islands of Hudson Bay the remnant of a lost tribe of Esquimaux, a community which has been for centuries without intercourse with any other representatives of the human species, and whose members never, until quite recently, had an opportunity of seeing a white man. The facts of the discovery are well established, having been reported to the Federal authorities at Ottawa by the Rev. A. W. Buckland. Mr. Buckland says that these strange people still virtually live in the stone age, knowing no metals. Their habitations are built entirely of the skulls of whales.

The home of the tribe is upon Southampton Island, a piece of water-girt land nearly as large as the State of Maine, lying at the extreme north end of Hudson Bay. These people or their ancestors have undoubtedly inhabited the island ever since pre-Columbian days, and at the present time they exist exactly as they must have done then. Having been isolated for so long a period it is natural that they should possess many peculiarities. A very remarkable collection of their utensils, weapons of the chase and other objects was secured by Mr. Buckland, but, to the great regret of the Canadian authorities, it was allowed by him to pass into the hands of private persons.

The huts on the island are built by putting together the great jaws of whales and then covering them with skins. In the middle of the primitive dwellings is a slight elevation, on which stands the stone lamp, employed for lighting, heating, cooking, and melting snow and drying clothes. This lamp is nothing more than an open dish of whale oil, with a wick of dry moss soaked in fat.

The whale is the chief means of subsistence of these poor people. They use the bone for many purposes, making plates and cups and toboggan-like sleds. They also manufacture sledges of Walrus tusks, with deer antlers for cross-pieces. The members speak a dialect peculiar to themselves, and they are the most daring of hunters. Not more than sixteen members of the tribe now survive.

TWO WARS

In telling the Boers that Great Britain based its treatment on them on the example of the United States toward the southern rebels, Mr. Chamberlain, perhaps, could not have been expected to acknowledge that there was one important difference which entitled the southerners to less consideration than the Boers may claim. Our civil war was not forced on the south by the federal government, as the South African war was forced on the Boers.—Buffalo Express.

No! The southern states wished to secede, which they had a perfect right to do, as the United States seceded from Great Britain some time before. The north could have let them go about their business; but self-interest dictated the other course, and the war was the consequence.

The Boers wanted to unjustly tax British outlanders and drive them into the sea. Like the south they had been preparing for war—only much more—and they became dangerous to the interests of Britain in South Africa. Britain could, of course, have let them go on with their anti-British work; but self-interest dictated the other plan, and war ensued.

Kruger could have avoided war by falling in with the ideas of Great Britain; Jeff Davis could have avoided war by falling in with the ideas of the north.

If there is any difference between these two cases we must confess that we cannot see it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The coal fight is announced to be to a finish, and the hard coal by all accounts will get to a finish beforehand.

Perhaps Mr. Tarte will be the Conservative leader yet. And the Conservatives would be in clover with a fighter like him in Quebec.

Lord Dundonald thinks our militia should be well trained in rifle shooting. That's a sensible idea. A volunteer force of first-class shots would be worth more than a volunteer force of fine dressers and good dancers. Show isn't everything in a volunteer force.

If Sir John Thompson were alive he might be wondering if the protectionists ever really wanted any mouldering branches lopped off. Upon the flourishing Canadian tree of to-day the protectionists would like to stick a lot of artificial boughs—the glue being other people's money.

Why shout for more tariff to "provide work in Canada, when the north-west shouts for five thousand more men at high wages to work at the harvest, and no response comes. Who is out of work in Canada, that is willing to work?

It might be well for the coal people to endeavor to gather unto themselves a lesson from history. Some nineteen or twenty years ago a very useful commodity known as dry codfish went up in price until instead of becoming the poor man's necessity it became the rich man's luxury. Then people learned to solace themselves with such poor fare as chicken and turkey and other food substitutes for the saltsome cod. The dry fish business had years of depression after and never quite recovered its old-time popularity. It is well not to compel the people to do without the particular article you make your frugal living by selling.

One beauty and absurdity of our bounty system is pointed out by the Hamilton Herald, which says: "It is an odd fact that the Dominion Iron and Steel Company is selling the bulk of its product in the United States. Canada gives huge subsidies for the manufacture of pig iron and steel on the supposition that Canadian iron and steel manufacturers cannot compete with American manufacturers; and here we have the Canadian manufacturers competing successfully with the Yankees in their own market." And it might be added that these Canadian manufacturers are being paid huge money by their fellow-Canadians in order to sell steel cheaper to the United States.

The brutal murder of those two men who were suspected of being miners going to work, but who were really strikers going out on a hunt, shows that John Mitchell's statement, that there is no interference with the liberties of the men in the mining region, and that they are free to work if they like, needs some modification. Those who shout that the mine owners should be made to operate the mines will now see the force of the obstacles in the way of resumption. The State must first see that the law is enforced and life and property made secure. The State seems to be the worst at fault when outrages of that kind are permitted.

Those ghastly jokes about men being asphyxiated in hotels where they are supposed to have blown out the gas," recall a case which occurred in Philadelphia during the Centennial Exposition of 1876, and which may not be the only one of its kind. A guest at one of the hastily constructed hotels was "found dead in bed, having blown out the gas," and the fresh and foolish smarties of the press indulged themselves in jesting at the fatal ignorance of people from Wayback who visit centres of civilization. This man, however, had friends, and they soon made it plain that it was no question of ignorance. Strict inquiry was made, and it was discovered that the case was one of gross carelessness on the part of the hotel servants. The visitor, as many visitors do, slept with the light burning. Late in the night the frugal management turned off the gas, turning it on again long before daylight so that guests could have light on that particular flat. Of course, when the gas was turned on, the room in which it had not been shut off when the meter supply was stopped soon filled it, and some hours later the unfortunate man was beyond help. Moral—always turn off the gas when you go to bed.

MINISTER MURDERS HIS WIFE

Horrible Crime Committed by a Baptist Clergyman

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 12 — One of the most sensational murders in the Southern portion of this state in many years occurred last night near Genoa, in Wayne County.

Neighbors heard a woman's screams issuing from the home of Morris Wilson, an aged Baptist minister, and hurrying to the scene found the old preacher in a death struggle with his wife. Her throat had already been cut and blood was streaming from the gaping wounds. Wilson himself with her dying form supported by his left arm was waving a bloody razor aloft with his right, and with his eyes turned toward heaven was calling out: "Without the shedding of blood there can be no remission of sin."

No hand was stretched forth to stop him as he calmly stepped out of the cabin. By the time the frightened spectators had recovered their senses he had disappeared in the woods in the rear of his home and no trace of him has yet been found. Wilson was one of the most respected ministers in this section of the state.

the spot where the other grasped it. The man on the box gave a wrench. Newcome twisted the other way, and the whip broke off short with a snap.

It was at this instant that Winifred Gray appeared in the doorway.

The snap of the breaking whip was sharp in the girl's ears. She did not know what to make of the thing that she saw, though it was clear that something extraordinary was happening—something in which her own cab and cabman were intimately concerned.

What she saw was a strange, silent struggle between a man on the box-seat beside the driver and a man below, who had pressed himself close to the wheel. That man she had seen before. It was the "bronze statue" she had wondered about, and pitied and admired all in a breath as she went into the theater a few hours—or was it years?—ago.

She saw the man on the seat raise the broken stock of the whip as if to strike. She saw the other seize his arm, and she saw the struggle that followed; the big fellow on the box, whose right arm was held fast, getting in one fierce, sudden blow with his clenched fist, but no more. The man on the pavement dodged his head like a practised boxer, and the vicious blow glanced along his forehead. Winifred's lips had parted to cry out "What has happened?" and the words were not uttered. Nobody spoke; but the crowd of idlers and loafers surged forward towards the combatants.

CHAPTER VI.

The Granting of a Wish.

The driver would have started his horse and got away if he could; but in the fraction of a second the tall, lithe fellow on the pavement realized his intention, snatched the reins and twisted them round his own wrist. Next instant the big man on the box gave a yelp of agony. The hand that clutched the whip-stock dropped limply; the left was thrown out blindly again in a mechanical attempt at retaliation that missed its mark, and, seeing his opportunity, the "bronze statue's" tactics changed. In a flash the hand that had grasped the other's limp right arm sprang to his neck, and, twisting in his coat-collar, wrenched the stout figure from its high seat, bringing it in a heap to the ground. Then it was jerked up again, tottering and staggering, pale lips cursing.

"You shall pay for this—I'll have you up for assault!" the man spluttered, his face yellow-white. "Confound you! You've broken my arm."

"Have me up, by all means," returned Newcome, politely, though his breath was coming and going quickly. "If you don't mind the circumstances getting out, I'm sure I don't. I've nothing to conceal."

"What's up here?" demanded George Anderson's voice; and, turning with a start, Winifred saw not only the manager, but his friend, Lionel Macaire.

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Newcome!" the actor went on. "Have you been getting into a row?"

Hope Newcome faced him frankly. If he had glanced at the millionaire instead, he would have seen a thing which Winifred saw—or thought that she saw—with surprise and bewilderment.

Lionel Macaire's eyes were not even for her. They had darted straight as a hawk darts upon its prey, to the face of the man whom Newcome had so forcibly unseated. The look was brief as a lightning flash, but full of concentrated passion.

Then the eyes traveled to the man with the wide-brimmed hat, resting upon him for an instant with an extraordinary, an unreadable expression. And both looks passed so quickly that a second later Winifred was hardly sure she had not magnified or altogether imagined their meaning.

"I think, Mr. Anderson, it won't amount to a 'row,'" Hope Newcome answered, wiping a trickle of blood from his forehead, where a sledge-hammer fist had struck, aiming for his temple. "I merely objected, on principle, to persons getting a drive on other people's cabs, that's all."

"The gent was a friend of mine," grumbled the frightened cabman, flinging his crumb of explanation to Winifred Gray, who was his employer. "I guv 'im permission to get up beside me, not thinkin' the lydy would object, when blow me if this 'ere bloke didn't come interferin'."

"The 'gent,' as you call him, paid for your friendship. I saw that—for it was clumsily done," said Newcome. "And if I might presume to advise the lady who has hired you, I would suggest that she asks for another driver to-morrow night."

Once the man who had stood nursing his broken arm looked at Mr. Macaire. In his bloodshot eyes was a question or an appeal, but it was unanswered. The millionaire stared through the great lumbering form as if it had been of thinnest air, his discolored face expressionless now as a mask.

With a mien of one ashamed and defeated, yet defiant still, the big fellow went lumbering off, muttering to himself as he walked. And, with him the crowd of onlookers began melting away. The fun was over for them, though it had been prime while it lasted. They had seen what they came for, and a good deal more besides. Of the principal actors in the scene, only Winifred looked after the departing one, noting with a glance of shuddering fascination the bull-neck and the formidable though slouching shoulders. Then her eyes came back to the "bronze statue."

"Thank you for your advice," she said, quite simply. "I shall take it. And thank you for what you have done—though I scarcely understand even now what it was."

"There is nothing to thank me for," answered Hope Newcome. "But—may I call you another cab?"

"It is not necessary to trouble you further," said Mr. Macaire, speaking for the first time since his appearance. "Mr. Anderson and I will see that Miss Gray is taken care of."

To save her life, Winifred could not help looking straight into Hope Newcome's eyes. Perhaps she was not wholly responsible for the message they conveyed, but to him they seemed to say: "I don't want them to do anything for me. I want you to do it."

Accepting the message, his hat in his hand, the young pauper replied to the millionaire like an equal. "I assure you it is no trouble, but a pleasure. If the lady will allow me, I should like to get her a cab."

Near by a footman was touching his

STOCK MARKETS

When Will the Cliques Sell Their Stocks?

New York, Sept. 13—When will the cliques sell their stocks? This is an important thing to know, and of interest to every stock operator. We therefore this morning have a few words to say relative to this matter, which may prove of interest. In Wall street, as elsewhere, people start out to sell their goods at the most propitious season, and when in their opinion the demand will be the greatest; consequently prices at their best. The demand should be best for stocks, and prices the highest, when the railway returns are being made and reported, which includes the weeks when the greatest amount of corn and wheat have passed over the transportation lines to market. This will be in January, February and March next, and in March and April the railway reports of earnings will show the greatest increases. At this time money will be as easy as an old shoe, and no fault will be possible to be found with the bank statements of that period. That will be the time when dividends will be increased in several instances, and it will look to the superficial observer as if it were to neglect ones family not to buy something. This is as certain to be true as is the fact that the straw hat manufacturers would put out their salesmen in the early spring in order to load up the retailer for the summer trade, rather than send him out in the fall. It is so because it is the most propitious time for the cliques to dispose of their holdings. Prices will then be much higher and the demand greater. Their chances for repurchasing at from five to ten points decline later on, for another advance, will be of the very best. The above logical argument then leads to the inevitable conclusion that it will be safe and advisable to be long of the market until the time the cliques prepare to temporarily close out some of their speculative earnings. Manipulation of the market will be calculated to make the highest market prices for the time. At about that period we hazard the opinion that Wall street houses will have more customers desirous of buying than at any time since the memorable Northern Pacific. Logic is a good thing to utilize when trading in the market. The conclusions drawn by intelligent minds from careful thought come pretty close to forecasting the future of the market.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

If the British government granted a tithe of the demands laid before Mr. Chamberlain by the Boer generals the Transvaalers would be considerably better off than if they had won the war.

The Boer generals evidently forgot something when they were drawing up their list of demands. They should have asked that the bad British Government indemnify the country for that million and a quarter sterling that old Kruger stole.

It is stated that by the end of the year the Grand Trunk Railway will have 775 miles of double line. The double tracking between Montreal and Niagara Falls will be completed by the end of November. The general manager has also stated that grades on the Chicago section have been so reduced that he believes the train loads can be materially increased.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company have issued a statement to the effect that the whole of the remaining 5 per cent. land grant bonds, amounting to $1,214,500, not yet redeemed, are now called in for redemption. Each bond will be redeemed at ten per cent. premium, and with accrued interest to date of redemption, provided it be presented for that purpose at the office of the treasurer of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at Montreal before the end of sixty days.

ONE MACHINE vs. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 50 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

Offers to the public the second allotment of $[illegible] worth of 6 per cent. first mortgage [illegible]-year Gold Bonds of the issue of $[illegible]. Out of the first allotment several of the stockholders subscribed to these bonds.

Denominations of these bonds are from $100 to $[illegible] each, and the money received from the sale of these bonds will be deposited in the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., of New York, who are Trustees for the bonds and Registrars for the stock to be used to build four Blast Furnaces to smelt precious metal ores, with an earning capacity of a daily net profit of $[illegible] a day. The bonds will be secured by the Company's entire properties and improvements.

Smelting profits are fabulous, and one can scarcely realize profits on Smelter's stock and bonds since the consolidation of the Smelters in America.

This Company offers its bonds at par, with a donation of stock as a bonus, which will be agreed upon to the purchaser of the bonds.

The officers of the Company are F. W. Warnock, Pres., Butte, Mont., who is largely interested in the best-paying mines in Montana; George Pope, Vice-Pres., of New York city, who is treasurer of the American Bicycle Co.; Joseph Johnston, Treas., Butte, Mont., who is the General Manager of the Montana Verde Copper Co.; Joseph Cooper, Esq., of New York city.

If you are interested and wish a safe, permanent income investment, which will grow and compound while you sleep, send your check or draft for $[illegible] to $[illegible] or more, made payable to the Montana Smelting & Refining Company, and let us send you by return mail the bonds and stock as agreed upon, given as a bonus.

The above offer is subject to prior sale, and will not be left open to the public very long, as this is a special offer to the public. The bonds will stand close scrutiny and investigation. Write for further information and particulars, [illegible].

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

COURT OF APPEAL.

Before Osler, Maclennan, Moss, Garrow, J. J. A.

Rex. vs. Crowley.—D. O'Connell (Peterborough,) for the prisoner, appealed from an order of Falconbridge, C.J., in Chambers, dismissing an application for her discharge from custody under a conviction by the Police Magistrate for the town of Peterborough, for being the keeper of a house of ill-fame, or bawdy house, in that town, and superseding the writ of habeas corpus on which the prisoner was brought up. She was sentenced to three months' imprisonment at hard labour, and to pay a fine of $75. The learned Chief Justice amended the conviction by reducing the fine for $50. Toronto Globe:—In the non-jury Assize Court yesterday Judge Lount dismissed with costs the action of the Stanley Piano Company v. Thompson and the Marcy Piano Company. Thompson was a former employee of the Stanley Company and subsequently joined the Marcy Company. He was alleged to have provided the latter firm with a No. 10 scale and pattern used by the Stanley Company. A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE

Medicine Not Needed in This Case

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows; his wide experience has proven to him that to some systems Coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health.

Ask the doctor if coffee is the cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life. I am now 42 years old, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, my doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee. I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading your advertisement of Postum Food Coffee, I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said, 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and that it was all it claimed to be.

So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and found in about two weeks' time I could sleep soundly at night and get up in the morning feeling fresh and well. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I only weighed 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age.

I am working every day, and sleep well at night. My two children were great coffee drinkers, but they have not drank any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before." Stewart M. Hall, Fairfield, W. Va.

RETURNING HOME

The following letter was received by Mrs. Murphy from her son who was wounded in South Africa, and who is now on his way home.

I am all right now, and they are giving me a month's sick leave. I will be home about October 1st. Hopin you are all well, I am your son

MICHAEL.

P.S.—They are giving me a pension—so much a day—but I do not know how much.

RACES TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW

They Promise to be a Big Success—Taylor and McGrath for It

The races today and tomorrow are being much talked about and undoubtedly they will be a big success. Every arrangement has been made to have it so. Care will be taken to have the track in the best condition possible and the events will be run off in a sportsmanlike manner. A large number of very fine horses have been entered, several of which have been in training here for weeks past. The programme starts at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

An event of great interest will be run off, probably today, if conditions are favorable. Taylor and McGrath, the two fast local sprinters, will meet each other in the 100-yards championship race for the Schneider challenge cup.

SILENCE!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of free consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Doctor R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"Having used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' during the past year," writes Mrs. Mattie Long, of Plouts Valley, Perry Co., Pa., "I can truthfully recommend these medicines for all female weakness. I have used several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' which I consider a great blessing to weak women. I was so nervous and discouraged that I hardly knew what to do. Your kind advice for home treatment helped me wonderfully. Thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

MUCH REAL DISTRESS IN THE TRANSVAAL

Special Agents to Take Provisions for the Relief of the Destitute

Will Deal with Matters Connected with Land Settlement in the Transvall—Japenese Satisfied with Treaty

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 15—It is feared says a Johannesburg correspondent that there are many cases of real distress in the Transvaal. The sufferers are, for the most part, families who remained on the veldt throughout the war, and who from false pride or other reasons did not come in at the conclusion of peace and obtain relief. Special agents have been appointed to hunt out these people. They will take provisions for the relief of the really destitute.

PERMANENT LAND BOARD.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 15—A commission has been appointed, says a Johannesburg correspondent, to consider and draft a scheme for the establishment of a permanent land board, which will make provision for the disposal of Crown lands and deal with numerous matters connected with the land settlement of the Transvaal.

MACEDONIA CONDITIONS MENACING.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 15—According to thoroughly reliable information, says an Athens correspondent, the state of Macedonia was never more deplorable than at present. The situation is distincly menacing and warrants the gravest anticipations fro next spring. Revolutionary committees appear to have gained firmer hold on the population than at any previous period. Turkish authorities are unwilling or unable to grapple with the situation seriously. In many cases the troops and police sent against insurgent bands take care to avoid a pitched battle. Should the bands have the necessary funds, they will find no difficulty in coming to an amicable arrangement with their pursuers. In Uskub the condition of the subject population is one of indescribable misery. The Albanians are supreme, and their arrogance, cruelty and rapacity become more intolerable every day.

HE WOULD FORTIFY CORSICA.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 15— M. Pelletan, Minister of Marine, has delivered a speech at Ajaccio, Corsica, which will make the hair of his colleague at the Foreign Office stand on end. He said Corsica was the central link in the chain binding African France and the mother country, and its eastern coast aimed straight at the heart of Italy. The Mediterranean was not a French lake, but it was too important for France not to take an extraordinary interest in it. Corsica was the guarantee of the security of France so it must be fortified. The correspondent says it would seem incredible that the French Minister of Marine should deliver such utterances, but their authenticity is attested by Temps.

JAPANESE SATISFIED WITH TREATY.

London, Sept. 15—The Japanese Trades Inquiry Society, says a Tokio correspondent, reports that it is satisfied with the revised British-Chinese commercial treaty and believes China will faithfully fulfill her engagements. The society considers, however, that the tariff ought to be reduced to 10 per cent., as Japan's present treaty gives her the right to import goods free of all inland charges, by paying a total of 7 1-2 per cent. To this 2 1-2 per cent. may now be added in consideration of China's financil straits. The society further urges special rates on coal, because it is consumed without going inland, and on Chinese cotton and cocoons, because they are urgently needed by Japan manufacturers. Finally, the society expresses the conviction that all vital issues have been maturely considered by Great Britain and that the treaty is therefore acceptable to Japan.

ANOTHER WAR CLOUD LOOMS ON THE HORIZON

This Time Britain and France and the Two Principal Nations Involved

Careful Diplomacy May Evade a Resort to Arms—The Siamese Situation Menacing

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 16.—Now that the Chinese difficulties seem, for the time being at least, in the way of settlement, another cloud is rising in the Far East which may make a good deal of trouble between France and Great Britain. The victim is the King of Siam.

France was allowed to do as she pleased in Indo-China till she touched British territory and came into conflict with British interests in farther India. Diplomacy was brought in to put an end to friction, and its latest effort was the treaty of 1896, in which the interests of Great Britain and France were looked after rather than those of Siam. To the west and south a "sphere of influence" was left open to Great Britain, and to the east a much wider "sphere" to France.

Since then France has been trying to extend, not merely into what she looks upon as her "sphere of influence," but into Siamese territory, as Siam asserts. The British invasion has taken the quieter but more effective form of increased commercial activity.

Under ordinary circumstances diplomatic measures, probably at the expense of Siam's territory, would be the outcome, as will very likely be the case now. The French jingo party, which has been trying to stir up feeling against England for some years past, with its exploitation of the Fashoda incident and its conduct during the Boer war, might force M. Delcasse and M. Doumergue to demands that England will not stand. The party and the anti-British feeling is not limited to the Nationalists alone. On the other hand, Lord Salisbury is no longer at the Foreign Office, and his successor may be unwilling to continue the laissez faire policy now that the war in South Africa is over.

Builds Up the System and Keeps You in Good Health

The Right Food For Young and Old, For The Strong and Weak

Malt Breakfast Food, a combination in proper proportions of the purest Malt and the choicest Wheat, partially cooked and predigested, is the great health-giver for young and old. Mrs. S. Price, Random South, Trinity Bay, Nfld., says:

"I consider it a pleasure to write of my experience with your splendid Malt Breakfast Food. It is, without doubt, the best of all grain foods for imparting strength to those who are weak and rundown. It has quite met my expectations in every particular. I may add, that your food is relished by every member of my family." All Grocers sell Malt Breakfast Food.

ANOTHER BINDER TWINE FACTORY

Big American Concern to Build Branch a Hamilton

Hamilton, Sept. 15—Hamilton has secured another big manufacturing concern. For months Assistant Commissioner Hall has been in correspondence with a rope, twine and thread firm in Philadelphia and during his absence Ald Dunn has carried on the work which has been completed by the company accepting the lease of a large manufacturing business in this city, and it will be at once fixed up, to accommodate the new business. The concern is a very large one, and its Canadian business will be a very important addition to Hamilton's industries. A representative of the company will be here shortly, when fuller particulars will be given out.

At the Opera House

The eminent tragedian, John Fay Palmer, and his company appeared in the Opera House last night when they presented "Pharoh, or the last days of Pompeii." There was a good audience present.

AUSTRALIAN TARIFF

The Duty on Machinery and Metals is a Moderate One—This is a Good Thing for Canadian Trade

Ottawa, Sept. 16—When the Australian tariff having passed the House of Representatives came before the Senate, the latter body made numerous suggestions looking to reductions. These suggestions were considerd by the Lower House and a very large number of them rejected. Two of them, however, having material interest for Canada were approved of, and now form part of the tariff. They are the duties upon machinery and metal of all kinds, which were finally fixed at 12 1-2 per cent. This moderate duty must enable Canada to find a valuable market there for her metals and manufactures of machinery. No other substantial reductions in the proposed tariff, as introduced into the Commonwealth Parliament were made, but about a dozen minor alterations in small details of the measure were adopted. The foregoing information was obtained from Sir Edmund Barton, who had just received it in a cable from the Acting Premier of Australia.

Mrs. Kendry:—

Dear Teacher,—As you are about to leave us, we feel that this, your last Sunday with your class, should not be allowed to pass without expressing our regret at your departure, and our appreciation of the help which, as our teacher and friend, you have given us. The hours spent with you on Sunday afternoons have been a source of of benefit as well as of pleasure to us, and we shall always remember with gratitude the work you have done and the pains you have taken to impart to us a knowledge of the Scriptures.

We therefore ask you to accept this gift, together with our warmest thanks for the past and our best wishes for the future.

The Father Consumption

Bad coughs, colds and catarrh are responsible for more consumption than is traceable even to heredity. Catarrhozone cures more quickly than ordinary remedies because it is the only antiseptic yet discovered that is volatile enough to reach the root in remote parts of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and impregnate every particle of the air breathed with its healing, germ killing vapor. Colds can't last ten minutes, or coughs more than thirty minutes when Catarrhozone is inhaled. It clears nose, throat and air passages at once, stops dropping, headache, and eradicates catarrh from any part of the system. Two months' treatment, $1.00; trial size, 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are Mild.

BURLEIGH ETC.

—The finances of the township are now in good shape—$1,200 back debts paid, four mills reduction in taxes this year and by Dec. 15th, when the financial statement will have appeared, the municipality won't owe a dollar and will have money to carry the affairs of the municipality on till 1903. Not only this, but next year No. 1 School section, (embracing Stony Lake island holders) will have three mills special off, as well as some reduction on the township. This is indeed gratifying, and shows that the council and its officers have been attending strictly to business.

—There is little news up here just now. Farmers have had a good year, and everybody is doing well.

—Mr. Wm. Galton, ex-Reeve, was in Peterborough last week, attending cheese board, and incidentally taking a look at the Peterborough Agricultural show, which he says is not up to Apsley show. He was accompanied by his cousin.

—Our cheese factory will have a good year, without doubt, as the output is large and prices high.

PEOPLE IN MARS ARE AWAY AHEAD

Have The Best of the World by a Million Years

CHICAGO ASTRONOMER'S VIEW

Considers That the Habitation of the Planet is Now More than a Mere Theory

Special to The Times.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—That a people superior in intelligence to those of the earth inhabit the planet of Mars is a conclusion that will be set forth by Prof. G. W. Hough, head of the Department of Astronomy of North-Western University, in a report of his summer's observations from the Dearborn Observatory. He asserts this as a probability based on recent discoveries, and adds that, of course, it can never be established positively.

The conclusion includes the acceptance of the theory of evolution, and the statements of leading astronomers that climatic conditions of Mars are the same as of the earth. The possibility of Venus and Mercury being inhabited is admitted because they have solidified, and the intense heat resulting from their proximity to the sun may have been overcome by a deeper covering of atmosphere. None of the other planets, in the opinion of the professor, could contain animal life.

FACTS NOT A THEORY.

The habitation of Mars, Prof. Hough asserts, is not a theory, but a conclusion based on facts.

"Astronomers have come to agree that animal life could exist on Mars," he said in discussing the question today. "It has been proven that climatic conditions on the planet are the same as on the earth. It has an atmosphere and is covered with a red vegetation. This much has been determined, but the largest telescope is not strong enough to enable the eye to see any sign there of animal life which may exist.

"It would be folly to suppose, however, that not only one but millions of solar systems would be created that a little planet like the earth might alone be inhabited. And since Mars and possibly Mercury and Venus are fit for habitation, reason tells us that people have been put there. The planets were not created merely to fly around in space."

SUPERIOR IN INTELLIGENCE.

Because Mars first became fit for habitation, Prof. Hough asserts that its people should have become much superior in intelligence to those of the earth.

"The Martians certainly had a long start of us, maybe a million years," he declares, "and certainly should be more intelligent than we are, if we accept the theory of evolution, as almost all scientists do. Because it is smaller, it solidified more rapidly than the earth, and whatever forms of life were meant to exist upon it were given a start while the earth was hot and still in a gaseous state.

"It will be impossible ever to know what form has been given to the inhabitants of Mars, but the fact remains that their home was prepared for them so long before ours that in the course of evolution they would surpass us in intelligence. I believe this view has been accepted as a possibility, but I believe that it is a probability.

"The fishworms or whatever other form of animal life from which we have evolved, were certainly not of a higher form than the first life of Mars, providing it was put there. Then why should the development of life on the other planet not be farther advanced?"

ONLY A DREAM.

Prof. Hough derides the theory of the possibility of ever establishing communication between the inhabitants of the earth and any of the other planets.

"That theory is visionary," he said, "and utterly impossible. There are no facts in our possession to warrant the belief that such an event will ever come to pass. It is beyond the imagination of even the most optimistic scientist. The people of Mars may be looking down upon us through superior telescopes with superior intelligence, but they can never communicate with us or we with them.

"There have been no startling discoveries in astronomy for a century, and probably will not be for a century to come. The conclusions that are drawn now result from gradual observations the gathering together of little bits of information from all over the world.

"It is certain that there is no animal life on any of the planets except the earth. Mars, Mercury and Venus, Jupiter, which is seven times as large as the earth, has a plastic surface of a substance of density half way between that of air and water. It is still in a gaseous state and undergoing the process of solidification that will make it fit for the reception of life."

SLOPEVILLE—DOURO.

Our enterprising pork merchant was greatly disappointed at not receiving that $10 gold piece that was awarded at the show fair for the best looking baby under four months old. There were only four competitors. But Mrs. McCauly's child was awarded the prize owing, the judges said, to the strain of the uncle's blood in him. (George Towns). Billy thinks it is more profitable to stick to his ordinary business than to raise babies for the show fair.

Our esteemed citizen, Mr. Lewis Sullivan, recently undertook to have his fine new colt photographed, and engaged an artist, who proceeded to the barn or "old fort" for the purpose. When the picture was produced it was found the horse had "moved out of the zone of the camera," and the picture shewed only the old fort and Pat Davy with pike on his shoulder. The picture cost Mr. Sullivan $1.50 all the same.

"The people's Jimmy" will again enter the field for the Reeveship in opposition to Mr. Moloney. Mr. McCliggott is very popular, and will no doubt again be returned.

ENGLAND FALLS FAR BEHIND

British Scientists Declare Germany Has Left Her in the Race

London, Sept. 15. —The dominant feature of the annual meeting of the British Association for the advancement of Science, which is now going on at Belfast has been the sharp arraignment of their countrymen by the leading minds of Great Britain for falling behind the rest of the world in education, energy, and enterprise. Prof. James Dewar and several other eminent men of science pointed out that while Englishmen have repeatedly discovered new scientific principles and laws of great importance, the practical application of them has been made by the Germans and Americans, who have left England hopelessly behind in reaping the advantages. All speakers agreed that the fundamental defects in the English system of education were chiefly responsible for the distancing of British in modern progress.

ENGLAND EXCITED.

Isaac N. Ford, in a cable to The New York Tribune regarding Prof. Dewar's address, says that it has caused more excitement in England than the revelations of German military science at Frankfort-on-the-Oder or Mr. Chamberlain's conference with the complaining Boer generals. Prof. Dewar is one of the most eminent men of science of the day, and is a great authority on practical chemistry. His tribute to the superior training of the German universities in chemical work and his demonstration that great industries have been taken away from England owing to the lack of education among the so-called educated classes have made a deep impression. It is a most formidible indictment of English educational processes, and is enforced by a plain statement of the magnitude of the commercial losses attributable to it. Prof. Dewars' deliberate confession that the German population has reached a point of general training and specialized equipment which England could not attain without two generations of hard and intelligent work is the highest compliment which the fatherland has received for many years.

TRUSTS CONDEMNED.

Another momentous subject discussed at the meeting was that of trusts and the shipping combine. Prof. Graham dealt with the beneficial effect and profit from a speculative point of view, but Prof. Ginsbury came out with a flat-footed condemnation of the Morgan combine for buying costly ships and attempting to pay dividends on a vastly inflated capital. Other speakers, including Sir Boadin Leech, Prof. Clarke and Sydney Young, were equally severe in their strictures and declared that the economic results of capitalist combinations would be detrimental to the interests of the working classes.

PETERBOROUGH RACES A GREAT SUCCESS

The First Day's Races Bring Out a Large Crowd to Witness the Different Events

Fred McGrath Wins the 100 Yard Dash from Taylor, Winning the Schneider Cup—Good Programme for To-Day

The first day of the Peterborough race meet brought out a large crowd to witness the races including a large number of ladies. The 57th Regt. band was present and took their place in the grand stand and rendered a fine programme between the different heats, which enlivened the proceedings of the day. The weather was fine but an objectionable wind blew throughout the day, and the track was in good condition.

Everything passed off without a hitch which speaks well for those who had the management of the races in hand. Peterborough has had a name in the past for good race meets but of late years no races have been held until the present one which will eclipse all other meets providing fair weather prevails and from this out horsemen and lovers of the turf will look forward to the Peterborough races as a coming event. The track is one of the best half mile tracks in Canada and with good management Peterborough will no doubt make a name for herself as one of the best towns in Canada for race meets.

To yesterday's races nothing but the highest commendation can be applied to the way the horses were started and the different heats pulled off. The horses were not kept waiting at the post, thus avoiding those disagreeable waits which are an abhorrence to the spectators and not a word of discontent was heard from anyone.

FOOT RACE.

The first event was a 100-yard running race, for the Schneider cup between Fred. McGrath and Taylor. Promptly at 2.15 starter Archie Moore gave the boys a word of advice and then fired off the pistol. McGrath jumped to the front and kept the lead winning by about two feet, time 10 2-5 seconds. In the second heat Taylor took the lead but McGrath passed him before he had gone 50 yards winning out in 10 1-2 seconds. Thereby winning the cup.

2.50 Trot or Pace

Starter Sid Passmore of Orillia, rang the bell and called the drivers to the stand and read the rules. In this class 14 horses entered but only 10 started. Nellie Billings, owned by O. B. Woodruff, Oshawa won the first 3 heats and the race.

Minnie Keswick, owned by George Curtis, Lindsay, ran second in first two heats and third in the third winning second money. Third money went to Commodore K., owned by Jas. Powell, Orillia and O Forsyth's Red Pat, of Stouffville carried away fourth place. Time 2.34 1-2.

2.22 Class Trot or Pace.

The 2.22 class brought our four starters and it is safe to say they furnished what was one of the most exciting and interesting races that has been around these parts for a long time. Little Buck, owned by W. A. Fanning, Cobourg, took the start followed close up by O. Forsythe's Rob Roy; Little Buck kept the lead doing the half in 1.08 1-2 and the mile in 2.21 1-4 with Rob Roy second, G. Barnum's Mat, of Mador 3rd, and Kitty R., owned by Owens of Campbellford, 4th; time 2.21.

The second heat was closely contested and the excitement ran high, when Little Buck and Rob Roy were neck and neck on the stretch, it made a close finish, Little Buck winning out with Rob Roy 2nd and Matt 3rd; time 2.26.

In the third heat Little Buck finished first, Rob Roy second and Mat third time 2.27 1-2.

Today's card shows a good list of horses and promises some exciting races, some of the best horses on the turf will be entered and a large crowd is looked for.

Following are the entries:—

2.30 — Nellie Billings, B. Woodrugg; Commodore K., Geo. Powell; Lilliputian, W. Simpson; Minnie S., Wm. Smith; Happy Teddy, J. Yeomans; Babylein, R. H. Abott.

Free-for-all—Red Pat. Martin; Little Buck, W. Fanning; Hal Forest, D. Forsyth; John R. Gentry, McKinnon. Rob Roy, H. Forsyth.

Road race—Prince Hal, J. Elmerst; Kitty R., D. Owens; Catalac, W. Leahy; Graham, G. Graham; Fairlane, Dr. Bradd; Dairyman, T. Hetherington.

DOUBLE DROWNING IN PORT HOPE LAST NIGHT

Special to The Times.

Port Hope, Sept. 16—A very sad drowning accident occurred here last night, that has cast a gloom over the whole community, when two young ladies, Miss Hadden and Miss Trawn were drowned, and two narrowly escaped drowning—Miss Embleton and a young sister of Miss Hadden.

The accident occurred about seven o'clock.

The young ladies had been out rowing and on their return were about to disembark at the landing near the pier when their boat capsized, and had it not been for the timely efforts of Mr. Fox who plunged into the water and rescued Miss Embleton and the youngest Miss Hadden all four would have been drowned.

The bodies of the other two young ladies were taken out of the water and doctors worked for upwards of two hours to resuscitate them but with no avail; life was extinct.

The eldest Miss Hadden was 20 years of age and Miss Trawn 18. The two that were rescued Miss Embleton and Miss Hadden were 17 and 24 respectively.

The very sad accident has caused a dark cloud of sorrow to hang over Port Hope as the young ladies were highly respected.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

New York, Sept. 13—According to Thomas P. Fowler, President of the Ontario and Western Railway Company, it will be two years and a half before all the demands for coal can be satisfied, so great is the shortage caused by the strike.

In the annual report of his road, dated August 12, Mr. Fowler made the statement that up to that time the shortage for all companies was 13,500,000 tons, and it was predicted that if the strike continued to the middle of August the deficiency in supply would reach 20,000,000 tons.

Coal merchants who have kept a close watch on the situation said that the attempts of Senators Quay and Platt to break the deadlock had completely failed, and that the present plan of the operators to resume mining gradually as their men tire of the strike will not begin to meet the demand for coal. They say that widespread distress will follow if this course is adhered to. The present production of 17,000 tons daily they declare to be only a drop in the bucket, as five months' idleness has left the market short over fifteen million tons.

Mr. Fowler's statement was in a supplemental report on the coal situation attached to the annual report of the Ontario and Western. It outlined what is practically the attitude of all the coal road presidents, continued resistance to the demands of the miners.

LEADERS BLAMED.

Mr. Fowler placed the blame for the strike entirely on the miners' leaders, and said there was no discontent among the men.

"The strike was not brought about by general discontent, lack of work, or reduction of wages" said Mr. Fowler, "but was, in a large measure, the result of agitation on the part of labor leaders, who for the purpose of retaining power over the rank and file are periodically obliged to present demands or gain concessions of some sort from employers.

"The leaders of the United Mine Workers' organization pretended in every way possible to avoid a strike, but their professions, when compared with their proclamations and actions, throw grave doubts upon the honesty of their pretences and purposes. Their effort to destroy the properties by calling out the engineers, firemen and pumpmen, and other employes whose duty it is to prevent destruction by fire and flood has been an object lesson in recklessness and malignity which fully refuted whatever claims those men had previously made for candor and conservatism."

"Steadfast resistance to all demands on the part of the operators involves considerations of discipline and safety and future economical and successful operation of the properties from a financial standpoint, as well as in the public interests."

Families returning from summer vacations are now making urgent demands upon the dealers for coal for domestic use.

With yards stripped bare and no domestic coal arriving, the situation is becoming alarming. Hotels are paying $11 and $12 a ton for steam size, and with practically no domestic coal arriving, further advances are looked for. Wholesale prices have remained stationary for a week. Stove coal was quoted at $10.50 "alongside" yesterday, and egg coal at $11. The official retail price remains at $10.

Announcement was made that Madison Square Garden has been engaged for a public indignation meeting on the coal strike next Saturday evening. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Miners' Defense Fund Committee, appointed some weeks ago by the Central Federated Union. Prominent labor leaders, including President Mitchell, will speak.

THE CAPE TOWN CRISIS

Only moderation and good sense on both sides of the Cape Assembly can avert a serious political crisis, which may make the state of peace almost as difficult in its way as the war so recently closed. In the population of Cape Colony the Dutch are largely in the minority. They number thirty-nine members of the Assembly to thirty-three Progressives and seven Independents, four of the latter being of mixed blood. The present deadlock has been brought about by the question of whether the Premier, Sir Gordon Sprigg, shall be indemnified by the Legislature against impeachment for having refused to call the House for more than a year, which it was his legal duty to do. The Progressives, or British party are opposed to this measure, and the Premier relies upon the Dutch members, representing the Afrikander Bond, to indemnify him, in return for his resistance to the demand that was made for a suspension of the Cape constitution for an indefinite time, pending the restoration of the public business without the irritation of politics. There is reason to believe that the Premier was personally not adverse to the suspension of the constitution, but that in opposing such a measure, he acted in accordance with the prudential counsel of Mr. Chamberlain who in view of the colonial meetings in London, on the occasion of the coronation, felt that the exercise of such power might be regarded by the Colonial Premiers with dislike. Sir Gordon Sprigg therefore feels himself justly warranted in demanding a vote of indemnity, which would spare him the humiliation of a trial on another issue. And that he is confident of securing it is evident by the firm attitude which he holds in the House, refusing to budge in order to effect a reconciliation with the Progressive party. The Afrikander Bond is the party created by Mr. Hofmeyer, of Cape Colony, having for its war cry "Africa for the Afrikanders," that is, for the settlers of Dutch descent. The object of this association has been to foment the Boer spirit, and to exercise it in the political field in a way to make that party paramount. It has been successful to the point indicated above, showing that with the Independents won over, they have even now a clear control of Parliament. The Loyalists professed to foresee a warm assertion of the Boer spirit on their part, and to apprehend a display of heat and irritation in the effort to carry on Parliamentary procedure immediately following the war. They asked that the constitution be set aside until the racial rancors incident to the war in the Transvaal might be partly allayed. It would doubtless have been useful to the authorities to dispense with the Parliamentary cauldron for a few years. But the experiment was not one for the Government of Great Britain to formulate or seem to favor, either in South Africa or in respect of any other self-governing colony, no matter what the place of utility. It would not do in Canada or Australia, where the people are intensely loyal, and it would be especially dangerous among a people permeated with latent hostility. Sir Gordon Sprigg, in opposing suspension, stood on the ground that was midway in the direction of moderation and peace. Were he alive, there is no doubt Cecil Rhodes would on this point be in his support. It is rather unfortunate that the Progressives are headed by Dr. Jamieson, of the "raid" fame. The conception, conduct and issue of that adventure does not fit him for the even display of "moderation and sense," so needful in bringing order out of chaos. That he is so strongly and unitedly supported by the loyal party, however argues that a robust leadership is demanded by the times. If the Afrikander gay is to be stemmed and made amenable to reason.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Americans are laughing at an American admiral who, during the mimic attack upon New York, ceased making war for a time that he might entertain an American lady with a British title—resuming the bombardment after the lady had gone. But that is not a bit funnier than a feature of the celebrated naval battle in Manila Bay, where Admiral Dewey ordered the fleet to cease firing that the men might have breakfast.

NEWFOUNDLAND LOYAL

Has no Desire to Be Annexed To the United States

New York, Sept. 12—Sir Robt. Bond, premier of Newfoundland, who has been in Washington for negotiations relating to the Newfoundland fisheries, left for Newfoundland yesterday. Of his negotiations he would not speak, but of the possible annexation of Newfoundland to the United States he said:

"Newfoundland is as loyal to the mother country to-day as it ever was, and if there is any sentiment in favor of annexation to the United States it certainly has never been openly expressed by the people to my knowledge, although the idea has not infrequently suggested in foreign newspapers. If such a feeling does exist to any extent—and, of course, it is quite possible—I am pretty sure it has not been strengthened by the present attitude America is taking in her dealings with Cuba. The vast natural resources of Newfoundland practically assure it at least commercial independence. The country, too, is prosperous, and its people are industrious and contented and well able to develop the resources at their command. Certainly not one iota of good would result in changing the present integrity of the island, and this fact its people have intelligence enough to foresee."

Offers to the public the second allotment of $50,000 worth of 6 per cent first mortgage 20-year Gold Bonds of the issue of $500,000. Out of the first allotment several of the stockholders subscribed to these bonds.

Denominations of these bonds are from $100 to $500 each, and the money received from the sale of these bonds will be deposited in the U S Mortgage & Trust Co., of New York, who are Trustees for the bonds and Registrars for the stock to be used to build four Blast Furnaces to smelt precious metal ores, with an earning capacity of a daily net profit of $3,100 a day. The bonds will be secured by the Company's entire properties and improvements.

Smelter profits are fabulous, and one can scarcely realize profits on Smelter's stock and bonds since the consolidation of the Smelters in America.

This Company offers its bonds at par, with a donation of stock as a bonus which will be agreed upon to the purchaser of the bonds.

The officers of the Company are F W Warnock, Pres., Butte, Mont., who is largely interested in the best-paying mines in Montana; George Pope, Vice-Pres., of New York city, who is treasurer of the American Bicycle Co.; Joseph Johnston, Treas., Butte, Mont., who is the General Manager of the Montana Verde Copper Co.; Joseph Cooper, Secy., of New York city.

If you are interested and wish a safe, permanent income investment, which will grow and compound while you sleep, send your check or draft for $100 up to $10,000 or more, made payable to the Montana Smelting & Refining Company, and let us send you by return mail the bonds and stock as agreed upon, given as a bonus.

The above offer is subject to prior sale, and will not be left open to the public very long, as this is a special offer to the public. The bonds will stand close scrutiny and investigation. Write for further information and particulars, if you want a large block.

The Moonstone Sphinx

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

tall hat. Mr. Macaire's carriage had arrived.

"Come along, Anderson," he said, shrugging his shoulders. Both men bowed low to Winifred; Anderson nodded to Newcome, Macaire gave him another curiously contemplative look, and then the two were shut up by the footman in the millionaire's carriage.

"Ain't you goin' to have me, miss?" whined the driver. "None of this business ain't my fault."

"You can send in your bill to-morrow morning, and I'll pay you what is due," said Winifred. "But—— I sha'n't want you again. I'm afraid I can't trust you after this."

Mumbling, he drove away, the five pounds he had earned so easily partially consoling him for the business he had lost.

Not far away was the corner of the street, crossed by a wider thoroughfare; and there cabs plied for hire. As the vehicle just discharged vanished in one direction a wave of Hope Newcome's hand—he standing in the middle of the street—brought a hansom round the corner and up to the stage-door.

"Do you mind its not being a four-wheeled one?" he asked.

"No," replied Winifred. "I like it better—for to-night; it's quicker. But won't you tell me, now the other cabman's gone, exactly what he did that was wrong, and—how you happened to notice it at all?"

"I overheard that big fellow trying to bribe him, and though I couldn't catch much that they said, it was easy after the first to put two and two together," answered Newcome. "For some reason the man wanted to drive on your cab, and—well, I thought you wouldn't wish him to if you understood. So I suggested that he should get off, and when he wouldn't I took him off, that's all."

"I should think you did!" Winifred's mood was far enough from merriment, but she broke into a little laugh over his quiet way of explaining the thing that he had done—also at the expression of mingled bewilderment and alarm on the withered-apple face of her maid.

She let Newcome help her into the hansom, but it was the maid who told the new cabman where to drive. Then, with a smile and a last murmur of thanks, she was gone out of his sight.

"I'd give a good deal to know what that brute's real object was," the young man said to himself, as wistfully he watched the hansom drive round the corner and disappear. "Did he only want to find out where she lived, or was there something more? Was he doing it on 'his own,' or was there someone else behind him? Well, anyhow, whatever it was, it didn't come off. And he'll give a job to a surgeon before he gets into any more mischief. I was in luck to have done it, out of training as I am; but I felt the small bone of his arm snap—and serve him right."

Hope Newcome walked away, turning his face southward, for his lodgings were beyond the bounds of polite civilisation, on the wrong side of the river. As he crossed Waterloo Bridge, the moon—honey-yellow in a hyacinth sky—hung over the water, its broken reflection like a fallen cup of gold that drifted down the river with the tide.

The young man stood still, and looked back with a strange, new ache in his heart, at the London that he had left, its buildings stately, almost repellently splendid, silhouetted against the sky in the moon-paled darkness. He was thrust out of that splendor, not wanted. He was poor, and alone, and the mission on which he had come seemed as far from him in its accomplishment as the moon was from the black water. Yet the water was swift, and it caught and held the moon's image.

He was young, and poverty—even a knowledge of hunger unsatisfied—had not silenced the high song of his blood, or chilled its warmth. He did not despair. And though he had met disappointment to-night, in seeking the first round of the ladder, still, he had seen a face fair enough to brighten darkness, and he had had his wish. He had asked of Fate that he might serve Winifred Gray; and he had served her. Though they never met again, she would not quite forget.

• • • • • •

The thought of home was like balm on a wound to Winifred that night. She and her mother had taken a small flat near Bryanston Square, and when the hansom stopped before the door of Bryancourt Mansions, the girl looked up to the lighted windows as she might have looked for a star.

Her mother knew the time when she was to be expected back from the theater to the moment, and never missed hearing the roll of the cab-wheels, the clatter of the horse's feet in stopping at the pavement. By the time that Winifred was half-way up the third and last flight of stairs, the door of the flat was open, and the little mother smiling in the light that streamed out to gladden "Winnie's" eyes.

To-night, it seemed a bad omen to the girl that the drawing-room windows with their red silk shades should glow but faintly, and the door be shut. The maid had the latchkey in the tiny black bag which contained her mistress's few bits of jewelry, and used it for almost the first time since the flat had been home to the young actress.

CHAPTER VII.

In Twos and Threes.

Winifred ran quickly in, leaving her maid to fasten the door of the flat, and it was a great relief to see her mother's small, thin figure appear at the drawing-room door.

"Winnie, darling, I didn't know you'd come. I'm so sorry," cried the voice that had always been to Winifred the sweetest in the world. "I heard a cab, but it was like a jingling hansom. I was sure it wasn't yours."

This was explanation enough; but the girl's sensitive ears detected something unusual in the tone—a kind of deadness, as if all the joy notes had been struck out of it.

"I came in a hansom to-night." If Winifred's heart had not been heavy she would have added a curiosity-piquing word about her adventure, but (except for her knight-errant, whose dark face she had not been able to put out of her mind all the way home) the affair appeared pitifully trivial beside the other overwhelming occurrence of the evening. Of this she had meant to speak, telling her mother all that Macaire had said and all that she had said in answer; but the change in the dear voice frightened her. First,

STOCK MARKETS

Prospects for Current Week

New York, Sept. 15.—Confidence and hope continue to go hand in hand as far as the leaders of the current market are concerned. There is no diminution of interest, and inquiry for stocks continues to expand. Our house, with its many offices, note material increase in correspondence from investors, who are apparently becoming interested and preparing to make further purchases. They have about made up their minds that they have been making a mistake in deferring placing purchasing orders, thinking that closer money was going to bring about concessions in prices. This week will see many orders of this character placed with the Wall street Houses. Commission Houses almost unanimously report an increase in orders to purchase stocks at fractions below current prices, and anticipate that should the market continue to remain as strong as it has done recently, limits will in many instances be raised or made at the market.

Specialists in various issues, who deal exclusively in them for account of fellow members of the Stock Exchange, report an increase in the volume of their open orders to buy, and many cancellations of open orders left with them to sell. The owners have evidently made up their minds to hang on to their property for better prices. These little straws ofttimes strongly indicate the future of prices.

Seats in the New York Stock Exchange again sold last week at $80,000, which is the higest price on record. This is a profit of great significance when considering the market and its future probabilities. People do not pay $80,000 simply for a privilege to do business, as it were, unless they anticipate there will be business to do, and in sufficient volume to make it profitable enough to pay such a price, in addition to providing the capital to carry it on.

Money situation controlled the day's speculation. As is always the case in Wall street when money is high, the trading carried from broker accounts. We reiterate or advice to buy on scale, say on every 1-2 point down, and in our opinion the breaks are pretty near over. The short interest is materially increased, and will probably be squeezed by the bull party later on. The selling scattered, it is an excellent opportunity at present for prospective purchasers. Sugar was exceptionally strong to-day, actually rising over 2 points, while the balance of the market was recessional. Don't be afraid to buy standard issues at the present time. They will all be higher again and very shortly. Money closed offered 6 per cent. last loan at 5 per cent. Sales 644,000.

ONE MACHINE vs. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 50 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the most valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

Died in Toronto

Much regret will be felt at the death of D. H. Hooley, formerly of Peterborough, which took place at the Deer Park Sanitarium, Toronto, on Sunday. The deceased was only eighteen years of age. The remains were brought to Peterborough yesterday morning and the funeral will take place from the residence of his grandmother, Mrs. Sharpe, 346 Dublin street, this afternoon at three o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Valuable Advice to Mothers

If your child comes in from play coughing or showing evidences of an approaching attack of Grippe, Sore Throat, or sickness of any kind, first thing get out your bottle of Nerviline. Rub the chest and neck with Nerviline, and give internal doses of ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water every two hours. This will prevent any serious trouble. No liniment or pain reliever equals Polson's Nerviline, which is a necessity in every household. Large bottles cost only 25c.

An Old Verdict

An interesting law suit was recently decided in Toronto to the advantage of an enterprising widower. So poor was he while his wife died that he was obliged to apply to the authorities to defray the expenses of burial. But after the undertaker had been appointed the man remembered that he had an old account against him. He therefore entered claim and attached the money due from the town to the undertaker for his wife's funeral expenses. The authorities pleaded in vain that the account due the undertaker was for the benefit of the plaintiff. The court ordered payment to the plaintiff of the full amount of claim.

—Here is an extract from a girl's essay, picked up near the Central school and lent to The Times for publication:—"People are composed of boys and girls also men and women. Boys are good till they grow up and get married. Men who don't get married are no good either. Girls are young women who will be ladies when they graduate. Boys are an awful cept soap. If I had my way half the bother; want everything they see except boys would be girls, and the other half dolls. My mamma is a woman and my pa is a boy. A woman is a grown up girl with children. My pa is such a nice man that I guess he must have been a girl when he was a little boy.

The Critical Time of Life

Is between the years of fifty-seven and sixty-two. Nature's power slows down, vitality becomes less, and the progress of decay sets in. A means of extending old age and renewing decreasing vigor is to take Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone keeps up the appetite, and in the formation of red, vitalizing blood, imparts clearness to the tiring brain, force, energy and spirits just when they are needed most. To take Ferrozone regularly means adding from ten to twenty years to life. Large boxes 50c., or 6 boxes for $2.50, at Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Abusing Livery Horses

"The man who abuses a dumb animal is a cur and a coward," said a liveryman to a Times reporter yesterday, "and the people should know who he is and how to treat him." These strong remarks arose from abuse of livery horses which had taken place between Peterborough and Lakefield. And the liveryman is right. Some young men appear to think they have a license to drive a livery horse until it is ready to drop from exhaustion. Livery keepers would do well to make an example of the youths who take no thought of the power of endurance of the faithful animals entrusted to their care. Societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals have but little chance of catching young rascals who overdrive horses, and this kind of cruelty is far more prevalent than people dream of. Transgressors along this line should be brought to book whenever they are caught.

A Novel Ball

The Lindsay Post says: About fifty of our young people, chiefly members of last winter's Ping-Pong Club, attended the Hard Times Ball at the Academy of Music, and spent a very enjoyable time in dancing and other amusements. The gentlemen were dressed in costumes of the out-of-work period, while the ladies wore bicycle skirts and shirt waists. Messrs. J. Walker and L. Paton dressed as ladies, and looked very charming and deceptive. There were over twenty dances on the program, with several extras. The music was supplied by the Misses Hurley, of Peterboro. Mr. Fred. Taylor was caterer, and served a fine supper about 12 o'clock. Messrs. E. Whalley, W. Steers, O. Dyke, A. Simpson, B. McAlpine and Dr. Day comprised the committee who organized and managed the affair. All wore the same sort of costume viz., tattered overalls, loose shirt, dark or white boots, cotton dress coat and bandana neckcloth.

A GIRL'S PROBLEM

How To Feed Herself When Running Down

"I am a stenographer!" That statement brings up a picture of long hours of tiresome indoor confinement, close mental concentration and subsequent exhaustion and brain fag. Then comes up the food question.

A young lady of Dayton, Ohio, writes, "Some time ago I was a stenographer in a large city retail store and having the responsibility of the office work resting largely upon me my health began to gradually decline, and I stood facing the difficult problem of finding relief of some kind or leaving my situation. Worry added to my trouble; I became dyspeptic and nervous and suffered with insomnia and restlessness at night.

I was speaking of my illness one day to a trained nurse, who recommended that I begin a systematic diet of Grape-Nuts at once as she had seen its beneficial effect upon several of her patients who had suffered as I did.

So I began to use the food conscientiously. It formed my entire breakfast with perhaps Postum Coffee or some other nourishing drink and a second dish was taken at the evening meal. In about two weeks time I began to feel stronger and more hopeful; my digestion and appetite were better; I was less nervous and could sleep. I continued the diet steadily and soon courage and vitality began to revive and once more I began to think success lay somewhere in this big world for me.

My work grew smoother and easier and after seven months of this diet I could do almost twice the amount of work in a day and do it easily and without feeling exhausted.

To-day I am filling a much more responsible position and do the work easily and satisfactorily. I attribute it all to Grape-Nuts which I still continue to use. For a palatable and healthful diet, there is nothing on the market to equal it, and the fact should become of common knowledge." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Interesting Items.

A salmon weighing 300 pounds is not to be found every day. It is therefore interesting to learn that such a huge fish was caught with hook and line off Gabarus Harbour, near Sydney, Nova Scotia, a short time ago. Being too large to be taken into the boat, it was towed from the fishing ground to the harbor. The men were codfishing at the time.

The State Legislature of New York has authorized the authorities of New York City to plant trees in the tenement districts. In this connection it is pointed out that it is not shade alone that makes it cooler under a tree in summer. The coolness of the tree itself helps, for its temperature is about forty-five degrees, Fahrenheit, at all times, as that of the human body is a fraction more than ninety-eight degrees. So a clump of trees cools the air as a piece of ice cools the water in a pitcher.

"Don't spit on the sidewalks!" is the new command of the New York Board of Health. Three years ago the board began its anti-spitting crusade by forbidding expectoration upon ferry-boats, trolley and elevated cars, and in car stations; and now the side walks are to be protected. The justification of these measures is the statement that twenty years ago almost six deaths in every hundred in New York City were caused by tuberculosis, whereas last year the deaths from this cause numbered only about two and a half in the hundred.

According to the statistics gathered by the United States Weather Bureau, 712 persons in the United States were killed or fatally injured by lightning during the year 1900. Of these 291 were struck under the open sky, 158 in houses, 57 under trees and 56 in barns. The circumstances attending the death of the remaining 151 victims were not ascertained. During the same year 973 persons were injured by lightning, but survived. The Bureau, upon statistics extending over 10 years ending with 1900, estimates the average annual number of deaths from lightning at from 700 to 800.

An engineer of Zurich, L. Thormann, reports, after a careful examination, that sufficient electric power could be developed from the waterfalls of the Alps to run all the railways of Switzerland. There would be little or no reduction of cost, he says, but the time may come when the change from steam to electricity may be desirable, because Switzerland has to import all the coal she uses. From 21 waterfalls, some of which are already partially utilized for industrial purposes, 86,000 horse-power could be developed, but only 60,000 horse-power would be required to replace the steam-power now used on the railroads.

Ruined by a Pig.

Fiction narrates many incidents wherein animal pets figure as causes of the ruin or salvation of their owners. In real life such instances are by no means rare. Not long ago there died in an English workhouse a man named John Evans, who, ten years ago, was a prosperous farmer, but who was brought to poverty by a pig. One day John discovered that his pigsty needed patching up, so he transferred his pigs to a hastily constructed enclosure under an old shed. The mother pig began rooting around and turned up some ancient gold pieces. There was a legend that the farm had once been the site of an old monastery, and that in the troublous times of the eighth Henry the monks had hidden their treasure in the garden. What more natural than that John should think his pig had discovered the hiding place of the monkish gold? He gave up working his farm and devoted all his time to digging about the barnyard, pulling down old walls and generally taking up the profession of a treasure-seeker. His spare time was spent in looking over old manuscripts, trying to find some records of the former owners of the place. His business went to pieces, his men robbed him and he was eventually a pauper and went to die in the poorhouse—all on account of that pig who turned up the gold pieces.

Kitchener's Aversion For Monocles.

Monocles are plentiful in Cape Town, but in Johannesburg and Pretoria they are conspicuous only by their absence. "K" does not like them. Captain ——— of a famous cavalry regiment, out of all the swell officers, alone refused to give up his monocle for anybody. It was the current report in the regiment that he wore it in bed and also when he took his bath.

One day Lord Kitchener met the single pane officer outside the Transvaal Hotel in Pretoria. "One minute, captain," said the commander, "may I ask if it is absolutely necessary for you to wear that glass in your right eye?"

"Yaas, certainly, Lord Kitchener—er—er—I could not see without it."

"I am sorry to hear that, Captain ———, as I intended to give you a staff appointment, but I must have men around me who can see well. Kindly report yourself for duty to the officer commanding the lines of communication."

The discomfited cavalry officer obeyed the instructions. Three months afterwards he was taken prisoner by the Boers, who stripped him of his clothing and sent him back to camp, still attired in his eye-glass, but in nothing else.

Could Not Speak English.

One of the most common faults among those who speak incorrectly is the misuse of English prepositions. "Different from" becomes "different to" in the popular speech of England, and, too often, "different than" in America. The New York "Times" mentions a queer juggling of prepositions, the achievement of two small boys.

"William," asked the teacher, "why were you absent from school this morning?"

"Oh, some'un stole me coat on me."

"What's that? Stole your coat 'on you'?"

"Aw, he can't talk English," said William's brother James. "He means some'un stole his coat off 'im."

"It says here, Samanthy, that Reverend Toogood was a saloon passenger on the 'Majestic.' Beats all how them preachers do cut up when they git away from hum."—"Judge."

HANDICAPPED.

The man who started to run a race in chains and fetters would be visibly handicapped. No one would expect him to succeed. The man who runs the race of life when his digestive and nutritive organs are diseased is equally handicapped. In the one case his strength is overweighted, in the other it is undermined. Success demands above all else a sound stomach.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When this is done food is perfectly digested and assimilated and the body receives strength in the only way in which strength can be given—by the nutrition derived from digested and assimilated food.

"The praise I would like to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I cannot utter in words or describe with pen," writes James B. Ambrose, Esq., of 1205½ Mifflin Street, Huntingdon, Pa. "I was taken with what our physicians here said was indigestion. I doctored with the best around here and found no relief. I wrote to you and you sent me a question blank to fill out, and I did so, and you then advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took three bottles and I felt so good that I stopped, being cured. I have no symptoms of gastric trouble or indigestion now."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good."

Australian Public Servants and Labor Party Against Retrenchment

Railway Rolling Stock for Africa—Large Order Placed in England Mount Pelee Growls Growing Less

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 15—A Melbourne despatch says the election campaign is proceeding vigorously. The Ministry is receiving widespread support and Opposition is demoralized Public servants and the labor party are secretly combining to oppose the candidates who favor retrenchment.

PREMIER IRVINE'S MANIFESTO.

Special to The Times.

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 16 —Following the dissolution of the Victorian Parliament today in consequence of an adverse vote recently on the Government's schemes for retrenchment, the Premier, W. H. Irvine issued a manifesto to the electors appealing to them to prevent their own servants from paralyzing the Administration. He said that in order to avoid a serious dificit the Government decided on a graduated reduction of the salaries of public servants, and that thereupon the mass of the State amployes became rebellious, a strike on the State railroads was openly organised and in consequence of the pressure brought to bear on them by the malcontents the assemblymen voted against the Government.

VOLCANIC GROWLS DIMINISHING.

London, Sept. 16.—A despatch to measures to assist the sufferers ha o The Times from Martinique saysthat the growls from Mont Pelee are finally diminishing. The volcano is still in eruption, but its activity is now insignificant. All necessaryve been taken by the Government. The native population is calming down. It is the opinion of cool observers that Fort de France is in no way menaced even if a tidal wave comes.

CENTRAL AFRICA RAILWAYS.

London, Sept. 16—An order has been placed in England, says a Johannesburg correspondent, for 104 coaches, 28 engines, and 250 steel coal trucks for Central South Africa.

FRIENDLY TOWARDS ITALY.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 16.—In order to repair the damage done by the speech delivered by Pelletan, French Minister of Marine at Ajaccio, Corsica, says a Paris correspondent, French Newspapers whose authority is greatest in Italy, notably Journal Des Debats, publish articles expressing friendly sentiments toward Italy, which are undoubtedly sincere. The correspondent says it would be ridiculous if it were not somewhat serious thus to be obliged to apologise for ill-considered utterances of a responsible Minister. Debats talks of "These rancous utterances, in which allusion is made to everything without rhyme or reason; these cock and bull stories mingled with boasting; this general rakishness of manner."

TEMPORAL POWER OF THE POPE.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 16— Under the title "Catholics must continue to insist on the temporal power of Pope,' Vaterland, in article quoted by a Vienna correspondent, gives particulars of the hitherto secret communication issued by Cardinal Rampolla, Papal Secretary of State, last year by order of the Pope. The document reproves Italian Catholics for using such phrases as "Italian fatherland," and "national unity" without reference to the right of the Pope to temporal power, and also for suggesting that it is better to say nothing about this question now, but only raise it in the distant future, when the Christian democracy has educated the masses. Rampolla says Catholics must not lose an opportunity of vindicating distinctly and emphatically, the freedom and territorial independence of the Pope.

SHOT IN COLD BLOOD

A Barnardo Young Man Jealous of Adopted [illegible]

St. Thomas, Sept. 1[illegible]—Last Tuesday last James W. [illegible] son of H. O. Freeman, farmer, of [illegible] township, [illegible] county, was reported to have accidentally shot himself, and the body was buried with the usual ceremony. On Saturday Detective John Murray arrested Charles King on the charge of murdering the young man. The arrest was made after a confession by King. The murder was the result of jealousy, and was a most deliberate one. The murdered lad was [illegible] years old, and King was [illegible] man, aged 2[illegible], was a Barnardo home boy. The murdered lad had been adopted by Mr. Freeman when a babe, and had grown up to be such a useful assistant about the farm that King was very Jealous of Him.

The boys, however, got along well enough, and, if there were many differences, they were not markedly noticeable.

When the fatal shot was fired Mr. Freeman was about to leave for West Lorne with a load of peaches, and King went in and told Mrs. Freeman that James had accidentally shot himself. The lad was found seated astride of a shaving horse in the loft of the drive-house, his head hanging forward, his arms hanging by his side, and bleeding from a wound in the head over the right eye. Death came soon afterwards.

The funeral took place on Thursday, but suspicions had been aroused, and Detective Murray was sent to investigate by the Attorney was sent to investigate by the Attorney-General. Mr. Murray arrived on Friday, and the body was exhumed. It was plainly seen that the shot was too much scattered to have been received from the muzzle of the gun while held in the hand of the deceased.

Under Strong Questioning

King broke down, commenced to cry, and admitted to the detective that he fired the shot himself. After receiving warning that anything he might say might be used against him, King repeated his story in the presence of Drs. Duncombe and Lawrence and Crown Attorney Donahue.

Not only did King confess the murder, but with a stick about the size of the gun he showed how when young Freeman had gone up into the loft to make a peg for the gate and was seated on the shaving-horse, he crept quietly upstairs until he could see Freeman, who could not see him, raised the gun and fired. He then put the gun away behind the drive-house door before giving the alarm. King also made his confession to Mrs. Freeman.

Said He Was Sorry.

for what he had done, and asked her to forgive him.

King repeated the story at the inquest, which was adjourned to meet again at Rodney today.

The self-confessed murderer, while not bright, and somewhat stunted in mind and body, is sharp, possessed of a low cunning, and by no means illiterate. He reads much, speaks fluently, and writes a fair hand. He does not, however, seem to realize the terrible position in which he has placed himself.

BRUTAL MURDER OF A BANKER.

Nicholas Fish Killed at a New York Saloon and by a Blow

New York, Sept. 16—The police are still seeking for the exact facts which led up to the death of Nicholas Fish, the banker, who was found with his skull fractured in front of a saloon in West 34th street yesterday afternoon, and who died early this morning in Roosevelt Hospital.

Mrs. Leroy J. Phillips, 30 years old; Mrs. Nellie Casey, 30 years old, and Thomas J. Sharkey, 40 years old, a private detective were arrested early today in connection with the case.

According to the police Mr. Fish entered Eckhardt's saloon, 230 West 38th street, yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Casey. The police say that Mrs. Phillips knew who Mr. Fish was, but that neither Mrs. Casey nor Sharkey, who subsequently joined the party, were aware of his identity. Sharkey, who knew the two women, was not reluctant to join the party when one of the women invited him to. The police say that Mr. Fish did most of the buying. Mr. Fish then discovered that his money was exhausted, and he announced that he would have to draw a check. Sharkey ignorant of Mr. Fish's identity, questioned his ability to make his check good. Mr. Fish, it is said, took offence at this and angry words ensued. Then, according to the police, some one slapped Mr. Fish's face. One of the women, clinging to Mr. Fish's arm dragged him toward the door of the saloon, and out to the sidewalk. The police say that Sharkey attempted to follow Mr. Fish, but was for a moment restrained from doing so by the other woman. He finally went out of the saloon and he and Mr. Fish encountered each other on the sidewalk.

There was a scuffle, by whom commenced it is not known. Mr. Fish fell or was knocked down, his head striking a flag stone. He was subsequently taken to the Roosevelt Hospital in an ambulance.

Mrs. Casey, Mrs. Phillips, and Sharkey were arraigned today in the Police Court and were held for the coroner. A detective told the sitting magistrate that the prisoners were arraigned as suspicious persons relative to the death of Mr. Fish.

Mrs. Casey denied all knowledge of the case. Mrs. Phillips when questioned about the case, said, "You'll find out later."

THE WEST IS IN LUCK

Fine Weather Continues for the Threshing Operations

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.—Warm weather blessed the threshers and the tail-end of the harvesting yesterday and predictions are for a continued bright season during the remainder of the month. Reports come of a large quantity of binder twine being used up owing to the heavy growth. A yield of 30 and 35 bushels are frequently reported. Complaints of a scarcity of help for threshers is heard throughout the length and breadth of the land. Some 106,000 bushels of wheat were marketed Thursday, 10,500 being from Deloraine. There is a marked improvement in the method of handling cars this year and it looks as if the railway company have a good grasp of the situation. Col. Davidson, of Duluth, whose company has 1,200,000 acres of land in Saskatchewan, believes the end of the season will see 35,000 new settlers in Western Canada.

A CHINAMAN TALKS ON NATIVE COUNTRY

H. C. Hwang a Returning Chinaman Talks to The Times

HE DEFENDS HIS OWN PEOPLE

In China They Worship Their Ancestors and Follow all Their Ancient Customs

Mr. H. C. Hwang, a Chinaman from Kui Kiang, was in town, yesterday for a few hours, on his way to his native country. He came from Chicago by the Grand Trunk, and changed in Peterborough to the C.P.R. for Ottawa, where he has some business to transact before leaving for China. Mr. Kwang told the Times of the social condition of his countrymen.

Many of you have a wrong idea of China, he said. You imagine Chinamen as a low down heathen race. In some particulars you are mistaken. Near the trade centers the people dress in very fine clothes, eat the best of the land and their houses are very costly. Away from these centers in the valleys, where the people have no trade with the outside world, you'll find a very dirty class. They worship Confucius, though they have no image of him. In greater China the people are extremely dirty. A family sleeps in the same house with chickens, dogs, rats and hogs.

One looking at the conditions existing here would say that it is impossible to change them. It is a heathen land. The Chinamen never make progress; they are always looking back. This is one of their traits. Their customs are just opposite to yours. When you meet a lady you take off your hat. When a Chinaman meets a lady he puts on his hat. When you meet a friend you shake hands; a Chinaman shakes his own hands. When we read we begin at the back of the book and read upward from the bottom of the page—just opposite to your way.

On account of the singular customs of our land it is difficult for a physician to attend a lady. They cannot touch their female patients, and consequently cannot feel their pulses. Our funerals are very different from the ones you have here. In China all the mourners wear white instead of black. When there is to be a marriage the parents of the young man choose a wife for him. They do not meet until the wedding day, and if, after the ceremony has been performed it is found that they cannot agree, there is no method of securing a divorce, as you do. A Chinaman has to put up with it.

In my country the people have a great habit of worshipping their ancestors. The religion of Confucius teaches that if a man follows the ways of his ancestors for three generations he is a good son. Because of this belief the progress of China is retarded. The roads through the country are crooked, simply because the people will not allow a highway to pass over the grave of an ancestor. They believe that if the roads were straightened the evil spirits would come out in force, for my countrymen are very superstitious. On account of this superstition China is kept back.

The people will go out and burn money and food over the graves of their ancestors. They go away and and leave it burning, and in this way a dog or a poor man often gets a good meal. In fact, I might say that this is the only time that the poor can get anything from the rich. In China the rich will have nothing to do with the poor, and it is only in the instance that I have stated that they are ever able to get anything from them. Every seven days the rich employ a priest to burn money for their ancestors. This, according to the common belief, is to pay the fare of the departed spirit from the grave to the other world and to furnish pocket money upon his arrival.

The priests and nuns who attend to such services are very numerous in China, but they are a very lazy people. They must be driven away to change China. They obtain the money from the women, and it is because of this that the Protestant church has very few women members. On the other hand the Catholic churches are very beautiful and are in a flourishing condition.

China is crying for salvation now. The country must be evangelized. The missionaries who go there wear the dress and learn the customs of the country, and in this way accomplish much good.

CLOSING DAY OF THE RACE MEET

LARGE CROWD WITNESS THE DIFFERENT EVENTS

A Most Successful Meet.—Good Fast Clean Races Throughout the Meet

Fair weather, a good crowd with the track in good condition, greeted the horsemen and directors yesterday afternoon, the last day of the Peterborough race meet.

To say that the races were the best ever held in Peterborough is putting it mild. Each and every heat of the three races, the 2.30 class, the open race, and the road race was warmly contested.

The directors are more than satisfied with the success of the meet and the spectators were well pleased with the class of racing that the horsemen gave them while the drivers speak well of the fairness and honest manner in which they were used by the management, not a word of discontent being heard from any who had horses at the meet and all intend to return to the next meet that will be held in Peterborough. Fully 2,000 people witnessed the speeding and excitement waxed warm as the horses neared the finishing wire.

The first race called by starter Passmore was the 2.30 class, trot or pace, purse $200. This race brought out 5 starters. Lilliputian driven by W. Simpson, got the poll and won the first three heats and the race, with Babyleen, owned by R. H. Abbott, Kingston, a close second coming 3rd in the first heat and 2nd in the next two. Wm. Smith's Minnie S. took 3rd place, and Commodore K., owned by Geo. Powell, 4th. V. B Woodrugg's Nellie Billings also started but was not in the money.

Free-For-All.

Only two horses started in the free for all; Little Buck, owned by W. Fanning, and W. Forsyth's Hal Forest. This proved a very interesting and exciting race, Little Buck winning with Hal Forest well up in every heat.

In the first heat both horses started well, but Little Buck jumped to the front, both horses were travelling at a rapid pace, doing the quarter in 32 and the half in 1.08-12. Little Buck kept to the front all the way and finished a length ahead doing the mile in 2.21 1-4.

In the second heat Little Buck again crept to the front with Hal Forest close on, but he was travelling uneasy and left his feet several times: Little Buck continued to lead until the finish. Time 2.19 1-4.

Little Buck won the third heat doing the mile in 2.19 1-2.

Gentleman's Road Race.

In the gentleman's road race there were five starter sand it took 5 heats to bring a winner, Kitty R., owned by D. Owens, Campbellford, winning the race, with McGemery's Kitty B. second.

CHEERS FOR BOERS CAUSE ROW

Fight at Cherbourg Between Americans and British Tourists

Berlin, Sept. 15—The British and American officers of the German war manoeuvres say the Kaiser's infantry system, of which he is so proud, is impracticable in action and a weak link in the army.

General French thinks its compactness would be of no avail in modern warfare, while General Corbin declares that it would be annihilated by modern artillery and rifles. In drill and compact organization there is nothing like the German artillery, and it would have been invincible in days when armies could approach within a few hundred yards of each other.

The English press does not attempt to conceal its attempt for the military authorities on the continent, who carry out theatrical and artificial manoeuvres without reference to the altered conditions of modern warfare. This is only a fair reply to the ridicule heaped on the British for lack of flexibility in the Boer war.

"ARMY LIFE" SCORES HIT

Animated Pictures Draw Crowds to The Opera House

The animated pictures, depicting the army, scored quite a hit last night, and, judging from the applause that was ever and anon indulged in, and from complimentary remarks that were heard on every hand, as the large audience was slowly filing out of the hall, no one went away disappointed. The pictures are certainly a fine lot, and convey to the spectator a very clear idea of how a British soldier is made; of how, from the raw, slouchy recruit, he is turned into the straight, well-built finished article. Both foot and horse are seen at their daily exercises, and life in barracks and in camp is depicted, some amusing scenes occasionally being witnessed.

Some remarkably good pictures are those showing indulgence in the much appreciated morning bath, and manual and gymnastic exercises. Hussars and lancers are seen at drill, and some conception is obtained of what a charge by a regiment of either of these bodies is really like. Engineers are there engaged in field work, throwing up entrenchments, scaling places difficult of access and building pontoon and other bridges. The exploding of a land mine is a very realistic sight, hundreds of tons of earth and rocks being seen to rise in the air, and fly in all directions, and the exploding of a marine mine is equally good. Garrison artillery are viewed at gun practice, and shells are seen splashing in the water in close proximiyt to a moving target. There are also pictures of the army medical corps at work, hunting up the wounded on the field of action, rendering first aid and carrying them on litters to thedressing station.

In short, every branch of army work is shown, and the spectator leaves the hall with a much more vivid conception of what life in the army really is than he had before.

A feature of the entertainment was the singing of Mr.. T. E. Kyle. Mr. Kyle has a good voice and to say that he made a hit would be putting it easy. Moreover he was the lecturer explaining in a clear voice the different pictures as they were thrown on the screen. At the conclusion of the entertainment Mr. Kyle announced that "Our Army" would remain tonight with a special matinee for school children at 4.15 then there should be bumper houses. It is the best thing out and we most heartily recommend it to the people of Peterborough.

TRANSIENT TRADERS

The License Fee Should be Raised and Made More Stringent

The Times believes transient traders should pay a heavy license to the town than is now exacted. Peterborough merchants have suffered much from the operations of these travelling business men. A man will come along previous to the Christmas holiday season, rent a store, open out a stock and "slaughter the market" with cheap rubbish, that is hardly worth carrying away. The result is that legitimate merchants, who pay taxes lose trade, and the general public are victimised. So great has this evil became of late that no holiday season goes by that one or more gakirs are not with us. In Winnipeg the Council, after submitting the matter to their solicitor, have raised the license fee to $500.

Our transient traders' bylaw provides for the payment of $100. This is not enough; it should be $300 at least, and made far more stringent in other respects than it is.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Cherbourg, Sept. 16 'Three young American tourists meeting here a large and offensively assertive party of Englishman, cheered for the Boers and the South African republics. A row ensued and finally one American was shoved into the water from the sea wall. He was promptly rescued by fishermen, and four of the Britishers including one woman, were arrested, but the woman was released before night. The Americans will remain here until Monday to prosecute the assailants.

Wilkesbarre, Sept. 15.—It is believed that the interview which John Mitchell, the leader of the striking miners, had with Governor Stone in the dead of night, was productive of no result, and reports were coming in all day Saturday and yesterday from every direction, which seemed to indicate that preparations were being made for a concerted outbreak of violence all along the line this morning. An official of the D. L. & W. Company said that he had been informed that the proposed general renewal of mob violence was part of a deliberate campaign on the part of the strike managers.

With the beginning of this week the strike enters on a critical phase. Either an agreement will be patched up at Harrisburg early in the morning, or there will be still more serious trouble than in the past. On the other hand the representatives of the coal companies say that for the past week men have been comming to them, and declaring that unless there was a settlement by the 15th they would go back to work. The agitators, it is believed, will have to take extreme measures to hold the men together, and to prevent their organisation from going to pieces.

Bizerta. Tunis, Sept. 16—M. Pelletan, the French Minister of Marine, made a remarkable speech at an entertainment of the municipality yesterday evening, which it is expected will cause the French Foreign Minister, M.. Delcasse, some trouble to explain. After pointing out the importance of Bizerta as a balwark of France, M Pelletan proceeded: "We do not say we want to make the Mediterranean a French lake. We have been cured of the dreams of that great man who wishes us to dominate the world. But part of the Mediterranean is French and will remain French. With this powerful rampart so well situated for defence and also for attack, and with Corsica and Toulon we can hold the open door between the two halves of the Mediterranean, in spite of Malta and Gibraltar. Certainly I do not desire a conflict of peoples against England any more than against Italy, but as we do not know what others are doing it is part of our duty to prepare for the Holy War for the French fatherland against its enemies whoever they may be. I am convinced, thanks to the fellow-wrokers with whom I am surrounded, that we can face every eventuality. Security hardly exists any more for the civilized world. At the end of the nineteenth century, after the defeat of France by the barbarism of old Germany. We saw an offensive return of the law of brute force. The whole world seemed to be dominated by the maxim "might before right. We must then devote all our efforts in keeping intact that force of justice and light—French genius."

Mr. Pelletan concluded with remarking that he would not say more at present. He had not yet become accustomed to being a Minister and feared he might be carried away into expressing his opinion of matters which exclusively concerned the Foreign Ministr.

London, Sept. 13—Private R. Richards of the 4th Middlesex Regiment who stole the coronation medals of the Indian troops in camp at Aldershot, and Private Foskett, of the same battalion, who was with him when the medals were taken and who turned King's evidence, were drummed out of the army with all the impressive procedure that marks an event happily rare.

Before a field parade of the regiment, the sentence by the court-martial on Richards was read out. It was six month's imprisonment with hard labor. Col. C. R.. Simpson, the commanding officer, said Richards hadb een found guilty of a crime of a peculiarly disgraceful character. Beside him stood a companion who was guilty of the same crime. They were not worthy to remain in the ranks of the batallion, and he had applied for and obtained their discharges from his Majesty's army.

Then, addressing the provost-sergeant, Col. Simpson said,— "Take off their uniforms and put on civilian clothes, and march them back to the guard-room."

This having been done on parade, the two men, deprived of their military clothing, were escorted to the barracks by the police, followed by the band playing "The Rogues' March," and there drummed out.

Col. Simpson, again addressing the batallion, expressed the hope that that would be the last they would ever hear of so bad a crime, and that the honor of the Duke of Cambridge's Own had been vindicated. He called out and rewarded those men who had been instrumental in detecting the delinquents.

It has transpired that the King, when he read of the theft in the newspapers, at once caused a telegram to be despatched to the authorities at Aldershot expressing the hope that the report was untrue. If it were true, it was a cruel and disgraceful theft.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 16—Late last night the bodies of 17 miners killed by the explosion of the Algoma mine were brought to the surface. Several of the rescuers were overcome by the deadly gas and brought out unconscious.

Coming so closely upon the end of the strike in this field the disaster may cause a suspension in mining, as the men have not yet lost that spirit of discontent of which the strike was the result.

The Story of Morning Tiredness

Is told by impure blood, poor digestion, sluggish liver and tired nerves. It is a warning of very serious trouble ahead, and should prompt sensible people to take a bracing tonic like Ferrozone, an energetic invigorant and rebuilder. Ferrozone will give you a sharp appetite, promote good digestion and sound sleep; it will feed and energize the enfeebled organs, strengthen the nerve and vital forces and regulate the heart. Ferrozone changes that tired feeling into vigor strength and ambition, and does it quickly. Remember the name, and insist on having only Ferrozone; it's the best tonic made. Sports and Pastimes.

The Toronto Telegram sizes up the Copper Cliff and Oshawa lacrosse teams in the following terms,— If Coppercliff played up to their true form, and they likely did, they have been over-estimated by their critics. They are a fairly good bunch of players, taken individually, with a lot to learn about team work and perhaps a thing or two about stick handling as well. Barlow is evidently the King pin of their home, and when he is stopped there is not much left for the defence to do except take away the ball. Their combination is of two kinds, a wide lob, one that is generally intercepted, or a short pass, one that the players fail to get. In Dunn they have a really good fielder, and Heboy Pringle has all his old time speed. Oshawa defence played well all through and the home was brilliant and ragged by turns. Way, the young goal keeper did not get a great many to stop, but he handled most of them well and did a lot of good work behind the flags. Kerwin and Shields did most of the defence work, the latter playing the game of his life and coming as an unpleasant surprise to his old college chums from the north, who are said to have thought him not good enough for them this year. Munro at centre, did good work, and Donald Hall was the star of his home, though Raymer was always in the fame and ofter dangerous.

LORD STRATHCONA'S MAGNIFICENT DONATIONS

Details of His Latest Gifts to the Royal Hospital of London, England

British Newspapers Show Their Appreciation of the Canadian Spirit of Generosity

London, Sept. 16—His Royal Highness the President and the Executive Committee of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, have great pleasure in announcing that they have received from Lord Mount-Stephen and Lord Strathcona an endowment to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, producing at present £16,000 per annum, and likely to increase in value

These most munificent gifts will go far to complete the scheme inaugurated by His Majesty the King, when Prince of Wales in 1897, to free London hospitals from debt.

The Times says: The announcement made by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, as president, and by the Executive Committee, of "King Edward's Hospital Fund" will be received with great satifaction and gratitude by all who are interested in the welfare of our London hospitals. The fund has just received from Lord Mount-Stephen and Lord Strathcona an endowment, which, we are told, already produces £16,000 a year, and is likely to increase in value in the future. The munificence of these two benefactors has not only exceeded all previous gifts—for this is the largest individual contribution yet received,—but it actually brings the scheme inaugurated by King Edward in 1897 within a measurable distance of completion.

It is now five years since King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, proposed in honour of the Queen's Jubilee to collect such a sum of money as would clear the London hospitals from debt and free them from the constantly recurring financial difficulties which so greviously hampered their usefulness.' In the original appeal a sum producing an income of £100,000 a year was stated as sufficient for the purpose which His Majesty had then, as now, so much at heart. As president of the Fund then called the Prince of Wales' Fund, His Majesty was indefatigable in his endeavors to awake the charitable interest of the public in the scheme, and it was only fitting that when, upon his accession to the throne, he was succeeded in the presidency by his son, the Prince of Wales, the fund continued to be called after him and became "King edward's Hospital Fund." The Prince of Wales has worked hard in the same good cause, and the resources of the charitable scheme grew surely if a little slowly. This year, however, the movement has received a fresh impulse, and has made an advance which, as we have said, brings it near to completion. It was thought that the coronation of His Majesty could not be better celebrated than by a special effor tto secure the success of the benevolent enterprise which he has set on foot. On June 9 a meeting was convened at the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor who announced that many of his influential and representative countrymen desired to show their love and loyalty to their Sovereign by some tangible gift, and that it had been decided that this coronation offering could not take a better or more appropriate form than a donation to the great charity which had been so closely identified with that Sovereign's name. The idea of a coronation gift had already been mooted, and had met with an enthusiastic and universal approval. An equally enthusiastic assent was given to the proposition that the sum realized should be devoted to the Hospital Fund, His Majesty having already signified his own warm approval. Large sums of money poured in from all quarters, and from all classes of the community, one sum of more than £1,000 having been subscribed in pence by laboring men. Among the earliest contributors were both Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount-Stephen, whose noble and latest benefaction should set a most encouraging example and incite others to complete the praiseworthy design which His Majesty initiated five years ago.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING

Marriage of Miss Mamie E Mayette and Mr. Richard J. Gilman

Yesterday morning a very pretty wedding took place in St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Dr. O'Brien officiating when Miss Minnie Mayette was wedded to Mr. Richard Gilman in the presence of a number of invited guests.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Charles Mayette, as the wedding march was played on the organ by Miss Hurley. She was prettily attired in a gown of white silk organdie, trimmed with lace and chiffon, She was attended by Miss Annie Gilman, sister of the groom who was becomingly gowned in muslin de soie. Mr. John Primeau, jr., cousin of the bride, assisted the groom.

At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's mother, Driscoll Terrace, Ashburnham, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of.

The many handsome and costly presents testified to the popularity of the young couple, among them being a sunburst of pearls from the groom to the bride, while the bridesmaids received a beautiful opal ring.

The happy couple left on the evening train for a honeymoon trip to Toronto, Hamilton and other western cities. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

SOUTH AFRICA

The decision of the British Government not to suspend the constitution of Cape Colony, notwithstanding the recommendation of Lord Milner that it should be suspended, has been generally approved by the press. The Saturday Review was an exception. It held that Lord Milner was certainly a safer guide than Sir Gordon Sprigg. The condition of things today in the Cape Colony will probably be considered by Lord Milner, and perhaps by others, as justifying his advice. At the same time, there is this to be said: Difficulties are being fought over and everything seems in great confusion, but possibly—simply because parties are in direct and open conflict—progress is being made towards an equilibrium, a modus vivendi. Had the constitution been suspended there could have been no Parliamentary discussion, no airing of grievances, no mutual criticism of a responsible kind; and, consequently, the pent-up forces of discontent would simply have been biding their time. The suppression of Parliamentary life would itself have constituted a grievance to be added to all the rest.

The Bond members are adhering to the letter of their contract with Sir Gordon Sprigg in the matter of passing certain indemnity bills; but their tone of opposition to British rule and influence is as pronounced as ever. Their main desire at present seems to be to bring to light facts which may be damaging to British military administration in the colony, and as far as possible to prevent the healing of the wounds created by the war. They want, for example, to review the evidence on which, under the military administration, certain persons were removed from the places where they dwelt as "undesirable." As the military authorities acted, of course, upon information received, the intention is to make public, if possible, the source of the information in each case, so as to concentrate local odium on the heads of those who furnished it.

The Progressives, or British party, on the other hand, Sir Gordon Sprigg's former supporters, propose to bring forward a bill for the punishment of sedition and seditious utterances—a bill which it is impossible the Ministry should not support, and yet which it is quite probable the Afrikander majority will defeat. From all that is known of Sir Gordon Sprigg, it is doubtful whether he is a man capable of dominating so difficult and almost chaotic a situation; but where is any other man to be found? There is none forthcoming. It may be that the time will come to take Lord Milner's advice. Should legislation, for example, be brought to a dead-lock; should Sir Gordon Sprigg adopt the proposed sedition bills, and be defeated; should supplies be refused for necessary purposes, there will be nothing to do but to stop the legislative machine and try a little firm Cromwellian government. Even so, it will be better that a trial should have been made of the Parliamentary regime. The British Government will be able to say: "Well, we gave you a chance, and you could not control your animosities sufficiently to make Parliamentary government workable. The government of the colony, however, must be carried on, if not with your help, then without it; and we are going to do without your help for a while now."

Meanwhile it is interesting to learn that at last advices there was a violent controversy raging in the only daily paper at Johannesburg, in the Transvaal, as to whether William Wordsworth really wrote great poetry. It is a pity the Cape Colonists could not divide on some such question as that, even if they heaved copies of their favorite poets at one another's heads after the manner of the scientific society immortalized by Bret Harte.

THE TRAINING OF OUR INFANTRY

The new manual of infantry training for the members of the British and Imperial forces, issued by the War Office under the direction of Field Marshall Lord Roberts, has just come to hand. Even a cursory perusal of the work must convince all in any way acquainted with the methods of drill in comparatively recent years, of the immense influence quick firing arms of great power and precision have had on the art of war. It must also convince those not saturated with their own obstinacy, of the desire of the British army to give all the forces in the vast empire the full benefit of the lessons to be learned by the soldier in the recent struggle in South Africa, now so happily terminated.

The ancient theory of a soldier below the commanding rank was that of one with courage and strength who would implicitly obey orders. While fighting was at close quarters or between opposing parties separated by but short distances the theory held true; for even great battles were fought practically under the eyes of the respective generals who could exert their influence in every part of the field and who, consequently, desired to have under their command first class fighting machines.

The times, however, have changed, and with them military tactics. When it is remembered that in a great battle of to-day, the issue of which might depend on a single movement performed at the opportune moment, the combattants actually engaged would probably be scattered over a thousand square miles of territory, it will readily be conceived how little personal control the commander in chief can exercise over his forces once he has joined issue with his foe, and how much dependence he must place on his subordinates even down to the private soldiers in the ranks.

For a number of years past British methods have felt the influence of the altered conditions and have responded probably quite as readily as have those of any other power possessing a regularly organized military system recognizing professional soldiers.

The present manual, however, marks a gigantic stride forward, and may indeed be said to be a new departure. The lesson it seeks to teach is not how to march past, or how to make the best appearance on the barrack's square, but how to develop all the resources of each individual wearing the uniform from the private to the general, how to find the enemy and how to strike him hardest when found.

If the methods inculcated in the Infantry Training (1902) can be carried into effect in their entirety, and if the same methods obtain in all the branches of the service, the Imperial armed force will become an irresistible fighting power, and what is better still the grandest university for training men that human intellect has ever conceived.

An Old Verdict

An interesting law suit was recently decided in Toronto to the advantage of an enterprising widower. So poor was he when his wife died that he was obliged to apply to the authorities to defray the expenses of burial. But after the undertaker had been appointed the man remembered that he had an old account against him. He therefore entered claim and attached the money due from the town to the undertaker for his wife's funeral expenses. The authorities pleaded in vain that the account due the undertaker was for the benefit of the plaintiff. The court ordered payment to the plaintiff of the full amount of claim.

—Here is an extract from a girl's essay, picked up near the Central school and lent to The Times for publication:—"People are composed of boys and girls also men and women. Boys are good till they grow up and get married. Men who don't get married are no good either. Girls are young women who will be ladies when they graduate. Boys are an awful cept soap. If I had my way half the bother; want everything they see except soap. If I had my way half the boys would be girls, and the other half dolls. My mamma is a woman and my pa is a boy. A woman is a grown up girl with children. My pa is such a nice man that I guess he must have been a girl when he was a little boy.

The Moonstone Sphinx

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

before talking of herself, she must know what had been happening at home.

She put her arm round the little woman's frail shoulders and drew her into the drawing-room. "Are you feeling worse, dearest?" she asked, tenderly, her eyes on the face, which was of so pure and transparent a pallor that it often reminded the girl of alabaster, through which light shone clearly.

"Not quite so well as sometimes, perhaps, but nothing for you to worry about," the answer came soothingly. "What do you think is in that chafing-dish for you to-night, pet? Only guess!"

Winifred's eyes turned to the wide doorway which opened between the small drawing-room and still smaller dining-room. There, on the table, stood the smart silver chafing-dish in which some dainty was always prepared by her mother's own hands for her home-coming. The one servant was sent to bed early, and it was Mrs. Gray's pride and pleasure to devise something which might tempt the appetite of the tired little actress after the theater.

The lace-edged tray-cloth, spread with a few pretty plates and bits of glass and silver, looked oddly pathetic to Winifred to-night, and a sensation of choking contracted her throat.

"I can't guess, and I can't eat, mother-kin," she said, "until you tell me what is wrong. There's something, I know."

"I—couldn't you wait for all that until you've had your supper, dear?" pleaded Mrs. Gray. "I've taken such pains with it. It's sweetbreads, done in a new way. And there's a steaming hot cup of chocolate—for the night seemed so chilly."

Winifred shivered slightly, but not with cold. Lionel Macaire had made her drink chocolate. She thought that she could never bear to touch it again, but still less could she grieve her mother. So she took off her hat and gloves and sat down at the table, trying to smile, praising the sweetbreads, and reluctantly sipping the chocolate, while the weight of presentiment was coldly heavy on her breast. The worst of this night was not over yet, something seemed to whisper in her ear. She must at least make a pretense of eating now, if she would show appreciation of the little mother's thought for her. By-and-by even that pretense would be impossible.

The lump in her throat made it hard to swallow, and a mist of tears dimmed her eyes, but she would not let them fall. She and her best loved one had been so happy, so merry, in this little place. Why need she feel that it was all going to end to-night? It was stupid to feel that—yet the impression would not pass.

When she could make an end of the feast without seeming ungrateful she sprang up and pushed away her chair. Mrs. Gray had sat watching the girl with great love and a tireless, yearning admiration in her eyes as her frail body leant against the cushions in a grandfather chair by the fireplace. Though October had not come yet, there was a glow of dying fire in the grate—just enough to give an excuse for drawing near it, and Winifred knelt down on the rug, with her arms across her mother's knees.

"Now, what is it, dear?" she asked, bravely.

"I wish I needn't tell you," the elder woman answered, a quiver in her voice.

"You and I have always borne everything together, haven't we? And so we always will"

"Oh, darling, there've been troubles enough in your young life. I did hope they were over. But Heaven knows best."

"Aren't you going to tell me?"

"Since I must—yes. It couldn't be kept from you. Strange, isn't it, love, how troubles come so often in twos and threes, not singly?"

Winifred looked up into her mother's eyes. On the surface of her thoughts swam the consciousness of what had happened at the theater, and the vague fear of what it might mean in the future. This was to be a night to remember. She longed, yet dreaded to have the knowledge that lay behind those loving eyes.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Letter from Sloane Street.

"'Irish Life' has stopped," said Mrs. Gray, "and all the money you put into it for poor Dick is lost. Nearly two hundred pounds, dear."

"Dick" was Winifred's only brother, a year older than she; and "Irish Life" was a paper started in Dublin early in the summer, of which Dick Gray had been made sub-editor because of the money his sister had optimistically lent him for the purchase of certain shares. It had been put in by degrees, as it could be spared from her salary of twelve pounds a week, which had begun about the first of March, and the full amount required had been sent off only a month ago. Meanwhile, for Dick's sake, the girl and her mother had been living with the utmost economy, and making sacrifices with unflagging cheerfulness, for the prospects of the new paper had been represented as marvelously bright, and it had certainly seemed a wonderful chance for Dick, whose gifts, if any, were for a journalistic career.

Now the money was gone, and poor Dick would be "out of a berth," as he had dolefully reminded his mother in the letter which told the bad news. There had been trickery somewhere, for if the paper was in danger of dissolution the last payments should not have been accepted; but the excuses were very plausible, and Dick did not think that he would be able to get a penny back again.

On any other night this blow would have fallen with comparative lightness upon Winifred, who had all the buoyant hopefulness of her twenty years; but bravely as she had flung back Lionel Macaire's insults, his threats had frightened her. His money and his well-known interest in theatrical affairs gave him infinite power in the world in which she moved, and though she did not exactly see how he could use it to hurt her, at all events in the present, there might be ways; and the solid foundation which a good engagement gave her seemed trembling under her feet as she reassured her mother. "What's two hundred pounds, after all?" she laughed brightly. "With twelve pounds coming in every week, money soon counts up; and I'm getting to know a lot of newspaper men now, who are all very kind to me; and perhaps through them something will

Close Money Weakening Exchange

New York, Sept. 16.—Close money is weakening the exchange; we are on the verge of drawing the yellow metal from Europe. Money, like any other property or commodity, always goes where it can secure the greatest returns. If money is worth only from two to three per cent., as it is at present in London and the Continental centers, and well above 6 per cent. in New York, it is bound in the natural order of events t owork its way westward across the Atlantic. The probable duration of the close money period will be about three to four weeks. It will not be as has been the case in times gone by, unobtainable, but merely more costly than ordinarily. It does two good things: restricts the tendency under present bullish conditions to reckless and over speculation, and will like the magnet draw gold from Europe. We are in midst of a gathering of one of the greatest crops in our history, and it is calculated that the money value of present crop will exceed the value of any previously harvested in this country by between 2 and 300 million dollars. Security markets must move in harmony with this fact, specially when we consider our industrial activities to be at present at their highest water mark, and every important record is a new and favorable one. President Ripley of Atchison says prospects of the west cannot be exaggerated, and the west is offering more freight than can be handled. Flurries in money rates should not frighten holders of standard shares into selling them, if they do they will see them quoted very shortly at materially higher prices.

SUMMARY.

The remarkable strength of the market yesterday and to-day under extremely adverse conditions, due to the money situation, strongly and emphatically illustrated the excellent ground upon which the values rest, and foreshadow the probability of the great sharp advance yet ahead once money adjusts itself. Money adversity exposed in its nakedness the dangers of bear position, and the market at present strongly indicated the advisability of buying and holding securities at the present time. Recoveries were general throughout the list. All issues to-day sold higher than the best prices of yesterday, yet we are supposed to be on the throes of contracted funds. We are ultra bullish upon the market. Events of the past two or three days greatly stimulated our bullish inclinations for the future. Money closed 4 per cent. Sales 435,400.

AUSTRALIAN TARIFF

The Duty on Machinery and Metals is a Moderate One—This is a Good Thing for Canadian Trade

Ottawa, Sept. 16—When the Australian tariff having passed the House of Representatives came before the Senate, the latter body made numerous suggestions looking to reductions. These suggestions were considered by the Lower House and a very large number of them rejected. Two of them, however, having material interest for Canada were approved of, and now form part of the tariff. They are the duties upon machinery and metal of all kinds, which were finally fixed at 12 1-2 per cent. This moderate duty must enable Canada to find a valuable market there for her metals and manufactures of machinery. No other substantial reductions in the proposed tariff, as introduced into the Commonwealth Parliament were made, but about a dozen minor alterations in small details of the measure were adopted. The foregoing information was obtained from Sir Edmund Barton, who had just received it in a cable from the Acting Premier of Australia.

The Bobcaygeon Railway

The annual meeting of the directors of the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon & Pontypool Railway Company, held in Lindsay, when a progress report was presented by the secretary, Mr. Thos. Stewart, after which the old board of directors was re-elected, Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, Bobcaygeon, consenting to retain the position as President. Following the annual meeting a special meeting of the shareholders was convened for the purpose of authorising the directors to issue bonds or debentures on the security of a mortgage on the road, the object being to place the directors in a position to close promptly with any suitable offer to undertake the construction work. Several offers are under consideration, but nothing of a definite character can yet be made public.

ONE MACHINE vs. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 50 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

Offers to the public the second allotment of $[illegible] worth of 6 per cent. first mortgage 10-year Gold Bonds of the issue of $[illegible]. Out of the first allotment several of the stockholders subscribed to these bonds.

Denominations of these bonds are from $100 to $[illegible] each, and the money received from the sale of these bonds will be deposited in the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., of New York, who are Trustees for the bonds and Registrars for the stock to be used to build four Blast Furnaces to smelt precious metal ores, with an earning capacity of a daily net profit of $[illegible] a day. The bonds will be secured by the Company's entire property and improvements.

Smelter profits are fabulous, and one can scarcely realize profits on Smelter's stock and bonds since the consolidation of the Smelters in America.

This Company offers its bonds at par, with a donation of stock as a bonus, which will be agreed upon to the purchaser of the bonds.

The officers of the Company are F. W. [illegible], Pres., [illegible], Mont., who is largely interested in the [illegible] in Montana. George [illegible], Vice-Pres., of New York city, who is treasurer of the American [illegible] Co.; [illegible] Johnston, Treas., Butte, Mont., who is the general manager of the [illegible] Verde Copper Co.; Joseph [illegible], Secy., of New York city.

If you are interested and wish a safe, permanent income investment, which will grow and compound while you sleep, send your check or draft for $100 up to $[illegible] or more, made payable to the Montana Smelting & Refining Company, and let us send you by return mail the bonds and stock as agreed upon, given as a bonus.

The above offer is subject to prior sale, and will not be left open to the public very long, as this is a special offer to the public. The bonds will stand close scrutiny and investigation. Write for further information and particulars, if you want a large block.

THE RICHEST MINES IN THE WORLD

In respect to mineral resources, Mexico is the richest country in the world, and Sonora (just over the border) its richest state. We own 78 acres near the largest dividend paying mines in the State. It is unquestionably one of the great valuable mines in a region conceded by all to contain the richest gold, silver and copper mines in the world. Ore like that which we have in sight yields dividends compared with which the returns on investments in ordinary channels are very small indeed.

It was some of our ore that enabled the Aztecs to astound Cortez with a display of precious metals, the like of which the world has never seen, and it was from mines like ours that Spanish grandees for generations drew princely dividends.

The La Blanca has been worked for over 200 years, producing over $4,000,000 through the most primitive of methods. We have developed it in the past 18 months with over 800 feet of shafts and tunnels. Ore running as high as $829 per ton has been cut in the vein 150 feet under the ancient workings. The ore is rich in silver with good gold and some copper values.

Bear in mind—it's not a question of waiting for returns—our ore is in sight—work done—and that taking stock with us, you join to the fullest extent in the profits sure to be realized from the valuable mines which we own.

We offer a limited amount of stock on instalments—and all stock sold is for mill purposes only. We are ready for a concentrator—and for that purpose offer

50000 Shares, par value $1.00, fully paid, non-assessable, at 20 cents per share.

You must order very soon, as prices will increase with additional development.

A Quiet Wedding

A quiet wedding was celebrated on Monday evening last, Sept. 15th, by Rev. W. L. Armitage, when Miss Bessie Jones, of town, and Mr. Neil Brooks formerly of Lindsay, but now residing in Peterborough, were united in marriage. The ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. Lafave, No. 32 Parnell street, and the bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. David Jones. She was very prettily gowned in a handsome brown cloth dress with facings of white silk.

Toronto Globe: Mrs. Elizabeth King, of Peterborough, has an action against the Polson Iron Works and W. K. Colville, in the Jury Assize Court, for damages amounting to $5,000 for the death of her husband, Peter King, who was killed by the falling of an engine in the Polson's yards. One of Colville's lorries was preparing to move some machinery, and the horses starting forward struck the upright marine engine, knocking it on top of King killing him instantly. The case is being tried before Judge Meredith. Mr. R. B. Stone, for plaintiff.

ABOUT EYES

Glasses are Not Always Necessary

Parents are often advised to get glasses for their children by the school authorities who attribute the weak watery condition of the eyes of the child to some defect in the vision, and do not realise that the trouble may arise from the common practice of coffee drinking.

A case in point, Mrs. C. E. Knapp of Elyria, O., says, "Six months ago we were a family of invalids; my husband, myself and two children were all afflicted with stomach trouble. I would get so faint before it was time for regular meals, and after eating had pain and distress in the stomach, which felt as though there was a hard lump in there. I felt drowsy and stupid most of the time. If I was out in the wind my eyes would water so it hindered me from seeing.

My son was the worst afflicted. His eyes blurred so they hindered his progress in school and we thought it would be necessary to have them treated. His teacher finally had him bring his reader home with word that I have him read an hour each day out of school. He could not read a paragraph without stopping to wipe his eyes or close them. We were great coffee drinkers, especially my boy, but never thought that was the cause of our trouble until I read an article on the subject in the Cleveland paper.

We were discussing it at table one day and my daughter said, 'I know it is coffee that hurts me for when I do not drink it I do not have that lump in my stomach.' My boy said, 'A lump is nothing, every time I drink coffee my fingers prickle just as though they were asleep.' I was both scared and astonished at such information, and told them I had made the last cup of coffee I ever would for home use. I got a package of Postum Food Coffee and tried it for our next meal and we soon learned to like it and think it better than coffee.

We have none of us been troubled with our stomachs since we commenced to use it. Our eyes do not water any more when in the wind, our cheeks and lips are red instead of blue or purple when we are out in the cold; the drowsy feeling has left and the prickly feeling has entirely left my son. We use it twice a day and give it freely to my 20 months' old babe. We find it better and cheaper than coffee. We cannot speak too highly of its merits for we know we owe the change in our health to Postum Cereal Food Coffee."

WEDDED IN EBURNE B. C.

A Matrimonial Event of Interest to Many of Our Readers

A happy matrimonial event was solemnized on the morning of the 1st of Sept., at the pretty residence of Mr. Robert E. Kerr, of Eburne, B.C., when his sister, Miss Margaretta Victoria, third daughter of Mr. John Kerr, of Beaufort, South Monoghan, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. W. G. Armour, of New Westminster.

The bride who was becomingly attired in a beautiful gown of mousseline de soie entered the spacious drawing room, which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion, on the arm of her brother, Mr. R. E. Kerr, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Kerr. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties, by the Rev. Mr. Millar, of Vancouver.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast, after which the happy couple, taking a steamer at Vancouver, proceeded on a wedding tour of Victoria, Esquimalt and other coast cities.

On returning Mr. and Mrs. Armour take up residence in New Westminster. The bride's many friends in this vicinity wish the happy couple many long and prosperous years of wedded life.

The following intelligence which is of interest to Peterborough friends has been received from New Westminster, B.C.:—

FIRES IN COLORADO.

Denver, Col., Sept. 16—But little progress toward checking the forest fires in different sections of the State is being made. At the head of Chicago Creek the fire is again beyond control. A vast strip of territory has been burned over, and it is feared that the towns along Clear Creek will experience a shortage of water, due to the fact that the fire has destroyed the protection of the snow beds.

The fire has burned for several weeks, and has destroyed much valuable timber. Several summer resorts are in danger.

EYES SPEAK

Volumes, at times, of woman's happiness or misery. The dull, sunken eye, with its dark circles almost surely speaks of womanly ill-health, and its attendant suffering. With the dull eye goes usually the sallow, sunken cheek, the drawn mouth, the shrunken form—the whole glory of woman's beauty marred by the effects of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which undermine the health and mar the beauty of women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free, and so obtain the advice of a specialist upon their disease. All correspondence is strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"With pleasure I send a few lines to let you know that I feel much better than for eight years before taking your medicine," writes Mrs. Pierce Geise, of 822 West Phila. Street, York, Pa. "Will recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine to every person who may inquire as to what it has done for me. I was troubled with female weakness, and began to think I would never be well. If I had continued the treatment prescribed by my doctor I don't know what would have become of me. When your treatment was commenced my weight was 108 pounds, at present it is 130. Have healthy color and my friends say I look well. My best thanks to you and my best wishes, too, for what you have done for me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

ENVIOUS EYES CAST TOWARDS PERSIA.

The St. Petersburg Correspondent Thinks England Is Unduly Alarmed

German Ministers Not Firm Enough — Should Refuse to Accept Responsibility for the Kaiser's Speeches

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 17—A St. Petersburg correspondent says that Novoe Vremya, in discussing the Shah's approaching visit to Russia, asserts that England has long cast envious eyes toward Persia, but Russia does not desire to partition that country. One road whereby it is possible for Russia to reach the open ocean lies through Persia, but that does not imply a desire to absorb the Shah's dominions.

KAISER SHOULD CONSULT MINISTERS.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 17—A Vienna correspondent says the Deutsche Zeitung is discussing the widespread discontent in Germany, attributes it chiefly to the lack of energy and stability in those holding the helm of state. The writer says it would be better if all the Kaiser's speeches were made after consultation with Ministers who must assume the responsibility for them. This might be done if the Ministers had a little more backbone and were prepared to resign when asked to take the responsibility for statements of which they had no previous knowledge. This would check the influence of those unauthorized counsellors who intervene between the Sovereign and Ministers and affect the course of events more than the State officials. But Ministers cling to their posts, so the truth is seldom heard. If Ministers should insist on their constitutional rights there would be fewer speeches. There is too much talking in Germany and a disproportion between words and deeds, which is a further source of discontent. Weighty words have been followed by insignificant deeds, producing mortification at home and ridicule abroad. The consequent nature of German politics also is a factor. This, too, is attributed to the Kaiser's irresponsible counsellors.

ATTACKING THREE GREAT POWERS

Special to The Times.

London, Sept 17—A Berlin despatch says Pelletan's speeches at Ajaccio at Bizerta are nowhere taken seriously, but are compared with Boulanger's tirade. What interests Germans most is the way Pelletan has contrived to kill three birds with one stone by simultaneously attacking England, Germany and Italy.

SCHOOL DISTURBANCES IN FRANCE

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 17.—A Paris correspondent says that communal schools are being opened this week in Brittany and elsewhere with disturbances. At Auch a priest has been fined for posting in front of the church a tricolor bearing emblem of the sacred heart.

LESSONS OF BOER WAR

Lord Dundonald's Instructions to Canadian Cavalry

Ottawa, Sept. 17.—Lord Dundonald is beginning already to apply to the Canadian militia the lessons which were taught by the Boer war. Yesterday an order was issued prohibiting Canadian cavalry from taking their swords into the field and intimating that the mounted men must consider their rifle as the principal weapon. In its introductory part the order says: With reference to the memorandum of instruction to cavalry, the General Officer Commanding desires to call the attention of all ranks, who have hitherto looked upon the sword as their principal weapon, to the following observations: Wire fencing, enclosures, smokeless powder, the increased range and accuracy of arms of precision, all tend to diminish the power of men who depend upon shock action for success. On the other hand, the mobile rifleman is of more importance than ever. The new cavalry soldier should learn from the infantry soldier and the engineer all that is useful to him, while above all things, retaining the dash and "go," of the old cavalry soldier and maintaining to the full the name and spirit of his old regiment. The General Officer Commanding is aware how strong tradition is, and how some men cling to the sword, with its associations. It may be possible later on to arm men with a light sword bayonet adapted for use on the rifle, or for thrusting when mounted, a sword that would require but little practice or drill for its use; but whether that is done or not, the future of cavalry lies with the most efficient possible use of the rifle. In giving up the weapon of shock action, which most certainly can afford but few opportunities of fighting to those who wear it, in comparison with the opportunities that cavalry armed with the rifle will have on modern battle-fields, the General Officer Commanding desires to impress upon all ranks of the cavalry that they are not giving up opportunities of distinction, but adding to them. In the next war, if a man wishes to see everything, take part in everything, and have great opportunities of fighting the forces belong to is the new cavalry, whether they be called hussars ordragoons, o r any other name.

WHAT THE INSTRUCTIONS SHALL BE.

In the memorandum for the instruction of cavalry the order says that regiments provided with swords will confine their instruction to drawing, carrying, sloping and returning, and will not take their swords into the field. Pending the issue of new orders on the subject, instruction will be principally on the care of horses and the fitting of soldiery. Drill of the simplest character, directed solely to rendezvous formations, moving from place to place and getting men rapidly into position for dismounted work, will be given. The fullest possible instruction, the order goes on to say, shall be given in the use of the rifle and officers and non-commissioned officers should be encouraged to gain certificates of efficiency at the School of Musketry. Rapidity in mounting and dismounting should be constantly practised, and the horses should be trained to stand fire. Among the other exercises specially recommended are—All the outpost, detached and reconnaisanc work of cavalry, as detailed in the instruction of cavalry; the defence of a position; the defence of a bridge; arrangements for making an ambush; the passage of a defile; guarding a convoy, etc., all, whenever possible, preceded by a blackboard lecture to the men. Pioneering, making shelter, trenches and redoubts, constructing wire entanglements, destruction of railways and bridges, bridge-making, tapping and mending telegraph wires, making rough shelters, field kitchens, etc., map reading and knowledge of the scale of maps, the making of rough maps and reports, how to find the way by means of compass, sun, stars, etc., signalling by flag and heliograph for selected men.

The general calls attention to the necessity for easing the horses and says that during field operations or otherwise the cavalry should never be on their horses' backs if they can be off them. Offenders in this respect he declares, are even found among men who have many horses at their disposal, and who ought to know how difficult it is to obtain remounts.

A True Nerve Tonic

Will act, not so much directly upon the nerves as upon the digestive functions, and the abundant formation of red, vitalizing blood. Nerves can't be fed on medicine. They can, however, be restored and strengthened by assimilated food. The marvelous action of Ferrozone arises from its action over the digestive and assimilative processes. When you take Ferrozone the blood is purified, strengthened, and grows rich and red. Then you grow vigorous, healthy and beautiful, ready for work, because you have the strength to do it. IS FAST LINE IN SIGHT

Mr. Fielding Cancels His Passage and Waits to see Laurier in England

London, Sept. 17Many conjectures are made while Hon. Mr. Fielding suddenly at the last moment cancelled his passage for Canada. He will probably await Sir Wilfrid Laurier's return to England from Rome, and sail with Laurier on October 7. Mr. Fielding himself says he sees no reason why the fast mail question should not now be settled. The Ministers have sufficient authority without consulting Parliament, provided they get what is wanted for $750,000. Well-informed circles believe that only one effective tender is before the Ministers, namely, that of the Canadian Pacific. Other Provincial tenderers have been making advances to induce the Canadian Pacific to withdraw in their favor, but the Canadian Pacific refuses, and says it will do the job alone or not at all.

According to the statements of English journalists returned from Canada, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy said it is practically certain the Canadian Pacific will get the fast mail contract, and confirmed the assertion that the Canadian Pacific will in any case establish a freight service. At present shippers have sometimes to wait a month before they are certain of getting a steamer.

The Express makes sensational disclosures today. Colonel Ferrers Townshend, who was deputed by the War Officer to report on Canadian frontier defences, declares the forts so hopelessly antiquated all along the frontier and ill-equipped with ammunition, that in the event of an Anglo-American war the Americans could easily cross the frontier and seize Canada before resistance could be organized. A prominent Canadian in Montreal declared the Canadians were too busy making dollars to bother about fortifications. If the Americans invaded, all Canadians could do would be to board rafts with their belongings and float down the St. Lawrence to Belle Isle until British warships came along to protect them.

—A couple of lads were arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday charged with breaking into the boat house of Mr John Eynon on Monday Sept. 8th. It appears that Mr. Eynon's canoe was taken from the boat house down the river, and left on the river bank at Hastings and the two lads, it is said, took train for Montreal. The case was enlarged till Friday—one of the boys being remanded and the other securing bail.

THE ONTARIO FARMERS TO LOSE $100,000

Important Decision Given by Judge Morgan at Toronto Yesterday

Signed an Iron-Clad Contract—Many Farmers will Have to Pay From $50 to 400 Each

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 17 — A case of great interest to more than 2,000 farmers in Ontario was decided today by Judge Morgan in the County Court. In 1897 one J. J. Daly, commenced the publication in Toronto of what was known as the Canadian Farm Advertiser. His plan was to sell farms in Ontario, to British immigrants. He sent agents all over the province and succeeded in inducing many farmers to advertise their farms in this journal, by signing a contract under seal providing that the farm should be advertised by Daly or his assigns for three years, unless sooner sold. In case the farm was sold before the expiration of the contract, whether through the agency of The Farm Advertiser or not, the contract provided that Daly was to receive two and one half per cent. upon the price for which the farm was sold, and in case the farm remained unsold at the expiration of the contract, the farmer agreed to pay Daly two per cent. upon the price which he had advertised his farm for sale. After securing several of the agreements, Daly obtained loans on them from prominent men in Ontario. Daly's commissions run from $50 to $400.

The result of Judge Morgans' decision was obtained by reason of Daly failing to pay Mr. W. B. Russell, the engineer of the Temiskaming Railway, the amount of money advanced to Daly on the security of these contracts. It is understood that Daly utilized the money obtained on the security of these agreements in sending men to the Old Country, trying to induce British farmers to send out their sons here to buy the farms advertised. The Farm Journal was advertised very extensively through Great Britain and the United States. Several farms were sold at good figures but the great bulk of them were not sold.

The suit decided by Judge Morgan was brought by Mr. Russell, who had purchased Daly's contracts against Henry A. Cohoe, of Norwich, in the County of Oxford and tried on the 7th of March in this city. The defendant claimed that the case should be tried in his own county, but the Master in Chambers decided that it should be tried here and without a jury. Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, and W. H. G. McCallum, of Burns & McCallum, appearing for Mr. Russell, and Mr. A. G. Ball of Woodstock, appearing for the defendants.

In his judgement Judge Morgan found that the contract was perfectly legal; that no fraud has been practised and that the plaintiff's claim is a charge on the defendant's lands.

JUDGE'S DECISION.

"On the trial of this action," says Judge Morgan, "the defendant offered no evidence, and I have to reach my conclusion on the evidence as presented on behalf of the plaintiff, and on this evidence I am of the opinion. That the execution and sealing of the advertising agreement were proved sufficiently; that sufficient proof of publication and circulation was given and I find for plaintiff on that issue and that there was no evidence of fraud or fraudulent dealing, nor could fraud be reasonably inferred from the facts as proved. Generally I find the issue joined in favor of the plaintiff and I give judgment for him for the sum of $80.00, with interest from the date of writ with costs of suit, such sum and interest and costs to be declared a charge on the defendant's lands in the agreement mentioned, with right to plaintiff for a sale of the said lands in default of payment. Formal judgement to be drawn up September 10th. 1902.

The judgement means that a number of Western Ontario farmers will be called upon to pay from $50 to $400 on account of having, without legal advice, signed an iron-clad contract. The net loss will probably aggregate $100,000.

"GO WEST, YOUNG MAN, GO WEST"

Winnipeg Hotels Crowded With Prospective Setters From all Lands

AN ENORMOUS WHEAT YIELD

The Advice of a Well Known Quebec Farmer is to Take Advantage of Opportunities

Montreal, Sept. 15.—"The East is asleep, the West is the place for the young men of to-day. While we in Eastern Canada are sleeping, the great North-West is filling up with Americans and other foreigners, who are grabbing up all the snaps in the wheat belt."

This is the opinion of Mr. T. A. Trenholme, a hard-headed, work-a-day, Montrealer, a shrewd business man, and moreover a practical farmer of Montreal West. He has just returned from his first trip to the granary of the Empire, and what he has seen fills him with amazement at the apathy, the indifference and the lack of knowledge displayed by the people of Eastern Canada regarding the heritage which awaits them in the Prairie Province. But while the opportunity is being neglected here it is being taken advantage of to the fullest extent by our wide-awake cousins to the south.

"To give you an idea of the influx of people into Winnipeg two days ago, remarked Mr. Trenholme, "the hotels were so crowded with strangers, not with tourists or people on pleasure bent, but with intending settlers, that the Clarendon Hotel for three days discontinued running its busses to the station. They simply could not accommodate the people. And no wonder, they are harvesting the most prolific and most wonderful crop on record out there. The average will run up to twenty-seven bushels an acre, and in lots of localities it will be as high as 40 or 50. The Americans are simply pouring in, and Ontario last month sent in 5,000 settlers, while some of the best farmers from the Old Country are arriving by every Canadian Pacific express from the East. But Quebec is not in the race, and I have this to say that there is the grandest opening there for every young man in the province who has ability and push in his constitution. The possibilities of the country are only beginning to show themselves, and my advice to all young men looking for a future is go to the Canadian North-West."

When Mr. Trenholme left the harvest had been secured. The straw was short, while the wheat had headed to a weight never before known there. These conditions have facilitated harvesting and the year's crop would only be felt when the farmers began to market their crops, and the millions upon millions of money began to circulate. Mr. Trenholme unfolds an enticing story, while it is only a sequence of others, it has this in its favour that he knows what he is talking about, and is a practical farmer.

FIFTY LIVES LOST BY FOREST FIRES

Great Destination to the Forests Along the Pacific Coast

MANY SETTLERS ARE DESTITUTE

Fifty Sections of Finest Timber on Pacific Coast Laid in Ashes—Sufferers in British Columbia

Special to The Times.

Kalama, Washington, Sept. 17. — The forest fires on Lewis river have wrought terrible havoc. Fifty persons are dead, and five logging camps are burned out. Among the dead are D. L. Wallace, wife and children; Charles Hanley and Mrs. Greaves.

The fire has spread from Lewis river north to the Kalama river, and 50 sections of the finest timber on the coast have been destroyed. It is impossible to give any estimate of the amount of the damage done to property.

Oak Point, 20 miles below here, on the Columbia river, has been destroyed. There are no reports of lives lost, but loss of property is estimated in the neighborhood of $200,000.

A great fire also is raging on the Cowewan. Everything combustible in its path has been consumed. The air is thick with smoke and falling ashes. Five people are dead and two missing, with only partial reports from the burned district.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 17.—Forest fires are still raging in this vicinity. The new hotel, postoffice and a new store at Mt. Sicker were burned yesterday. In all parts of the districts settlers are fighting to save their homes and crops.

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 17.—About 200 people are left homeless in Multnomah and Clackamas counties, as a result of the forest fires that have raged for the past week. The timber losses have been immense, and the whole length of the Clackamas river presents nothing but vistas of settlements.

In eastern Multnomah the fires are under control and no further damage is expected, unless weather conditions change. In southern Oregon excellent work has been done by the forest rangers, and the destruction has been confined to a comparatively limited area. Eugene and the surrounding country is now practically out of danger, though fires are still menacing. Tillamook also has been saved by a change of the wind.

The most distressing losses have been suffered in the vicinity of Springwater, Clackamas county, and Lents, Multnomah county. The Springwater region has been utterly swept by the flames, and those who have reached points in communication with the outside world say that immediate help must be sent in order to save the lives rescued from the devouring element.

About Portland the fires are dying down. In all parts of the Willamette and Columbia river valleys the smoke continues very dense. There is no way of securing a correct estimate of the loss, but it will certainly exceed $1,000,000 in this State.

Britain's Fleet Always the Strongest

London, Sept. 12—No matter what the other sea powers undertake in the way of a ship-building program, they find out at the end of it that England is still able to take care of any two of them, and have strength still left.

In a review of the sea power of the great nations, the Naval Annual shows that, in the ten years, from 1892 to 1902, these changes have occurred:

First—Russia, Germany and the United States have all become the owners of as many battleships as France, which, ten years ago was, in that respect, second only to Great Britain.

Second—Japan's navy has been created, and, for Asiatic purposes, is united with Great Britain's.

Third—The British and Japanese navies together number 47 armor-clads of the first class—three more than the combined total of Russian, French and German warships of that class.

Fourth—France has made armored cruisers the prime feature of her new construction, and will shortly count thirteen of them.

Fifth—Great Britain has well maintained her lead over her two most probable adversaries, and now counts 29 first class battleships ready for action, against 17 for France and Russia combined.

Assuming that the United States does not join it, the Naval Annual concludes that no combination of naval powers could be made strong enough to destroy British sea power.

ANTHRACITE COAL MINING MAY SOON BE RESUMED

Mr. Elias Rogers, Returns from a Visit to Strike Centres—Good Reasons for Opinion

Toronto, Sept. 17—"The prospect of an early resumption of mining in the anthracite coal districts is very good, so far as I can judge from interviews with both miners and operators I think I have good reasons for forming this opinion, but do not think it would be wise to give them."

This was the statement of Mr. Elias Rogers, of the Elias Rogers Coal Company, at noon today, upon his return from the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania, where he spent a day or two investigating the strike situation.

SITUATION IN TORONTO.

Ten dollars per ton was paid today for hard coal by several citizens, but the supply is practically exhausted, and in a day or two a ton will not be obtainable at any price. Heavy consignments of soft coal are being delivered.

Hard wood prices also show an upward tendency. This week the rate per cord was advanced from $7 to $7.50, with a probability that the continuance of the coal famine will send the rate still higher in the near future. "I have orders enough to keep five teams going for a week," said one dealer in wood this morning.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 17.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement issued to-day, takes a hopeful view of the strike situation. The statement follows ... —

"At this time it is impossible to say exactly when the strike will terminate, but after careful enquiry into the situation at the mines I am convinced that the struggle will end by agreement. The wage-earners and the general public are generously contributing to the aid of the miners. It is essential that this aid be extended and continued. If the manhood of the miners is to be maintained they must at least have bread for their wives and little ones as well as for themselves. The declared attitude of the president of the anthracite railroads has not apparently changed. Despite this fact, I am fully convinced that the strike will end through agreement with improved conditions for the miners and the union maintained.

"Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor."

ALL EFFORTS HAVE FAILED.

New York, Sept. 17.—After a conference yesterday with J. P. Morgan, and John Markle, representing Markle & Company, the latter made the following statement of the coal situation.—"There is just one way to end the strike—by the men returning to work. Conditions are improving daily; more men are returning to work, and more coal is being mined. So far as recent attempts at settlement are concerned, it is only necessary to add that every effort from Senator Hanna's down has been futile. We have defined our position and will maintain it." The estimated output of coal for last week is 120,200 tons, an increase over the second week of August of 105,200 tons. The operators say that a big gain will be made this week. The output for the second week in August was 25,000 tons.

INCREASING THEIR OUTPUT.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Mines on New River are increasing their output daily, and are working about half the regular force. Miners are being forced out of the company's houses every day, and as the weather gets colder they must either move away or go back to work. At a consultation between operators the Sheriff of Fayette County and the officers of the militia, it has been decided to ask the Governor not to withdraw the troops for the present.

A committee of New River coal operators, having charge of matters pertaining to the strike, at a meeting at Thurmond, have adopted resolutions, declaring that the operators will not recognize the United Mine Workers of America or treat with them or any of their members, with reference to the wage scale or other conditions of employment, and that they will make no concessions or in any way change the conditions of employment from what they were when the strike was called.

"THE YELLOW PERIL"

How the Evil May be Greatly Diminished

TRADESUNIONS V.S. THE CHINESE

The Duty of The Labouring Classes is to Support the White Laundries—More Chinese in Peterborough Than Ever Before

The following article taken from the Canadian Laundryman, of Peterborough, deals with the Chinese question in a comprehensive and business like manner. In Peterborough, as elsewhere, the Chinese laundries are on the increase, and it is only a question of time until they drive the legitimate trade out of business, unless some action is taken to prevent it. Here is what our contemporary says:

Now that the Corporation Council of Toronto has declared that the city has no power under the law to tax laundries a flat rate of $50 each, some other means must be resorted to in order to drive out the Chinese. It seems to us that there still remains a powerful weapon with which to fight this yellow peril, and that is concerted action by Trades Unions, which today are linked together in one connecting chain for mutual protection and support by means of the Trades and Labor Councils.

According to all accounts Chinese laundries are mainly supported by workingmen, and the major portion of workingmen are members of organized labor. The motto of Trades Unions is "United to Support—not Combined to Injure." and under their precepts it is acknowledged to be incumbent on every Union Man to patronize the product of organized labor where ever possible. Now the laundry workers of Toronto and most every city on the continent are organized under an International Union, and employed in "white laundries" paying an agreed upon a schedule of prices for a given number of hours' labor; such institutions are undoubtedly entitled to the support of every Union Man in preference to their Chinese competitors, who do about a third of all the laundry work in Toronto, and supplant about 1,000 working people.

While the Celestials may not cut prices in one sense, they do in another by crowding as many hours into a working day as possible. This places the "white laundryman" at a disadvantage, inasmuch as he has to pay over-time rate for each hour after a given time, no matter how busy he may be, and his prices for laundering remain the same. The Chinaman and his almond-eye help recognize no Unionism other than that embodied in SELF, and will work all hours for the same price, throwing in also additional light; and this may be termed "cutting prices."

If Unionism means "United to Support," the employer as well as employee, then its advocates should apply this principle to their brethren, the laundry workers, who are, equally with the laundrymen, affected by each dollar's worth of laundering given to a Chinese joint. A working man will demand a Union Made Cigar, a Union Made Suit of Clothes, Boots, and why not, then in the name of common sense why should he not insist upon his laundry being done by "Union Laundry Workers."

If it is true that the Celestials are mainly supported by workingmen, let the principles of Unionism be applied, and Toronto and other cities will not need a laundry tax. Now is the time for the Laundry Workers' Union in Toronto to take a hand in the game, in justice to their employers as well as themselves. Let them send delegates to the Trades and Labor Council and lay the issue before that body, which can, by its connection with all labor organizations, use its influence to advantage in this matter. The Chinese are a scourge, then bring united labor into the fight if possible. The Ottawa Typographical Union recently passed, in support of the Musicians' Union, a resolution to expel any member playing in a Non-Union Band. How much more necessary is equally drastic action against the Chinese, who refuse citizenship, crowd out organized white labor, run unsanitary joints and come here simply to make money to spend in China, where the white man and his civilization is as unwelcome as rain in harvest.

MANITOBA'S VAST CROP

Would Require a Train Four Hundred Miles Long to Move It

Special to The Times.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Some statistician with plenty of time on his hands has started figuring the length of train required to move the present year's grain crop from Manitoba to the eastern market.

According to this gentleman's figures the train would reach from Galt, Ont., to Montreal, a distance of four hundred miles. He estimates that this would constitute fifteen hundred trains of forty cars each, and each train being estimated at 543 yards, it would give a total of 712,000 yards, or 405 miles.

The probability of a blockade has been lessened this year in consequence of the increased number of long sidings and engines of cars. The C.P.R. authorities state that they are enabled to run a train now every half hour between Winnipeg and Fort William. The elevator capacity at Fort William and Port Arthur has also been increased by some ten million bushels. In addition to this the Canadian Northern Railway Company say they will be able to handle fourteen million bushels of the crop, or about double what they could handle last year.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 17.—The ways of the new Amir of Afghanistan, according to recent Indian papers, causing considerable dissatisfaction to the British Indian Government. Since his accession to the throne he has had but little communication with the Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon, and has imprisoned a number of British subjects on suspicion of being spies. He has also raised many obstacles to trade in addition to those imposed by his late father, and is showing a disposition generally to have as little to do as possible with his great neighbor to the east. In addition to the measures taken to secure the fidelity and increase the efficiency of his army, he has ordered tents to be furnished for ninety-six thousand men; and depots of grain and forage have already been formed in different parts of the country.

Up to the present time Central Asian politics has had but little interest for the world at large. The energy of the Russian advance has, however, brought about a change, and before long the affairs of the two remaining independent Mohammedan States of Asia, Afghanistan and Persia, will become matters of international concern.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 16—Governor Richards has been informed by telephone from Grand Encampment that for many miles along the Wyoming-furious forest fire is raging, devastating everything in its path. Every effort to subdue the flames has been exhausted without effect. Governor Richards immediately communicated with Governor Orman of Colorado, and arranged for both to send a telegram to the Secretary of the Interior asking for aid. According to the latest reports there are at least eighteen serious forest fires burning in Wyoming to say nothing of numerous smaller fires in Southern Albany County that are destroying great swamps of fine pine timber in the Medicine Bow range and threatening mining buildings. Although a hundred miles away from Cheyenne, the smoke from these fires obscures the sky here and the odor of burning wood is plainly noticeable.

New York, Sept. 16—The North German Lloyd steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm, which arrived in port this morning from Bremen, Southampton, and Cherbourg, beat all previous westward records. She left Cherbourg at 9.10 p.m., on Wednesday, Sept. 01, and arrived at the Sandy Hook lightship at 4.07 this morning, making the run of 3,047 miles in five days, 11 hours and 57 minutes, at an average speed of 22.00 knots an hour. The time is twenty six minutes better than the time of the Deutschland.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 18, 1902.

THE ANGLICAN SYNOD

The day of amalgamation has come to stay not only in manufacturing and financial concerns, but also in religious associations. On all sides it is seen that union is strength.

In 1894 the various independent diocesan and provincia lsynods in Canada met for the first time in one general synod for the whole Dominion. Bishops, clergy and laity from the Atlantic to the Pacific met in Toronto. Since then one session was held in Winnipeg, and now another has just closed in Montreal; and never before did the Church of England in Canada show to better advantage. The undertakings were great, the discussions were able, and the decisions have made history for that eclesiastical body. Twenty or more bishops represent what is called the upper house, and the clergy and laity the lower house; and while on two important subjects, marriage of divorced people and the Diaconate, the two houses could not agree, the action on the whole was harmonious, and marked by a total absence of partyism or "schools of thought" such as has sometimes marred the proceedings.

The great work of the church is the bearing of the supreme message and the extension of the Lord's kingdom, and to do this a general missionary society was formed, with jurisdiction to the three oceans which bound our country, and no longer shall that church regard any missionary work in British North America as "foreign." This society, through the agency of local synods and associations, will awaken the missionary spirit, and collect and distribute more men and more money over our land, as well as contribute better support for China, Japan and elsewhere.

A forward step has also been taken in making provision for a distinctly Canadian prayer book. It is not intended to abolish the prayers which the church now has, but to enrich the present book by additional services and prayers adapted to the environments of a young and growing country, and the whole book will be paged and indexed so as to make it more convenient for the use of strangers to the order of services. On account of the change of sovereign in England, the type has to be set up there for a new prayer book, and that circumstance enables the church on this side of the Atlantic to cap the General Synod of Canada with a Canadian prayer book without incurring any material additional expense.

A committee was appointed to consider the various Anglican colleges and universities, and to devise some plan of amalgamating and strengthening them, so as to lead to a still higher and more uniform standard of education in the church.

Our great supreme court of final appeal has been established, so that henceforth the general law of the church shall be the same from one end of the Dominion to the other, and will be administered by the one court of final resort.

Both houses agreed in continuing the long established rule of the church against marriages within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity, and refused to admit the principle of the "deceased wife's sister bill." On the other hand, the upper house sought to pass a canon prohibiting a clergyman from performing the marriage ceremony under any circumstances over a divorced person while the former partner in marriage was alive. The lower house would not agree to this prohibition in the case of the remarriage of the innocent party in the event of divorce for adultery; and therefore, the clergy in each diocese may, if they see fit, continue to treat such marriages as valid, and the parties to them as entitled to the ministration and sacraments of the church.

Many other matters of less general importance, both of church life and financial support, were discussed and dealt with, and we think that the Anglican communion may well be congratulated on the work they have done and the bright outlook for the future.

Care of the Trees

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—That the trees and boulevards of the town should be the care of a few men specially chosen for their knowledge and interest in such matters was a suggestion put forward by the Times some time ago. The idea is, at all times, a commendable one, and a movement to this end should be set on foot in the Council at once. To expect each citizen to look after the trees fronting his own premises whether as owner or occupant by lease is to leave the matter at hap-hazard. "What is everyone's business is nobody's." The needful work will not be done, or if done at all, not on any uniform or satisfactory plan. It can only be properly attended to by a special committee with power, but of course under limitations in regard to expense. Nor would it be necessary or wise to do all that seems to be called for in one or two sections. To proceed carefully, section by section, and observe effects, would produce the best results. When a builder erects a tier of dwellings the last is more perfect in its plan than the first, profiting by the progressive experience. The trees which line so many of our residential streets are only to be regarded in small part from the aesthetic point of view. They were not planted merely for adornment, though the effect of their growth is to make the city beautiful beyond anything of the kind to be seen for a thousand miles. Their first object was for use, as a shield from the then all-prevailing dust and hot glare of the sun in summer. The dust has been greatly modified by the improvement in our streets, macadam or other permanent pavement and wide boulevards taking the place of the mud which in the rainy season was axle-deep. The beauty of the trees, however, and the shade they afford add a solid business value to every foot of ground on which they are planted. Mature trees neatly pruned and in good health, add twenty-five per cent. to the cash value of real estate. What is worth doing, therefore, in the way of care and cultivation, is worth doing well, and the Council will make no error if it proceeds along these lines.

This accepted bank cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering decline entering into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

THE WEST IS IN LUCK

Fine Weather Continues for the Threshing Operations

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.—Warm weather blessed the threshers and the tail-end of the harvesting yesterday and predictions are for a continued bright season during the remainder of the month. Reports come of a large quantity of binder twine being used up owing to the heavy growth. A yield of 30 and 35 bushels are frequently reported. Complaints of a scarcity of help for threshers is heard throughout the length and breadth of the land. Some 108,000 bushels of wheat were marketed Thursday, 10,500 being from Deloraine. There is a marked improvement in the method of handling cars this year and it looks as if the railway company have a good grasp of the situation. Col. Davidson, of Duluth, whose company has 1,200,000 acres of land in Saskatchewan, believes the end of the season will see 35,000 new settlers in Western Canada.

The Moonstone Sphinx

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

be found for Dick in London, which would be better than Ireland. And even though this money's gone, it's not all wasted, for Dick bought his experience. Oh, while there's nothing worse than this, dear, you mustn't look so pale and heart-broken!"

"There is—something else, Winnie," faltered Mrs. Gray. "Not worse—oh, not worse! Still, I'm afraid it will grieve you to hear it."

For a moment Winifred had forgotten her mother's hint that "troubles came in twos and threes." Her heart grew cold again.

"It's only about me," went on the elder woman, almost apologetically. "You know you made me promise that I'd see a doctor about myself, and I said that I would when I could screw up my courage. I wrote to Sir Digby Field asking for an appointment, and it came for to-day at three o'clock. I was glad that it was Wednesday, and matinee day, for then you need not know anything about it till it was over. You were not coming home to dinner, and I hoped that when I saw you at night after the theater I should have something reassuring to tell you. But, darling—I haven't. It's the other way."

"Mother!" cried Winifred, her face stricken white, her voice sharp with fear. She wound her arms tightly round the slender waist, holding the frail little figure as if with her own young body she would defend it against all harm.

"Don't look like that, darling!" her mother implored. "Sir Digby didn't say I must—die. He only told me that I was in danger, and that, if my life were to be saved, I must undergo a serious operation. Not at once, but I should not wait longer than two or three months. After that, it might be—too late!"

"Would it be a dangerous operation?" the girl asked, breathlessly.

"A little. It must always be so with such things, I fancy. But it is the expense I am thinking of, Winnie. I didn't know when I saw Sir Digby about 'Irish Life' and poor Dick. But when I came home, feeling somewhat upset, there was the letter waiting for me. It seemed almost too much."

Winifred pressed her lips tightly together over her own secret, as if to hide it under lock and key lest it should betray itself. She had quite resolved now that she would say nothing to make her mother's burden heavier, unless circumstances forced her later on to speak.

"Don't worry about the money, mother-kin. It will be all right, you'll see," she said. "And when you're well again—as you will be soon—how happy we shall feel."

"I asked Sir Digby how much it would all cost," sighed the little woman, "and he said it wouldn't be safe to calculate upon less than two hundred pounds. For I shall have to be a long time at a nursing home. I don't see how we can manage it."

"Nonsense!" cried Winifred. "Nothing easier. Money isn't what it used to be to us when I, poor little wretch, thought I was lucky to get three pounds a week on tour."

"And you lived on one, and sent two to Dick and me!"

"I never wanted more, dear. You've no idea how passing rich a girl can be on twenty shillings a week touring in the country, if she chums with another girl, as I did. Oh, there was plenty of fun in those days. I like to look back on them!"

As she looked back now, they seemed delightfully free from care. There had been no horrible millionaires then, offering her champagne and many other things which she could not take.

Somehow she comforted her mother, undressing her and putting her to bed as if she had been a child—for Jameson was never permitted to sit up for any ministrations after the theater. Mother and daughter preferred then to help each other, and have their two small connecting bedrooms to themselves.

But Winifred herself did not sleep. All the pent-up grief which she had not allowed to be seen, at thought of the suffering and danger from which, at best, she could not save her adored mother, broke over her in a wave. She buried her burning face in the pillow, quivering as if under the strokes of a lash, though no tears came. Whatever happened, she must have money. There must be something for poor Dick, who seemed always so unlucky, even when hopes had been highest; and, above all, the little mother must be cared for as if she were a queen. Nothing must be lacking—nothing.

Usually, when Winifred went to bed, she had only to close her eyelids to fall asleep, not to wake until Jameson knocked in the morning and threw back the heavily-lined blue curtains that kept the early light from pouring in at the open window. But to-night she lay listening feverishly to the quarter-hours as they were solemnly struck by St. Mary's Church clock, wondering if she would still be awake to hear the next.

She invariably did hear the next, and the next. And so morning came. Her habit was not to rise till nine, as it was well, her mother said, for young people who worked hard to have plenty of sleep. When it was half-past seven, however, she could bear to lie in bed no longer, and she had bathed and dressed without waking her mother in the next room, before it was time for the maid to come to her door.

Already the letters had arrived and were waiting on a table in the drawing-room until it should be time for Jameson to carry them to Mrs. Gray and her daughter. On top was an envelope addressed in Mr. Anderson's handwriting, and the girl's heart gave a leap as she caught sight of it.

He had written to her on several occasions, about the time when her engagement in his company was pending, but never since.

She took up the letter with a hand that was not quite steady, and saw from the smart crest and monogram on the envelope that it was the paper which he used at home. He must have written to her immediately on arriving at his house in Sloane street, after the theater last night.

A vision of him leaving the stage entrance with Lionel Maguire, and driving away in the latter's carriage, when both had bowed with elaborate formality to her, flashed into her head. Had the millionaire's revenge already begun by prejudicing the manager's mind against her? Surely Mr. Anderson would not be so unfair to—— But she would not wait to finish the question. She tore open the envelope.

"Dear Miss Gray," said the actor-

STOCK MARKETS

Appertaining to Money

New York, Sept. 17.—We quote to-day Robert A. Housman as to the money situation. He has been remarkably correct in his expressed market views the past two years, consequently we deem his opinions expressed below of value. He goes on to say, money is like water, it finds its own level. The present high rates will soon bring plenty to New York. There is no sentiment in banking, and it is not as if there were any stagnation in money in the country; as a whole there is plenty of money in the middle west, and it will pour in from there and from Europe as fast as it can get there. A large amount was shipped from the west on Friday and by Wednesday will certainly make its effect felt here. We shall soon ship large quantities of grain and cotton to Europe, and the money returned from exportation will soon pour in and ease the situation here. Cases like this soon find their own solution. The stringency now is greater than usual, due to the unparalleled prosperity of the country. Every wheel is turning, and the crops to be moved are exceedingly heavy. There never was such a demand for money for actual business needs. When money is in demand for legitimate purposes it means that the country is prosperous, and when interest is down to one and two per cent. then something is wrong. Several other prominent bankers expressed practically the same opinions on Monday. It is in our opinion better to buy stocks when money is close, and the market consequently down a few points, than to loan it to the other fellow to purchase with; he will make more out of it than you will if you accommodate him. Money is not scarce due to fear or distrust, but merely on account of the immense demand for it by business houses for business purposes; it will speedily adjust itself. The current situation brought about by the above state of affairs create a splendid opportunity for you to come into the market and purchase stocks to advantage. Once the situation is cleared you will be able to dispose of your purchase at a good profit. There is every reason in the world for anticipating a much higher range of values this fall for the early winter months.

Summary.—Money still easier, as anticipated. Gold is on its way here from both London and Australia. The latter will be paid out in New York by telegraphic order, thus saving transit across the continent. We believe gold will be soon drawn from Europe in considerable quantities. Stocks were exceedingly strong. Manhattan was aggressively bought and crossed 137. Southern Pacific sold above 79. Union 116 1-2, Norfolk within a fraction of 77. Despite close money, stocks are again not far from top prices. Atchinson was in heavy demand, as was St. Paul, despite yesterday's apparent attempt to fool people into the belief that heavy inside liquidation was in progress by the execution of a 100,000 share order given a prominent house.

We are exceedingly bullish on the present market. Money closed last loan 7 per cent. Sales, 851,300.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Bizerta, Tunis, Sept. 16—M. Pelletan, the French Minister of Marine, made a remarkable speech at an entertainment of the municipality yesterday evening, which it is expected will cause the French Foreign Minister, M. Delcasse, some trouble to explain. After pointing out the importance of Bizerta as a bulwark of France, M. Pelletan proceeded: "We do not say we want to make the Mediterranean a French lake. We have been cured of the dreams of that great man who wishes us to dominate the world. But part of the Mediterranean is French and will remain French. With this powerful rampart so well situated for defence and also for attack, and with Corsica and Toulon we can hold the open door between the two halves of the Mediterranean, in spite of Malta and Gibraltar. Certainly I do not desire a conflict of peoples against England any more than against Italy, but as we do not know what others are doing it is part of our duty to prepare for the Holy War for the French fatherland against its enemies whoever they may be. I am convinced, thanks to the fellow-workers with whom I am surrounded, that we can face every eventuality. Security hardly exists any more for the civilized world. At the end of the nineteenth century, after the defeat of France by the barbarism of old Germany. We saw an offensive return of the law of brute force. The whole world seemed to be dominated by the maxim "might before right. "We must then devote all our efforts in keeping intact that focus of justice and light—French genius."

Mr. Pelletan concluded with remarking that he would not say any more at present. He had not yet become accustomed to being a Minister and feared he might be carried away into expressing his opinion of matters which exclusively concerned the Foreign Ministry.

Offers to the public the second allotment of $50,000 worth of 6 per cent. first mortgage 20-year Gold Bonds of the issue of $500,000. Out of the first allotment several of the stockholders subscribed to these bonds.

Denominations of these bonds are from $100 to $500 each, and the money received from the sale of these bonds will be deposited in the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., of New York, who are Trustees for the bonds and Registrars for the stock to be used to build four Blast Furnaces to smelt precious metal ores, with an earning capacity of a daily net profit of $3,100 a day. The bonds will be secured by the Company's entire properties and improvements.

Smelter profits are fabulous, and one can scarcely realize profits on Smelter's stock and bonds since the consolidation of the Smelters in America.

This Company offers its bonds at par, with a donation of stock as a bonus, which will be agreed upon to the purchaser of the bonds.

The officers of the Company are F. W. Warnock, Pres., Butte, Mont., who is largely interested in the best-paying mine in Montana; George Pope, Vice-Pres., of New York city, who is treasurer of the American Bicycle Co.; Joseph Johnston, Treas., Butte, Mont., who is the General Manager of the Montana Verde Copper Co.; Joseph Cooper, Secy., of New York city.

If you are interested and wish a safe permanent income investment, which will grow and compound while you sleep, send your check or draft for $100 up to $10,000 or more, made payable to the Montana Smelting & Refining Company, and let us send you by return mail the bonds and stock as agreed upon, given as a bonus.

The above offer is subject to prior sale, and will not be left open to the public very long, as this is a special offer to the public. The bonds will stand close scrutiny and investigation. Write for further information and particulars, if you want a large block.

ONE MACHINE vs. TWENTY MEN.

In this age of trusts and strong competition manufacturers are ever on the alert to obtain new inventions in machinery that will materially increase their output and at the same time reduce expenses.

Various machines have been invented which will do the work of two, three, or five men, and their inventors, or those owning the patents, have all made enormous profits from the same.

If a machine of the capacity of only a few men is such a financial success you can readily judge what an enormous demand there would be for a machine that will do the work of twenty men.

SUCH A MACHINE HAS NOW BEEN INVENTED

for the most important branch in the manufacturing of carriages and automobiles.

The machine has been indorsed by the largest carriage manufacturer in the world.

Plants are already established in New York and Philadelphia, and on a paying basis. Additional plants are to be erected in all principal cities, and in order to quickly obtain ready capital to build the same a limited amount of stock will be sold at the low price of 14 CENTS PER SHARE (PAR VALUE $1).

Being the only machine of its kind on the market, there is no competition, and the fact that plants are already in operation and on a paying basis, is sufficient guarantee of its success.

If you are looking for a safe, profitable investment, send at once for particulars, before price of stock advances.

The Cause of Deafness

Deafness and impaired hearing are due almost entirely to catarrhal inflammation of the eustachian tubes. Permanent cure is guaranteed to all who inhale Catarrhozone as directed. The vegetable antiseptic is inhaled at the mouth, and after traversing all the air passages of the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils; it completely erradicates catarrh from any part of the system, clears the ears, nose and throat, and allays, inflammation, congestion and soreness. For Deafness, Earache, Ringing in the ears, Head Noises, Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchitis, medical science can devise nothing as beneficial as Catarrhozone. A Painful Accident

Yesterday morning an accident occurred at the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company's Works, whereby Mr. Wm. King, one of the machinists employed in the works, had his leg broken below the knee. It appears that Mr. King, along with several other workmen, was engaged in lifting a piece of machinery weighing about 1500 pounds, when the support on which it was resting slipped, and the casting fell on Mr. King's right leg, causing a compound fracture and badly lacerating the flesh. He was conveyed to Nicholls Hospital, where the bones were set by Dr. Eastwood. He is now doing as well as can be expected. Mr. King's many friends will sympathize with him in his misfortune.

The action against the Colville Cartage Company, who were also sued, was dismissed.

Mr. King, the deceased, lived in Peterborough all his life, where he was employed as a machinist. His tragic death was greatly deplored by his many friends here.

DISINFECTING SICK ROOMS

To the Editor of the Morning Times:

Sir,—The writer when in Toronto the other day inquired into the most approved method used there for disinfecting sick rooms, where infectious diseases had been attended. The most approved method in the city is, 1st, wash all the wood work with soft soap and hot water; 2nd, as soon as the room is dry sprinkle it all over with a solution of formalin—this solution is made by adding two ounces of commercial formalin to one gallon of water. 3rd, then burn a sulphur candle in the room 12 hours. This completes the work. The carpets and bedding are exposed to heat, probably of 400 degrees. At this temperature germ life is destroyed. A staff of officials is paid by the city to do the work. This we venture to say is a mistake. It takes away from the citizen the motive of self-exertion, and reduces him to the helpless condition of a sanitary pauper. It would be much better for the family to attend, at least, to the disinfection of their own house, under the direction of the medical attendant. By adopting this method the people would soon possess a fair share of sanitary knowledge and self-reliance, instead of looking for help from the state.

A short time ago a machine called a fumigator was invented over the border. It has been used for the purpose of disinfecting houses which had been visited by infectious diseases, especially smallpox. This fumigator reduces liquids to a gaseous form. The machine is wonderfully made; it has a gaudy brilliant appearance, with an air of mystery about its internal economy, and above all, it is a decided novelty in these parts. These attributes have secured a big sale for the fumigator. But, now some scientific investigators have expressed doubts about its utility; they say that the intense heat which is necessary to convert liquid into gas destroys its power as a germ killer. If this opinion is correct, then the fumigator is only a spectacular fraud. We have one in this town, and if it turns out to be a failure what will we do with it? It would be of no use as a coal oil can, or a musical instrument. Perhaps it should be sent to some museum, as another instance of the innocent credulity of the human race.

J. BINGHAM,
M. H. Officer.

A Presentation

The boys were taken rather by surprise and thanked those present for their kindness.

STRENGTH AND FOOD

The First Comes From the Last

When proper food is used in sickness the recovery is much more rapid and sure, and a food that is good and easy of digestion is right for anyone.

Mrs. H. L. Gordon, of Corry, Pa., was taken down with nervous prostration and heart trouble, about a year ago, and for weeks it seemed that she could not live.

She says, "The medicine I took for my nerves and heart injured my stomach and I grew steadily worse until I could retain nothing. For weeks I was kept alive on one teaspoonful of beef tea and one of lime water every hour and after a while I could not even continue that. I grew weaker and weaker and finally was compelled to use sweet oil to feed the bowels, until one day my daughter suggested that I try Grape-Nuts dry, as I could not retain anything moistened. After the third day I began to steadily mend and for weeks and months I ate them three times a day.

When I began eating Grape-Nuts I weighed 76 lbs.; now I weigh 110 and am doing my housework and eating nearly any and everything. I tell every one I hear complain of poor stomach to try Grape-Nuts and may have on the strength of my case.

AN OLD FINE PAID

Chief Rosel Collects an Old Scott Act Fine

Fifteen years ago when the Scott Act was in force a fine of $60 and costs was imposed on a citizen, for violation of that precious piece of legislation. The fine, like many others, was not paid. The other day, Chief Rosel happened to hear that the party against whom the fine was registered, was stopping at one of the hotels, and he at once made a demand for the money. The visitor put in a vigourous kick, but finally paid over the amount, together with $15 interest.

It is said that the victim of the Chief's "enterprise" is likely to become a citizen, and in view of this, and also in view of the fact that this fine was imposed under conditions that are now regarded as tyrannical and unjust, it might have been better to let it go.

Sports and Pastimes.

Toronto Globe—Before a crowd of nearly 1,000 people one of the most interesting games of lacrosse ever played in New Ontario was played at Copper Cliff Tuesday. The match was the last game of the semi-finals between Oshawa and Copper Cliff. The grounds, which have recently been improved by the Canadian Copper Company, were in grand condition, and the game was fast and furious from the start. Mr. H. Gillespie, of Orangeville referred the game to the entire satisfaction of both sides. The ball was faced about three o'clock and in three and a half minutes actual play Whitehead scored for Copper Cliff, on a clean pass from Barlow, and in another six minutes Barlow scored again for the Cliff. The Copper-Cliffers by this time were in high glee over the anticipated result of the game, the finish of the first quarter showing fine scientific combination on both sides, the Cliff, if anything, getting the best of it. Oshawa, by accident, scored the third goal, and at the end of the quarter the score was two to one in favor of the Cliff.

In the second quarter both teams started off on good style. Bobby Pringle distinguished himself by his dodging and general headwork, and in eleven minutes Copper Cliff scored another to their list, and in a minute and a half more another. It now looked if the whole team was out to win, as they were playing lacrosse to a man, and outplayed their opponents at every stage of the game. In ten minutes' play Oshawa scored the last game of the day, and from then on played simply a defence game. The score at the finish of the second quarter was four to two infavor of the Cliff. Oshawa bunched their entire team in front of their goal, leaving but one one man outside of centre position. The home team endeavored to penetrate the defence and rained shot after shot at the goalkeeper who saved the round for Oshawa. The game was comparatively clean the referee being seldom called on to exercise his authority. Copper Cliff played ten men to eleven for ten minutes of the game. For the home team mention must be made of Dunn, at centre, Barlow and Whitehead on the home and McKay, Hammond and Anderson, on the defence; in fact every man acquited himself nobly. After the game the people of this town think that on the merits of the two teams Copper Cliff should be in the finals and not have been overrated. Oshawa has won out the semi-finals by a score of eight to six. The final game for the junior championship of the C.L.A. will be played off at the Island on Saturday afternoon between Bradford and Brantford II. This will be an exciting game as neither team has lost a match this season, and they are both playing as fast lacrosse as is being played by most teams in the intermediate series. Each team will likely have a large number of "rooters" present, as both teams are running big excursions.

Dyspepsia AND Liver Disease CURED BY

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

"I was weak, nervous and dizzy, with a fainting sensation when walking," writes Jesse Childress, Esq., of Samuel, Sullivan Co., Tenn. "Could not walk any distance; always felt bad after eating; felt as though something was sticking in my throat, always uneasiness in stomach. Doctored with three physicians but they did not relieve me. I grew worse and used everything I could think of; was nearly ready to give up and then some one told me that Dr. Pierce's medicine was good, so I began taking his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have taken seven bottles of that now and am as stout as ever, and enjoying health as much as ever before. I worked all summer and this winter as much as any one. My case was liver disease and nervous dyspepsia of which your medicine has cured me. In September 1898 my weight was about 95 pounds, now it is 135. Please accept my sincere thanks."

SOUTH AFRICA'S BIG PROBLEM NOT SOLVED

Disloyal Dutch and the Bond Working Hand in Hand

THE SITUATION NOT VERY PROMISING

A Cape Town Merchant's Views—Canada's Opportunity For a Large Increase in Trade

Toronto, Ont. Sept. 17.—Mr. P. J. Ryan, of Cape Town, a leading wholesale merchant of that city, and formerly for 25 years member of Parliament for Malmesbury Division of Cape Colony, now represented by Schreiner, is in the city as the guest of Col. Sam Hughes, M.P. In an interview with a reporter Mr. Ryan said that the political situation in South Africa, particularly in Cape Colony presented grave problems. The majority of the Boers in the Transvaal and Orange River colonies were, he believed, willing and wishful to become loyal British subjects, but the disloyal colonial Dutch element in Cape Colony fostered by the Bond and the Dutch clergymen, were doing, and would continue to do, the best to prevent that. The loyal colonists, Dutch and British alike, had hoped that after the war the Bond would not have the power which it has yielded in the past. Sir Gordon Sprigg, had, however, gone over to the Bond, and that party, at the present moment, seemed stronger than ever. The action of Sir Gordon Sprigg had proved an unwelcome surprise to the loyalists. "I have no wish to say anything against him," said Mr. Ryan, "but he seems to be an opportunist, pure and simple." Loyalists were now hoping that the great commercial development with a redistribution of seats in the House, would enable them to carry measures, which, while not revolutionary or in any degree startling, would aid in the termination of such an unsettled state of affairs. They were afraid, however, that the moment martial law was withdrawn two continentals (Europeans) would flock into South Africa to every one loyal Briton. The continentals were anti-British, and would greatly strengthen the Bond and the dissatisfied Dutch element who would be emboldened to continue their disloyal agitation in the two new South African colonies. Mr. Ryan reminded the reporter that when Botha, Dewet and Delarey signed the articles of peace with Lord Kitchener, they were frankly outspoken in expressing their determination to henceforth live as loyal British subjects. "I believe they meant it, but at that time," said Mr. Ryan. "I predicted that the moment they got among the Cape Colony Bond element their tone would change. And it did; they talked openly, loudly expressing the hope that the time might come when they could have another chance to realize their national aspirations." It would, he continued, pay England to expend large sums of money to encourage the settlement in South Africa of loyal subjects from the British Isles, and such a plan had been urged by many leading Cape Colony loyalists. But while it was easy to propose that England should do this or that to check the influx of foreign anti-British immigration, it was not so easy to secure the adoption of a plan and one could understand that British statesmen would move with extreme caution and deliberation in trying to solve so great and grave a problem.

On trade matters, Mr. Ryan, whose house has branches from end to end of South Africa, urged, as others of his countrymen have done, that Canadian firms send out their personal representatives to make a first-hand study of the situation. The Canadian-South African Steamship Line would, he was convinced prove successful if the merchants and manufacturers of the Dominion were equal to their opportunities. He thought the regular ports of call should be Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, East London and Durban, with perhaps an occasional call at Delagoa Bay. South Africa would not for years to come produce enough wheat to supply its own needs, and bought largely today from the United States, India and Russia. It was a fact however, that the people preferred Canadian wheat, and would like to see it supplant that from the countries named. Canadians could also find in South Africa a good market for agricultural machinery, ploughs, windmills, corrugated iron, mining machinery, boots and shoes and many other articles, most of which were now he said, purchased from the United States and Germany. Mr. Ryan left last night, with Col. Hughes, for the latter's residence at Lindsay, where he will stay a few days.

WILL NOT TOLERATE ANYTHING ANTI-BRITISH

European Governments Give Boer Generals a Definite Hint--Boxer Rising in China

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 18—Advices from Brussels confirm the statement that it has become doubtful whether the Boer Generals' proposed tour will be carried out. Several European Governments have caused it to be known in the most unmistakable manner they will tolerate no sort of anti-British demonstration.

LABOR AND HOUSING PROBLEMS.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 18—A Johannesburg correspondent says the returns issued by the Native Labor Association for August do not show marked improvement. The figures for the present month are somewhat better, but the only conclusion that can be arrived at is that the work of recruiting natives will be as slow as ever it was before the war. White laborers of the artisan class are most needed in Johannesburg at present. The housing problem is a grave difficulty, only those prepared to work in mines being sure of obtaining accommodation.

SERIOUS BOXER RISING.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 18.—Although says a Shanghai correspondent, it is believed that many reports regarding the Boxer rising in Sze Chuen are exaggerated, native officials are greatly perturbed over the serious condition of affairs in that province.

REVISION OF TREATIES.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 18—The Shanghai correspondent says the revision of Japanese and American treaties with China is proceeding. The Japanese maintain strict secrecy, and only Orientals are present at meetings, but commissioner have expressed the opinion that the Japanese Government will be unable to adopt article VIII. of the British treaty. The draft Chinese-United States treaty has been submitted. The convention amplifies and amends that of 1858 on lines generally similar to the treaty arranged by Sir James L. Mackay.

MEETING DEFICITS IN FRANCE.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 18.—The deficit of the French capital is becoming as troublesome as the national deficit, says a Paris correspondent. Authorities are now collecting a new tax of one half. of one per cent. on rentals, in order to supply the revenue lost by the remission of taxes on so-called "hygienic drinks"—wine, beer and cider. To meet a further deficit of $1,000,000 next year, due to increased expenditure on public works, the Prefect suggests surtaxes on coal, butter, game, poultry, meat, cheese, etc. It is doubtful whether the Government or Parliament will agree to this step.

LEAD TO CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.

Special to The Times

London, Sept. 18—The Czar's speeches at Kursk, says a St. Petersburg correspondent, have made a deep impression on the public mind. Novoe Vremya says the speeches may be regarded as insuring a clearance of air in village life. The repetition of the words of Alexander III. in his coronation speech to the peasants' deputation at Moscow: "Follow your marshals and nobility and refuse to believe in silly rumors," will prevent ill-disposed persons from persuading peasants that any change has occurred since that time in the attitude of the Crown to nobility and peasantry. Henceforth peasants must realize that all plans for attaining property by appropriation of other people's property lead only to crime and punishment. The speeches may be regarded as enunciating the Russian Government's future policy toward the political and economic state of the country, by inviting the classes interested to co-operate in the task of finding a remedy for the present melancholy condition of agriculture. The Czar has taken a step toward mitigating bureaucratic spirit, which is a fundamental evil of the Russian system of Government.

ANOTHER MENACE TO GREAT BRITAIN

Spain Building Immense Fortification Opposite Gibralter

BRITAIN BECOMING AROUSET

And Will Take Means to Greatly Strengthen the Stronghold—Spain's Strong Feeling Against Britain

London, Sept 18—The military and naval authorities of Great Britain are greatly disturbed by the action of the Spanish government in establishing a series of fortifications in the neighborhood of the bay and rock of Gibraltar. The chief value of this stronghold to the English has been that it has given us entire control of an exceedingly strong strategical point, a place where a large garrison could be maintained with ample supplies, and a bay in which British war vessels could find shelter and obtain supplies, or have their needs in the way of repairs promptly attended to. But the great extension that has been given of late to the range of large pieces of ordnance has materially changed old conditions, and has apparently deprived this historic stronghold of a considerable part of its value. The Spanish government has been for some time past engaged in constructing a series of positions in the form of an arc of a circle around the land end of Gibraltar from the northeast to the southwest. This strategic line has its extreme points at Terra Neuva on the Mediterranean and Punta Carnero at the entrance of the strait. The position nearest the English is at Sierra Carbonera, at which a battery has been laid out at a hieght of 226 metres from the water level, which is 6500 metres from the old and 7700 metres distant from the new quays at Gibraltar. Even the most distant of these strategical positions, that of Palmones, is but 8,850 metres from the quays. It seems to be the opinion of some of those who have looked into this matter that the fortifications, when completed and thoroughly equipped, will make the occupancy of the Bay of Gibraltar by a British naval squadron in time of war quite impossible, as the guns thus mounted will have sufficient range to sweep the entire bay. It is said that the British government has made representations to the government at Madrid that this work is entirely uncalled for, since aggressive action toward Spain is not to be expected on the part of the English; but it is also firmed that these representations have made little impression upon those now conducting the government affairs of Spain.

CAPE-TO-CAIRO RAILWAO

The Short Distance Yet to Be Built to Complete the Line

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 19.—About 2,800 miles of rail must be laid to complete the Cape-to-Cairo railway, the dream of Cecil Rhodes. At the present time the rails are laid to a point about 1,500 miles from Cape Town, and there is now a railway from Cairo to the junction of the Blue and White Nile, about 1,400 miles from Cairo.

The Victoria Falls, which are on the Cape-to-Cairo railway, will soon be at work generating power to operate several industrial establishments to be established around it. The power possibilities at this point are enormous. The river is over a mile wide and has the descent of 400 feet. It is probable that the power will be transmitted to Rhodesia, although this is somewhat further than is considered reasonable with present facilities.

IMMENSE WHEAT CROP

Mr. W. F. McCreary, M. P. For Selkirk, Gives Facts

Considerable Grain Held Over From Last Year—Frost Injured 3 per cent of Crop in East and West Assiniboia—All Danger Past

Ottawa, Sept. 18.—Mr. W. F. McCreary, M.P., for Selkirk, says that few people in the east have any idea of the magnitude of the grain crop of Manitoba and the territories and of the equipment that will have to be employed to bring it to tidewater for export. In addition to the phenomenal yield of the present harvest, an immense quantity of grain has been held over in the country from last year. As an instance, he says that in the district north of Indian Head there are 200,000 bushels of last years crop in store.

Scarcity of labor will, he estimates, delay the harvesting and threshing somewhat; but so soon as work in the Dakotas is finished men will drift over the line into Manitoba to secure another three weeks' employment. Threshing, if the weather is anything like it was last year, may be going on till Christmas.

Of the demand for agricultural machinery created by the harvest, Mr. McCreary, who arrived last evening, notes that on the trip down between Port Arthur and Ottawa he passed thirty threshing machines on the way west. The importation of machinery from the United States must also have been considerable, for at Portage la Prairie one dealer this autumn sold fourteen American threshing machines at $4,000 each.

Mr. McCreary says that the 8 degrees of frost experienced on the 11th caused a loss of about 3 per cent. in East and West Assiniboia, but not more than the insignificant proportion of 1 per cent. in Manitoba. All danger of further injury to the grain crop by cold weather has passed.

Dr. Hamiltons' Pills cure Constipation

The Mail and Empire Slander.

The Mail and Empire, in referring to an article on the political situation, published in this journal a few days ago, does not hesitate to resort to falsehood. Our contemporary says:

"The Peterborough Times, a subsidiary organ of Hon. J. R. Stratton, which first announced the negotiations for a coalition that have been going on since the middle of June, has come out with the announcement that there will be another general election in the near future. It states that, inasmuch as Messrs. Whitney and Foy, will not endorse it, and they have the confidence of their supporters, there can be no coalition.

"That the Peterborough Times has been the indirect voice of Hon. J. R. Stratton since the opening of the political hostilities in April last has never been denied, and the interesting point of it is that an early appeal to the people is forecasted.

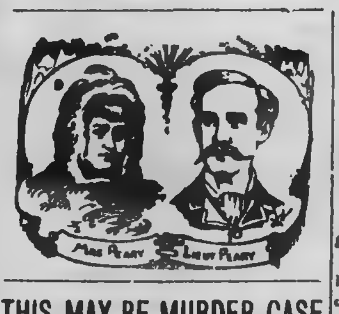
"Three of the most prominent Liberal members of the House, Messrs. James Conmee, Charles M. Bowman, and Sam Clarke, were at the Rossin House last night, and were shown the Peterborough Times' declaration. They said that the apprehension of an early election was nonsensical to them."

That The Times is not now nor never was the mouthpiece of Hon. Mr. Stratton is shown by the following which appeared in our issue of July 18th, in answer to a similar article of the Mail and Empire, which appeared in that paper early in July:

"The Mail and Empire, in its issue of yesterday, refers to a despatch published in The Times a few days ago, dealing with the political situation. Our contemporary would like the public to believe that Hon. Mr. Stratton inspired the despatch in question.

"We would say just here that Mr. Stratton had no more to do with this matter than the man in the moon. He neither wrote it or caused it to be written. And what is more: This journal takes no 'inspiration' from any one, and prints only what it believes the truth, regardless of everything else."

LIEUT. PEARY'S RETURN FROM THE FROZEN NORTH



THIS MAY BE MURDER CASE

JAMES CLARKE IS SAID TO BE DYING

As the Result of the Assault Alleged to Have Been Made Upon Him by Jake Selby

There is a Woodstock colored young man in the goal at present over whom hangs a probable charge of murder. Jake Selby, whose parents are very respectable people in the city, may have to answer a charge of murdering Jimmie Clark, of North Oxford. Clarke hovers between life and death at his home near Beachville.

On Thursday night, September 11th, the hotel at Beachville was the first scene of a tragedy which the law may have to demand a life for. Selby was at the hotel and became involved in a heated argument with the proprietor. Another man who was in the bar, was James Clark, the big West Oxford, farmer, well known here. It appears that he interfered on behalf of the hotel proprietor, advising Selby to leave the hotel before he got into trouble. Selby acted on the suggestion but proceeded only as far as the outer door of the hotel, where, so the story goes, he secured an empty bottle and waited in the darkness for the approach of Clark from the inner room of the building. The moment Clark appeared, his assailant raised the bottle and struck him a stunning blow on the side of the head and face. A deep and severe wound was inflicted, necessitating the putting in of thirteen stitches. Blood poisoning has set in and Clarke's life is despaired of. He is married, but his wife doesn't know how he was hurt. She thinks he was struck by a train.

Selby takes the matter very coolly. He denies his guilt and has retained Lawyer Alfred Bicknell to defend him.

FEARS HER DAUGHTER IS DEAD

Mary Ferguson Disappeared from Burlington Aug. 6.

Woodstock, Ont., Sept. 19.—On Aug. 6 Miss Mary Ferguson aged 22 years disappeared from her home in Burlington and no trace of her has since been found. On the same day the girls' parents lost $25 and they reported the loss of their daughter and their money to the Hamilton police. Inquiries were made and it was ascertained that the girl left Burlington in a row boat in company with Robert White, but that was the last ever seen of either the girl or White. Even White's wife, who resides in Hamilton, has not heard from him. The girl's parents have all along been of the opinion that she met with foul play.

Last Friday night the following dispatch appeared in the local papers—

New York, Sept. 18—The body of a young woman, who it is believed was murdered, was found on pier 30, East river today. She had been beaten and choked until her face was almost black. The police have no clue to her identity or any trace of her murderer. She was about 25 years old."

Mrs. Ferguson saw it, and believing that the body referred to was that of her daughter, she came to the city to consult with the police. Acting Chief Prentice has forwarded to the New York Police a description of the Ferguson girl and has requested to be furnished with information regarding the finding of the body.

Peary Arrives at North Sydney, Says His Last Dash to the Pole Was Most Successful

Further North Than Ever Before, Broke His Previous Record

Special to The Times.

North Sydney, C.B., Sept. 18—"My last dash for the Pole was quite successful. I was further north than 83.27 my previous record," said Lieut. Peary as he stepped from the deck of the steamer Windward. Dr. Dedrick is apparently in good health. Mrs. Peary is recovering from a fortnight's illness. Peary is well.

North Sydney, Sept. 18—Lieut. Peary arrived from the frozen north on board the Windward at 6.15 this morning. Dr. Dedricks is also aboard. Peary did not reach the Pole, but on the last dash made important discoveries.

The return of Lieutenant Peary from the Arctic expedition for which he sailed in July 1898, in the "Windward" will tend to revive public interest in the subject of Arctic exploration. Peary reached Port Foulke, at the entrance of Smith Sound, in August, 1898 and sailed thence for Sherrard-Osborne Fiord, from which place he hoped to reach the north of Greenland and then proceed over the ice to the Pole. A month later his ship was frozen in at Cape Durville, 150 miles south of Sherrard-Osborne Fiord. In December he started with Dr. Dederick and Mathew Henson, a colored man, to march to Fort Conger, which he reached minus seven of his toes and in no condition to make his contemplated dash to the Pole. He left Fort Conger April 15, 1899, and crossed Robeson Channel to the west coast of Greenland, which he followed northward on foot. On May 8 he reached Lockwood's farthest north cairn of May, 1882, and took the records. At Lat 83 deg. 39 Peary rounded the northern extremity of Greenland, and here on the most northerly land known in the world he built a cairn and deposited records. He started for the Pole over the sea ice, but at 83 deg. 50 was stopped by broken pack and open water. The farthest north attained by any explorers was 86 deg. 50 by Abruzzi, and 14 by Nansen, who drifted to that position through the Siberian Arctic.

Peary himself in his report to the Peary Arctic Club of the work of 1900 sums up his accomplishment as follows:

First—The round of the northern limit of the Greenland archipelago, the most northerly land known in the world; probably the most northerly land.

Second—The highest latitude yet attained in the Western Hemisphere—83 deg. 50 north.

Third—The determination of the origin of the so-called paleocrystic ice-floe berg—etc.

He adds: "Considering that I am an old man, have one broken leg, and only three toes, and that my starting point was Etah, I feel that this was doing tolerably well."

Most people will feel that this modest claim should be allowed, and will agree with Mrs. Peary, who is something of an Arctic explorer, that the gallant lieutenant has done his share of Arctic exploration and should be allowed to rest. He has certainly done one man's share of arctic work with credit to himself and profit to the world, and can now well afford to leave whatever he has left undone (nobody knows how little that may be) to boys like Captain Bernier.

WILL DIVIDE CHINA AMONG THE NATIONS

The Celestial Empire on the Very Eve of Bankruptcy

A BLUE OUTLOOK FOR THE FLOWERY KINGDOM

Her Methods Must be Revolutionized or Awful Crash Will Come Says General Sharretts

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—Speaking of the commercial outlook in the Orient, General T. S. Sharretts, the United States Commissioner, who recently aided in framing a new tariff for China and who is now enroute to Washington, said:

"Reform is urgently needed in the financial policy of China and its methods of managing financial affairs and especially in collecting revenues.

"As matters stand American trade with China is of little importance and will never amount to much under the proposed new tariff, or under any tariff. The collection of the government's revenues is placed in the hands of middlemen, or thieving officials, if you will, who permit about 10 per cent. of their collections to reach the government. China is on the eve of bankruptcy and unless the Powers get together and force the country into revolutionizing its methods within the next ten years there will be an awful crash in the Far East. China will appear in the deplorable role of defaulting in her indemnity payments to the treaty powers and the division of the Chinese Empire among the big world-owners will surely follow."

Mr Sharretts gave it as his opinion that China would attach her signature to the new tariff before long.

Mr. Sharretts was instrumental in preventing the signing by China of the proposed New British commercial treaty which, by providing for an abolition of the Likin tax, and an increased duty on all imports, he says, would have injured American trade with China.

ONTARIO MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION

A Synopsis of the Questions Considered and Dealt With

Mayor Denne Represented Peterborough Town Council at the Sessions

The business transacted at last week's meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association at Brockville, when Peterborough Council was represented by Mayor Denne, is summed up in the appended reports by a committee which was appointed for that purpose:

1. That no action be taken on the resolution requiring voters when election is by general vote, to vote for at least one half of the number of aldermen to be elected.

2. That section 677 of the Municipal Act be amended as far as it applies to municipalities having adopted the local system in respect of sidewalks, pavements, and roadways by striking out the words, "a plank sidewalk," in the third line and inserting a line thereof the following words, "a sidewalk, pavement or roadway," and by adding a line after the word "sidewalk" in the 7th line, the words, "pavement or sidewalk."

3. That legislation be sought whereby all lands exempt from general or local taxation when sold leased, or otherwise disposed of shall thereupon become liable to taxation for all rates falling due after such sale, lease or disposition, and thereafter such properties and the owners or lessees thereof shall become liable to taxation to the same extent as if the said property had not previously been exempt, and in the case of general taxes the rate for which such property shall be liable shall be the last struck rate for the taxes in the municipality, and in the case of local taxation the rate shall be the rate fixed by the bylaw for the work or improvement.

4. That no action be taken on the recommendation that when a pavement is worn out and the payments for the same expired and the property owners refuse to have a new pavement laid, that the council may by a two-thirds vote on the recommendation of the city engineer order the pavement to be constructed and to charge a frontage tax for the same, or on the recommendation to prohibit expectoration on sidewalks, street cars or public conveyances.

4 1-2. Real property, including farm lands in cities and towns shall be assessed at its fair value.

5. That in assessing land having buildings thereon, the value of the land and buildings shall be ascertained separately, and the assessment shall be the sum of such values. The value of the buildings shall be the amount by which the value of the land is thereby increased.

6. In case the grade of a street has not been previously established by the municipality, the municipality shall not be liable to damages or otherwise to the owner or lessee of any property adjoining any improvement for having raised or lowered the grade of the street opposite such property.

7. The sub-section 4 of sec. 18, Assessment Amendment Act, 1902, which reads, "save as aforesaid rolling stock, plant and appliances of companies mentioned in sub-sec. 2 hereof, shall not be land within the meaning of the Assessment Act and shall not be assessable," be repealed.

8. That the personal property of incorporated companies other than chartered banks shall be liable to assessment to the same extent as that of any private individual or partnership, and sec. 39 of the Assessment Act be amended accordingly.

9. THE COAL STRIKE

Discussing the coal strike, the New York Times voices a rumor that the operators have decided that the time has come for the supreme struggle, and that from now on they will take the initiative. Two lines of policy are open to them. One is to double up their guards, demand increased military protection, serve notices of eviction upon striking miners who occupy company houses, and take other harsh measures which will sooner or later accomplish the object in view. They can undoubtedly break the strike by such means if they are determined to do so.

The other and much wiser method is for the operators to agree what reforms they are willing to make in the rules and wages of the industry, make the men the best offer they are willing to stand by, and take such steps relative to establishing the principle of arbitration throughout the district as will give a reasonable promise of peace and good will in future.

If they will adopt the latter expedient on broad lines, not as concessions to the strikers if that would be disagreeable to them, but as steps in the reorganization of a business which is sadly in need of it, and especially if they will pledge themselves to limit the number of men hereafter employed to that which can be given at least 200 days' work in the year, they will have all the certified miners that can be put to work before the end of the present week.

MUNICIPAL BANDITS

The history of civic boodling in New York sinks into the shade in the presence of the revelations at St. Louis. It is found out that a fund of $47,500 was raised to pass a city lighting franchise, and was distributed among nineteen members of the House of Delegates. The facts have been so far disclosed that twelve of those nineteen have been arrested on evidence given by one of their number. This delegate fled to Mexico, but came back and told his story to the prosecuting attorney on assurance of freedom from prosecution. Twelve delegates are under arrest in jail for want of bail, while some are out on bonds varying from $40,000 to $55,000. Warrants are also issued for six other delegates who have fled the city, while the Grand Jury is in session in the hope of securing proof against the men who raised the bribery fund. The case is said to endanger several millionaires at the head of the companies which profited by bribery. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat states that bad as is the beginning, much worse remains behind. It is evident that there has been within the circle of the common council an organised body working in combination to extort large amounts from those seeking to obtain legislation. The procedure has been that of a band of pirates. The bribe money was placed in a vault with two keys, the lobbyist holding one and the combines' catspaw the other. How deep and dark the conspiracy has been may be gathered from the fact that there were signs and passws, and worse still, and to keep silent on penalty of death. and t ohamp silent on penalty of death. The character of the city of St. Louis has long been acknowledged to be probably the most perfect possessed by any city in the United States, and yet under its provisions such frightful abuses have crept in. But the St. Louis papers seem to hold the opinion that the general tone of the common council or board of delegates, as it is called, has greatly improved, and that these revelations will improve the composition in the future still more.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A man named Carey, who says he was Buller's signaler at the Tugela has been telling the Toronto World that Buller never sent the famous "surrender" message to Ladysmith, and he knows it. Carey professes to give the details of the messages as sent. Seeing that General Buller's messages were sent in cypher, so that the Boers could not read them, and that the key to the cypher was not entrusted to signalmen, Carey probably knew about as much about their contents as the Boers did. In any case official copies of the original despatches have been published and read in the House of Commons.

A Painful Accident

Yesterday morning an accident occurred at the Wm. Hamilton, Manufacturing Company's Works, whereby Mr. Wm. King, one of the machinists employed in the works, had his leg broken below the knee. It appears that Mr. King, along with several other workmen, was engaged in lifting a piece of machinery weighing about 1500 pounds, when the support on which it was resting slipped, and the casting fell on Mr. King's right leg, causing a compound fracture and badly lacerating the flesh. He was conveyed to Nicholls Hospital, where the bones were set by Dr. Eastwood. He is now doing as well as can be expected. Mr. King's many friends will sympathise with him in his misfortune.

IS FAST LINE IN SIGHT

Mr. Fielding Cancels His Passage and Waits to See Laurier in England

London, Sept. 17 Many conjectures are made while Hon. Mr. Fielding suddenly at the last moment cancelled his passage for Canada. He will probably await Sir Wilfrid Laurier's return to England from Rome, and sail with Laurier on October 7. Mr. Fielding himself says he sees no reason why the fast mail question should not now be settled. The Ministers have sufficient authority without consulting Parliament, provided they get what is wanted for $750,000. Well-informed circles believe that only one effective tender is before the Ministers, namely, that of the Canadian Pacific. Other Provincial tenderers have been making advances to induce the Canadian Pacific to withdraw in their favor, but the Canadian Pacific refuses, and says it will do the job alone or not at all.

According to the statements of English journalists returned from Canada, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy said it is practically certain the Canadian Pacific will get the fast mail contract, and confirmed the assertion that the Canadian Pacific will in any case establish a freight service. At present shippers have sometimes to wait a month before they are certain of getting a steamer.

The Express makes sensational disclosures today. Colonel Ferrers Townshend, who was deputed by the War Officer to report on Canadian frontier defences, declares the forts so hopelessly antiquated all along the frontier and ill-equipped with ammunition, that in the event of an Anglo-American war the Americans could easily cross the frontier and seize Canada before resistance could be organized. A prominent Canadian in Montreal declared the Canadians were too busy making dollars to bother about fortifications. If the Americans invaded, all Canadians could do would be to board rafts with their belongings and float down the St. Lawrence to Belle Isle until British warships came along to protect them.

The Moonstone Sphinx

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

manager, "will you come to the theater to-morrow (Thursday) morning, and ask for me half-an-hour before the time for rehearsal? Yours truly, George Anderson."

There was nothing very alarming on the surface of this brief note, with the request which might have been made for one out of a dozen harmless reasons. But instinct that had brought the dark cloud of brooding presentiment last night, spoke again gloomily.

The rehearsals for "As You Like It," which had begun about a week ago, were called for "eleven sharp" every day. Therefore the appointment which Mr. Anderson wished Winifred to keep was at half-past ten.

They had sat talking together, the girl and her mother, later than usual, and Mrs. Gray, who often suffered at night, and was a restless sleeper, was making up this morning for the hours she had lost. Winifred never allowed her to be called until she awoke of her own accord, and though this was generally early, to-day Winifred had her breakfast and went away without seeing her mother. She left a short note full of love, saying only that she was obliged to go down to the theater half an hour earlier than she had expected.

When the girl had first called upon Mr. Anderson at his request, a little unknown actress from the provinces, she had felt almost sick with excitement lest something should go wrong at the last, and she should lose the glorious chance she had been led to expect. She remembered that day and its sensations with painful distinctness this morning, but now her emotion was even more keen than it had been then.

The actor-manager had an "office" at the theater, where he imagined that he transacted a great deal of business, and did indeed spend some hours of most days in the week. Winifred knew that she would be received there; and, when she had sent up word that she had arrived and would wait Mr. Anderson's convenience, she furtively pinched her cheeks to counteract the pallor she had seen in passing a mirror. Whatever might be in store for her, she did not wish to betray the fact that she was frightened.

In five or ten minutes Mr. Anderson's young secretary came to fetch Miss Gray to the office, and at the door of that room he disappeared. The interview was to be a strictly private one.

The actor-manager sat at his desk, glancing over the correspondence which his secretary had placed ready for him. As Winifred was announced, he rose slowly, looking formidably large and impressive. His eyes were as dreamy as ever, but it seemed to the girl—or she imagined it— that they were slightly restless, not willing to meet and dwell upon hers with the caressing, lingering gaze which was a characteristic of his in greeting a pretty woman. For once he appeared ill at ease; his voice betrayed a certain agitation, as the voice of a sensitive or cowardly person will when something disagreeable has to be done.

He gave Winifred a chair, and sat down again himself, looking at a curious ring he wore, and talking about the weather.

"Yes, very cold," the girl assented, and then felt that further beating about the bush would be so intolerable that she must scream aloud instead of converse if she were forced to endure it. "You sent for me, Mr. Anderson," she said, "and here I am."

"Yes, I sent for you," he echoed. "The fact is, I've been thinking for several days since rehearsal began that—er—that the part of Celia is hardly suited to you. Your method is—er—rather too spirited."

Could it be possible, Winifred quickly asked herself, that he was about to tell her of Mrs. Peter Carlton's intended departure, and offer her the part of Rosalind, as Mr. Macaire had suggested, in spite of the thing that had happened last night?

"I always was a bad rehearser," she said. "I know that's an amateurish excuse, and I do try, but——"

"I'm afraid that you'll never play Celia in a way to—do yourself justice," Anderson continued. "It—really, you know, Miss Gray, you'd do yourself harm by playing it, after the hit you've made as Lady Kitty in 'The Green Sunbonnet.'"

Winifred's lips began to feel oddly dry. She strove to speak naturally, but her voice sounded strained as she answered—for she knew not what was coming—"I'm sorry that you think so, Mr. Anderson."

"I'm sorry, too—more sorry than I can tell you," he responded, emphatically. There was sincerity in his accents, and Winifred could see in the man's handsome face that he was actually unhappy and miserably ashamed of himself. She could read his mind well enough to be sure that he hated what he was doing, and that he was acting under strong compulsion. He must be in sad financial straits, she felt, to submit to such a humiliating yoke, for he had the reputation among theatrical folk of being an honorable man. Stunned as she was by the thought of the blow about to be dealt, the girl found a certain sympathy in her heart for the executioner.

"I'm sorry on your account, and sorry on my own," he finished.

"Do you want me to give up the part, Mr. Anderson?" she asked, bluntly.

"I think it would be better for all our sakes, much as I dislike saying so. Our contract stipulates for two weeks' notice on either side, you know, Miss Gray" (he gazed out of the window as he spoke), "but the present circumstances are—rather peculiar. If you—er—gave up the part it would be impossible for you to go on with the rehearsals. And so, if agreeable to you, you need not attend, though, of course, you would continue to draw your present salary for another fortnight."

CHAPTER IX.

Winifred's Dramatic Exit.

Now at last the murder was out. Winifred wondered at her own coolness, for this came near being a deathblow to her. She seemed to be numb, without feeling; suddenly she cared no more than if this were happening to a girl she hardly knew. Her impulse would have been to refuse the salary—to say that she would not take what she had not earned, and that she would consider her engagement terminated from this moment. But, with the pressing knowledge of her mother's needs, she could not afford to indulge her hurt pride.

"I—don't quite understand, Mr. Anderson," she said in a strained voice, which seemed to come from someone

STOCK MARKETS

Some Good Market Propositions

New York, Sept. 18—Union Pacific looks awfully good at current prices. Buying on the recent decline on the recent money scare was plainly observable, while not aggressive; as far as bidding was concerned it took the stock offered liberally. There is no question that purchases of Union Pacific on all moderate recessions will return handsome profits very shortly. The next dividend on the stock is almost certain to be at an advance figure. Mo. Pacific looks well also, the Gould party remain very bullish upon this specialty and predict still much higher prices for the stock when the money situation clears. The advance in the shares has not been in the nature of a market turn, but upon coming important developments in railway affairs for the Mo. Pacific territory, and upon the large gains in earnings; also the net showing which will be made by the company in the coming year.

Manhattan looks well also. The buying early part of the week has been of the best possible character, and the stock part of the time under very adverse conditions has been aggressively strong, and actually bid up by the demand. Manhattan will sell materially higher this fall. Some one continues to accumulate Atchison and St. Paul. The buying was discernible all the early part of the week, and recoveries were sharp whenever extreme selling pressure was removed. These issues also will bear careful watching. An easy ten points will be possible to be made very shortly by espousing the bull side of either of them. The Southern Pacific folks maintained a splendid market for their specialty during the money episode. Advantage was taken of the recession in the market price to purchase liberally; this demand was so urgent that it kept the market from falling within from three to five points, as low as they could ordinarily have done under existing circumstances.

Southern Pacific is on its way to par, and will be perfectly safe to have on hand at any price. Col. and Norfolk, also the coalers were all well sustained through the stressful period. We think well of all of these, and if bought with fair margin behind them, and an ordinary supply of patience, profits will be reaped. Copper and Sugar have friends also; the market price of these two is bound to improve; we think generally well of the entire market.

The Oro Grande Mine

Wickenburg, Ariz, Arizona's Great Gold Mine

Over 800,000 tons of ore blocked out. Conservative mining men place value of ore in sight at $8,000,000.00. For the purpose of equipping the mine with a large plant, a block of stock is offered at par value, $10.00 per share. Stock is non-assessable.

Before offering a share of stock to the public, the incorporators of this Company spent over $156,000 in extensive development work, and now have in sight over 800,000 tons of high grade free milling ore, which represents a value of more than three times the capital stock of the Company, and will at a conservative estimate return a net profit to the shareholders of about $4,000,000.

Particular attention is drawn to the fact that moneys subscribed for stock are applied entirely to the work of developing and equipping the mine and that no commissions have to be paid to brokers, fiscal agents, etc.

Fullest investigation invited, both as to the company and the property, which has been termed "The Great Arizona Gold Mine," because of its exceptional richness and extent.

Subscriptions should be sent in at once, as only enough stock will be sold to pay for equipment. Address, Oro Grande Mines Co., 1034 Park Row Bldg., New York.

Harvest Home Festival

Last night Rev. J. H. Tony preached a harvest home festival in All Saints' Church, which was specially decorated. The music was fine, and included the Harvest Hymns, Magnificat, by Ebdon, Deus Misereatur, by Mammatt, and the anthem "Great and Marvellous are Thy Works," by Turner. The offertory will be devoted to the fuel fund.

Pretty Home Wedding

On Wednesday a pretty though quiet home wedding took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Annie Philip, when her daughter, Miss Clara was united in marriage to Mr. Claued H. Lenie. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Bastow, pastor of the Murray street Baptist church, in the presence of a number of the relatives and intimate friends.

New Dry Goods Store

A new dry goods store will be opened out next week in the new store owned by Mr. George Schneider, George street and will be under the management of B. Y. Moyes, of Stratford. Mr. C. Wright and Miss Little, of Toronto, are in town, and will begin to place the goods on the shelves today. The store will be quite an acquisition to the business portion of the town.

Mr. Stone's Success

Mr. E. B. Stone arrived home on Wednesday night from Toronto, where he was engaged for a couple of days in fighting the case of Mrs. King, against the Polson Company of that city, before Chief Justice Meredith, in the High Court of Justice. Mr. Stone is naturally proud of having secured a verdict of $1200 for his client, and is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in town on his success. It is a rare thing for lawyers outside of Toronto to appear at the assize courts of the city and win.

In the present case Mr. Stone was badly handicapped by the absence of material witnesses, which makes his success all the more creditable.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—Good progress is being made on the new dam at the old lock.

—A scarlet fever card has been hung out on London street.

—The Cereal Company will have a part of their mill running in the course of a few days.

—Col. Montizambert was entertained by the officers of the 57th yesterday, and was taken to Jubilee Point.

—His Worship Mayor Denne has been elected Third Vice-President for Ontario of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, which has been in session in Montreal this week.

Sports and Pastimes.

Counting today's games Toronto and Buffalo have each four games to play before the end of the season. Providing Toronto only wins two of the bunch, the locals will have a percentage of 658. Even if Buffalo finishes up with a clean sheet, their percentage will only be 636. To lose the pennant the locals will have to drop three of the four games, and it is a 1,000 to 1 chance that they will be so unfortunate. Even the Buffalo papers have given up hope of the pennant landing in Buffalo this year, and they are looking about for excuses. Their stock joke is that the Buffalo team was crippled all season, while the Toronto went through the season without an injury. They forget that even now Hargrove and Miller are out of the game through sickness and injury, and that at different times this year White, Bannon, Downey and Carr were on the bench because of physical disability. The Buffalonians say that Toronto started the season with a full team and Buffalo didn't, whereas the case was the other way round. Toronto only had one pitcher at the start of the season, and that was Thielman. Bruce being in the outfield then. The rest of the team was an experiment. Toronto has won the pennant because of the excellent work of Ed. Barrow and his team, and the Buffalo scribes might just as well admit that fact now.

RECEPTION TO OSHAWA TEAM.

Oshawa, Sept. 17.—The victorious Oshawa lacrosse team arrived home from Copper Cliff on the 10.15 train this evening, and were given a right royal welcome at the G.T.R. station. A great throng had gathered and the Oshawa Citizens' band livened the proceedings with popular airs. The boys were placed on a special street car with the band and taken up town, where every thing was aglow with various illuminations. At the corner of King and Simcoe streets they were met, welcomed home and congratulated by the club officers, Mayor Fowke, and prominent citizens.

Montreal, Sept. 17—The Shamrock lacrosse team N.A.L.U. champions, will leave for New Westminster, B.C., on Tuesday next by way of Chicago.

A special meeting of the Shamrock A.A.A directors was held today, and the principal topic under discussion was the trip of the champion team to British Columbia. Everything in connection with the matter was concluded, much to the satisfaction of those interested.

The team has received invitations to play at Chicago, St. Paul, Winnipeg, Victoria and Vancouver, and it is quite likely one or more of them will be accepted, especially the invitation of the St. Paul people, while there also is a possibility of the champions playing in Chicago.

The team will be away at least four weeks.

The first practise match of the season will take place on Nichols' Oval on Saturday afternoon at 4.30. The following will be the teams:

Town Team—back, Hogg; half back, Armstrong, H. Burnham, McPherson, quarter back, McClelland; scrimmage, A. Noble, F. Burnham, Thornton; wings, Dillon, Rickey, Watson, Bradburn, Robinson, Graham, Cameron, Walkey, Collins, Craig.

T.A.S.—back, J. Dorris; half backs; Crough, McNichol, Kearney, McGrath; quarter back, Derocher; scrimmage, Dalmard, Dineen, Hurtubise, J. O'Brien; wings, J. McDonough, M. McDonough, Hickey, J. Anglesey, Grady, L. Doris, Lynch, Meagher, Crowley, Hollihan, D. O'Brien, B. Doris.

Any other players whose names are not down are asked to turn out. There will be practising on the grounds from four o'clock.

Dr. V. McWilliams has kindly consented to referee.

He thought, as the lake was calm, he would put out his trawling line. He tied the line around his waist and rowed along merrily singing, when all at once he received a sudden jerk which pulled him into the water. He was unable to extricate himself from the line, and had to swim a mile or so to shore. Mr O'Sullivan is an expert swimmer, but owing to the weight of his boots and clothes and the struggle of the fish for his freedom it was hard to make much progress, but after two hours' hard work he arrived safely on shore and landed a fine 'lunge weighing 20 pounds.

A PRETTY WEDDING

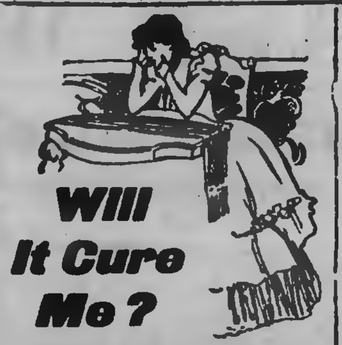
Miss Annie M. McIntyre and Mr. William E. Curtis are Married on Wednesday Evening.

On Wednesday evening a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Samuel J. McIntyre, River Road, Auburn, when his youngest daughter Miss Annie Mabel was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Edward Curtis, youngest son of Mr. Jas. Curtis, of Douro.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., rector of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, wore a charming gown of brown henrietta trimmed with applique and velvet and carried a magnificent bouquet of white roses. Miss Minnie Sutcliffe acted as bridesmaid and carried pink carnations while Mr. G. G. Pratley assisted the groom. The wedding march was capably rendered by Miss Maud Curtis.

The house decorations were most charming. Ferns and flowers were artistically arranged in a beautiful arch, underneath which the ceremony was performed.



That's the personal question a woman asks herself when she reads of the cures of womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Why shouldn't it cure her?

Is it a complicated case? Thousands of such cases have been cured by "Favorite Prescription." Is it a condition which local doctors have declared incurable? Among the hundreds of thousands of sick women cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription there are a great many who were pronounced incurable by local doctors. Wonders have been worked by "Favorite Prescription" in the cure of irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. John Graham, of 2018 Plumb Street, (Frankford) Philadelphia, Pa., "I had a very bad attack of dropsy which left me with heart trouble, and also a very weak back. At times I was so bad that I did not know what to do with myself. My children advised me to take your 'Favorite Prescription,' but I had been taking so much medicine from the doctor that I was discouraged with everything. I came to Philadelphia two years ago, and picking up one of your little books one day began to read what your medicine had done for others, I determined to try it myself. I took seven bottles, and to-day I am a strong, well woman, weighing 160 pounds. Have gained 30 pounds since I started to use 'Favorite Prescription.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

An elaborate dinner was partaken of by the guests after the ceremony in the dining room which was most elaborately decorated.

The grooms gift to the bride was a pretty gold brooch and to the bridesmaid and Miss Maud Curtis two lovely gold pins.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis left on the 9 o'clock G.T.R. train Wednesday evening for a short honeymoon and on their return will take up residence in Auburn.

The Times unites with their many friends in town in wishing them many years of wedded happiness.

THE HOME GOLD AND COPPER COMPANY, OF ONTARIO—CAPITALIZATION $3,000,000.

Stock Advancing in Price

The Home Gold & Copper Co. of Ontario with head office 90 Canada Life building, Toronto, has 28 properties in the Rainy Lake, Rainy River, Manitou and Seal River districts, including the Elsie and Edna mines, which mines adjoin the famous Scramble and Big Master respectively; two properties in eastern Ontario, one 400 acres, taking the central part of the asbestos-actinolite deposit of Ontario, the uses for this material are becoming so numerous and the field so broad that it seems almost impossible for producers to keep up with the steadily increasing demand for this most wonderful fireproof product. This deposit is situated within 140 miles of Toronto by the C. P. R. Five hundred acres, including a rich deposit of arsenic and gold ore, which recent assays and tests give values in gold and arsenic of from $40 to $50 per ton. Included also is about half a mile of the famous Golden Fleece vein, part of which is now being operated by New York and New Jersey capital. The great Gilmore mine in Nova Scotia, which has been averaging by mill runs over $20 in gold to the ton, and the Kat and Kittens mine in New Mexico, a famous free-milling proposition which is now being worked with a high average of gold to the ton. This company had an exhibit in the Natural History and Mining building at the Fair, which proved of wonderfully instructive interest. Their display included gold and arsenic ore and asbestos-actinolite from eastern Ontario, free-milling gold ore from their other properties, many specimens from their Gilmore mine showing visible gold (one specimen showing one hundred dollars worth of nuggets) and specimens of copper ore.

In one case was shown two very attractive gold bricks, valued at $12.00, together with gold coin to show the difference in color between the alloyed coin and the pure gold, the whole making a magnificent display. Stock in the Home Gold & Copper Co. of Ontario advanced in price from fifteen cents per share last week to twenty-five cents. It is expected that this stock will reach par ($1 per share) in a very short time. The exhibit was under the direction of Mr. W. H. Merrill, who has charge of the head office in Canada. The company's holdings aggregate over 3,000 acres.

GRANTING LICENSES TO STAKE CLAIMS

Regrettable Incidents Expected in Barbeton and Pietersbuyg--Statute to Prince Henri Favor Reform and Retrenchment—Victorian Ministers Expect a Large Majority—Vacation School System

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 19— Next Monday, says a Johannesburg correspondent, has been fixed for granting licenses to peg out claims in Barberton and Pietersburg districts. The chief stretch of country to be pegged out lies a hundred miles from Pietersburg. The question of transport is an important one. Nearly all available animals and vehicles were purchased some time ago. It is feared that regrettable incidents will occur on the line of the route. A special force of constabulary will be employed.

MANY GOVERNMENT CANDIDATES.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 19—The Victorian election campaign, says a despatch from Melbourne, is notable for the multiplicity of Government candidates, who include many ex-opponents of the Government. There is a strong feeling in the country in favor of reform and retrenchments. The members of the Labor party are practically the only avowed adversaries of Ministers who anticipate a large majority.

VACATION SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 19.—The Times warmly advocates development of the vacation school system in the United Kingdom, upon lines already successfully followed in New York, Chicago and elsewhere in America. It is refreshing, says The Times, in the midst of so much barren discussion upon education from every point of view except the good of the children, to find the educational movement so wholly admirable in itself and with such promise of genuine usefulness.

ARMENIAN BUTCHER RECALLED.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 19—A Constantinople correspondent says a new Vail of Aleppo has been appointed in place of Enis Pasha, the famous "Butcher of the Armenians," who notwithstanding diplomatic opposition was appointed to the Aleppo post last year. British and Austrian influence obtained Enis's removal.

STATUE TO PRINCE HENRI.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 19—A Paris correspondent says the committee formed to arrange for the erection of a statue of the late Prince Henri D'Orleans met yesterday. The statue will be erected in Cochin, China, probably at Cape St. Jacques.

NEW STRATEGIC RAILWAYS BUILT

Russia Preparing for the Struggle That Must Come

TWO STRONG ARMY CORPS

Now Face Afghanistan and Ready to Move at a Moment's Notice—Other Strategic Railways

London, Sept. 19.—For no country is the construction of new railway lines or the extension of communications of such military importance as for Russia. The completion of the Eastern China road and of the South Manchurian branch to Port Arthur, at least in their most important features and their connection with the great Trans-Siberian Railroad, mark an important epoch in Russian railway construction. The importance of this new line is due almost exclusively to its military value; by its means the Russian forces can now be gathered from the remotest regions of the empire and the armies concentrated in a few weeks on the Pacific Ocean, ready to be shipped from Vladivostok or Port Arthur to the Far East; by its means Russia can keep up her watch on the frontiers of China, and after Manchuria is evacuated she can concentrate all the troops required to guard her political interests.

The line from Orenbourg, north of the Caspian Sea, to Tashkend in southern Turkestan, although still far from the Trans-Siberian, is to connect with the latter at Samara, west of Orenbourg, and stands in close relation to the latter route. Of course one of the first objects is to complete the lines along the frontier of Afghanistan, and to connect the Central Asia line (the old Trans-Caspian route) the new section running to Tashkend; then, with the line which is being constructed in Persia over Dahulfa, Tabreez (in northwestern Persia), Teheran, Meshed (in northeastern Persia) and Kushk is completed, the Russians can readily penetrate into Afghanistan with their gigantic armies.

The Russians now have two army corps facing Afghanistan, about 45,000 men, comprising forty battalions, forty-eight squadrons, and seventeen batteries, and their most advanced outpost is near Kusk; but in the event of war it would be very difficult to concentrate the troops or to supply reenforcements from the mother country. There is at present but a single direct line of communication between the headquarters of the two army corps (Askabad and Tashkend), and the most remote garrisons (Kokan and Andishan) would have to send most of their personnel and material by way of the very long route along the Caspian Sea. The great military importance of the Orenbourg-Tashkend route is thus apparent; for, in connection with the Persian line above mentioned, Russia can bring rapidly from Tiflis and the Volga a reenforcement of 84 battalions, 84 squadrons, 22 field batteries, thus giving a total of 100,000 men for the invasion of Afghanistan.

The strategic railways of the Alps have also acquired a great importance in recent years. The French press is still exercised over the new German fortifications near Basel and Mulhausen, designed to insure the protection of Germany in the event of a French invasion in that region, and, although not directly connected with these fortifications, the Alpine lines must play an important part not only in a war between Germany and France on the frontiers of Switzerland and Italy, but also in any great European war.

The Alps have often been crossed by armies, and the roads built by Napoleon are still in use; but since 1815 Switzerland and Austria have been vying with one another in constructing mountain roads. Recently, however, railroads have taken the place of the old higway routes connecting Italy with the rest of Europe.

The Corniche and Mont Cenis roads place France and Italy in direct communication; the former running for about 120 miles at the base of the Maritime Alps, along the Riviera from Nice to Genoa; the latter connecting Chambery in Savoy with Turin through the Cottian Alps by a tunnel nine miles long, this road deriving greater importence from the fact that it is a part of the transcontinental route, London-Paris-Brindisi-Suez. The St. Gothard is the shortest route between Germany and Italy; running from Lake Zug (in Switzerland) to Lake Maggiore (in Italy), a distance of 120 miles, cutting through the Lepontine Alps by a tunnel ten miles long, it makes of Genoa a port for Central Europe, as well as a subport for the ports of the Levant and the Atlantic; its position, crossing so many important lines, gives it a special military value.

The routes of the Brenner and the Semmering passes constitute the direct lines between Austria and Italy; the former passing from Innsbruck over the Rhetian Alps in the Tyrol to Bozen, a distance of ninety miles; the later establishing communication between Vienna and Trieste, crossing one of the barriers of the Alps between the basin of the Leitha and the valley of the Murz. The Arlberg route, the sixth and last, runs for eighty-five miles from Zurich to Innsbruck, and has a special military importance because it furnishes rapid and direct communication with the northeast of France, the southwest of Germany and the ports of the Adriatic.

The extremities of these various lines, in France, in Germany, in Austria and in Italy, are carefully fortified. Thus, the great importance of these lines in case of a European war, is fully appreciated by the nations bordering the Alps, and their occupation and possession will determine in great measure the plan of campaign. It is doubtful if Switzerland, with the 450,000 men that she can put under arms, will be able to resist an advance across her territory, especially if any two of the great nations such as Germany and Austria should combine their forces, one moving over Zug, for example, and getting possession of the northern part of the St. Gothard line, and other moving on the Rhine over the Arlberg route. Switzerland would thus be surrounded by the Triple Alliance on three sides, and would be practically helpless.

POORFOOD AND DIRTY STEAMER

Canadians Complain of an English Transport from China

The last lot of Canadians to come home from South Africa certainly did strike hard luck. They had other experiences on the journey quite on a par with the delights of being stranded at Levis, Montreal, and all along the line without pay and without their discharges. According to one member of the two hundred and ten who lives in the city, the food and accommodations on the transport Berwick Castle which carried them from Durban to Southampton, were execrable.

"When four or five days out," said he, "we ran out of salt, and did not get any more until we reached Las Palmas. At that port we took on 'fresh meat.' It was awful. Eat it? The smell would overcome you before you got near enough to eat it. They gave us oleomargarine for butter, and that was condemned by the doctor soon after we left Las Palmas. Then we had dripping or mutton fat or some such stuff for butter. We fared worse than when on the veldt, for whatever we did get to eat on the veldt was good.

"There was no excuse for such rotten grub. The Berwick Castle had been lying at Durban for six months. That was surely time enough to get a supply of salt on board, at least. I think it was the steward's fault. He got terribly scared and kept away from us all together. The Canadians were not like the British Tommies, he found. They wouldn't dare to say anything but our men didn't think twice of parading to the orderly officer with a bowl of filthy soup. Dish water. No, that's too good a name for the stuff we were supposed to eat. When we reached Southampton I heard the steward say, I don't mind the regulars, but I hope to God I don't have to carry any Canadians again."

Vermin Abounded.

"By George, that ship was dirty. The blankets were literally alive with vermin. The fellows swore that when a blanket was laid on the floor, it moved, and I know that if you pounded a blanket on the floor with a hammer it turned red with blood. This was actually done time and time again. What was the vermin? Just ordinary South African lice in millions. I was clean enough when I embarked, but very far from clean when we reached Southampton. Our fellows were clean enough but there were a lot of chaps on board who belonged to the various horse regiments. The Imperial Light Horse was one, I think. They had been knocking round at port for some time, and had been put to work on the breakwater while waiting to be taken home. They were frightfully dirty and the blankets were probably well saturated with vermin before they came. Why, blankets would be brought up out of the hold and thrown down again almost immediately. The light excited the lice, and showed the bedding was alive with them.

"We just simply bathed all day. Fortunately, the tank was always full. I changed my clothes twice a day. Even then we couldn't keep clean, and I felt the enemy attacking me. There was nothing else to do but bathe.

"Our officers were all right, but we didn't think much of the Imperial officers. They wouldn't do anything for us. When one of them stuck his head down the hatch of the mess room and asked, "Any complaints?" he generally retired amid a chorus of boots. When there was any decent food it was wretchedly cooked. It is a wonder there was not more diseases on board. There was only a little fever and dysentery.

Where They Lived Well.

"That voyage lasted 31 days. But in England we fared well, and on the Lake Erie they treated us like kings. They gave us a bottle of ale a day and plenty of good tobacco. On the tobacco label was stamped, "With the compliments of the Elder-Dempster Line."

Completely Fagged Out

The world is full of sickly despondent, tired, enervated people, all hoping to be well some day. The surest road to health is along the way of taking Ferrozone after meals. DAN SPENCE MEMORIAL

A Meeting of Subscribers to be Called in a Few Days

The Times has received one or two complaints lately regarding the delay in the matter of securing a suitable memorial to perpetuate the memory of Dan Spence, the Peterborough soldier who was killed in South Africa.

Yesterday Mr. S. R. Armstrong, secretary of the committee having charge of the funds, stated that the money is in deposit in the Bank of Commerce where the late treasurer, Mr. McHarrie placed it.

It will be remembered that at a meeting of the subscribers to the fund held last spring it was almost unanimously decided to purchase an ambulance. It was subsequently found that there was not sufficient funds for this purpose. Mr. George Fitzgerald, the local carriage manufacturer, was requested to prepare an estimate as to what he would take and build an ambulance. He has since informed Mr. Armstrong that he finds that he will not have time to take the matter up. Mr. Armstrong has sent to outside manufacturers for prices, and when they arrive, another meeting will be called.

The Times suggests that as Mr. Comstock has generously placed an ambulance at the disposal of the public, there is no need for another, and that the fund be invested and the interest given to the Regimental Band, on the understanding that the first or second concert given by the band in the park each year be of a memorial character, at which a special programme of patriotic music be played, in memory of the brave soldier who died for his country. This would be much better than putting the money in a pedestal or monument, and would be a source of revenue for all time to come to a worthy institution in which the dead soldier always took a deep interest.

MANY MILLIONS AHEAD IN ORO GRANDE

A Half Million Tons Revealed by Costly Developments in Yavapai by Iowa People

Millions of dollars are being invested just now by Canadians in industial and mining enterprises and a large majority of the investments are big money getters. In this connection in the Oro Grande, Yavapai county and the Territory of Arizona have a remarkable gold mine that is just starting on a productive career that will unquestionably soon make it one of the most notable gold mines of the Territory.

This great property, which already displays reserves of high-grade ore estimated at over 500,000 tons of the value of several million dollars, is in the southern part of Yavapai county, by the Hassayampa river in the Black Rock mining district, and about four miles north of Wickenburg, from which town the group of buildings and tents forming the camp are plainly visible. There are nine claims in the Oro Grande group.

All the claims are contiguous and all will be worked from the great main working shaft on the Copperhead, one of the central claims, which is now down 300 feet with levels at 50, 100, 200 and 300 feet, amounting in all to 912 feet. Moreover there has been much cross cutting in many directions, both from various points on the levels as well as from the shaft itself.

The first years development work revealed ore reserves estimated at over 500,000 tons by Wm. F. Defty, a competent and conservative mining engineer. The lowest assay yet yielded by the developed ore has been $6.20 and most of the assays have been very high. An average value of $12 for the half-million tons mentioned is considered sufficiently conservative. This would give a gold value of over $6,000,000. Should such values and dimensions persist to a great or to a considerable further depth the resources of the mine would be fabulous. That the above recent estimates were conservative is shown by the news of a late rich strike in the mine, the news of which was given in the issue of the Pacific Coast Miner of June 15 last as follows: "In the 200 level at the Oro Grande mine the largest and richest ore shoot yet encountered in the mine is now being developed. A crosscut shows the width of it to be 117 feet, with good vertical walls, while they have drifted 88 feet along it and are not yet through it. Manager Upton denies the story of his having picked nuggets the size of peas from the ore body as was published in a number of territorial papers, but says that the gold is quite fine, the whole shoot being an $8 or $10 ore. The 3-compartment working shaft is now down about 70 feet."

It is the intention of the owners to install a fine milling plant with a capacity of 500 tons a day, and a complete electric plant.

The company is a close corporation all the stock being owned by Garret E. Lamb and relatives and George B. Upton, all of whom are Clinton, Iowa people. Upwards of $150,000 has been expended by the company already and it is possible a small amount of stock may be placed upon the market, none of which, however, will probably ever reach the open market, as the inquiries for stock have been numerous ever since the strike was made. The officers of the company are Garret E. Lamb, president and treasurer; George B. Upton, vice-president and general manager, and Frank W. Ellis, secretary. These with Marvin J. Gates and J. Dwight Lamb comprise the directors now elected, there being yet several vacancies in the board.

Are The Boers Sincere?

Vienna, Sept. 19—Sensational revelations as to the alleged true feelings of the Boer leaders are made in today's Fremdenblatt, which has procured the information "from a distinguished Austrian who has known them all intimately for many years, having resided in Pretoria from 1889 to 1902."

This gentleman declares that in their hearts the Boers detest the British as much as ever. The Boer leaders share these feelings and cherish intentions of revenge.

Botha, for instance, says this authority, has announced that he will train his children and grandchildren, when he gets them, to hate the British as pitiless and barbarous tyrants. The Fremdenblatt's informant declares that any idea of genuine reconciliation between the British and Boer is absurd.

The paper declares on the same authority that the Kaffirs are preparing a vast uprising that may exterminate civilization in South Africa. The British, he concludes are criminally weak and foolish in governing the natives, who constitute the most difficult problem in the new colonies.

REITZ MAKES EXCUSES

Denies That He Made Speech for Which He is Barred from South Africa

Berlin, Sept 19.—The Frankfort Gazette prints an interview with Mr. Reitz, the former Secretary of State, of the Transvaal, who will not be allowed to return to South Africa because of a speech he made in Europe since the conclusion of peace. Mr. Reitz said: "My speech was misreported. I said I would never make friends with England while injustice endured I have nothing against England and only condemn Chamberlain. Let the others return to our country. I will be friendly to England. The Generals have chosen a policy of silence. I have been speaking out. We are friends, but I stand alone. How can Chamberlain make others responsible for my acts?

Mr. Reitz will sail for New York within ten days.

TWO KILLED 44 INJURED

Royal Blue Flyer, Crowded with Passengers Wrecked

Special to The Times.

Chillicothe, Ohio, Sept. 19 — Two persons were killed and forty-four injured in a wreck last night on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road at Leesburg, thirty-three miles from here.

The dead are— Philip Roe, engineer, Chillicothe, and Charles Studer, fireman, Chillicothe

Among the seriously injured is an unknown Englishman.

The train wrecked was the Royal Blue Flyer, which left Cincinnati at 6.10 p.m. It consisted of eight coaches and was crowded with passengers returning from the Cincinnati Fall Festival. The train was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour, when it ran into a open switch, every car leaving the track. The engine exploded, and Engineer Roe and Fireman Studer were killed outright. The postal and baggage cars piled on top of the engine tank, and the rest of the coaches were more or less damaged. General Manager I. G. Town was in his private car on the rear of the train, and he immediately superintended the removal of the injured. He ordered two coaches and an engine from this city, and had the injured brought here. They arrived after midnight, and were at once taken to the Warner House, where they were placed in the hands of local physicians.

No explanation has yet been given for the wreck. It was at first thought that a freight crew had left the switch open, but there was no train on the siding at the time.

NEW LIFE BOAT A SUCCESS

Norwegian's Invention Tested with Sixteen Persons Aboard

Christiana, Sept. 19—The Norwegian Life-Saving Society has experimented at Horten with Capt. Doenvig's new life-boat which consists of a life-saving globe that can carry sixteen persons, 400 kilogrammes of provisions and 500 kilogrammes of water. It carries an air pump and a water pump and is equipped with a sail and rudder It is eight feet in diameter, and is intended to stand on the deck, floating if the ship carrying it goes down.

The trials were successful. Capt. Doenvig, twelve seamen and three newspaper men entered the globe, which was then thrown overboard. It disappeared under the water for a time, but came to the surface, when the occupants hoisted a flag to show that they were no worse for their immersion. The sailing powers of the invention were tested successfully for an hour.

The Farmers's Success Depends Upon His Freedom From Disease and Suffering

Paine's Celery Compound

Is the Medicine That Has Made Thousands of Country Toilers Well and Strong

There are thousands of farmers in our land who are rich in broad acres and gold, yet lack that true wealth known as good health.

It is a melancholy fact that men and women in the country districts, breathing the purest air and drinking from God's bubbling fountains and limpid springs, are liable to the same diseases and ailments that come thick and fast to city people. We find rheumatism, neuralgia, debility, dyspepsia, kidney and liver troubles and blood diseases almost as common in the farmer's family as they are in city homes.

Paine's Celery Compound, Heaven's best blessing to the farming community has done more for the banishment of dread disease and the building up of health than all other combined medicines. Mr. G. J. Snyo, a well known farmer of Sheffield, Ont., says:

"It is with pleasure that I testify to the value of your great medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. For nearly two years I suffered from indigestion, kidney and liver troubles. After trying several medicines that did not effect a cure, I decided to try your Compound. Before using it I was so low in health that I could not eat or sleep. I could not lie in bed owing to pain in my back; it was only by resting on elbows and knees I was enabled to obtain a slight degree of ease. Before I had fully taken one bottle of your medicine I began to improve. I have now taken in all fourteen bottles with grand results. I am a farmer and am now working every day. Anyone may refer to me in regard to these statements, or to any one of my neighbors around Sheffield, where I am well known. I am a living witness to the worth of Paine's Celery Compound."

Contain Rich Gold Mines—A Priest in Minneapolis Says He Has Maps Proving the American Title

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 19—Father Anatoly of the Greek Catholic Church of this city last night admitted that he was in possession of ecclesiastical documents tending to confirm the American claims to the rich gold-bearing territory in the far northwest, which has been is dispute bewest, which has been in dispute be-Britain for years. These papers consist chiefly of reprints and surveys authorized by the Russian Government when Alaska was in the Czar's domain.

Father Anatoly was sent to Alaska by the Greek church in 1897, and he remained there four years. He made a special study of the country, its resources and its history, and it was on account of his position in the church that he was enabled to secure documents that promise to materially aid the American Government in proving its Alaskan claims. Among the papers in the possession of Father Anatoly is a copy of the Alaskan treaty in the English and Russian languages. Accompanying this treaty is an Alaskan priest's narrative showing that in 1815 the Russian Trading Company had a dispute with the Hudson Bay Company of Canada, and destroyed some of the latter's property. The Russian concern then conceded a strip of territory about ten miles wide, located at 54 degrees, 40 minutes longitude, near the mouth of the Stikene River, for the term of ten years.

The Hudson Bay Company was to collect rents for this period in this territory and have exclusive domain. But the tract was never given back and Father Anatoly says it is now usurped by British authorities.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Pekin, Sept. 17.—The United States Minister, Edward R. Conger, has presented to the Chinese Foreign Office a letter from Dr. Canright, the American missionary of Chang Tu Fu, capital of the Province of Sze-Chuen, describing the massacre of native Christians there in July. Dr. Canright says that eleven converts were killed by Boxers and that the local officials refuse to take measures against the Boxers. The letter was written August 2. The missionaries were then guarded by the troops and were unable to leave the mission buildings except when escorted by soldiers. Dr. Canright's recent telegrams say the situation is worse. The native paper declare the trouble is due to the collection of excessive indemnities for Christians on account of the troubles of 1900, owing to the 'Christians' arrogant attitude under foreign protection.

Sarnia, Sept. 17—Angus McIntyre, a sailor on the Canadian steamer United Empire, was drowned at the Grand Trunk elevator dock. He fell from the boat while throwing out a line.

Arnprior, Sept. 17.—Yesterday Bessie, the year-and-a-half-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wilson, of this town, was drowned by falling in a tub of water while playing in the yard.

St. Catherines, Sept. 17—Grover Misener, aged 16, Thorold Township, was instantly killed yesterday in a shooting accident. His brother, Asa Misener, aged about eighteen, had been out with a shot gun, and when nearing home at the deceased. In some manner, the gun was discharged, the charge striking the younger brother near the right temple and blowing the top of his head off.

Sydney, C.B., Sept. 17 — A bear story, detailing more than the usual amount of adventure comes from the north this week. It appears that Mr. Peter Bright, of Meadow, North River, had his flock of sheep badly decreased owing to the depredations of a bear. Last Thursday he saw Bruin holding carnival among his sheep, one of which he had already killed, and went to the next door neighbor's, Mr. Phillip Macdonald's for aid to repel the aggressor. Mr. Macdonald took down and loaded his Winchester for the fray.

Soon after Mr. Macdonald's young daughter told her twelve-year-old brother, Gerret, who was washing the wagon in the barn, the particulars of the case as she had heard them discussed with her father. He hunted up an old and long ago discarded musket with over six inches broken off the muzzle and resolved that he would himself shoot the bear should the opportunity offer.

He had not gone far when he saw the bear being chased towards him by his father and Mr. Bright, both of whom were so intent on their adventure as to not have noticed him. Instead of running away, as might well be excused for even an expert hunter with his weapon, the brave boy ambushed himself along the road the bear was taking. When the bear was alongside of him and preparing to claw him, Gerret fired, killing him immediately. The bullet was afterwards found lodged in the left shoulder after traversing through the heart. The bear was a large one, and after being skinned tipped the scale at over three hundred pounds. The young boy, now, as the result of his courageous act, stands the hero of the hour of the north.

Washington, Sept. 20—The Governors of Colorado and Wyoming today appealed to the Secretary of the Interior for assistance from the Government in checking the great forest fires that are now raging within their boundaries. Secretary Hitchcock has requested more details. He has ordered the Superintendent of Forest Reserves in those States to employ additional men to fight the fires. The Department is very short of men in the reserves.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 20— Thirty-eight bodies were found today in the Lewis River Valley, indicating that the devastation there by forest fires was worse that supposed. The search is still in progress. The burned district was settled by 500 prosperous farmers, who lost all they had. Sixty persons camping out at Trout Lake, near the base of Mount St. Helens saved themselves by taking to the water on improvised rafts of poles and logs. One hundred and forty sections of the finest timber in Cowlitz county was destroyed. The total losses in western Washington cannot be less than $2,000,000, without counting the cessation of the logging industry of southwestern Washington.

Lucerne, Switzerland, Sept. 19—An investigation of the report in the London Times today regarding the health of Lord Salisbury, the ex-British Premier, shows that he is confined to his room here, owing to a chill and a slight attack of gout. He will probably be unable to travel for a fortnight, but it is asserted there is no cause for anxiety..

ANOTHER VERSION.

London, Sept. 19.—Private advices received in London indicate that Lord Salisbury is worse than admitted in the Lucerne despatch on the subject. The symptoms, it is said by his friends, are "not yet considered exceptionally grave." Dr. Walker, who was summoned to Lucerne attended Lady Salisbury during her last illness.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE IN RELATION TO CANADA

A disposition exists in certain quarters to regard the Monroe doctrine as imposing restraints on the political action of Canada, and, by way of compensation, exempting her from any responsibility for her own military defence, says the Montreal Star. This view is plainly put forth in a letter addressed to a local contemporary, La Patrie. Canada, according to this correspondent, could not become part of an Imperial federation, with obligation to share in the wars of the Empire, without violating the Monroe doctrine. Further, the only change of status Canada would be allowed to make, apart from annexation to the United States, would be to become an independent Republic. From this it results, according to the writer, that, were Great Britain at war with any European power Canada need not give herself any anxiety on the subject, nor Great Britain, either, for that matter; because the United States would protect us. Hence, all we require to do is properly to police our own territory with a view to the maintenance of internal order, our immunity from external aggression being fully guaranteed.

It does not seem probable that such views as these will obtain any wide acceptance in this country. They are not founded, in the first place, on a common sense view of the situation; and, in the second place, they assume a degree of self-abasement and pusillanimity on the part of the Canadian people which happily does not exist.

Great Britain does not hold her possessions on this continent by the sufferance of the United States, any more than she holds Gibraltar by the sufferance of Spain, or the Channel Islands by the sufferance of France. Her title to her North American possessions, or the title through her, of the people who inhabit them, is precisely as good in law and in equity as the title of the United States to the territory they occupy; and the United States could not, without the commission of an act of piracy, do aught even to abridge the political rights which Great Britain and her colonies enjoy. To say that Canada could not, if she chose, constitute herself to-day, with the concurrence of Great Britain, into an independent Kingdom would be to say that she is a vassal of the United States. If she is, when or how did she become one? Is the mere fact that the United States has grown portentously in wealth and power sufficient to constitute her a suzerain over this free country? We mistake the temper of the Canadian people if they would acquiesce in any such view as that. The writer to whom we are referring expresses himself as if any policy formulated by the United States became at once a rule of action, positive or negative, as the case may be, for all other peoples under the sun. In regard, however, to the simple matter of fact, we are not aware that there has ever been any pretension on behalf of the United States to control any future change in the form of our government. Canadians do not hanker after a separate monarchial government of their own. The idea would appear nearly as preposterous to them, probably, as to their neighbors across the line; but they consider that the question is one solely for themselves and the Empire with which they are at present politically connected.

But consider for a moment the situation which it is stated we would occupy in the event of a war in which Great Britain was engaged. She would not have to defend us, we would not have to defend ourselves. Uncle Sam would send his men of war and cruisers and torpedo boats to defend our coasts. We would kindly sell them provisions and coal at as a good a price as the condition of the market warranted, and, in our pious moments, pray that nothing might happen to abreviate so happy a condition of things. Meantime, how about John Bull making use of Halifax harbour or Esquimalt as a base of operations against his enemy? Imagine Great Britain at war with France, Canada protected by the United States, and British ships bobbing in or out of Halifax or Sydney to do what damage they could to the enemy! Or if Russia were the enemy what a convenient thing to have Esquimalt to resort to without any need to protect our Pacific coast. The thing is absurd in the highest degree. As long as the British Empire lasts Great Britain will defend her own colonies with the loyal assistance of the latter. No community can be independent and rely for its defence wholly on another. Suppose for one moment that Canada were a so-called independent republic. It has its own merchant marine—no men of war, oh no, that would cost money—and it flies its own flag. One of its ships gets into trouble in a foreign port. A dispute arises with a foreign power; what can Canada do but give way every time? If she is in the right she has no means of enforcing her right; and, if she is wrong, the big neighbour to whom she is trusting for protection, and who doesn't want to have any unnecessary bother on her account, will see that she gives way. What kind of independence would that be, and how long would it last? The United States to do all the fighting and Canada all the skulking.

What the ultimate development of the Munroe doctrine will be it is difficult to say. The people of the United States themselves scarcely know what to do with it. It commits them the vast pretensions and responsibilities. We can only modify the old adage and say solvetur ambulando.

else. "Who's to play Lady Kitty if—I am discharged?"

"Don't talk about being discharged, my dear child!" exclaimed the actor-manager. "Of course, you can go on playing Lady Kitty, if you really prefer, but I thought, as there might be gossip in the theater about the part of Celia being rehearsed by someone else, it would be pleasanter for you to be out of it altogether. Your understudy, Miss Cotter, could get through Kitty very decently, I daresay. And she's quite good enough for Celia, poor girl."

Winifred sat still, thinking earnestly for a moment. Lionel Macaire had kept his word, and had lost not a moment in setting about it. There was no shadow of doubt that she owed this blow to him, though by what threats or what bribes he had made George Anderson his cat's-paw she could not tell. The millionaire had punished her, and if she took Mr. Anderson at his word and played Lady Kitty during the next fortnight he would surely cause her to regret it, either by forcing himself upon her at the theater or by some other method which she could not foresee.

Now that this terrible slight had been put upon her by the manager there would be nothing save humiliation for her at the Duke of Clarence's, where she had been so happy; there was nothing more for her in the engagement which had brought her such joy, except to take the remaining money that was due, and retire with what grace she could.

"Very well, Mr. Anderson," she said, dully. "I do think I am being hardly treated, but I know very well there's no object to be gained by saying so, except a little rather bitter satisfaction to myself, perhaps. I must accept the salary for the remaining fortnight, though I wish very much I need not ——"

"Please—please don't make this any harder for me than it is already," pleaded Anderson, rising hastily, that the disagreeable interview might the sooner come to an end. "Celia's really not good enough for you, my dear Miss Gray. You can do better for yourself—much better."

Winifred took the hint, and rose from her chair also. "It will be difficult to do anything at all so late in the year," she said, with some bitterness; "especially when it is known that I've been discharged from the Duke of Clarence's."

"That word again!" ejaculated Anderson, beginning to be irritable in the midst of his remorse. "No such thing will be known. You have been taken suddenly ill—or family trouble has forced you to give up acting for the present—which you please. You've only to choose, and I'll have the same story for all reporters or anyone who applies to the theater for information."

"Family trouble!" The words stung Winifred like nettles. There was truth enough for such an excuse; nevertheless, she would not make it. "I think I should prefer," she said, looking him straight in the eyes, "that the real truth should be told."

He flushed under her look, and dropped the long lashes of which he was as proud as if he had been a professional beauty. "At least, Miss Gray," he retorted, sharply, "I have spared your feelings as much as possible. I have seen you myself, I have talked with you as one friend talks to another, and——"

A sudden knock at the door seemed to strike the next word from his mind. There was distress in his handsome face as he said: "Come in."

Something told Winifred that it was Macaire who stood outside the door, demanding admittance, so that when he entered he had not, at all events, the satisfaction of surprising her. He knew that George Anderson had sent for the girl, and the hour of the appointment; probably he had been with the actor-manager when the letter was written, and he had come purely for the pleasure of beholding the destruction he had wrought.

But at the sight of the hideous red face and the pale eyes which, though the sneering lips were silent, said to her: "I warned you what you had to expect, and I have kept my word," Winifred's spirit rose.

A bright color sprang to her cheeks. Her eyes were like stars. Never had she been so beautiful. She had faced the door as Lionel Macaire opened it, and she made the one glance she gave tell him it had been given merely because it was unavoidable.

"Good-morning and good-bye, Mr. Anderson," she said, her head held high, and a proud smile on her lips. Then, drawing her dress aside that it might not be desecrated by touching the millionaire, she swept by him without a look.

"By Jove!" she thought she heard George Anderson say, as the door closed behind her.

As she went down the stairs from the office, the blood throbbing in her forehead seemed to blind her eyes with a reddish mist. Hardly knowing what she did, she found her way through labyrinths of passages to the region of the dressing-rooms, and shut herself into her room. There she half-fell upon the little wicker sofa, where she had nestled so cosily many a time. She had loved the very smell of this theater—the queer, indefinable odor made up of gas and mustiness, which is like nothing in the world outside a theater, or even further in front than "behind the scenes;" and to her the Duke of Clarence's had seemed to have an individuality of its own. She would have known she was there, and nowhere else, if she had been led in blindfold; and she would carry away the remembrance with her, though after to-day she would never come into the place again.

Her big dress-basket stood against the wall, and presently she began putting things together, and packing them into it. Jameson could have been sent to do this work, but somehow she felt that she could leave it to no one else's hands. There was a separate memory in everything she touched, and she laid them in the basket now with a sad tenderness. It would be hard to look at them after this. She wondered what theater they would be carried into next, and so wondering her heart grew very cold. How should she tell her mother of what had happened—the poor little mother who ought to be petted and cheered and given all she wished for, instead of being buffeted by higher waves in the deep sea of trouble?

When everything was ready to be sent for, Winifred took one last look at the room and turned away. In going out she had to pass a door which led to the stage, and the voices of per-

PE-RU-NA IS THE WOMAN'S BEST FRIEND,

So Says Mrs. Rose, of New York City, And Tens of Thousands of Other Women.

Mrs. Jennie Rose, 362 W. Twenty-Second Street, New York City, writes: The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "Peruna is a blessing to suffering women. I suffered with female trouble since I began menstruation, and every month I suffered two and three days of untold agony, and had to arrange my work and duties so as to be in bed every month for two days at least.

"My brother was cured of Bright's Disease from the use of Peruna and so I determined to try it for my trouble.

"Imagine my great joy when I found that it relieved me quite a bit the first month and I was entirely without pain during that period after having used Peruna only four months.

"This is about two years ago and all during that time I have suffered no pain. I can now come and go as I like and consider Peruna woman's best friend and wish that every suffering woman might know that she can find relief through the use of this medicine."

Truly yours,

MRS. JENNIE ROSE.

Mrs. Ellen Thompson, Battle Town, Ky., writes:

"When I wrote you for advice I was very bad off. When I received your letter I commenced using Peruna and it did just what you said it would. I have had a cough for about fifteen years and your medicine has done me more good than anything I have ever used. I am so thankful to you for your advice to me."—Mrs. Ellen Thompson.

Mrs. James Eighmey, Grape, Mich., writes:

"I have been troubled with pain before and during my monthlies ever since I was seventeen. I was also troubled with other female weakness. I took your treatment, and am now well, and thank you for your kind advice."—Mrs. James Eighmey.

Mrs. John Meyers, Erhart, O., writes:

"I have been a sufferer from chronic catarrh for years and have thereby lost the sense of smell entirely. I had four of the best physicians in this vicinity without receiving any benefit whatever. "Now I am once more a well woman. I find Peruna to be the best medicine in the world as it has done me more good than my physician could have done for me. My friends say I look ten years younger. I tell them that Peruna did it. I can't thank you enough for your free advice."—Mrs. John Meyers.

Mrs. Ida Baker, Portsmouth, O., writes:

"I am glad to say that I am well. I have taken Peruna and feel better than I have for ten years; have gained twelve pounds and am still gaining. When I wrote to you for advice I had given up all hope of being well again, and I feel that it has saved my life."—Mrs. Ida Baker.

Alice Scott, of Franklin, Ky., in a letter to Dr. Hartman, says:

"For seven long years I had been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the pelvic organs which resulted in displacement of the uterus. I wrote you telling you all my complaints from the beginning to the present, made happy and much encouraged every time by your kind and fatherly letters of advice and instruction. I am now a strong woman weighing 118 pounds."—Alice Scott.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

STOCK MARKETS

Some Houses and Money Rates

New York, Sept. 19th.—The average business man is prone to discourage increased business at such times as will prove disadvantageous to him; but to transact it and to encourage it when it is profitable to him to have it. This fact is true the world over, in no place more so than in Wall street. The average brokerage house does not like to have its customers load with stocks when money is tight, thereby compelling them to enter the money market, and in so doing pay more than usual rates. No one likes to borrow money in quantities at from 10 to 20 per cent., to reloan to their customers at 6 per cent. Buying transactions are consequently in many offices discouraged, and at a time when they should be made by their customers. To wait until money has adjusted itself is to pay increased prices. Mr. Broker at such time is willing and desirous of securing buying orders to offset the additional expense to themselves of carrying stocks. Many houses are charging their customers at present additional interest to the customary 6 per cent. We want to state right here that we have only charged 6 per cent. right through the tight money period, and will continue that policy, no matter how high money rates, or for how long a time high money rates may last. We will also advise our customers to buy when it appears desirable, and will gladly accept their purchasing order and carry for them their purchase at the customary rate. We feel that our customers' interests are at all times our own, and will act accordingly. Stocks bought at the most stringent money rate at times this week and already show a handsome profit. They will show better ones yet, when money relaxes. It is doing so now daily, and in time will again be normal; it was high rates that carried market as low as it did go. The proper thing for the customer to have done was to then buy. If he listened to his interested broker who did not care to carry them at regular rates, he missed a good opportunity. The market will surprise you more this fall by advances it will record.

Marked strength characterised the days dealings; the entire market was strong and aggressive. St. Paul went up to 196 1-2, Rock Island to 206; the Railway lists were all in lively demand and buoyant. Prospects for further advances are brilliant. Favorable decision for United States Steel was handed down to-day and stimulated the stock. The minor industrials are looking up under improving inquiry. We are bullish upon the entire market. Money closed last loan, 6 per cent. Sales 825,500.

Is the amount in dividends paid to stockholders of

The National Oil Company

during the years 1901 and 1902.

(Capital stock $1,000,000, fully paid. Non-assessable.)

1281 acres are located within a few hours drive of the City of LIMA, OHIO. The National now has 37 PRODUCING OIL WELLS and TWO MORE DRILLING. To comply with the terms of these leases

40 More Wells Must be Drilled Soon

At a low estimate these additional wells will more than treble the dividends to stockholders, with the probability of striking gushers which will far over-reach these modest estimates. To drill these wells at once, the directors are offering until October 4th

200,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK AT

25c Per Share, Par Value $1.00.

An additional dividend of at least 12 per cent will be paid in six months, making 37 per cent on investment, besides doubling value of stock, being equivalent to 150 per cent on investment,

Making it Among the Very Best Dividend Paying Oil Stocks in the Market.

All orders received for stock prior to September 25th, will be credited with a full quarterly dividend from September 2nd, payable on December 2nd, 1902.

The officers of The National Oil Company are experienced and responsible men, and personally superintend field work.

Investigation solicited. Prospectus, reference and other information on application. Address.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

The musical festival of Tuesday last was a success. First, in point of excellence, the music was fine and showed ability on the part of those who gave it. The cornet solos by Staff-Capt. Morris were simply delightful, to say the least of it, and all other parts of the programme were rendered in excellent style, then, the attendance was good, and showed a love for music which was gratifying. Rev. Mr. Potter presided in a happy way, which made everybody feel quite at ease. It was an enjoyable evening.

Staff-Capt. Page is a lady of England, and now acts as private secretary to Miss Booth. Her subjects next Sunday (Sept. 21st) at the local barracks, we would judge, would be both helpful and instructive. They are as follows: 11 a.m., "Valueless worth," 3 p.m. "Homeless, Heathen and Here, the Salvation Army under three aspects," and at 7 p.m. "Nettles."

The local corps have sent out two candidates for training recently. Master Frederick Lodge, who entered the Training Garrison, Toronto, with the session which just opened on Monday, Sept. 15th, and Miss Rebecca Sherwood, who, for the present, assists at Millbrook corps.

The barracks is to have a new coat of paint put on the inside in the very near future, which will improve its appearance very much.

That unique service peculiar to the Salvation Army, a hallelujah wedding, is to take place on Tuesday, September 23rd, at 8 p.m., when a happy couple will be united 'neath the colors as man and wife. Staff-Capt. Creighton, of Toronto, will tie the knot. After the service a wedding banquet will be served for the congregation in the basement. Joy and success to them we say.

The New Rink

The new rink which is about to be built on Brock street opposite the residence of Dr. Scott will cost about $6,000. The ice will be 80x180 and there will be a total capacity of over 2,000 and seating accommodation for 1,600. There will be a main entrance of three doors, and upon the first floor are to be situated the ladies' and gentlemen's lavatories and a club room and upon the second floor three club rooms and there will also be a balcony for the band. It will be one of the most up-to-date rinks in Ontario. Plans and specifications are at Mayor Denne's office, and tenders will be received up to four o'clock Sept. 30.

A Monster Bass

There is on exhibition at The Times' window a tracing of a monster black bass caught at Rice Lake on Friday last by a guest of the Rice Lake House. The fish measured 24 inches in length, girth 81-2 inches, circumference 27 inches, weight 6 pounds 2 ounces. It is of the small mouth variety, and the tracing was done by Mr. R M Roy, who happened to be down at the Lake in his steam launch. It is one of the largest bass ever caught in our inland lakes, although Mr. Snowden says that bigger fish have frequently been hooked in his private fishing preserve.

New Locomotives

Since the beginning of the present calendar year the C.P.R. has placed orders for 116 new engines. Of these 12 passenger and 44 freight engines will be ready for the handling of the harvest this fall, both classes of engines being expected to be used. The total number of passenger engines ordered is 34, frieght 64 and switching 18. These orders are in pursuance of the intention announced by the company at the time of the issue of stock, to bring the rolling stock up to at least average point of efficiency.

Cramps are Like Burglars

They come unexpected and when least welcome. Be armed with a one-minute cure in a bottle of Nerviline, which relieves cramp and stomach pains in five minutes. In Colic, Summer Complaint, Diarrhoea, Indigestion Nausea, Nerviline is a remedy of remarkable potency, and acts promptly and satisfactorily at all times. The composition of Polson's Nerviline expresses the highest medical progress of the age, which accounts for its superior merit. Price 25c.

Hamilton's Pills are Good Pills.

LAKEFIELD FAIR

The annual exhibition of the Smith, Ennismore, and Lakefield Agricultural Society will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 23rd and 24th, on the grounds of the Society. The directors are sparing no pains or expense to make this the most successful show in the history of the Society. The trials of speed promise to be most interesting and exciting. A matched race is on between F. McKee's "Nellie B," and Dr. Johnston's "Nigger," for a substantial purse. Those who propose exhibiting should make their entries early. For prize lists and other information apply to the secretary, Mr. W. Sherin.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—A citizen was fined $2 and costs for assault at the Police Court yesterday.

—Archie Reynold's annual pic-nic took place on Thursday to Jubilee Point, per steamer Water Lily. It was well attended.

—Mr. J. Pearson, and Mr. Percy Pearson, of Montreal, were in town yesterday purchasing horses. They secured a car load which were shipped to Montreal.

—Mr. Gliddon has arranged for the 57th band to play in Lindsay under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. there, on the evening of November 6th. This will be the first of a serious of four concerts.

—Fruit crop this year is unusually good. Pears are plentiful, although in some cases they are attacked with pear psylia, plums were light, and apples medium. This was a fungus year with the apples on account of the excessive rain.

—Lindsay Watchman-Warder — Sergt.-Major Martin had his flag flying on Sunday, because 48 years before he had landed in Crimea with the British army. On Monday the Sergt.-major received the first instalment of a pension granted him for life by the king as a "compensation of former services in war."

—Chief Rossel and Mr. Augustus Sawyers were in Bewdley on Thursday and there found the Columbia bicycle which Mr. Sawers rented a couple of weeks ago to a person who failed to return it. The wheel had been left standing against a fence about a mile on the other side of Bewdley. One of the tires had given out and the rider had therefore abandoned the wheel.

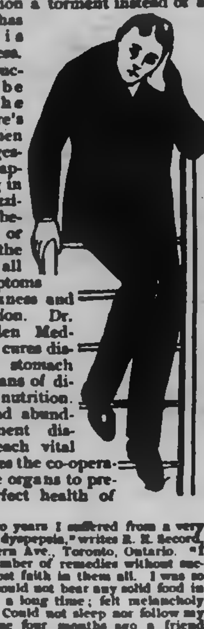
AT THE TOP.

It is a laudable ambition to reach the top of the ladder of success. But many a man who reaches the topmost rung finds his position a torment instead of a triumph. He has sacrificed his health to success.

A man can succeed and be strong if he heeds Nature's warnings. When there is indigestion, loss of appetite, ringing in the ears, dizziness, spots before the eyes or palpitation of the heart; any or all of these symptoms point to weakness and loss of nutrition. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. By perfect and abundant nourishment distributed to each vital organ it enables the co-operation of all the organs to preserve the perfect health of the body.



"For about two years I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia," writes R. R. Secord, Esq., of 13 Eastern Ave., Toronto, Ontario. "I tried a great number of remedies without success. I finally lost faith in them all. I was so far gone that I could not bear any solid food in my stomach for a long time; felt melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor follow my occupation. Some four months ago a friend recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' After a week's treatment I had derived so much benefit that I continued the medicine. I have taken three bottles and am convinced it has in my case accomplished a permanent cure. I can conscientiously recommend it to the thousands of dyspeptics throughout the land."

The "Common Sense Medical Adviser," 1008 pages in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A despatch from Fergus states that the date for the final championship game between Oshawa and Fergus has not yet been decided upon. Copper Cliff has entered a protest against Oshawa.

Montreal, Sept. 19.—The final N.A.L.U. championship match will be played here to-morrow between Cornwall and Shamrocks. The game will not affect the standing of the clubs.

GOAL KEEPER QUINN MARRIED.

Montreal, Sept. 18. — Mr. Percy Quinn, the hero of many a hard-fought battle on the lacrosse field, where he guarded well the Shamrock poles was married yesterday morning to Miss Minnie Reeves. The newly-wedded couple left for a trip to Toronto, Niagara, Buffalo and Detroit, returning by boat and taking a trip up the Saguenay. Last evening the Shamrocks tendered him a complimentary supper at Belliveau's and Mr. P. Brennan, on behalf of the club, presented him with a well filled purse.

A TRUE SAYING

"Most Men Dig Their Graves With Their Teeth"

The wrong kind of food fills more graves than any other cause. It is easy to retain good health by the use of proper food and it is pleasant too. The Rev. G. M. Lodge of Iowa City, Iowa, made a successful experiment.

"I am 65 years of age and a preacher. Last winter I went to Kansas and had charge of two churches. A little use of Grape-Nuts food made me believe it to be a true brain and nerve builder; I wanted to experiment further with it so I used Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper for more than three months with the best results. I not only never had better health in my life but the effect on my brain was wonderful. I had become forgetful of names and persons and things, was often unable to recall even the names of old friends.

After using Grape-Nuts for two weeks forgotten names came to me and as the days and weeks passed my memory was wonderfully quickened as to names and dates, and mental ability in general, I could preach without manuscript or notes as never before, and in a month or less I said to myself, 'Grape-Nuts is a brain food,' and as such I now recommend it.

It also gives health and blood, nerve and muscle. Cheerfully and earnestly I advise students, clergymen, teachers and all mental workers to use Grape-Nuts steadily and systematically if you wish to excel in mental and literary work, renew your age and feel well. It is the best nerve and brain food I have ever known."

PORTS AT THE MERCY OF RUSSIAN FLEETS

Russia Is Strengthening Her Navy on the Black Sea--Egyptians Dying of Cholera

Statistics for the Past Week—Finances of Turkey—Why an Ex-War Minister Refused Decoration

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 20.—The strengthening of the Russian Black Sea fleet which has been going on for years is worthy of attention, says an Odessa correspondent. It is acknowledged that the Danube and various ports of strategic value on the Southern Black Sea, which recently have been repeatedly visited by Russian ships are completely at Russia's mercy. Of these ships Russia possesses considerable numbers.

BUILDINGS IN DANGER OF COLLAPSE.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 20—A Venice correspondent says as a result of the accurate examination of the chief Venetian monuments, it is possible to express a well-founded opinion as to their condition. Although no public building is in immediate danger of collapse, several edifices, including Doges Palace, Basilica of St. Mark, Zecca —formerly the mint— and the churches of Santa Maria, Formose, Frari, and Giovanni of Paolo, urgently need thorough repairs if a disaster is to be avoided. The authorities are already moving in the right direction, except in the case of Zecca, where the civil engineering staff is surpassing itself in stupidity, attempting as engineers are doing, to patch up as new, premises for the St. Marks Library, an edifice which only partial denomination and reconstruction can save from collapse.

TURKISH FINANCIAL CRISIS.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 20—A trustworthy authority, says a Paris correspondent, supplies the following remarks regarding the Turkish financial crisis: "The re-appointment of Said Pasha to a Grand Viziership was due to the machinations of the Sultan who was jealous of Said's popularity and was determined to discredit him. Today Said is the best hated man in Turkey next to the Sultan, for since his appointment officials have not received any payment. When complaints were made to the Sultan he responded to officials' appeals by presenting £15,000 Turkish money to Said, who did not dare to refuse the money, though by so doing he further exasperated the officials. The Sultan having centralized all power in the Palace, has assumed entire responsibility. Only public funds are wasted, his private finances being in a most prosperous condition, under the management of an American. European control is necessary for the remodelling of Turkey's finances, but there is no hope of reform while Abdul Hamid is on the throne."

DEATHS FROM CHOLERA IN EGYPT.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 20—A despatch from Alexandria to The Times says that the cholera statistics for Egypt on Thursday were :—Cairo, 15 death ; Alexandria, 24 deaths ; other districts, 253 fresh cases and 734 deaths.

WHY HE REFUSED DECORATION.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 20.— A Paris correspondent says General DeGalliffet denies the charge that he had a woman and two children shot at the time of the commune. He expressly refused the Cross of Commander of the Legion of Honor, because he would not be decorated for what he did during the civil war.

Special to The Times.

Georgetown, (British Guiana) Sept. 20. —For upwards of a month discontent has prevailed among the East Indian immigrants imported into Dutch Guiana (Surinam) under contract to work on sugar estates. The reasons given by the coolies themselves are bad treatment, hard work, extensive tasks, and very low rate of wages. The first actual outbreak occurred on Plu Alliance, when a gang of coolies unmercifully beat an overseer, and then left the estate to lay a complaint with the District Commissary. This matter was settled and Mr. Maver, the manager of the adjoining estate, Marienburg, was appointed to arbitrate in the dispute. Mr. Maver's decision favored the estate's authorities, and this tended to aggravate the dissatisfaction of the coolies, who hatched a plot to murder Mr. Maver. They enlisted a number of Mr. Maver's own coolies in the scheme, and they in turn took some Javanese into their confidence. On July 23 a coolie gang working on a distant field on Plu Marienburg complained that their pay was too little for the work they had to do and sent for Mr. Maver. On examining the task Mr. Maver agreed that higher wages were necessary and granted the coolies' request. This was more than the men bargained for, as they anticipated disregard of their complaint, which would have given ostensible excuse for carrying out their evil design. Two of the men recommenced to work, but, on the threat of being murdered by their fellows desisted. Mr. Maver returned home, and later in the day when in the factory, he was attacked by 200 coolies and Javanese and foully murdered.

The coolies cut off all telephonic communication with the outside, but one of the overseers managed to carry news of the outbreak on horseback back to the authorities. Late that night a detachment of soldiers and a posse of police reached the estate, but then all was quiet. In the morning when an attempt was made to arrest the ringleaders, the coolies rose in a body, and armed with cutlasses, threatened to cut down the first man who came near them. Five times the Attorney-General of Surinam (who represented the Governor) ordered the men to disarm and withdraw, but without being obeyed. He then ordered the soldiers to fire, the result being that thirteen coolies were shot dead, and over forty wounded. Later eight others succumbed to their injuries. The incensed coolies, seeing the authorities to be earnest, withdrew, and the injured were taken to the military hospital. Mr. Maver's remains were interred, amid every indication of mourning, he having been a man of great influence and highly respected in the colony, where he had resided for nineteen years. He was a native of Elgin, Scotland, and had for several years held responsible positions in British Guiana before being appointed Agent for the Dutch Trading Society at Surinam. Great dissatisfaction still prevails among the coolies who seem to be further enraged at the shooting down of so many of their number. An inquiry will be made. It is anticipated, at the instance of the Government of India, who cannot allow their subjects to be indentured to a foreign power unless adequate protections be taken for their protection. The result of an informal inquiry by the Dutch authorities shows that the remuneration and treatment given to coolies on Mr. Maver's estate were fair even in generosity.

Boston, Sept. 22—A man, his wife and three children, the youngest only one year old, all of whom lived in Minot's woods like wild people were recently captured by the police of Dorchester Station.

The captives were scantily clothed, nearly all starved, and slept on the ground, with no roof but the trees to cover them.

Arthur J. Webber, twenty-eight years old, is the name and age given by the man, and the girl whom he claims as his wife called herself Alice J. Webber, and is twenty-two years old.

Like the parents, the little tots were pale and emaciated and scantily clad. Their eyes bulged out of their heads. Every member of the family was soiled by the dirt of the forest and appeared almost as the beasts of the jungle.

"The wild folk" of Minot's woods had come to be bugbears, and the women and children of Dorchester were afraid to walk in the woods by daylight, not to mention their fear by night.

The man, the woman and children were constantly bobbing up into the view of the people who delighted to walk in the woods on warm summer days, and their strange actions and their wild looks so frightened the people that these walks in the woods were abandoned.

STRANGE NOISES.

Strange noises were heard at night. The cries of the children both at night and by day were distinctly heard and those who heard them were terrified. The children cried for proper nourishment and shelter. They were cold. When their parents did bring them food, scanty as it was, they are reported to have fought and snarled over it like the wild beasts of the forest as they ate it.

For about two weeks the police have been receiving reports of the mysterious family of wild folk of Minot's woods, and of the sudden appearance and disappearance of the mysterious man and woman.

They came and went like fly-by-nights, and no one seemed to know anything of them or their antecedents.

Some bold citizens went in search of them in the woods on day explorations but only glimpses of the mysterious family of forest dwellers could be caught.

The police say that it is the old and oft-told story of the terrible results of the excessive use of intoxicating liquor. But a short time ago Webber was a successful, prosperous and respected photographer in Roxbury. He fell by the wayside because of the excessive use of liquors and gradually dropped down the rungs of the ladder of life until he reached the lowest one, and when he fell from that he took his little family into the woods with him to lead the life of wild beasts, and to return to the primeval state from which it has taken man so many centuries to rise.

London, Sept. 20—Sir George White, in opening the Gordon Highlanders Memorial Institute, said in the course of his speech :

"It is no part of my duty heretoday to give you a lecture on temperance, but I will say this, and say it with the strength of fifty years' service with the colors—(cheers)—that, in order to raise our soldiers' respect for the honorable profession which they have adopted in order that they may gain a higher status, to which they are clearly entitled from the nation of which they are the noble champions—(cheers)—that the first and greatest requisite for their being in the position to fulfill the contract which they have entered into with the nation, with courage, nerve, endurance, and to use their arms with the precision which modern warfare has rendered a necessity, the first and greatest essential is temperance. (Cheers.) The vast improvement which has taken place in this respect is due to the introduction of institutes such as Captain Harry Bronigre has been the means of organizing. I do not believe that improvement can be really and accurately traced to legislation or to restrictions placed on the sale or issue of drink, or even to the excellent example of the ministers of religion of various denominations, but to the spread of education and the force of example. I wish I could unroll before you the gallant deeds performed not only by the Gordon Highlanders, but by all the other soldiers I have had the honor to command, and which are not written on the roll of fame, and are only known to those numerous people who have been eye-witness of those deeds. (Cheers.) I am sorry I cannot here today greet the gallant Meiklejohn, who led his men in the front line of the battle of Elandslaagte, when the Gordon Highlanders and their fine comrades, the Imperial Light Horse, carried everything before them on that day. (Cheers.) I am, in common with every man and woman in this hall, glad to meet our gallant comrade, Major Towse ; (Loud cheers.) We all know the answer he gave to the call to surrender on account of the handful of men by whom he was supported, and though the light of battle not yet brighten those eyes that looked on it so bravely before, there is a spiritual light that will shine around that stricken head, when these eyes would have grown dim in the decadence of ordinary nature, and the afterglow of his bright example and his matchless courage will be an example to many a Gordon Highlander yet to be, and a light on that path on which a British officer ought to lead. (Cheers.) My comrades of the Gordons I make no apology to you for addressing you in words of earnestness ; you that have seen most know best that in times such as I have referred to all is only too real and too earnest. (Cheers.) But as representative of the gallant regiment to which it is my proudest boast to belong, I thank everybody who has contributed to that memorial which has been opened today—a fitting monument to those who foremost fighting fell. (Loud cheers)

RUSSIA GIVES BACK TO CHINA

Railway and Manchurian Province to be Restored on Oct. 8

Special to The Times.

Pekin, Sept. 22 M. Lessar, the Russian Minister, has informed his colleagues that the Shanhaikwan-Newchwang Railway and the southern province of Manchuria to the Liao river will be restored to the Chinese on Oct. 8, according to the terms of the convention.

Damage to the railway and the loss of a bridge, making it impossible to move the Russian troops which was desired before the transfer, caused the delay.

The Government has approved the plans submitted by M. Lessar. Two railway and military representatives have recently arrived from Manchuria.

THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION

An Omaha Physician Says Climatic Conditions Have Nothing to do with It

Special to The Times.

Souix City, Ia., Sept. 22—At the annual convention of the Medical Society of the Missouri Valley, including Iowa Nebraska and Missouri, Dr. R. C. Moore, of Omaha, president of the Society read a paper in which he declared that climatic conditions have absolutely nothing to do with successful treatment of pulmonary consumption.

Not only did he maintain that the superior climatic conditions of the southwestern states for treatment of consumption was pure fiction, but he declared that there was greater danger in these States because of liability of infection from the thousands of consumptive patients that go there yearly.

"Statistics demonstrate beyond a doubt," he said, "that climatic conditions, weather, temperature, have no effect on tuberculosis."

In supporting this he referred to the sanitariums for consumptives at Rutland [illegible] and at Fort Bayard, N.M. According to his figures the percentage of deaths from tuberculosis in New Mexico is 16, as compared with 1 1-2 at Rutland. The number of cases showing improvement was 37 per cent. at Rutland, and 23 at Fort Bayard.

Dr. Moore advocated the establishment of State sanitariums throughout the United States for the treatment of consumptives.

BOTTLE AFLOAT 28 YEARS

Thrown Aboard in the Indian Ocean—Frisco Feels a Shock

Special to The Times.

San Francisco, Cal. Sept. 22—One of the severest shocks of earthquake felt here in years occurred at 3.56 this morning. It was preceded by loud rumbling. Earth was lifted as though pent up force has been suddenly liberated.

The seismograph showed five waves, but these followed each other so rapidly that they seemed one shock.

Brockton, Mass, Sept. 22.—George T. Maddox of this city was a member of the crew of the vessel Hattie Tapley, twenty-eight years ago, and on April 13, 1874, was one of the men who placed a note in a bottle bearing the inscription :

"This bottle was thrown overboard from the ship Hattie Tapley, of Bangor, Capt. George Tapley, master, April 13, 1874, in latitude 27.C., longitude, 66 E."

This was in the Indian Ocean. The bottle was picked up recently off Monomoy Point, Cape Cod. It was intact and the message could be read easily. The bottle was found by a Harwich fisherman.

Mr. Maddox recalls the voyage on which he was when the bottle was thrown overboard. He thinks the wind helped the bottle around Cape Horn to the Atlantic Ocean, the southeast trade wind again helping it northward. The Gulf Stream presumably assisted in into the broad gulf, and it got into coastwise currents, which brought it the rest of the way.

Mr. Maddox retired from seafaring life several years ago.

MANY MIRACLES ARE BEING PERFORMED

These are Promised by Leader of the New Religious Sect in Philadelphia

THE CHURCH OF THE SOUL

Pastor is a Woman Who Charms with Her Eloquence as Well as Her Diamonds

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 22. — The Reverend Mrs. Millie Renouf Palmer, pastor of the newly chartered Church of the Soul, on Thirteenth street, above Girard avenue, set in motion the wheels of a new religious sect last Sunday night.

For more than an hour an audience of 300 persons were held spellbound by the woman's eloquence. And, too, they were charmed by the wonderful diamonds she wore. During her discourse the preacher herself came near being charmed. Two men who are mediums occupied seats among those assembled. They tried with all their might to mesmerize the woman. Once the preacher was compelled by these men to pause for a moment. When she had finished delivering her sermon the woman confessed that she came near falling to the platform.

Mrs. Palmer is a woman who is possessed of wonderful beauty, although somewhat advanced in years. For some time she has been a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel, having been affiliated with other religious bodies, the Baptists, Methodists and others. Finally, she took up the study of Spiritualism, which led her to unite with others in forming the Church of the Soul. She declared last night that she hoped to perform many miracles in this city during the coming winter. She said there were many men and women among her congregation—living together as man and wife—whose souls will be damned unless their souls become affiliated—each with the other's soul and spirit.

It was, indeed, an unusual sight this woman preacher and her surroundings. The Church of the Soul is a magnificent place of worship. Mrs Palmer made it so. She demanded of her congregation ample funds to establish an elegant edifice. Thousands of dollars have been expended in furnishings. Then, when the church was completed, Mrs. Palmer said :

"I will become responsible now for its success."

The woman proved herself a leader of the followers of her sect. She captured her audience the moment she ascended the pulpit. Her gown, of black broadcloth, was a wonderful creation which she had imported from Paris. It was trimmed with white satin and sparkled with diamonds. At her throat was fastened an emblem of the Scottish Rite Masonry, set with rare gems. And upon her fingers she wore many jewels. Mrs. Palmer had laid her plans well. Her big blue eyes glistened as bright as the diamonds she wore when she arose with a smile to deliver her sermon. These were the words of her text :

"The words that I speak I speak not of myself, but the Father, which is in me. He directs the work."

Mrs. Palmer believes in the return of the spirit. She declared emphatically that she had been visited by the spirits of her own departed loved ones. In explaining the doctrine of her church she pointed out the doctrine of all other churches, claiming all were founded upon but one truth—that of Spiritualism.

The Church of the Soul numbers among its members many wealthy and influential men.

Permanent Cure for Neuralgia

Experienced sufferers state that no remedy relieves neuralgia so quickly as a hot application of Polson's Nerviline, the strongest liniment made. Nerviline is certainly very penetrating and has a powerful influence over neuralgic pains, which it destroys almost at once. Nerviline is highly recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, and Toothache. Better try a 25c. bottle, it's all right.

SERIOUS PITCH-IN SEVEN MILES OUT OF LINDSAY

A Double Header Crashes Into the Rear End of Another Train-Two Lives Lost

At an early hour yesterday morning a serious pitch-in occurred on the Grand Trunk about 7 miles out of Lindsay, when two double headers following one another collided with serious results.

The trains were a short distance behind each other and just before making a grade, the first train steamed up and was going at a rapid rate, when a coupling parted. The train hands stalled the rear end, but not before the second train was on them, and as a result two engines and a large number of cars were piled in a heap, and smashed into splinters.

The two trains passed through Peterborough on Saturday evening, the second train leaving the station shortly after the first train pulled out.

Engineer Swanson, brother-in-law of Mr. Lareque, proprietor of the Montreal House, town, was killed, also fireman Falkner. The engineer and fireman of the second engine jumped and saved their lives.

Both double headers carried a heavy train of cars and to make a grade it was necessary to have considerable headway in order to get over, and it is probable that the strain was too great on one of the couplings which parted with the above result.

The auxiliary train was soon at the scene of the wreck and traffic will be opened as soon as possible.

A large crowd from Peterborough and Lindsay went to view the scene of the catastrophe.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY BY CABLE AND LETTER

Special to The Times.

Advices received in Toronto from Scranton indicate that there is no special change in the strike situation in the last few days, but are still hopeful of an early conclusion of the trouble.

Eighty-five per cent. of the miners in this place voted against the strike in the first place, though out of loyalty to the union they went out when the strike was ordered. A large number of them are now only kept from returning to work by the fear of bodily injury and the "scab" cry, and some of these men are being helped through the idle time by their operators. Many of the miners and their families are in a very destitute condition. If any money has been subscribed for their assistance, the letter received in Toronto says very little of it has reached the rank and file of the miners.

The chief obstacles to the men returning to work are now the promises of substantial concessions held out by the labor leaders as to be secured from the operators. Well-informed opinion in Scranton does not, however, think that any substantial concessions will be made, though some minor points might be conceded to bring about a settlement. The anthracite companies are quite willing to negotiate with their own employes as a body but are determined not to yield to the United Mine Workers' Union, in which the bituminous miners are in a majority.

The shortage in hard coal and the consequent run of soft coal and coke has tied up the local dealers so that they are away behind in orders, and cannot get enough men and teams to keep up with the delivery.

Turin, Sept. 19.—At a conference here today with Signor Galimberti, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, William Marconi submitted plans for the erection of a wireless telegraph station to cost $14,000, for establishing connection for Italy with the British and American stations. The scheme will be submitted to Parliament. King Victor Emmanuel has bestowed the Cross of the Order of the Crown on Marconi.

Budapest, Sept. 20. The Pesth Naplo publishes an interview with Prof. Vambery on the alleged treaty between Russia and Thibet. He says the published account of such a treaty should be received with great reserve.

Branton, Sept. 22.—Further details of the tragedy which resulted in the death of Alonzo Rowe, farmer, and Miss Ernie Therrien, state Thomas Law, of the firm of Alexander & Law Bros., and Mr. Ed. Boisseau were shooting, and were bringing to town Miss Ernie Therrien, a stenographer in Adams' shoe store who had been visiting her parents south of Kemnay. Miss Therrien was driving the carriage across the farm, and Mr. Law and Mr. Boisseau were out looking for chickens. Rowe was stacking with his son and two hired men, and on seeing them, became excited and exclaimed : "I'll teach them to shoot on my farm." He jumped into his wagon and drove to the house, got his shot gun and drove toward the carriage. When Mr. Law saw him coming he called to Miss Therrien to pull off the road and allow the wagon to go by. She did so, and when Rowe was opposite the rig, he suddenly pulled up, and seizing his gun from the bottom of the wagon discharged it at close range at Miss Therrien in the buggy and at Mr. Law, who was just getting out at the further side. The charge struck Miss Therrien in the groin, and the range being so short the effect of the shot was terrible. Mr. Law was shot in the knee, but not very seriously. Rowe then left his victims and drove back to the house. He handed his team to the horrified hired man, telling him to put them away "I'll not use them again," he exclaimed, and, going into the house, at once took gopher poison, from the effects of which he expired in a few hours.

Mr. Law was able to be around yesterday, as his injuries are not serious.

Rowe was a former resident of London, Ont., and while there bore a good character but had the reputation of being a passionate man.

Tamaqua, Pa., Sept. 22—M. A. Corber, the superintendent of the Greenwood colliery, which resumed operations on Monday, made a statement to-night that goes to show that a large proportion of the miners are anxious to return to work. He said that during the day more than fifty men applied to him for work.

The greater part of the men came here from the upper region walking the entire distance, about fifty miles. They said that they were tired of "Johnny" Mitchell's rule and that they were anxious to go to work, but that they feared to do so in their own district because the vicious striking miners had threatened to kill every man who dares to go back to the mines. Mr Corber told them that he had enough men to run his plant as a washery, but that he expected to begin mining coal in a few days and that he would take them on then. Most of them are certified miners. The men are still in town.

Monday—Fair, not much change in temperature.

RENEWAL OF CHINESE BOXER RISING FEARED

There is Great Danger of Another Period of Blood and Carnage

THE COUNTY IS IN A DISTURBED CONDITION

Latest Advices Indicate That the Government are Not Able to Keep Order

London, Sept. 22.—Latest advices from the Provinces of China indicate that the country is in a state of rebellion. Missionaries are fleeing for safety to the cities, and the Boxers are everywhere on the move. That the country is on the verge of another Boxer uprising, which may equal that of 1900, is believed. The troubles appear to arise principally from extortionate taxation, combined with resentment against the missionaries, thus partially justifying the judgment of the Department of State which pointed out to the powers that the demand for excessive indemnities would result in serious internal troubles in China.

Serious anti-foreign riots are reported near Chentu, in the province of Sze-Chuan, in which a number of native Christians were massacred and chapels were destroyed. The American Ambassador appears to have acted with energy upon telegraphic communication from an American medical missionary at Chentu, not only addressing the Chinese foreign office by letter, but calling there in person to impress upon the officials the importance of an immediate and effective action, and finally succeeding in causing the removal of the local Chinese officials who had failed to repress the riots and preserve life and property.

Mr. Conger encloses with his report the communication that passed between himself, Dr. Canright and foreign office under date of June 10. From Chentu, Dr. Canright telegraphed : "Sze-Chuan repeating 1900. Chapel burned; ten Christians killed. Boxers multiplying four months, officials taxed." Mr. Conger immediately telegraphed Dr. Canright to demand adequate protection for missionaries and native Christians from the local officials. He also addressed a note to Prince Ching at the foreign office, stating that there were several American missionaries and many chapels and converts in Sze-Chuan, and that it was necessary that immediate provisions be taken to stamp out these troubles at their very inception. In his answer Prince Ching enclosed a copy of an Imperial edict.

Mr. Conger had again occasion to address the foreign office on July 30, informing them that Dr. Canright had again reported that robberies and massacres were occurring daily, and all were in great danger, and that he had demanded protection in vain. The Minister urged the foreign office to take more effective measures "in order to avoid the fearful responsibility of a further loss of life and property."

The foreign office replied that several edicts had been issued directing the viceroy to suppress the trouble. It had received a telegram from that official stating that the rebel Heiung-Ching-Ho, of Jen-Shou, has made his appearance suddenly at the head of a crowd and burned a chapel and some thirty odd houses early in that moon and also killed a Christian. They also committed other outrages, whereupon the viceroy despatched troops to the scene who killed also many people. The leader of the riot was also captured and orders were given to have him beheaded, and his head exposed.

The rebels at other points were also attacked by the government troops and routed. Three or four hundred of them were killed. The judge of the province reported that there was no need for missionaries to seek temporary refuge.

COMMAND FROM THE THRONE.

Pekin, Sept. 22.—The throne has strongly commanded the officials of Sze-Chuan to suppress the rebellion in that province. The Boxer attack on Cheng-Tu-Fu, capital of Sze-Chuan province, in which 50,000 Boxers made ineffectual attempts to take the city began Sept. 15. When the rebels endeavored to enter the city a conflict ensued. The attacking party were driven back and the gates of the city were closed and guarded by troops. Soldiers quelled the disorder within the city. Fourteen Boxer leaders and several other rebels were executed. A new viceroy and new military officials are now on their way to Cheng-Tu-Fu to assume charge there.

OUR GOOD OLD WORLD NEARING ITS END

Adventists are Sure that the World Will Soon See Its Last Days

BELIEF BASED ON SIGNS

Scriptural Interpretation Leads Sect to Prepare for Earth's Destruction

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 22.—The seventh Day Adventists again are stirring parts of the West by their prophecy that the end of the world is close at hand. Their beliefs are now being spread at Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, where many big meetings have been held in the last month. A two-week camp meeting has just came to an end in this city.

The membership of the sect is now about 75,000, principally in the West, although missionary work has been pushed for a score of years elsewhere. The centers of this propaganda now are this city and Battle Creek, Mich.

In 1874 Europe was invaded, and a great deal of Scandinavian and Norwegian emigration to this region came as a result of these missionary efforts. In 1885 a church was established in Australia. Publications in 37 different languages are now circulated, among them some of the dialects of the South Pacific.

The Adventists do not fix any definite date for the end of the world. They base their prediction upon the prophecy of Daniel, in which it was said that in 2,300 days the sanctuary would be cleansed. A day means a year, they say, and the 2,300 years ended in 1844, the year set by Miller for the end of the world.

The mistake of the Adventists of 1844 pertained to the nature of the event than to occur, and not the time they say. What took place then, they believe, was the beginning of the day of judgment. When that is over, the world will end.

The Adventists say the approach of the end of the world is indicated by the signs of the times, as pointed out in the Scriptures. The movement for universal arbitration, they say, is fulfillment of the prophecy of Micah that in the last days many people shall say, let the Lord judge and nations shall not war with each other.

Joel says that while they shall talk peace they shall prepare for war, and the Adventists point to the great standing armies and the war talk of the day as confirmation.

In the fifth chapter of James it is predicted that in the last days the rich will be heaping up treasures and poor crying because their hire is kept back. Every trust, they say, is a sign of the coming King, and every strike the posting of a notice that the end is near.

Matthew says the social world will be in the last days as in Noah's day, and innumerable crimes of the day are quoted as confirmation. Timothy tells of the sins of the religious world, and the Adventist preachers dwell upon the theatregoing, dancing, card playing and rich dressing of the church members as proof of this condition.

The Adventists all dress plainly, eschewing gold, jewels and rich attire, and are generally model citizens.

WEARY OF PROHIBITION

In the referendum campaign, which is now on, and which will culminate with the vote of December 14th, reference will hardly be made to Vermont as a prohibition state. It was such and for about fifty years, and so poorly have the people been satisfied with no liquor law, as they have it, that they practically repudiated it in the recent state election. True it was an indirect issue. The Republican party, in general convention, decided to refer the matter to the people, and its nominee stood pledged to see that done. Some Republicans, however, favoured a high license system, and they put a candidate in the field to champion that policy. The Democrats supported local option. The Prohibitionists had a candidate of their own. The vote stood as follows : For the regular Republican, 31,000 ; for the Independent Republican, 28,000 ; for the Democrat, 7,000 ; for the Prohibitionists, 2,500. So that the result of the impending referendum is a fore-gone conclusion. The law now in force will certainly be repealed and a high license law will probably take its place. The action of Vermont, at this time is very significant. It will surely have a detrimental effect on the referendum campaign in Ontario.

CHANGE IN THE KLONDIKE

The first Western gold-hunter was the man with shovel and pan, who sought only the loose gold in the beds of creeks, and obtained it by the rudest of processes and the simplest of appliances. He was a wanderer; when the surface store was gone in one place, he moved on in search of new placers. After him the real miner, the man who traced the gold back to its place of deposit in the veins of the rock; and for many years it has been the powerful quartz-crusher, and not the wandering, red-shirted placer-hunter, that has best typified the gold industry of the West.

The transformation which the West has seen is already drawing near to the Klondike. A representative of the Canadian Government who has lately visited Dawson reports that while the gold production in the Klondike was about $24,000,000 in 1901, it will not exceed $14,000,000 in 1902. No new discoveries of importance have been made in the last year, although the valleys and beds of streams for a long distance around have been searched; and in consequence business in Dawson is depressed, and its boom is apparently on the wane.

This means that the period of placer-mining has seen its brightest days in the Klondike. The next step will be that which the West has witnessed—the working of quartz deposits. This requires machinery and a larger capital than is at the disposal of the primitive gold-hunter. New surface deposits will of course be found, and the wealth of Alaska is not yet realized; but the age of machinery is already dawning in the region where, only five years ago, fortunes were waiting for the adventurer who took thither only his hands, his shovel and pan, and his stock of food. The change is interesting as showing how quickly, in this age, the conditions of a mining district are transformed.

LYNCHING DISCLOSURES

Some interesting details are published regarding the indictment of 25 white men in Attala county, Miss., for the lynching of two negroes. The crime occurred two months ago. The investigation showed that the only offence of which the negroes were accused was that of making an insulting remark about some white man, and it appeared that they were not guilty even of that. Yet they had been shot to death by a mob of more than 100 men.

Now that the authorities have taken hold of the case, they find it necessary to guard carefully all witnesses, lest these be killed or spirited away. Most of the witnesses are negroes—another circumstance of some importance.

It seems almost inconceivable that a whole community could reach such a state of mind that it would wish to lynch men for insulting somebody in word only. The most plausible explanation of the fact probably is that in this community the whites have never yet come to realize that it is a crime to kill a negro. They evidently still look on this kind of murder much as they did before the war, when the negro was still a chattel. The immunity from punishment which lynchers have enjoyed so so long in Mississippi is well calculated to develop this idea. That is why punishment in this case is of especial importance, though its effect probably will not get farther than to create an impression that it is an offense to lynch a negro without at least accusing him of having committed some serious crime.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A man who wants to work for a living has a hard time of it, even in this free and enlightened country. Strikers in Omaha beat to death a non-union man who was exercising his inalienable right to earn a livelihood. The millenium is yet a long ways off.

ple rehearsing came to her ears. "Miss Cotter, down right, quick as you can, here!" she heard the stage manager shout.

The blood rushed up to Winifred Gray's face, for Miss Cotter was her understudy—a pretty girl of no particular talent, recruited from "society." Winifred knew exactly what scene they were working at, and she hurried past the door, only anxious to meet no one.

She was fortunate in this, for everybody was on the stage, and she had only to face the doorkeeper in his little room.

"Off again, miss?" he remarked in his privileged way. "Hope you ain't ill? You're not looking quite yourself."

"A little headache," the girl answered, truthfully. "Good-bye, Hansey."

And then she hurried on, leaving him to suppose that she had been excused from rehearsing on account of indisposition. He and all the others, down to the supers and stage-hands, would know the real facts—or, at least, the facts as Mr. Anderson intended them to be represented—soon enough.

CHAPTER X.

Humiliation.

As Winifred left the theater she felt that her next thought must be to find another engagement as speedily as possible, for the need of money was too urgent to admit of an hour's delay in seeking for something to do. Her mother, who believed that she had gone to rehearsal, only starting a little earlier, would not expect her home again until four o'clock, for on days when there were rehearsals and no matinees Winifred lunched near the theater at two or half-past, when the long business of rehearsing was over.

Now it was not yet twelve o'clock, and she would have plenty of time for visiting agents before she need go home. If only she could bear of an engagement the story which must be told to Mrs. Gray would not be quite so hopeless.

In Winifred's present circumstances it was a hard ordeal to go and interview dramatic agents. By this time her name and her face were very well known in London. She had made an immense "hit," for which she had her charming personality and her extreme girlishness to thank, even more than her talent, perhaps, and earlier in the season she would have had no difficulty in obtaining a "shop"—as theatrical slang has it. Many managers would have been only too glad to have such an addition to their companies, for Winifred had proved an actual attraction in herself at the Duke of Clarence's. But now almost everything worth taking would be gone, and there was scarcely a chance that she would have luck. Besides, she must not forget that she had made a powerful enemy.

However, Winifred had a great deal of moral courage, and, thinking of her mother, she screwed it to the sticking place, only hoping that she might not be childish enough to blush and look self-conscious when she was questioned as to why she had so suddenly left Mr. Anderson.

She had had two years of provincial experience, but she had begun in a school directed by an actor who took his most promising pupils out on tour, therefore she had never had to do with agents. She knew, nevertheless, where they were to be sought, and, turning into a street off the Strand, she soon found the name of the man most believed in by the profession.

There were superficially jaunty, anxious-eyed young men going up and down the staircase that led to the office, and there were preternaturally yellow-haired young women, who stared at Winifred as she passed with eager jealousy, wondering if the luck which had failed them was for her. Some of them recognized her face, and these were more jealous and eager than the others, though one and all painfully pretended indifference.

Mr. FitzJohn Doulton had an outer and inner office, and favored indeed were the applicants who ever reached the latter.

Everyone knew that there was a private exit from this sanctum sanctorum, and that Mr. Doulton had a way of disappearing while the outer room was crowded by those who had waited for hours in the hope of seeing him. This was the reason why so many men and maidens haunted the stairs, that—while appearing just to have come, or just to be going, stopping for a chat with an old friend, perhaps—they might be ready to dart upon their prey before he could manage to escape.

Winifred did not know these secrets of the prison-house, however, and she walked with shy slowness into the outside office, the dreaded blush coming as a broadside of stares was directed upon her.

The room was packed with actors and actresses who were "resting" and yearned to rest no more; and the walls were covered with photographs of other actors and actresses who hoped, no doubt, that their faces or figures might strike visiting managers as suitable to their requirements. Almost all the portraits were autographed, and it was a tribute to Mr. FitzJohn Doulton's benevolent talent that so many professional people were "his gratefully" and his with the "kindest remembrances."

The occupants of this room were not of the theatrical haut monde, with which Winifred had been associated since joining Mr. Anderson's company. They were more of the sort she had known on tour, but there were no familiar faces, and she was thankful for that, as she was in no mood for greetings or questionings from acquaintances.

At intervals a youth threw open the door which led to Mr. Doulton's inner office, calling a name; and then, with an air of importance which might almost have been a lever to move the world, a man or woman rose, moved across the room, followed by envious eyes, and was shut out of sight into the place where all fain would be.

Winifred thought it very likely that, if she chose to say "I am Miss Gray, from the Duke of Clarence's," the golden sceptre would be held forth to her without the tedious necessity of waiting for her turn; but she would not do this. It was not fair that she should be preferred before people who had waited for hours, perhaps. So she sat outwardly quiet, raging within, as she mentally reviewed her scene with George Anderson, until at last the self-sufficient youth announced that Mr. Doulton had been called away on busi-

"The Probable Time, the Bull Cliques will Select, for Disposing of Their Stocks."

A concise and thoughtful letter, in which matters are so logically and reasonably discussed, as make it possible to form pertinent opinion as to comparatively a definite time, which the present manipulators will probably select, in which to unload their enormous holdings of stocks, held speculatively by them.

STOCK MARKETS

Judicious Market Handling

New York, Sept. 20th, 1902. — The methods of the people controlling present speculations have been most masterly, the curbing of runaway speculation during the close money period, and the quiet absorption of stocks held by weak holders, was just the proper manoeuvre. Relaxation and a quieting of the market this week tended to sooth and not aggravate the money situation. As matters are becoming easier, the market is again commencing to harden. Indications point most strongly to a much better range of values very shortly. The market is evidently under the management of adroit and master minds. For many months we have in these letters been calling your attention to the revolution that has been going on in the great south-west, and plainly and frequently stated that plans were on foot for a merger in some kind of manner for the Gould properties, creating as it were a Greater Missouri Pacific system. We have for over a year been firm in the belief that this was the inevitable outcome of the situation in that territory; and have so frequently declared, always advising the purchasing and holding of this group of stocks. Those who have followed the advice now have magnificent profits to their credit, and most certain likelihood of seeing them still further. Increased facts are slowly coming out now which indicate the correctness of the views expressed by us all along. It may be called the Greater Missouri Pacific System, the South-Western Securities Co., or the Trans-Continental Securities Co. The result will be the same; no matter what the name. It now looks as if these plans are greater in scope than heretofore suspected. It now looks as if it would be a Gould-Rockfeller system, extending through from ocean to ocean, with numberless arms and feeders in various directions. The R. I. folks appear to figure in the affair. This probably is to some extent accountable for the remarkable strength of the stock. It will all unfold shortly, probably in favor of the company. Mo. Pacific plans will undoubtedly be hastened by the handing down of a favorable decision in this matter. Several other plans and mergers are also awaiting the same matter. Their announcement and carrying to completion will have a tendency to stimulate the market greatly.

SUMMARY.

The market boomed again to-day, under leadership of St. Paul, which advanced to 193-4. The rest of list followed in the wake of the leader. In the last half hour a sharp reaction took place, due to heavy realizing sales. They were increased on account of it being the last day of the week. Speculative interests were active, greatly increased, and the outlook remains good. We still advise the purchase of stocks on each and every concession. Those who will hold on to stocks will make the best profits. Money closed at 5 per cent. total sales 450,000.

The Oro Grande Mine

Wickenburg, Ariz., Arizona's Great Gold Mine

Over 800,000 tons of ore blocked out. Conservative mining men place value of ore in sight at $8,000,000.00. For the purpose of equipping the mine with a large plant, a block of stock is offered at par value, $10.00 per share. Stock is non-assessable.

Before offering a share of stock to the public, the incorporators of this Company spent over $150,000 in extensive development work, and now have in sight over 800,000 tons of high grade free milling ore, which represents a value of more than three times the capital stock of the Company, and will at a conservative estimate return a net profit to the shareholders of about $4,000,000.

Particular attention is drawn to the fact that moneys subscribed for stock are applied entirely to the work of developing and equipping the mine and that no commissions have to be paid to brokers, fiscal agents, etc.

Fullest investigation invited, both as to the company and the property, which has been termed "The Great Arizona Gold Mine," because of its exceptional richness and extent.

References: W. H. Defty, M.E., Phoenix, Ariz.; T. C. Archer, M.E., Prescott, Ariz.; also mining men and business men in general throughout the territory.

Subscriptions should be sent in at once, as only enough stock will be sold to pay for equipment. Address, Oro Grande Mines Co., 1034 Park Row Bldg., New York.

A Letter From Mr. Culverwell Regarding Two New Concerns

The following letter addressed to Mayor Deane has been sent us for publication:

Toronto, Sept. 19, 1902.

His Worship, Mayor Deane, Peterborough, Ont.

My Dear Sir,—With reference to the gentleman I brought to Peterborough several weeks ago—a Toronto manufacturer—I wish to say that on account of the press of business during Exhibition time, he has been unable to return to Peterborough to again interview your Manufacturers Committee, in regard to the inducements the Corporation will hold out to him. He has intimated to me that if the Corporation will grant him a free site suitable to him and exemption of taxes, he will no doubt remove his factory to Peterborough, and carry on his granite works there. His firm's intention is also to go into the marble cutting business, the Canadian field being practically open at present. Most of this class of work in the public buildings of this country has been done by American firms. As he stated to your Chairman, his idea is to employ fifty skilled hands.

I have made arrangements with him to return to Peterborough to conclude this matter the end of next week, and I will intimate to you again what day he can arrive.

I also wish to state that I am at present negotiating with a linen manufacturer from Ireland who is at present in the country, and who had almost completed arrangements to establish a mill in another city, to establish works in Peterborough under certain conditions, which will be explained to your committee in the course of the next ten days. This being a new industry for this country, no doubt in time its operations will become very large, and it behooves us in Peterborough to lend every effort to ensure the works being located here.

Right here I wish to say that it is my intention to devote a great deal of my time this fall and winter as I have been doing of late, to advertise Peterborough's advantages to the manufacturers of Canada and the States, and use every endeavor to induce them to settle in Peterborough. Of course I realize that in doing so I am benefitting my own interests very largely, but I think it in order to also state that every manufacturer that should locate in Peterborough will enhance the value of Peterborough property in general as well as its business interests, and I sincerely trust that I shall have the co-operation not only of yourself, whom I know has put forth great efforts to benefit Peterborough in this manner, but also the co-operation of the business men of Peterborough in general. I have the honor to be, yours faithfully,

(Signed) J. ALEX. CULVERWELL.

A CAT'S INTELLIGENCE

Dumb Animals Can Scent Danger

A cat will refuse to drink coffee but will drink and thrive on Postum Food Coffee.

Mrs. Alice Gould, of Maywold, Ill., says, "Coffee drinking made me very much run down, thin and nervous and I thought I should have to give up my work.

I was induced to try Postum by a friend who suffered four years from severe sick headaches lasting for several days at a time who said that since using Postum Coffee she had been entirely free from an attack I found that by making Postum according to directions it was equal to coffee in flavor.

It is now six months since I began drinking Postum and I have gained 18 pounds in weight. It has built me up and I feel like a new person

We all drink it now, even to the cat, who is the pet of the family and it is funny to see him drink his bowl of Postum Food Coffee every morning. We often try to get him to drink coffee but he has the good sense to refuse it."

BLANCH ROYAL'S CONDITION

The Girl in a Bad Condition at Nicholl's Hospital

Blanch Royal, the girl from Lindsay, who was charged at the Police Court a few days ago with attempted suicide, and who was found on Friday night, lying at the Grand Trunk station in a swoon, is in rather a bad state at Nicholls Hospital. Her condition is quite serious. Last night her pulse was high as well as her temperature, and she took no nourishment whatever, being still in a deep stupor.

The prisoner will appear at the Police Court this morning.

Mr. Hubbs and family had driven out into the country in the morning, and there was no one at home when the fire broke out. It is supposed that the fire originated through an ash barrel. Loss about $100, partly covered by insurance.

Sparrow Housekeeping.

Have you ever watched a pair of sparrows when first the house-hunting and building mania comes upon them? How stupendously busy they are, especially the cock, and what a tremendous lot he has to say! As a matter of fact, his missus does all the real work, and he supplies all the theory, which she consistently disregards.

Not that Mrs. Sparrow works impetuously, as though time permitted of no deliberation. On the contrary, she uses the greatest deliberation in the performance of every action, however trivial. Watch her when she is considering the eligibility of, let us say, a bit of string which she has found in the garden path, as material to be used in the building of a nest over which she is busy. First she will sit upon a gooseberry twig a yard or two away and inspect that morsel of string from the south-east.

Then she will flit over to the apple tree close by and study it from the north-west. Then she will examine it from other points of the compass. At last she will hop up to it and pull it about—apparently accepting it, but rejecting it again, still uncertain as to its suitability for some purpose exactly defined in her foolish little mind. At last she will decide to use it, and, seizing it, she will fly up to her nest with the treasure; but, vacillating once again, she drops it at the very threshold, and sits upon the roof a little while, eying it and chattering, explaining to her lord, perhaps, that it would have done well enough if it had been longer or shorter, or thicker or thinner, or heaven knows what. Finally she will flit down and carry it away to use, and behold! to-morrow she has turned it out once more, and it lies upon the garden path a rejected thing. Not for long, however, for either she herself or some other bird has removed it next time one looks for the much considered scrap.

That conceited and self-assertive little person, her lord and master, is far less deliberate in his actions. He is more certain of himself, being convinced that he knows everything, and that to consider and weigh and deliberate is a waste of time.

He is anxious to help with the nest-making, and holds forth without ceasing while his lady builds. Occasionally he lends a hand. He catches sight of a straw, it may be, or a small piece of stick, and it occurs to him that here is the very thing his foolish wife has sought for days and failed to find. What does not occur to him is that he is a garrulous old incompetent, and knows no more about nest-building than he does about the laying of eggs. His wife knows all about him, however, and the straw is turned out of the nest again as soon as his back is turned. He has probably placed it in some impossible position, and—after explaining what a marvelous fellow he is, and what a treasure he has brought up in the way of building material—departed, forgetting all about the matter in a moment or two. Even when he sees that straw lying upon the garden path, so conceited is he that he does not recognize it, because he cannot contemplate the possibility of its rejection by the missus. He thinks he has found another treasure. "There," says he, dumping it down by her side as she sits resting, perhaps laying a little egg, in the semi-completed nest; "there's another splendid straw; how is it you don't come across them? I can find them whenever I like!"—"Longman's Magazine."

Telephone Etiquette.

Just and authoritative rules are needed that will fit the caller and the called. Says "Electrician:" Mr. Smith, a busy man of business, summons his office boy, and says, "Please get Mr. Jones on the wire." The boy does as directed. It happens that neither man has attained the luxury of a desk set. Accordingly, when Jones is informed by his boy that Mr. Smith wants to talk to him over the telephone he lays aside what he is doing and walks to the instrument. There he hears the familiar "Hold the wire a minute, please," and waits patiently, or perhaps impatiently, until Smith is notified that Mr. Jones is "on the wire," and goes to the telephone in his turn. Jones has wasted some minutes of his valuable time. Smith, on the other hand, has lost no time. He could have saved Jones the waiting by directing his boy to call up Jones' office and ascertain if he were in. Receiving an affirmative answer, he could then have stepped to the telephone and called for Jones, waiting himself until Jones responded. But in that case Smith would have waited, and Smith doesn't care to stand around any more than Jones does. Little vexations, like great problems, depend so much on the point of view. What we need is a system of rules that shall be equally respected by Smith and Jones, whether either be the seeker or the sought.

The "Hen Deceiver."

A friend of mine, says "Pick-Me-Up," has invented what he calls a "hen deceiver," for the purpose of promoting industry amongst the ladies of the farmyard. The apparatus is simple, and consists of a box for a nest, with a trapdoor for the bottom, so that when the hen lays an egg it drops through into a receiver underneath, the door closing automatically. When the hen gets up to look for the egg—it has gone, and she thinks she has made a mistake, and lays another. A hen has been known in this way to lay fifteen eggs at a sitting.

"FRUIT OF THE LOOM."

Men and women of taste and judgment go into ecstacies over the wonderful patterns, textures and colors which are "the fruit of the loom." But there is one fruit of the loom they rarely consider, and that is the frail and faded woman, old before her time, because necessity compels her to work under conditions, which send her more favored sister to bed and the doctor's care.

The diseases which weaken and torment women, may in almost all cases be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 8?? East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pain, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

Impose a Duty which will Seriously Affect Pulp Industry--How Ontario Could Return It

Embargo on Nickel Would at Once Bring the Yankees to Their Senses—What These Interested Say

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 21 — The despatch which was received from Ottawa this morning stating that the United States Government has decided to add 25 cents a ton duty on ground wood pulp, and 35 cents a ton on unbleached sulphite and soda pulp, has caused some consternation among those who are interested in the export of wood pulp. The United States Government appears to have at length construed the Ontario and Quebec pulp laws to be export duties, in spite of the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, which held that they were not, as the power to impose an export duty remains alone with the Dominion of Canada. The action of the United States is simply an enforcement of the Dingley Bill, respecting the import of pulp into the United States, and the American clause which permits the present duty to be raised is as follows:

"Mechanically ground wood pulpp one-twelfth of one per cent., dry weight; chemical wood pulp, unbleached, one-sixth of one per cent. per pound, dry weight, bleached, one-fourth of one per cent., dry weight. Provided that if any country or dependency shall impose an export duty on pulp wood exported to the United States, the amount of such export duty shall be added, as an additional duty, to the duties herein imposed upon wood pulp, when imported from such country or dependency."

ONTARIO ORDER-IN-COUNCIL.

The following is the important portion of the Ontario order-in-Council approved of 10th January, 1900, and which the American Government has now declared to be an export duty.

"Every license or permit conferring authority to cut spruce or other soft wood, trees or timber, not being pine, suitable for manufacturing pulp or paper, on the ungranted lands of the Crown, or to cut such timber reserved to the Crown on lands leased or otherwise disposed of by the Crown, which shall be issued on or after the 30th day of April, 1900, shall contain and be subject to the condition that all such timber cut under the authority or permission of such license or permit shall, except as hereinafter provided, be manufactured in Canada, that is to say, into merchantable pulp or paper, or into sawn lumber, woodenware, utensils, or other articles of commerce or merchandise as distinguished from the said spruce or other timber in its raw, or unmanufactured state; and such condition shall be kept and observed by the holder or holders of any such license or permit who shall cut or cause to be cut spruce or other soft wood, trees or timber, not being pine, suitable for manufacturing pulp or paper into cordwood or other lengths is not manufacturing the same within the meaning of this regulation."

DUTY IN QUEBEC.

In the Province of Quebec there is a stumpage duty of 60 cents a cord on pulp wood, but this is reduced to 40 cents when the pulp wood is manufactured in Canada.

It is, of course, the laws of Ontario and Quebec which the United States Government has taken exception to. In Ontario the American companies can no longer cut timber on Crown lands, and they are compelled to buy from the individual settler whose supply is often very limited, and in Quebec the Canadian manufacturer has 20c a cord to his advantage on the raw material, without the cost of transportation being taken into account. The United States Government appear to contemplate that the imposition of this duty will shut down many of the mills in Canada, particularly those which sell practically their whole output to the American market, and in this way believe that the Canadian pulp manufacturer will prefer to allow the American to cut in Canada. On the other hand, a number of exporters are of the opinion that the Dominion Government has the question in its own hands, as it has the right to impose an export duty on the raw material leaving this country. That is to say, if the Dominion Government imposed a duty of so much a cord upon the pulp wood which is exported out of Canada from Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and off the settlers' lands, and which amounted to over $1,300,000 last year, this export duty would naturally cripple many of the American mills, which pick up considerable wood in this country, and others who own timber limits in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

EMBARGO ON NICKEL.

A gentleman who was interested in the question, said: "Let the Ontario Government put an embargo on nickel and the factories of New Jersey will soon have something to say upon the question." He considered that the only way to obtain justice from the United States was to put up a fight.

The import on Canadian wood pulp into the United States increasing and naturally the owners of pulp mills in the United States are considerably alarmed, and desire to prevent this intrusion as much as possible.

For the seven months ending July 31, 1902, the imports of Canadian pulp into the United States were valued at $829,218, being an increase of over $290,000 over the corresponding period of the previous year.

CANADIAN FIRMS.

The Canadian firms who are exporting to the United States are the Riordan Pulp & Paper Company, of Hawkesbury, Ont., the Laurentide Pulp & Paper Co., of Grand Mere, Que., the Eddy Company, of Hull, Que., and the Sault Ste Marie Pulp & Paper Company, of the Canadian Sault. The latter company, of which Mr. Clergue is the President, and which operates a mechanical and sulphite mill at the Sault, contemplates erecting a massive paper mill in the American Sault, in which the pulp made in Canada would be manufactured in the United States. This new regulation will have some effect upon Mr. Clergue's American mill, as he was erecting it in the States in order to get a place in the American market, and this new duty on his raw material will severely handicap the price at which he can sell his paper in the American market. The Laurentide mill, at the Grand Mere, Que., is owned by the Algers, of Chicago, and they have been doing a heavy American business which must necessarily be affected.

Mr. T. A. Weldon, the manager of the local office of the E. B. Eddy Co., stated that he believed his company were confining their attention more and more to the manufacture of paper, and that they had a very large market in the Old Country, and in Europe. He believed that Canada could hold her own upon the question of pulpwood, for the reason that we have the wood, and the Americans have not enough for their own use.

Mr. J. R. Barber said that he had no doubt but that the duty would affect the Canadian pulp exporter. He knew the Riordan Company were exporting over 80 per cent. of their pulp to the United States, and that Mr. Riordan was in favor of the Dominion Government imposing an export duty of $4 on pulpwood leaving Canada for the United States. For himself, he believed that $1 was enough, as he thought that no Government could live that would impose a high duty, and it would directly affect a large number of the small French farmers who sold their wood to the agents of a number of American firms. Mr. Barber said that regulations like the present one might make the matter crucial, but that he thought it would be the means of bringing about a settlement sooner than otherwise.

ARE EMBARRASSED BY THEIR RICHES

G. R. R. Cockburn of Toronto Says Magnitude of Wheat Crop Staggers Farmers

Labor Question Momentous Issue in West—through Six Hundred Miles of Wheat

Toronto, Sept. 22—G. R. R. Cockburn, the Toronto financier, who has been making a tour of the province of Manitoba during the past two weeks returned to Winnipeg yesterday, and leaves for the east again today. after having driven about 600 miles through the wheat fields. He is enthusiastic over the promise of the western country.

"I saw nothing but wheat fields," said he to a reporter for The Telegram last evening. "Wheat was everywhere. Its' a grand country. This is the first time I ever had an opportunity to come so closely into contact with the farmers of Manitoba., and never before was I so impressed with the immense possibilities of the west as a wealth producer. What it will be in ten years from now the most imaginative mind can not foretell.

"Your most serious problem is the labor question," he continued. "Just now your farmers are poor with the embarrassment of riches. They have the wheat there, bushels on bushels of it, but they cannot get it in shape to be turned into money. They need laborers and in many places it is impossible to get thee necessary help. In no place that I was in was there a sufficiency of labor, and in many localities there is a positive dearth of working men. The farmers have the wheat there. Its as good as gold. but first it must be threshed and that cannot be done because of the lack of men to do it.

"The labor question of the west is the big problem to be solved. With that accomplished trouble would cease."

OIL AS FUEL

Result of the Experiments on the Steamer Mariposa

Washington, Sept. 22.—The Navy Department has made public the report of Lieut. Ward Winchell, U.S. N., the expert detailed by the Department to investigte and report upon the efficiency and installation of the oil fuel system as fitted to the Oceanic Steamship Company's steamer Mariposa. The report contains information of great vaule to the shipping and naval world.

The gross displacement of the Mariposa is 3,160 tons. The average horse power developed was about 2,481. The average distance made each day by the ship was 264 knots, giving a mean speed of 13.53 knots an hour. There were consumed each day about 270 barrels of oil, which gave an average consumption of 3,720 pounds per hour. It practically required 1 1-2 pounds of oil per hour to secure a horse power, and, while this result has been secured on shore in highly efficient engines, the consumption is practically 50 per cent. less in weight of combustible than would be required of coal. The ship required 282 hours to make the voyage from San Francisco to Tahiti, while only 280 hours was required to make the return trip.

FOR SAVING LABOR.

By the use of oil as fuel the complement of the ship was reduced from 91 to 55, thus decreasing the force in the engine room form 36 to 20 men. The crude oil wa satomized by means of an air compressor, which hada capacity of a thousand cubic feet of air per minute compressed to 30 pounds. The Mariposa has 18 furnaces in her boilers, only 12 of which were used. Two burners were installed in each furnace, although all the burners were not in use except at short intervals when the engines were run at full power.

The engineer experts at the Navy Department are most interested in the fact that careful inspection does not show any effect of the flame on any part of the boilers. Upon reaching Tahiti, after the run, the tubes were swept by scrapers, and all the refuse collected barely filled two ash buckets and some of this came from the coal which had been used on one of the preliminary trials.

The speed secured on the return trip was much higher than that attained on the trip to Tahiti, due to the fact that the firemen became better accustomed to manipulating the burners. The company had taken the precaution to arrange the burners so that steam could be used as the atomizing agent in case the compressor became impaired. On one or two instances during the voyage the compressor did need overhauling and the oil was sprayed by steam while these repairs were being made.

In discussing the class of men that should be employed in the fireroom, Lieut. Winchell says the work requires neither physical endurance nor previous training with coal fires. The men placed in charge of the contrivance, however, should have mechanical aptitude and possess readiness or resource and nerve.

TO FIGHT FOR PROHIBITION

The Temperance People Arming for the Referendum

The campaign has been opened in many places by the temperance people, and the work of organization is progressing. In Cobourg a meeting took place and an association was formed to be known as the "West Northumberland Prohibition Association" In Peterborough we understand similar action is to be taken in a few days.

The license holders are not worrying for they feel that with the experience of the Scott Act so vivid in the minds of the people, they will scarcely be willing to create a worse condition of matters that existed at that time.

Since the above was written The Times has been requested to state that a union meeting of all the temperance societies in town will be held this evening in the Forrester's Hall, over Dutton's store, George street, to take action in regard to the referendum.

"For ten years I suffered from nervousness and neuralgia, and have used medicines of all kinds without finding relief. Your Paine's Celery Compound was recommended to me, and after using seven bottles I find myself well and strong, and can rest and sleep with ease and comfort. I believ eit to be the best medicine in the world, and I always recommend it with pleasure."

THE YUKON MURDER VERY COLD-BLOODED

The Alleged Criminals Acting as Guides

Information Received by Mounted Police Department Says the Pair Have Partially Admitted Guilt

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—The story of the murder of Bouthillette, Beaudin and Constantin in the Yukon and the arrest of Labelle and Fournier, charged with committing the crime, is one of the most coldblooded deeds ever recorded in this country.

Fournier and Labelle under assumed names started out to convey these men to Dawson from White Horse and they are now charged with murdering them on the way for their money. The bodies of two of the men with ropes on their wrists to which stones had been tied have been found, but the body of Constantin has not yet been discovered. Labelle has accused Fournier of the crime and Fournier accuses Labelle. Both seem to be implicated, although Fournier was evidently the leader.

The Mounted Police department here has got a telegram stating that the preliminary trial will not take place for a few days. The arrival of Mr. Leonard, M.P., who is a brother-in-law of Labelle and who is going to defend the prisoner, is being waited for by the authorities. The department says that Fournier and Labelle have partially admitted their guilt.

Peter Fournier and Edward Labelle are under arrest at Dawson for the murder of Leon Bouthillette, Guy Joseph Beaudin and Alphonse Constantin, in the Yukon, early last summer. Fournier was arrested in Dawson and Labelle was brought from Nevada. Labelle admitted to the authorities that Fournier committed the murder and now Fournier says that it was Labelle who committed the crime. Labelle is a brother-in-law of Mr. Leonard, M.P., who is on his way to Dawson to defend Labelle. The latter belongs to a very good family in Quebec. The Mounted Police worked up the case.

In his confession Labelle is reported to have said that Fournier was a tough man who had not only murdered the three mentioned, but also a Swede near Seattle, whom he robbed of $200. "I was not near Fournier," Labelle is reported to have said, "at the time of the killing of Bouthillette, Beaudin and Constantin. Beyond hearing the shots fired and Fournier telling me that he killed our three companions, I was not in the affair at all. The morning after we camped on the island Fournier took me to one side and asked me to take my gun and get some meat for dinner. I was not gone long when I heard four shots in quick succession. I returned to camp an hour after badly frightened and covered Fournier with my rifle. He approached me nervously and said that he could pay me back my money. This was an admission of the crime, because he was penniless when we started. I took the $5 from him that he borrowed from me and that is the only part of my actions that I really regret so much."

Labelle says that he continued the trip with Fournier but left him as soon as he could for the United States.

Fournier has now charged Labelle with doing the shooting in each case. Labelle left Canada under an assumed name. Although the evidence against the prisoners is of a circumstantial character it is of an incriminating character.

THE C. P. R. FAVORS 20-KNOT SERVICE

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy Interviewed at St. John N. B.

A FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE

The Great Railway Will Submit Tender and Will Probably Secure the Contract

St. John, N. B., Sept. 22.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president and managing director of the C.P.R., is in the city en route to Sydney and Newfoundland.

Sir Thomas was interviewed last evening regarding the fast steamship service between Canada and Great Britain, and said he the C.P.R. had submitted a tender for the service. The company has offered to supply weekly passenger and mail steamers with a minimum speed of 20 knots. He was in favor of a 20 knot service because he felt that the country could not afford nor was willing to pay for a faster line of ships.

He thought that those persons who were demanding a higher rate of speed were only injuring the prospects of an improved mail service by making demands which were not warranted by the present and immediate future condition of this country. Sir Thomas favored one of the St. Lawrence ports being the summer and Halifax the winter terminus.

If the C.P.R. is successful in obtaining the contract for the mail service it would immediately establish a heavy freight service of 10 or 12 large steamers with a speed of 12 to 13 knots. These would go to Montreal or Quebec in summer and St. John in winter. The steamers would be fitted up with all modern improvements and facilities ofr the handling of freight and its transhipment.

Speaking of the improvements at St. John, the railway magnate said: "Our company spent more than $100,000 in St. John last fall and spring and were prepared to spend more in assisting to build up the trade of this port."

The money obtained from the increased capitalization of $20,000,000, Sir Thomas said, would be expended on the general improvement of the roadbed, such as the reduction of grades, straightening curves etc., and increasing the rolling stock. A great deal of rolling stock has been manufactured and purchased during the past year. This had been necessary owing to the immense growth of the general business of the company. It was not only the grain transportation which made heavy demands on their facilities, but the general traffic business. This year the grain movement until the present time had been very light being only about one-fifth what it was at this period last year. He had no fear, but that all the grain would be handled expeditiously and got to market in good time.

Sir Thomas leaves to-day for Newfoundland, where he is interested with Mr. RReid in many of the latter's enterprises.

THE CEREAL COMPANY'S DAM

Satisfactory Progress Being Made on the Work—The Old Dam

Satisfactory progress is being made on the new dam which is being built for the American Cereal Company, just below Dickson's old dam. When the new structure is completed, the old dam, which is a landmark, will be removed entirely.

Contractor O'Toole is most anxious to get the concrete work completed before the cold weather sets in, and hence is rushing operations as rapidly as possible. The gigantic coffer dam has been completed, and the water pumped out of the large enclosure, so that excavating is progressing rapidly. The bed of the river, shut in by the coffer dam, is exposed and dry, and presents a curious appearance, being many feet deep with timber of various kinds.

Mr. Bouchier, the engineer in charge, is being congratulated on the progress being made.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

It was with much interest the crowd listened to the addresses of Staff-Capt. Page, of Toronto, on Sunday, not only in the barracks but also in the open-air meetings. She seemed to have the power to attract her hearers, perhaps it was her message, for it is always attractive, but there was also much interest in the messenger; slight of figure and of medium height, dressed in perfect Salvation uniform her face looked young, in spite of her poke bonnet and eyeglasses. Her delivery was lucid, never hesitating for one moment, or allowing the interest of the hearer to flag. Her abilities are literary, which might be inherited, her father's books being well known. Mr. Dumble, Q.C., took the chair at 3 p.m. and introduced the little lady who spoke at some length. Her descriptions of the poor in England, the people of Japan, and the soldier of the African battle field, were realistic, and we were delighted with the position of the Army in relation to them all. The Staff-Capt. took away a photo of the S. A. Brass Band and intends writing it up in the near future for the War Cry.

Weddings seem to flourish again. Great preparations are on hand for the hallelujah one on the 23rd inst. How they do it in the army is curious. They say the barracks is beautifully decorated for the event, and tables are being set for two hundred. Staff-Capt. Wilfrid Creighton, of Toronto, will unite the happy couple, while the army colors float over them they will declare their fidelity to God, the war and each other.

THE DOMINION SUIT BY MANITOBA

Claims are Made by the Province of Manitoba for Large Sums

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 21.—The government of Manitoba has entered two suits in the Exchequer Court here against the Dominion Government. One is to recover $150,000, said to be due the province by the Dominion when the latter held under its jurisdiction the administration of the swamp lands of the province, and the other is to replace to the credit of of the provincial authorities $133,406 which was written off by the Ottawa Government in 1885.

In 1885 Sir John Macdonald was in power at Ottawa and the Honorable John Norquay was premier of Manitoba. A delegation came here from Winnipeg asking for better terms for Manitoba. It was hinted at that time in the West that if better treatment was not accorded the province it would be to the interests of the latter to get out of confederation. The provincial legislature instructed the delegation appointed to interview the Dominion Government to insist upon certain things, including the adjustment of the capital account decennially, the right of the province to charter railways leading to the south and a variety of other matters. What was received fell far short of what the Norquay Government demanded and before they were obtained the local government had to give a quit claim up to 1885 for all claims it had against the Canadian Government up to that year. Notwithstanding this agreement, the province now thinks that it can recover the sum of $110,986 which was then at the credit of the provincial capital account and which was written off. Interest to July, 1901, makes the amount of the suit $133,406.

It will be remembered that the year 1885 was a remarkable one in the history of the province. That was the year of the rebellion. There is no doubt but that trouble was the outcome of the mismanagement of Western affairs by the Ottawa authorities. As a matter of fact, the commission that was appointed after the rebellion to look into the claims and grievances of the settlers awarded more than was expected and recommended more than was asked for in the first instance in the bill of grievances. It was early in that year that the leading newspaper of the West described the people leaving the country with a curse. These and other matters will probably be recalled when the suit is being heard. It is somewhat difficult to see how the province can repudiate the agreement which it then entered into, no matter

SLOW COMPENSATION FOR THE WAR LOSSES

Johannesburg Correspondent of the Times Alleges Dissatisfaction

Ten Thousand Claims Disposed of—But as There Are in All 45,000 Registered—Many Feel That They are Neglected

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 22.—The Johannesburg correspondent of The Times says that dissatisfaction is expressed in various parts of the country with the tardiness in awarding compensation for war losses. The compensation commissions appointed to settle claims for damages done by British troops have only paid a certain number of commandeering notes. Out of forty-five thousand claims registered but ten thousand are disposed of. The commissions are continually liable to change of personnel, and repeated inconsistency in judgments is alleged. Both the civil and military authorities are anxious that military commissions be abolished, and that the whole work of compensation be handed over to the civil Government. The delay in doing this is caused by the indecision of the home Government. This is one case where friction could be obviated by allowing free hands to the Colonial Government.

A DENIAL FROM CHAMBERLAIN.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 22—The Times states that the attention of Mr. Chamberlain has been called to the statement by Mr. Pitt Lewis, ex-Liberal Unionist member of Parliament, that the Liberal Unionists at the formation of the party in 1886 gave a pledge that they would never accept office as a party, hence their action in 1895 was a gross breach of faith and honor. Mr. Chamberlain denies that such a pledge was ever made by responsible Liberal-Unionists. He adds that unless he is much mistaken Mr. Pitt Lewis was himself at one time willing to accept office ina Unionist Administration.

PERMISSION FOR KKRUGER'S RETURN.

Special to The Times.

Vienna, Sept 22—The Newa Weiner Tagblatt says the Boer generals desire to secure permission from the British Government for Mr. Kruger's return to South Africa. The generals declare that the ex-President wishes sincerely to accommodate himself to the existing situation.

ARROGANT PUBLIC SERVANTS.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 22.—A despatch to The Times from Melbourne says that in his election speech on Saturday the Premier appealed for support for the Government, in order to enable it to retrench. He spoke strongly about the arrogance to public servants who asked the electors to prevent the Government from governingthe country.

HEAVY MORTALITY FROM CHOLERA.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY BY CABLE AND LETTER

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 22—Within a week Lady Henry Somerset who was the intimate personal friend of the late Frances E. Willard, and represents in England what Miss Willard represented in America, will sail for New York on a visit of several weeks in the United States and Canada.

It is not known to what extent Lady Henry Somerset will engage in the work of the W.C.T.U. in America, though it is believed she cannot avoid giving a few lectures. She is in receipt of many social invitations and will be entertained in both countries.

A man went into the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Skagway, Alaska, on Tuesday afternoon armed with a revolver and a stick of dynamite, and demanded $20,000, threatening to blow all into eternity.

The cashier, C. R. W. Pooley, and the teller, James Wallace, both Canadians, Wallace being a Torontonian, were the only two men in the bank. The despatch says that Wallace ducked to get his revolver, and ran quickly to the back of the room, calling for Pooley to do the same.

"No you don't, "yelled the man, and dropped a bomb.

The clerks had just got out of the window. The bank was wrecked. The robber's head was smashed and one arm blown off. People living above the bank were blown into the air. Judge Price, who was entering the bank at the time, was hurt, but not seriously. The dynamiter died without regaining consciousness. The bank lost about a thousand dollars, chiefly in gold dust, which was lying on the counter.

According to the news received by the bank authorities in Toronto, however, the robber was refused his demand for money and commenced firing at the clerks. The stick of dynamite exploded from the concussion of the shots, resulting fatally to himself. The officials mentioned in the despatch escaped with nothing more than a few bruises, and as for climbing out of a back window, that is discredited entirely, for the authorities here believe that the two bankers were putting up a fight, and that the dynamiter, in his desperation, commenced shooting in the hope of either disabling or killing them.

Both men are athletes. Mr. Pooley who is 25 years of age, was a clerk in the Bank of British Columbia before its amalgamation with the Bank of Commerce. Mr. Wallace is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wallace, 1 Clare street, Toronto. He was for years a member of the Queen's Own Bugle Band. Some years ago he went to the United States, taking a position in East Orange, N.J. Since then he has been home only once, which was three years ago, to attend the golden wedding of his father and mother. From Toronto he went to Atlin, where he first entered the Bank of Commerce there, and was shortly afterwards Skagway.

Wallace has several brothers in Toronto—Policeman Wm. Wallace, attached to No. 1 division; Jeremiah Wallace head messenger of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here; and Wellington Wallace, 416 Front street west, who was prominent in protecting the Home Savings and Loan Company's property in church street on Friday, January 27, 1898, when the famous Dalton imitators forced an entrance to that office and were only deterred from getting away with $5,000 cash on hand at that time in the office by the plucky action of Wallace and Accountanant Street and Manor Wilson.

London, Sept. 22—The Gladys Deacon affair has naturally set the tongues of the gossips wagging about the matrimonial future of the German Crown Prince. In the highways and byways of the English court there has for some time past been whispered a hope that the Princess Margaret of Connaught might be destined to share the throne of the Kaiser that is to be.

A CANADIAN INVASION

A Canadian invasion of the United States, which is hailed as a blessing by the people immediately concerned, is now engaging attention in the states of the middle west. The announcement that the Grand Trunk Railway has practically concluded the purchase of the Detroit and Toledo Shore Line, in order to obtain a connecting link with the Clover Leaf System, with which it has already a traffic arrangement, gives the region affected what it most desires and requires—an alternative outlet. The great importance of the extension of the Canadian line is pointed out by the Evening News, of Detroit, which sees in it a connection with the Grand Trunk Railway which ramifies through the richest part of Canadian territory, and a system which taps both the region of the Ohio valley and the city of St. Louis, the emporium of the southwest. The possibilities of this new route to the seaboard are enormous, and must naturally tend to closer commercial relations between the United States and the Dominion by bringing the central and southwestern states, the most productive region on the continent, into touch with the Canadian railway system.

THE SOLDIER'S PRAYER BOOK

(Published by Request.)

A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee, was taken before the Magistrate of Glasgow, Scotland, for playing cards during divine service. At the church, those who had Bibles took them out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor common prayer book, and, pulling out a pack of cards he spread them before him. He first looked at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him and said.

"Richard, put up the cards; this is no place for them."

"Never mind that," said Richard.

When the services were over the constable took Richard a prisoner and brought him before the mayor.

"Well," said the Mayor, "what have you brought the soldier here for?"

"For playing cards in church."

"Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?"

"Much, sir, I hope."

"Very good; if not, I will punish you severely."

"I have been," said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have neither Bible nor common prayer book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and I hope to satisfy Your Worship of the purity of my intention."

Then, spreading the cards before the mayor, he began with the ace:

"When I see the ace it reminds me that there is but one God. When I see the deuce, it reminds me of the Father and Son. When I see the trey, it reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. When I see the 4 it reminds me of the four evangelists that preached—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. When I see the 5, it reminds me of the five wise virgins that trimmed their lamps. There were 10, but five were wise, and five were foolish, and were shut out. When I see the 6, it reminds me that in six days the Lord made Heaven and earth. When I see the 7, it reminds me that on the seventh day God rested from the great work He had made, and hallowed it. When I see the 8, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons that were saved when God destroyed the world, viz.: Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives. When I see the 9, it reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour. There were nine out of ten that never returned thanks. When I see the 10, it reminds me of the ten commandments which God handed down to Moses on the tables of stone. When I see the King, it reminds me of the great King of Heaven, which is God Almighty. When I see the Queen, it reminds me of the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he was a man. She brought with her 50 boys and 50 girls, all dressed in boys' apparel, for King Solomon to tell which were boys and which were girls. The King sent for water for them to wash. The girls washed to the elbows, the boys to the wrists; so King Solomon told by that."

"Well," said the Mayor, "you have described every card in the pack except one."

"What is that?"

"The Knave," said the Mayor.

"I will give your Honor a description of that, too, if you will not be angry."

"I will not," said the Mayor, "if you do not term me to be the Knave."

"The greatest knave I know of is the constable that brought me here."

"I do not know," said the Mayor, "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards, I find 365, as many days as there are in a year. When I count the number of cards in a pack, I find 52—the number of weeks in a year. I find there are 12 picture cards in a pack, representing the number of months in a year; and on counting the tricks, I find 13, the number of weeks in a quarter. So, you see, a pack of cards serves for Bible, an almanac and a common prayer book."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Toronto Star, in an article on the fuel situation, says: Up in Beaverton the townspeople—a few of them at any rate—are burning peat. There are tons and tons of raw material in the district, but the facilities for drying, pressing and marketing the fuel are inadequate. With the peat mills in operation, Toronto, and in fact all Ontario, could laugh at the coal situation, for peat makes an ideal fuel. Broken up, it makes a quick fire. Fed in the block, it smoulders and burns for hours. There is no soot and but little ash. It is clean to handle, and does not take up much more room than coal.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

ness, and would not be back. "There was no good any ladies and gentlemen waitin' longer."

With grumblings the disappointed ones rose and made for the door. It was always like this, they complained. There was very little good coming unless you had an appointment, and even then you weren't always sure of Mr. Doulton—he was "so erratic."

Winifred went with the rest, and among them all there could scarcely have been a heavier heart than hers. It would be hopeless to call upon another agent until afternoon, for she had been here an hour, and it was now luncheon time for most business men.

Mrs. Gray was particular about the places where her pretty daughter lunched alone, and Winifred had frequented a daintily-decorated establishment in Bond street, where charming girls in purple frocks, with frothy muslin aprons, smiled upon customers against a background of dull green wall and old blue Delft china. But there were to be no more Bond street feasts for her at present. She gloomily ate a bath-bun at an A.B.C. shop, and went to another agent's. Here she was more fortunate. Mr. Brownwood was in, and only a few persons were before her. In half an hour she was with him, and had introduced herself. He was polite, had seen her act, and would be pleased to serve her; but there was nothing—"really nothing doing." If only she had come to him two months ago it would have been a different story. He feared that she would hear the same thing everywhere. Still, she might look in from time to time, and certainly he would keep her in mind.

"By the way, rather a queer thing," he remarked, as the girl rose to go. "I was—er—informed that you would come to me to-day."

Winifred opened her eyes very wide. "How very strange!" she exclaimed. "Will you tell me who 'informed' you?"

Mr. Brownwood smiled. "That's exactly what I don't know. The fact is, it was an anonymous letter. I attached no importance to it, and had almost forgotten the thing until you came in."

Winifred was scarlet. "Please tell me what the letter said. I think I have a right to know that. I—should like to see it."

"I'm afraid it went into the waste-paper basket—the best place for such things," he replied. "But I can remember almost the exact words; there weren't many. Let me see. 'If Miss Winifred Gray calls upon you wishing for an engagement, ask her why she was discharged from the Duke of Clarence's.'"

"You haven't asked me!" broke in the girl.

"Of course not. I don't suppose for a moment you were discharged. Some jealous, malicious woman——"

"I was discharged," Winifred stammered. "Everyone will know it, and—I know who sent you the letter. But——" and she paused for a moment—"I can't tell anybody. It would only do me harm, and the person who wrote it counts upon that."

"I wouldn't think of it if I were you," said the agent. "I oughtn't to have mentioned it—but I spoke out impulsively. Well, good-day. Come and see me again."

Winifred scarcely knew how she got downstairs and into the street. She was as sure as if she had been told that the same letter which Mr. Brownwood had received or one like it had been sent to every respectable agent and every manager in London. So gossip would be born and grow apace. And then, when the question was going the rounds: "Why did Mr. Anderson discharge Miss Gray?" some horrible answer would be ready to meet and blend with it in a hateful marriage.

Still, she would not go home discouraged to bewail herself in idleness. She went to such other agents as might possibly help her, but, as Mr. Brownwood had said, there was "nothing doing." One asked her bluntly why she had left the Duke of Clarence's; another hinted at his desire to know. They had had the letters.

Now it occurred to her that she might call upon managers, telling them—if they still needed the information—that she was at liberty. So she went from theater to theater, but found no one. She must write and ask for an appointment if she wished to succeed, she was told.

At last there was nothing more to do but go home, tired out, and break the news to her mother.

As it happened, this was their "at home" day, and if all had been well Winifred would have hurried back after rehearsal and her late lunch to dress and help receive some of the friends they had made since coming to live in London. But now she had forgotten all about it, and did not remember until she was fitting her latch-key in the door that she could not expect to find her mother alone, for already it was close upon five o'clock.

As she stepped into the passage a buzz of feminine voices greeted her, with a deeper undertone which told that women were not the only visitors. For a moment the girl hesitated, for it seemed almost more than she could bear to meet people and smile and chat as if she had not a care in the world.

Winifred walked straight into the drawing-room without stopping even to take off her hat. Their Thursdays were quite popular, because non-theatrical people thought it rather nice to see the pretty young actress off the stage and in her own home, while the few professionals who came really liked the girl and her mother. But never had Winifred seen the room so crowded as it was to-day, and her heart gave a bound as she saw that several members of Mr. Anderson's company were there.

One glance she gave round the room, and then her eyes turned to Mrs. Gray. The little woman's face was white and drawn, despite the smile it wore, and the gaze with which she met her daughter's was piteous as that of some trapped, dying creature of the woods. It was all that Winifred could do to restrain herself from running to her mother, oblivious of everyone, and begging her to say what had caused that look of agonized distress. For the girl knew the elder woman well enough to be sure that physical pain and fatigue alone would not account for it.

But there was an appeal in the great, soft eyes which seemed too large for the small pale face, with its frame of whitening hair. They begged Winifred to act as if nothing were wrong, to go on to the end bravely, as her mother meant to do.

"We were just wondering what had become of you, dear," remarked Miss Duplessis, the lady who played queen-

STOCK MARKETS

Current Week's Outlook

New York, Sept. 22.—Last week was the passing of a mile post through the money derangement; this week will probably pass another, and then smoother sailing for the ship of speculation. As outlined in our weekly outlook one week ago, things did not go to pieces through the pinch in funds. The market after one days slightly turbulent session, in which prices shaded a bit, has continued to harden and advance, though progress was made cautiously; the same caution will probably be exercised by the powers that be. During the present week the stocks, in our opinion, will not very much longer be obtainable at current bargain prices; not so named when comparing with the yard stick of the past, but with more accurate gauge of probabilities and prospects for the future. Barring the local money disturbance, which under our system of banking has become an annual affair at this time of the year, there is not a single cloud in the financial sky. Money will shortly correct itself, and stocks will move in accordance with facts and existing conditions. It seems strange that the richest country in the world, with the largest gold surplus on hand, should feel the throes of scarce money due to the vast absorption by the National Treasury, in excess of disbursements. Legislative action will shortly be reached to correct this annual evil. We view the current situation with confidence, and hope and deem it good advice to suggest the purchase of securities at the present time, specially the standard issues. The market in our opinion will be materially higher before little if any lower. To buy and hold will be to make money; to sell and wait will be either to watch a constantly growing loss or to get further away from an excellent opportunity. Railways and industrials should be purchased. The outlook for the fall months is most excellent for both classes of stock. In all probability this week will witness more or less hesitance to the trend of the market, but with all we feel that the average of prices will show a gain for the week's operation. We strongly advise picking up stocks, especially upon weak spots—that is what the cliques are doing, so it should be advisable for the outsider to do likewise.

SUMMARY.

The bears appeared to again have run themselves into a trap, depleted bank reserves, and their belief that it would cause extensive liquidation, together with a lower range of prices from London, encouraged them to attack the market. This morning the market opened down, and its first prices were directly lower at opening. Afterwards the market again crept up with St. Paul the leader. Money loaned up to 20 per cent., weak holders are not in the market in any quantity, depressions are consequently fitful and rallies sharp. The outlook for the future is too good to permit of close money to more than curb speculation to some extent. Buy on each and every dip, hold on fearlessly and we believe you will be at the record. Sales 649,300. Money closed at 12 per cent.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS

Dr. McKay at St. Paul's

Rev. Dr. McKay, D.D., of Toronto, delivered an interesting address last night at St. Paul's church. His remarks were specially intended for the young people of St. Andrew's and St. Paul's churches. There was a fair attendance present, who listened with attention to the eloquent speaker.

Next Year's Work

A trip over the G. T. R. from Belleville to Toronto, shows what extensive improvements are being made in grades and double tracking. The result of these changes will be appreciated when it is stated that the big Grand Trunk engines which formerly hauled loads of 750 tons over this stretch of roadbed can now easily handle 2,500 ton loads, while under the new conditions they pull average loads of 2,000 tons. The work of straightening and double-tracking the line between Belleville and Midland, will, it is said, be proceded with next year.

Obituary

There passed away at the family residence, 107 Auburn street, Ashburnham yesterday morning Mrs. Mena Fisher, relict of the late Frederick Fisher, aged 70 years. The deceased had been confined to her bed for five weeks, suffering from general debility, and her demise was not unexpected. She leaves a grown up family of four daughters—Mrs Joseph Guerin, Mrs. John Doulton, Mrs. Harry Starr and Miss Amelia Fisher. The funeral will leave the family residence to-morrow, Wednesday, at two o'clock, and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery.

The Direct Line

From Peterborough to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and the South, is via Grand Trunk and Lehigh Valley Railroad. Route of the "Black Diamond Express." Pullman Sleepers and Dining Car service from Toronto. Everything first class. Scenery and service unsurpassed. Call at W. Bunton's Ticket Office, Peterborough for Tickets, Pullman's and further particulars.

LAKEFIELD FAIR

The annual exhibition of the Smith, Ennismore, and Lakefield Agricultural Society will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 23rd and 24th, on the grounds of the Society. The directors are sparing no pains or expense to make this the most successful show in the history of the Society. The trials of speed promise to be most interesting and exciting. A matched race is on between F. McKee's "Nellie B," and Dr. Johnston's "Nigger," for a substantial purse. Those who propose exhibiting should make their entries early. For prize lists and other information apply to the secretary, Mr. W. Sherin.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—A meeting of the Furnace Committee and Board of Works was held last night.

—The Gilmour Co. drives will not reach Trenton this fall. The leading drive has been tied up near Campbellford, and then other drives are stranded about 25 miles behind.

—A special meeting of the members of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F. took place last night to make arrangements for the funeral of Bro. Nelson, of Lakefield.

—Bobcaygeon friends have received news of the death in Dakota of William Ritchie, a former popular resident, at the age of 71 years. Mr. Ritchie and his partner Mr. Lucas, built and ran the first saw mill in Haliburton.

—The managers of the great world's fair at Millbrook, which is billed for 2nd and 3rd of October, send this great family journal the key to their fair by mail. This g. f. j. will lock the memory of their courtesy in the casket of its good will with it, but that's the best it can do this year at least.

At the police court yesterday morning Mr. and Mrs. Louis Skinner appeared on a charge of stealing a bicycle from Mr. R. J. McPherson, on Aug. 27th. They pleaded not guilty, and made no election. They were both remanded until Thursday.

—A very unusual occurrence in the movements of migratory birds was lately witnessed in the return of swallows a number having been seen flying over the town on the 4th inst., and again on the 16th, the same as they do on their arrival in the springtime. As these birds take their flight southward about the 20th of August, it is unaccountable why they should make their appearance so late in the season.

NORTH RENFREW ELECTION WILL NOT TAKE PLACE

ALL THE BYE-ELECTIONS WILL BE BROUGHT ON SIMULTANEOUSLY

This is the Programme of Mr. Ross and His Cabinet

Special from our own Correspondent.

Toronto, Sept. 22—The Times representative has been informed that there will be no election in Renfrew at present. Indeed it has been decided to bring on all the bye-elections on the same day. By simultaneous action in this regard it is believed that supporters of the Government will be elected, for the full strength of both Dominion and local governments will be put forth to sustain Mr. Ross. The Times has this from reliable authority and it will be found to be correct.

Should the result of the election trials prove unsatisfactory to the government in the unseating of Conservatives, then Mr. Ross will ask Sir Oliver to dissolve the house, so that he may have another try. One thing sure: Mr. Ross won't make room for Mr. Whitney until he has to. He has two trump cards yet to play—the bye-elections, and if these fail a general election.

Hearts That are Diseased

will never be cured by the false, unnatural stimulation of liquor. First increase your vitality, build up the system, strengthen and purify the blood — then the heart will respond and grow strong. Ferrozone is precisely what to take, it gives you an appetite and a digestion that will look after everything that is eaten. Ferrozone improves nutrition, makes rich, vitalizing blood, and is positively the most powerful restorative and strengthener known to science; it improves the nerve tone, regulates the heart's action, makes the feeble strong and the sick well. Ferrozone will do you untold good and costs only 50c., at druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

COUNTY POLICE COURT

Several Cases to Come Before Judge Edmison To-Day

Jas. Gorman and Jos. Huard, of Ashburnham, were arrested, charged with stealing a watch from Joseph Finlay. They were remanded until 9 o'clock this morning.

Thos. Sinclair, of Havelock, will come up before Judge Edmison this morning, on a charge of stealing a sum of money from Albert Deck, of Belmont.

An Indian will answer a charge of wife beating to-morrow morning in the county police court.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature, either by phone or in writing.—[E. Times]

—Mr. J. H. McClelland is in Toronto on business.

—Miss Annie Fox, of Port Hope, is visiting relatives and friends in town.

—Miss May Hambridge, Otonabee, is the guest of Miss Sadie Chambers, Pentypool.

Mr. John Hanrahan, of New York, is visiting his mother, Mrs. T. Hanrahan Bolivar street.

—Mr. Thomas McCormack, the genial and popular night operator on the C.P.R. here, has been notified that he has been transferred to Manvers.

—Mr. Joseph D. Armstrong, the well known "knight of the grip," left yesterday on a business trip to Winnipeg and points west. He will be gone four weeks.

—Mrs. Stumpf, of Purpelville, returned home yesterday after spending a week with her friend Mrs. W. H. Bowman, Oxford Hotel.

—The many friends of Mr. C. H. Allison, chief clerk to the general manager of the Illinois Central Railway, is in town on a visit to his relatives. Charlie looks as though the air of Uncle Sam agreed with him.

—The many friends in town of Mr. John A. Macdonald will be pleased to learn that he has been awarded his fellowship in Classics for next year at McMaster University. He has also been appointed professor of Greek in Moulton Ladies College.

—Mr. and Mrs. McInnes, and family who have been up to the city for several weeks have returned to town, Mr. McInnes, who was poorly, has, we are pleased to say, completely recovered and has been able to resume his position as local manager of the Dominion Express Co.

NEWSPAPER CONSOLIDATION

Big Combine of Conservative Papers Including Toronto Mail

Assertion is made here today in journalistic circles that Mr. Southam, of the Ottawa Citizen and Hamilton Spectator, is arranging a consolidation of the interests of Conservative press in Toronto, and that the Evening News, in any case and possibly the Mail and Empire will be added to the list of Southam syndicate papers. No confirmation of the rumor can be obtained in any reliable quarter.

People With Bad Breath

Generally suffer from Catarrh and should use Catarrhozone inhaler inhaler four times daily, and be cured. The pleasant scented Catarrhozone vapor spreads through every air passage of the breathing organs, and reaches the very root of the disease at once; it kills the germs, purifies and cleanses the mucous surfaces, and eradicates every vestige of catarrh in a short time.

Pure, sweet breath, free from headaches, sneezing and discharge are quickly derived from the use of Catarrhozone inhaler. Complete outfit, guaranteed to cure, costs $1.00, trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

All the Anthracite In the World

In a renowned strip of land of say, fifteen by seventy miles, near the center of the State of Pennsylvania is contained all the true anthracite coal in the world. Here is concentrated the enormous vested wealth of all the anthracite coal-carrying railroads, whose influence and prestige have been used for years in forcing the lower-priced bituminous coals out of the domestic markets of the East. One of the most effective weapons used for this purpose is the clamorous outcry against the so-called "smoke nuisance"—an anthracite cry which has resulted in much hysterical and unjust, discriminating, legislation, which practically forbids the use of an economical fuel in our larger cities, a fuel that is not controlled by any combination or corporation of capitalists, and which cannot be "bottled up" like anthracite coal, at the whim and caprice of a few interested individuals.

In the East, in the small strip of coast line embracing the larger cities of the United States, the householder knows no fuel but anthracite coal. Forgetting the ways of our forefathers, and now forbidden by law to use bituminous coal, the inventive genius of our stove-makers —stimulated and fostered in this anthracite hot-bed—produces only burners for hard coal; for our cellars, our kitchens and our apartments, our retail dealers alive to the forced demand, keep nothing but anthracite coal for sale, and when a strike occurs in this small coal-producing area, cutting short their supply, we must go without fuel or burn corporation gas at four or five times the cost of production.

The laws forbidding the use of bituminous coal in our larger cities is class legislation of the worst kind. First, because it does not prevent the rich few from using expensive cannel coals—the heaviest smoke-producer known—and, secondly, because there is no reason why such laws should exist. In Great Britain, in Germany, in France, there is no anthracite coal mined or consumed. There the rich and poor alike burn bituminous coal, all carefully screened and prepared for domestic uses, and in improved burners whose perfect combustion prevents the escape of wasteful smoke. For smoke is simply unburnt coal, is nearly pure carbon, and should be consumed.—William Jasper Nicolls in "Era."

On the Amenities of Travel.

To a friend who was going to travel on the Continent, the late William Black, the novelist, once wrote a letter, which very amusingly hits off the most objectionable practices of the average Cockney tourist: "You must be sure, whatever custom house officers, station-masters, or policemen may do to you, never to strike them. It's no use. They have the law on their side, and in Italy they put thumbscrews on you. If the man is small, you might shove him over the edge of the platform just as a train is coming up; but in ordinary circumstances, the most you should do is to threaten to write to the 'Times.' If you say 'Teems' they will understand you. Never offer a cigar to a stranger until you find out he is not English. He might be English, and discover the cigar was bad, and be angry. A foreigner would not. You can easily find out the nationality of a stranger by addressing a few questions to him. If you think he is Spanish, say: 'Como esta, Luis?' to him; if Italian: 'Datemi una bottiglia de vino ordinario;' if French: 'Allez-vous ong, does your mother know you're out?;' if German: 'He Vaterland? Rhein wein. Who stole the clock?' By these means you will make yourself agreeable to your fellow-travelers, who will probably pay for your brandy and soda at the next station. But I would recommend you seltzer water rather than soda, with foreign brandy. You must always put out your cigar before going into a cathedral. Throwing bedroom furniture out of the window of your hotel is forbidden in France, but not so in Italy. If you happen to be in a theater in some parts of South Germany, you will find that foreigners are not allowed to hit the actresses with oranges; that privilege is confined to the natives. Nor should you on any occasion fling a lemonade bottle at an actor. You can send the present to his private address. Bearing these counsels well in mind, you will get through your journey in comparative quiet. You can let out your pent-up spirits when you return to England."

The Sinful Brother.

It was at a certain church meeting, and the good bishop was calling for reports. He had a rather stern, sharp manner which sometimes jarred a little on the nerves of the more timid. By and by he came to Brother B., a lay delegate.

"Brother B., what is the spiritual condition of your church?" demanded the bishop, briskly.

"I consider it good," said the brother.

"What makes you think it is good?" went on the bishop.

"Well, the people are religious. That's what makes me think so."

"What do you call religious? Do they have family prayer?"

"Some of them do and some do not."

"Do you mean to say that a man may be a Christian, and not hold family prayer?"

"Yes, sir; I think so."

"Do you hold family prayer?"

"Yes, sir," returned the brother, quietly.

"And yet you think a man may be a Christian and not hold family prayer?"

"I have a brother who is a better man than I am who does not hold family prayer."

"What makes you think he is a better man than you are?"

"Everybody says so, and I know he is."

"Why does not your brother, if he is such a good man, hold family prayer?" thundered the bishop.

"He has no family," meekly answered the brother.

Constancy.

'Tis better—aye, lift up the glass!
Once more I'll pledge it thus—
To die a good old Has Been—
Than to live a Never Was.

She—I am afraid that mother saw you kiss me last night. He—What makes you think so? She—Well, I know that she passed the conservatory some time between eight and eleven.—"Town Topics."

Old Age IS MADE Vigorous BY THE USE OF Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me, could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since. I am now in good health for one of my age—60 years. I owe it all to Doctor Pierce's medicines."

Our Popular Medical Health Officer

The Lindsay Post, a paper that usually knows what it is talking about, says: "It should be the duty of a Health Board or the executive officer thereof, from time to time to instruct the public concerning the treatment of contagious disease and the maintenance of healthy conditions in the home. Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer at Peterborough, appears to be a zealous officer who realizes the truth of the old adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and from time to time, through the columns of the press of that town, he imparts information of great value to the householder. We print below a letter that appeared the other day, in which he shows that the patent fumigator used by the Lindsay Board's sanitary inspector is of doubtful efficacy, and that a much simpler plan is followed in Toronto."

CRITICAL SITUATION IN CHINA, GOVERNMENT UNABLE TO PRESERVE PEACE

Great Fears of Another Period of Carnage

A Grave Conditions of Affairs Throughout the Empire

Special to The Times.

New York, Sept. 24.—For some time the cable despatches from China have been filled with rumblings of a new Boxer uprising and renewed danger to missionary and other foreign interests. These stories have been in a measure confirmed by Minister Conger, in a communication to the State Department at Washington. This communication takes official notice of serious anti-foreign riots and massacres, which the Chinese Government seems unable to suppress, even concedin gits desire to do so. Minister Conger, it appears, has taken time by the forelock and demanded protection for American citizens and interests. He will not be caught napping again, but he cannot arm the imperial government with power to crush out the anti-foreign sentiment among the masses of the people, or to guard in every instance against violence.

The restored Chinese Government appears to be breaking down under the weight of corruption and inefficiency. It would seem dreadful if the great powers should be compelled again to send military forces to occupy the capital, for should they do so grave international complications could hardly be avoided. The United States will naturally oppose any renewed foreign occupation which would mean a partition of the empire; but it looks as if in the end it must be either that or some form of administration under foreign supervision. A foreign administration of the Chinese finances, if honest, would probably solve all difficulties, by putting into the hands of the government the means of meeting its obligations and placing its army upon such an effective footing that the Boxer uprisings could be easily suppressed. Such a financial administration could only be installed through the amicable agreement of the powers. Is such an agreement possible? If not, the storm that is now brewing may burst with a violence even more startling than that of 1900.

The Hard Coal Strike will Last Six Months

Special to The Times.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 23.—The nineteenth week of the miners' strike ended three days ago and still there is no settlement in sight. Disinterested parties now believe the miners' strike history will repeat itself and that the present struggle will go the six months' limit—the same as the big strike of 1877. At the present time both sides are evidently as determined as every and all the prophecies as to the duration of the strike having failed, the people are settling down to the belief that the battle must be fought to a finish.

In court today Judge Wheaton administered a sharp rebuke to those who have been guilty of calling people scabs. He says the intimidation and lawlessness that have been prevailing of late must stop, and those guilty of calling other people scabs will be punished.

The local operators in answer to the statement alleged to have been made by President Mitchell, that there was only one mine in operation in the strike region—the Oxford at Scranton, state that there are a dozen mines and washeries in operation in the Wyoming and Lackawana and Schuylkill region, and and that the output of coal is increasing daily.

AN ARTIC HERO'S RETURN FROM NORTH

Arctic Explorer Baldwin Arrives in London From North

THE FROM HAD ROUGH TIMES

Boat Came Near Being Destroyed by Fire—Captain Otto Sverdrup Relates some of His Experiences in the Northern Latitude

Christiania, Norway, Sept. 23.—Captain Otto Sverdrup, who reached Stavanger yesterday from the Arctic regions on the steamer Fram, in an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, gave the following details of the expedition;

"I spent the winter of 1898-99 in winter quarters at Ellesmereland, whence scientific expeditions were started with sledges. The summer of 1899 was unfavorable and the Fram was obliged to return and pass the winter at Ellesmereland. A great part of the surrounding region was mapped out.

"There was a serious fire on board the Fram in May, 1900. It was started by sparks from the funnel and spread to the kayaks (Arctic canoes), which were smeared with paraffine for their protection. The rigging and masts caught fire and the total destruction of the vessel was threatened, but we succeeded in mastering the flames.

"In August, 1900, we went to Jones winter quarters at 76.48 north and 89 west. The region was rich in reindeers and polar wolves, of which we brought back living specimens. The following winter was more than ordinarily cold and stormy, the average temperature being 45 degrees below zero. Sledge expeditions occupied the spring and summer of 1901 and the early part of 1902.

"On August 6 the Fram succeeded in breaking away from the ice and arrived at Godhaven, August 15. We left Cape Farewell, homeward bound, August 22."

Captain Sverdrup added that the members of the expedition met no Esquimos in the regions visited, but he said that many of their dwellings belonging to former periods were seen.

London, Sept. 23.—Evelyn B. Baldwin of the Baldwin-Zeigler arctic expedition, arrived in London to-day on his way home. He had little to add to what has already been cabled regarding his experiences, but he gave extended details of technical interest to arctic navigation on the work accomplished and the stations established. The most southerly is on Alger Island, 18 miles north of the Jackson-Harmsworth expeditions' former headquarters. A second station is located on Greely Island, eight miles north of the Alger station, and five miles further north is a third station, equipped with 5,000 pounds of condensed food, on an island discovered but not named. A fourth and most northerly station was established on Rudolph land, within sight of the headquarters which were occupied by the Duke Abruzzi's expedition. It contains all the condensed stores originally intended for a dash to the pole. The expedition, for the first time in polar exploration, Mr. Baldwin added, secured complete photographic records of the snow and ice conditions of the regions traversed. They include moving pictures. Mr. Baldwin gave an interesting account of his journey to Cape Norway, where he came upon Dr. Nansen's hut, the place where Nansen and Johnston spent their winter. The hut was partly gnawed by foxes and bears. Dr. Nansen's record was intact. It was found in a brass cylinder, and was dated May 19, 1896, and written in pencil on half a sheet of note-paper, and left his own record in its place. Later the 'America,' Mr. Baldwin's ship, was in imminent peril of being crushed by icebergs, but escaped by putting on all available steam.

While in the Arctic regions Mr. Baldwin released three hundred balloons, which were driven northward, and may later furnish data regarding air and sea currents. Each balloon has attached to it an automatic buoy addressed to the nearest American consul. The expedition's start for home was attended by many exciting incidents. It was necessary to charge the heavy ice drifts, blast them with dynamite and saw a channel through the ice. The American was caught in a violent ice field, her screw and rudder were twisted and her propeller frame was broken.

The expedition had another exciting experience in a pack further south. Two members of the expedition, unarmed and on a pony sledge, were set upon by huge white bears. The pony bolted, and the men were defenceless. With great presence of mind, they clambered on top of an iceberg and escaped on the other side to the ship. Mr. Baldwin described fights between teams and herds of walruses, and in conclusion, said:

"The old idea of an open polar sea is baseless. We know that land extends as far as 82 on the Francis Joseph land side, and there, I believe, the pole can be reached. I agree with Peary that the most practical way of reaching the pole is by sledging from that point."

PETERBORO'S RAPID STRIDES IN INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

Large Number of Factories Being Established—Excellent Facilities Available

From the Toronto News.

Mr. J. Alex Culverwell, of Peterboro' is visiting in the city, and remarked to the News:

"Peterboro' has made more rapid strides in the growth of her manufactures the last two years than probably any other city of like size on the continent, and three of its new factories are practically the largest of their kind in Canada to-day; one of these being a branch American factory, and another originally an. It is now being demonstrated that this is not a temporal boom, as at the present moment, some half dozen more good-sized industries have about concluded arrangements to locate in the town.

"In another ten days the immense works of the American Cereal Company — having a capacity of some forty cars per day output—will be in operation, principally for European export trade.

"The large binder-twine factory will also be in full blast this month, and soon the Sapphire Corundum Company, whose properties are close to Burleigh Falls, will, with its large addition of English capital, be turning out natural corundum in greatly increased quantities.

"There has already been an immense influx of American capital in to the Peterboro' district—the electric railway having also been snapped up by Americans, who will extend a radial system, and now three American industries are negotiating to locate in Peterboro', evidently preparing for tariff changes. In fact, Peterboro' people themselves have caught the spirit of enterprise, of which the brick and mortar now being laid in five or six factories is ample demonstration.

"With a further slight adjustment of tariff, American manufacturers generally would be compelled to emigrate and mark their goods 'made in Canada.'"

Asked why this state of affairs existed, he said:—"Peterboro now with a population of some 15,000 is seventy miles away from Toronto and the centre of a district of its own, with grand transportation facilities on the C.P.R. and G.T.R. and the Trent Canal, now rapidly approaching completion, and able to offer cheap electrical water-power. Ontario, a province practically devoid of coal, has been endowed by nature with grand water-powers, particularly in the Peterboro' district; in fact, so much so, that there has been a good deal of squabbling with the Government as to who would secure the prizes."

Mr. Culverwell is now assisting to secure a lime manufacturing industry and a granite and marble-cutting industry in Peterboro.'

PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Mabel Johnston and Mr Fred Allison

A very pretty home wedding was celebrated yesterday morning, at the residence of Mr. James Johnston, 115 Douro street, when his daughter, Miss Mabel was united in marriage to Mr. Fred. O. Allison. Rev. J. F. Wilson, pastor of the George Street Methodist Church, officiated. The parlor, drawing room, and hall was very prettily decorated with flowers and evergreens.

The bride was charmingly attired in white silk, while the bridesmaid, Miss Annie Hutchinson, was costumed in white over pink. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Charles Allison, of Chicago.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party, which numbered about forty at the conclusion of which the happy couple were escorted to the Grand Trunk station, where Mr. and Mrs. Allison took the train for the west. A large number of elegant gifts testified to the popularity of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Allison, on their return, will take up their residence on Dublin street.

A VERY PRETTY WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Edith Mason and Mr. Herbert Conway

A charming wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Mason, No. 20 Murray st., when her daughter Miss Edith May was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Lorne Conway, by Rev. J. P. Wilson.

The bride was prettily gowned in white taffeta silk, with garniture of white applique and was given away by her brother, Mr. W. A. Mason, of Bellevue, Ohio. She carried a pretty shower boquet of white roses and ferns and was assisted by her cousin, Miss Edith May Mason who was gowned in white organdie trimmed with Valenciennes lace and who carried pink roses.

The groom was assisted by his brother Mr. Richard Conway, of Dundas. Miss Clara Mason, niece of the bride made a fairy like little maid of honor., Miss Ethel Blackwell, of Glencoe, rendered the wedding march very pleasingly and Long Bros., with their accustomed good taste catered for the occasion.

The bride received a large number of valuable presents which in a small degree indicate the esteem in which she is held by her many friends. A handsome black marble clock was presented by the groom's associates of the staff of Grafton & Co.

The happy young couple left on the afternoon train for a short tour. The bride's going away gown was of castor cloth with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Conway will reside at No. 60 Murray street on their return.

WEDDING BELLS

Mr. Alexander Bain of Winnipeg Weds Miss Louisa Octavia Dennistoun, Peterboro

"Castleknock," the handsome residence of Mrs. Jas. F. Dennistoun, was the scene of a very interesting social event yesterday afternoon when her youngest daughter, Miss Louie Octavia, was united in marriage to Mr. Alexander Bain Manager of the Scottish Canadian Loan and Investment Co., of Winnipeg, Man.

The ceremony was performed in the handsomely decorated drawing-room by Rev. Dr. Torrance, of St. Paul's church, brother-in-law of the bride.

A magnificent gown of white duchesse satin, with transparent yoke, and sleeves of shirred chiffon, and trimmed with lace medallions and the customary veil of orange blossoms was worn by the bride, who was given away by her brother. Her bouquet was composed of white roses, lillies of the valley, and ferns, and her sole ornament a sunburst of diamonds and pearls, the gift of the groom.

She was attended by her sister Miss Georgina, who was attired in white Indie silk, with garniture of rose applique, and frills of lace and insertion, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Geo. F. Macdonell, of Toronto, eldest son of the late D. J. Macdonell, at one time minister of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, performed the duties of groom's man.

A special orchestra under the direction of Mr. Glidden, provided excellent music for the occasion.

At the conclusion of the ceremony an elegant wedding breakfast was served to the guests who numbered over 100, by Mr. Harry Long, caterer, in a large marquee upon the lawn.

Amongst the guests present were—Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Jones, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Noble and Miss Jenkins, Petrolea; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amys, Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Kirkpatrick, Toronto; Mrs. MacKerrie, Mr. Hamilton MacKerrie, Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. W. W. Kirkpatrick, Kingston; Mrs. Macklin and Miss Macklin, Montreal; Mr. James Macdonald and Mr. Peacock, Toronto; Mrs. Stafford Kirkpatrick and Misses Kirkpatrick, London, England.

The wedding party at the Dennistoun—Bain nuptials was one which will long be remembered. The lovely bride, who was so gracefully robed in white and beloved by all for her gentle disposition and true nobility of character, was the cynosure of all who were fortunate enough to witness what may truly be termed one of Peterborough's prettiest weddings.

To Mr. and Mrs. Bain are extended the best wishes of hosts of friends for a bright future in their western home, where both are alike so charmingly fitted to grace the highest social circles.

The happy couple left on the 5.10 o'clock train for a western honeymoon tour.

ELOPING RUSSIAN PRINCE SHOT

First Report Said It Was Czar's Uncle — Mysterious Case at Algiers

Special to The Times.

Paris, Sept. 23—The Petit Bleu to-day printed a despatch from Algiers saying that a relative of the Czar, who had eloped with the wife of an engineer, had attempted suicide in her room in a hotel at Algiers. The first report said the man was Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovich, uncle of the Czar, and later this was changed to Grand Duke Vladimir. Another report denied that.

The Russian is apparently Prince Vladimir Troubetskoi. The shooting appears to have been more or less of an accident, after two days of somewhat riotous living. He will recover.

FINLUND IN A BAD WAY

Russian Oppression and Fear of Famine Increase Emigration

Special to The Times.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—The officials of several departments of the Russian administration have been busily engaged in Finland for some time destroying the last vestiges of the national life and independence of the Finns. New regulations are about to be issued, dealing with the following points;

The Finnish Senate is to be remodelled; the arbitrary powers of the Provincial Governors are to be extended; the system of punishing officials is to be revived; the removal of Judges and Government officials is to be simplified and the entrance of Russians into the civil service of Finland is to be rendered easier.

The harvest prospects in Finland are bad and a famine is feared. (Corn is rotting in the fields and the entire hay harvest has been destroyed by flood.

The emigration of Finns continues. In the month of August 1,717 Finns, mostly under 30 years of age, left Finland for Canada and the United States.

HIS WIFE'S NAGGING

Methodist Clergyman Dramatically Retires From Ministry Because of His Wife

Keokuk, Ia., Sept. 23.—The case of Rev. P. J. Henness, before the Iowa conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, came very dramatically to an end early today. When Mr. Henness himself took the stand he said it was evident to himself and to his attorneys that he was not to have a fair trial, and handed the parchment of his ordination to the committee, following with his resignation from membership in the church as well as from the ministry. Turning to his wife, who was present, the self un-frocked minister exclaimed; "Woman, behold the wreck of a man you have made." His wife broke down at this dramatic exhibition. The committee for th etrial of Mr. Hennese immediately closed its session, having lost its jurisdiction of the case by his action in placing himself outside the pale of the church.

Mr. Hennese after maintaining silence stubbornly for a year, said today that the reason he left his wife was because of her continual "nagging" which broke down his health and rendered it impossible for him to do ministerial work. The charge against him before the conference was his separation from his wife whom he agreed to support, but refused to live with. No question of immortality was involved.

JEALOUS LOVER'S DEED

Sought to Kill 17-Year-Old Girl Then Sent Bullet Through His Own Heart

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 23. David M. Goughner a well known young man, shot and seriously wounded Miss Leorena Winnebrenner, aged 17 years, near her home in Conemaugh, near this city, last night, and then sent a bullet into his own heart, dying instantly. Jealousy and a desire for revenge are given as the causes for the act. Miss Winnebrenner and Edward Kayler were walking along the street. Goughner passed them and when a few feet ahead he suddenly turned and, without warning, commenced firing. The first shot struck Miss Winnebrenner just below the breast bone. As the girl turned and started to run Goughner fired again striking her in the left side making a slight wound. The third shot grazed her left wrist.

Kayler ran when the fullsade began and escaped injury. He says Goughner fired two shots at him.

After emptying the revolver Goughner reloaded it and placing the muzzle carefully over his heart fired the shot that killed him instantly. Miss Winnebrenner's condition is extremely serious.

ARE POURING IN

Americans Flocking Into the Canadian North West by the Thousands

Brandon, Sept. 23—The latest condition bulletin issued by the Territorial government at Regina indicates that the Territories this year will produce about three million bushels more than last, the acreage under crop being about a million greater. In six months the Saskatchewan Valley Land company has turned over one million two hundred thousand acres. Just the other day the Order of St Benedict at Minneapolis bought 200,000 acres and will establish a colony. A trip along the Soo line of the C.P.R. leaves the impression that the Territories are absolutely infested with Americans. They are bound for all parts in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Assiniboia. Some of them have fixed on Alberta as a country for ranching and oat-raising. They have heard of this wonderful land, where a farmer in his odd moments may go down and wash gold in the river, or dig coal off his own farm. Others hold the Saskatchewan valley to be the garden spot of the Territories. Others, again, see nothing wrong with the yellow grass country in Assiniboia, and refuse to move far from the forty-nin th parallel.

TIMES LETTER BOX.

THE BOER WAR

To the Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir,—Will The Times please give me the terms on which the Boers war with England was stopped.

G. S.

Ans.—1. The Boers agreed to lay down their arms and to accept the sovereignty of King Edward. 2 The British agreed to send back to South Africa all prisoners as quickly as possible, and to guarantee that the burghers should not suffer loss of life or liberty on account of their service in war, only those who had violated the laws of war being liable to punishment. 3. The British agreed that the Dutch language should be taught in the schools when parents desired; and (4) that it should be used in the courts of law if found necessary. 5. The British agreed further, that the Boers should keep their arms for protection, and finally (6) that the military occupation should cease as soon as possible, and by replaced by self-government in the new colonies.

ABOUT LARGE FISH

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—Noticing the tracing of the small mouthed black bass, shown in the window of The Times Bookstore, which was caught in Rice Lake, leads me to mention several large fish hooked in our inland waters. The fish above referred to weighs 6 pounds, 2 ounces, and measures 24 inches in length. Mr. John Watt, of town, is said to have caught a black bass in the Otonabee river that tipped the scales at 6 1-4 pounds. This bass, was however of the ordinary large mouth variety..

While at Sturgeon Point four years ago, I saw a bass which weighed seven pounds one ounce. But when it comes to maskinonge I think I can beat the record. In August 1900 in company with Joseph Frank, of Lakefield, I paddled around the lakes from Lakefield to Buckhorn. About two miles above Tom Eastwood's, while trawling, we hooked what at the time we thought was a sturgeon, as we had heard an odd one was to be found in those waters. After an hours' battle, we landed the monster and returned to Buckhorn, where we had it weighed. The fish measured four feet 8 1-2 inches, and weighed 43 pounds, 7 ounces. The fish was weighed on the late Mr. Purser's weigh scales in the presence of a dozen persons.

I see by a paper I received from Montreal that monster maskallonge are now being caught by anglers in the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers and some of their tributaries. Within the last few days fish of fifty-two and sixty pounds in weight have been captured, both specimens having been viewed by hundreds of people and their weight properly attested.

The fifty-two pound fish was caught in the branch of the Rideau River which passes through Kemptville, Ont., by Sam J. Martin, of Kemptville, who was trolling at the time with rod and line, having a large minnow for bait. The fish gave him an hour of splendid sport, leaping several times out of the water like a tarpon and was finally gaffed like a salmon. When caught it was considered the record fish of the year, and was, therefore, sent to the Department of Fisheries at Toronto, where it is to be preserved as a trophy of the fish taken in the inland waters of Ontario.

Two days after this catch, however, it was beaten by that of a French-Canadian, Allphonse Allard, of Chateauguay. Mr. Allard was fishing in the St. Lawrence with a hand line, when his bait consisting of a half-pound chub or ouitouche was greedily seized by a big fish, which, getting no loose line, was prevented from affording much play and was rapidly hauled in by main force, hand over hand. The line was of enormous thickness, and the hook fortunately had a firm hold. From the tip of the snout, to the after extremity of the gills the monster's head measured exactly a foot. The fish was 4 feet 9 inches long 27 inches in girth and weighed exactly 60 pounds. It was sold to a fish dealer in Montreal who exhibited it for two days in his shop at Bonsecours market.

It is said that this is the largest fish of the kind ever seen in the Montreal market, though still larger ones have been reported as coming out of the St. Lawrence, in the vicinity of the Thousand Islands where maskallunge fishing ranks among the best angling that is offered to the thousands of summer residents who annually flock there from the United States.... There are well authenticated cases of still larger fish having been taken out of the Great Lakes. Dr. E. Sterling said he had speared one at Cleveland which weighed eighty pounds, and one taken in a seine in the old harbor of Milwaukee in 1866 is said to have weighed a hundred pounds. It is certain, however, that for many years no muskallonge has been taken approaching to this size.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours etc.,
A. JOHNSTON.

No Laws for Finland to be Drawn Up—May be Degraded to a Mere Province Unless Czar Intervenes

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 23—The Cape Town correspondent of The Times says Sir Gordon Sprigg, speaking in the Assembly on Merriman's motion against the suspension of the constitution, denied he had capitulated to the Afrikander Bond, which had not approached him in any way. The Premier said he had entered into no undertaking or bargain, whatever, but individuals from the other side had told him they intended to support him on questions of martial law and idemnity. Sir John declared that if the Imperial Government had sanctioned the suspension of the Cape Colony constitution it would have shaken the foundations of the Empire.

THREATENED DEGRADATION OF FINLAND.

Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 23.—A number of new laws in regard to Finland, says a St. Petersburg correspondent, are about to be drawn up in the capital and sent to Helsingfors. The correspondent declares it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that these laws involve the complete abolition of all securities for public and individual liberties hitherto existing in Finland. The effect of the laws is to place judges and the whole judicial system under the control of an Executive and put the Administration of the country under the direct and practically exclusive control of the Governor-General. He and his subordinates, including the meanest policeman, are freed of all the responsibility before the law. The law enacting that no official can be brought to trial on any charge without the consent of his superiors will be made retrospective in order to free the police of all responsibility for illegal acts already committed. Unless the Czar intervenes at the last moment to prevent this coup d'etat Finland will be struck off the roll of European nations and be degraded to a mere province of a semi-Oriental Empire.

The same thing has been noticed in many places in this locality and it is thought to have been caused by lightning. Wherever it is there will be "small potatoes" and a small crop.

Ottawa, Sept 23.—Mrs. St. Pierre died suddenly yesterday of heart failure.

Alliston, Sept. 23 —John O'Brien was killed yesterday by falling from his wagon while returning from Tioga.

Lindsay, Sept. 23—Wm. Rogers, a G.T.R. sectionman, lost his life here yesterday between two cars.

London, Sept. 23.—One of the most remarkable finds in the history of numismatics and of hidden treasure is that made a few weeks ago at Colchester, in England, and in regard to which the authorities on ancient coins are much excited. In excavating for the foundation of new premises for the London and County Bank in High street, Colchester, a workman's pick broke into a leaden vase or casket and a shower of coins suddenly appeared.

These proved to be silver pennies of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. They were found in fine sand in a hole about 6 feet 6 inches from the surface. Ancient foundations discovered not far off show that a building had once occupied the spot but for the last fifty or sixty years the coins had reposed beneath the garden of the premises which stood upon this site.

The coins were in excellent condition. They numbered about 12,000. The actual number handed to the local manager of the London and County Bank was about 10,000, but it is known that many hundreds have by some mysterious process found their way into the hands of local collectors and others.

All the coins are of silver, the majority being silver pennies of Henry III (1216-72.) There were also a few hundred silver pennies of King John, and about a couple of hundred of William the Lion of Scotland and his son, Alexander II. At least one silver penny of William the Conqueror or William II, was found, as well as a curious coin, probably of foreign origin, bearing the words "Sancta Colonia." There were no coins of Henry I. or of Stephen, but a certain number are said to belong to the second issue of Henry II. The mint marks are very varied.

A few days after the find the borough Coroner (H. G. Elwes) took possession on the treasure, and on July 10 he held an "inquest" upon it in the Colchester town hall. The jury found that the coins were "treasure trove," and they were thereupon claimed on behalf of the Crown by the chief constable for Colchester. They have since been forwarded to the treasury. It is assumed that the finders will receive rewards, and that the authorities of the British museum and other national collections will have the pick of the coins. When this has been done it is believed that the remainder will be returned to Colchester to be deposited in the museum there.

From the absence of any gold coins and of any subsequent to the reign of Henry III., the London Sphere says it may be assumed that this hoard was buried before the year 1272, probably about the year 1260. Colchester seems to have been in an undisturbed state at this period and there is no particular reason to suppose that any sensational history attaches to the money. It was probably part of the belongings of some rich merchant or tradesman, hidden underground for safety after the manner of those times when no banks were in existence.

This portion of the estate doubtless escaped discovery by his executors and heirs. The face value of the coins is about £50, but their purchasing power would have been equal to that of about £4,000 or £5,000. The present "antiquarian value" of the coins is considerably over $5,000.

Mr. W. J. Baptise has completed his contract for building the school on the 8th concession of Smith, about a mile and a half from Lakefield, and it was opened for the first time on Monday. The building is a handsome brick structure, 27x43 feet, with a porch front, 8x12 feet. The floor is made of hardwood, and is a substantial one, the ceiling being finished in natural wood. A belfry has been placed on the roof [illegible] will shortly be installed. [illegible] placed his contract [illegible] manner, [illegible]

THE COMING FUEL

The Oshawa Vindicator draws a dark picture of what would happen to the business of Ontario in case of the failure—from any course—of the coal supply, and says:

Is there a remedy — any substitute for fuel? Thank God there is.

Between the mouth of the Ottawa and the Lake of the Woods there are three hundred rivers in Ontario. And every one of these rivers flows down a slope with such rapids and falls as could furnish unlimited power with which to generate heat, which can be transmitted fully two hundred miles.

These rivers were very likely busy flowing in grandeur and beauty among the picturesque forests of our beautiful Ontario before Grandpa Adam cut up his foolish didos in the garden of Eden, and they will most likely flow on till time shall cease to be.

Greater than all, and vastly more accessible than all flows Niagara. Its strength defies imputation.

Each cataract and fall on every one of these hundreds of rivers holds out a standing challenge to the genius of man to undertake the development of marvelous strength.

The day is coming shortly when nearly every factory in Canada, aye, and the United States will be turned by power from some water fall.

But the point we wish to make just now is that Ontario is peculiarly isolated from coal fields. At the same time she has more water falls and cataracts than any other country on the earth. Water power can be used to generate heat. Soon war or scarcity of fuel in the United States may cut off our present precarious supply.

We have no desire to make a point for our political party out of this matter, but it can be justly and truly said that the provincial government is doing nothing in the matter of developing power for this or other purposes.

ON SOME WEAPONS OF WAR

Mr. Joubert Reitz, a son of the State Secretary of the former Transvaal Republic and a soldier in the Boer army, contributes to the Army and Navy Journal an interesting article on some of the weapons used in the South African war. He writes from experience.

Mr. Reitz points out that swords, revolvers, bayonets and lances proved useless almost from the first. He saw a British soldier club his rifle, although the bayonet was fixed; and from this and other experiences, deduces that the bayonet, as a weapon of offence, is of little value. The revolver, in his opinion, is also of little value. Naval regulations prescribe an attack by sailors with cutlass in the right hand, revolver in the left. The scores made recently by revolver experts at Sea Girt do not indicate that much of value can be predicated on a revolver fired with the left hand, while the right hand is cutting and thrusting with a cutlass. Mr. Reitz says that the revolver is a good weapon for cavalry, and continues: "But I think very much the same of it as did the German officer who said that the best way to use it was to throw it at the first enemy you met, for then you might hurt him and you rid yourself of an impediment at the same time." For all practical military purposes, we think the revolver may follow the sword.

Mr. Reitz likes the Mauser rifle. It is simpler than the Krag-Jorgensen, used by our army, and by many of the foreign troops in the Boer army, and is loaded more rapidly. The latest model Krag, however, used by us may now be loaded with a clip, as the Mauser rifle is; and by so much the difference between the two rifles is lessened.

Mr. Reitz favors the French Creusot field pieces over the Krupp guns, as having a longer range; the latter, however, he reports excellent, except in other respects. Of a gun that attained great fame during the war, he writes: "The pom-pom, as the Bom-Maxim is commonly called, is the most devilish invention of the times, not only on account of the damage it does, but its moral effect is tremendous. It fires twenty-five one-pound shells in about thirty seconds, which scatter over an area of about a hundred yards square. * * * Nevertheless, these guns like all other Maxims, rarely do any real damage; as they seldom have the chance to fire into a company of men in close order. If they could do this, the slaughter would be terrible."

Mr. Reitz's view in general is that the British equipment was poor; the Lee-Metford small arm not the equal of either the Mauser or the Krag-Jorgensen, and the artillery wofully antiquated.

THE DOMINION SUIT BY MANITOBA

Claims are Made by the Province of Manitoba for Large Sums

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 21.—The government of Manitoba has entered two suits in the Exchequer Court here against the Dominion Government. One is to recover $150,000, said to be due the province by the Dominion when the latter held under its jurisdiction the administration of the swamp lands of the province, and the other is to replace to the credit of of the provincial authorities $133,406 which was written off by the Ottawa Government in 1885.

In 1885 Sir John Macdonald was in power at Ottawa and the Honorable John Norquay was premier of Manitoba. A delegation came here from Winnipeg asking for better terms for Manitoba. It was hinted at that time in the West that if better treatment was not accorded the province it would be to the interests of the latter to get out of confederation. The provincial legislature instructed the delegation appointed to interview the Dominion Government to insist upon certain things, including the adjustment of the capital account decennially, the right of the province to charter railways leading to the south and a variety of other matters. What was received fell far short of what the Norquay Government demanded and before they were obtained the local government had to give a quit claim up to 1885 for all claims it had against the Canadian Government up to that year. Notwithstanding this agreement, the province now thinks that it can recover the sum of $110,235 which was then at the credit of the provincial capital account and which was written off. Interest to July, 1901, makes the amount of the suit $133,406.

It will be remembered that the year 1885 was a remarkable one in the history of the province. That was the year of the rebellion. There is no doubt but that trouble was the outcome of the mismanagement of Western affairs by the Ottawa authorities. As a matter of fact, the commission that was appointed after the rebellion to look into the claims and grievances of the settlers awarded more than was expected and recommended more than was asked for in the first instance in the bill of grievances. It was early in that year that the leading newspaper of the West described the people leaving the country with a curse. These and other matters will probably be recalled when the suit is being heard. It is somewhat difficult to see how the province can repudiate the agreement which it then entered into, no matter

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

ly dowagers at the Duke of Clarence's. "Mrs. Gray says she has never known you to leave her in the lurch before. And that it should happen to-day, too, when you are the sensation of the hour, and we were all dying to gaze upon you, to see if you're changed! It was really too bad of you to keep us in suspense so long."

"Oh, please, Miss Duplessis!" half whispered Mrs. Gray, who sat near the handsome middle-aged actress. "Please let us not raise that subject again now. By the way, Winnie"—in a louder voice, which strove to be playful—"we have been laughing over a competition in a penny weekly paper as to who is the most popular actress on the stage. We never even heard of the paper, I'm afraid, much less the competition; but it seems you've won the prize. A pair of earrings. What a pity you don't wear them!"

So the evil moment was tided over. But never had time dragged with such terrible slowness for Winifred. She talked of one thing and thought of another. Grim fancies were in her mind. She imagined herself trying to borrow money from these people—these, who called themselves her friends, and who came in crowds to-day because they had heard something about her—she would not know what until they were out of the house. Was there one who would make a sacrifice to help her and her mother? Her eyes traveled from face to face, and she saw not one man or woman to whom she would choose to go if she were starving. They all looked sleek and well-fed, and they did not know what it was to wonder in fear and misery how future necessities were to be supplied. They were only acquaintances, not friends. She told herself bitterly that she and her mother had no friends.

CHAPTER XI.

The Letters.

It was half-past six when the last rustle of the last smart gown was heard in the drawing-room of the Grays' little flat. Winifred murmured: "Thank Heaven," when she had smiled her last smile, and could fly back from the door, to which she had escorted a gossiping old lady.

"Mother, dear, what is this dreadful bugbear that somebody's been frightening you with?" she had begun, when the stillness of the small figure reclining with closed eyes on the sofa struck at her heart. She left her question unfinished and moved swiftly, breathlessly, from the door to the lounge. The strain endured for hours had been too much for Mrs. Gray, and she had fainted.

It was not until her forehead and hands had been bathed with eau-de-Cologne, and smelling-salts held to her nostrils, that she opened her eyes, and many minutes passed before she was able to speak. But her first words were: "Oh, Winnie, how much of it is true—how much have you been keeping from me?"

"Must we talk about it now?" the girl asked. "Mayn't we wait till you're better?"

"I can't be better until I know the whole truth about my dearest one," Mrs. Gray whispered. "I shall be all right—propped up by these pillows. That awful Miss Duplessis—she gave me the most terrible shock. And everybody had read it in the paper. That's why they came—in such droves, I know. To—spy out the nakedness of the land."

"Everybody had read what?" echoed Winifred.

"Don't you know, dear? Has no officious person done you the same kindness Miss Duplessis did me and shown you a copy of the 'Evening Impressionist'?"

Involuntarily Winifred's hand tightened on her mother's. It was known in theatrical as well as in journalistic circles that Lionel Macaire had lately bought that extremely sensational paper, the "Evening Impressionist."

"I haven't seen any paper to-day," she answered, with dry lips. "I've been—too busy. What did the 'Impressionist' say? Something about—me?"

"It's here, in this room, darling. Perhaps you had better read it for yourself—and yet—I can't bear that you should have to see it. It's not so much what it says, as what it implies."

"Tell me, dear," pleaded the girl. "I don't want to let your hands go."

"It is almost too hateful to speak of. There was a hint that there had been a sensational occurrence at the Duke of Clarence's Theater, that a 'scandal' was threatened, following a young and popular actress's elopement with a man of high position. And then, after veiled suggestions, to save itself, no doubt, from being sued for libel, it added that Miss Winifred Gray's connection with Mr. Anderson's company had been suddenly severed, Miss Henrietta Cotter taking her place as Lady Kitty in 'The Green Sunbonnet,' and also playing Celia in the forthcoming production of 'As You Like It.' Those were the words as nearly as I can remember them, and, of course, my dearest, I don't need to tell you that I know the first part is the most wicked fabrication; but the last—Miss Duplessis told the room that you were not at rehearsal, that your understudy rehearsed your part, and that Mr. Anderson said——"

"What did Mr. Anderson say?" broke in Winifred, passionately. "What did he dare to say?"

"Merely that he 'regretted your connection with his company had come to an end.' Everyone was astonished and excited, Miss Duplessis took pains to inform us, and somehow the most mysterious and romantic rumors were started, nobody exactly knew how. She remembered that this was our 'day,' and determined to come up. And on the way, apparently, she bought this horrid paper, which seemed only to have whetted her ghoulish curiosity. Oh, I thought I should have to faint before them all, in the midst of the chatter about 'how you would be missed at the theater,' how people would 'boycott' Mr. Anderson if he really had treated you badly, and all sorts of wild things. But I tried so hard to keep up—and I did, till it was over, thank Heaven! Words grew to be meaningless to me before those cruel creatures went. I didn't know what I said myself, or what others said. It was just a babel of sound, breaking on my ears like a ceaseless tide. What is true, darling? Have you left the theater?"

"Yes," said Winifred, in a low, tired voice. And then, kneeling by her mother's side, she told her all the story—for it was best to keep back nothing now; and even the strange incident of the cab, which seemed to gain a new
